Day Care Centre Fills Real Need

With increasing numbers of mothers entering Canada's work force, the problem of what to do with junior is an ever-present one which is rapidly being answered by the introduction of day care centres.

But finding enough daytime nannies to man these centres is another problem altogether.

Last week, the Canada Manpower Centre in Belleville, joined forces with the Family YMCA to initiate just such a program, with a full - time supervisor, four part-time assistants, a pool supervisor, a carpenter and a cleaner.

A grant of $9,661 under the federal government's Local Initiatives Program provides funds for the training and wages of the supervisors and other employees, plus food and equipment for the tiny set.

The supervisors who put in full and half days on a rotating basis, are in a perfect position to learn about child care. They have to, with 14 youngsters to care for.

There are paint sets and easels, toys and games, piles of wooden blocks, lots of soap for tiny fingers to play in while cleaning up the dishes, and when the children need it most, cots for that quick nap which is such a relief, at times, for the trainees, are available.

Mrs. Wendy Turner, a graduase from Sir Sandford Fleming's early childhood education program, heads the training project, and is very enthusiastic about its future.

"Part-time workers have a real problem finding someone to care for the children. The mothers often change shifts, and they can't rely on sitters on this basis."

Each youngster gets at least one hot meal and two cold snacks during the day, with K-P duty shared by the five supervisors. The meals are prepared, following diet plans set down by the Canada Food Guide.

A games room has been partitioned off at the family centre on Victoria Avenue, but the toddlers can also use the pool and the upstairs gymnasium. Fun in the outdoors also plays a role in the daily activities. Bundled warmly from toes to eyes, with noses running as a matter of course, squads of wee folk can be seen at regular intervals, taking to the cold drifts for as long as they, and their nannies can stand it.

"It's a perfect opportunity for both the mothers and the trainees", Mr. Turner said during a recent interview. "The mothers only pay $15 for a full, five-day week and the people enrolled in the program get $75 per week. They can work six-hour shifts, from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from noon until 6 p.m."

When the course finishes in May, each of the trainees will be armed with invaluable experience which will fare them well when applying for jobs in regular day care centres.

As Mrs. Turner points out, most centres these days are looking for employees with some experience.

Will this experimental program continue?

Teaching Methods To Be Discussed

TRENTON (Staff) — Those concerned about the problems of integrating exceptional children into regular classrooms will have an opportunity to hear an authoritative discussion tonight when a noted Toronto educator probes this topic at a meeting here.

Betty Beattie, assistant coordinator of special education for Toronto board of education, in her address to the Quinte Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, will use several audio-visual aids in her presentation that begins at the Lions Hall here at 8 p.m.

The sister of Belleville physician Dr. W. B. Beattie will outline various arguments for and against segregation into special classes and schools of children with learning difficulties.

The speaker is a graduate of the University of Toronto and took post-graduate training at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

A New Depth For Toddlers

Andras Resigns Labor Position

TRENTON (Staff) — Robert Andras, who for the past two and a half years has served as president of the Quinte District Labor Council, Tuesday announced his resignation.

Citing time-consuming duties on two other committees as his reason, Mr. Andras told a meeting of council in Trenton that he would continue to represent Local 497 of the Firefighters Union on the council.

His vacancy was filled with the promotion of Reg Loader of Belleville from first vice-president. William Lafferty of Trenton, who was next in Mr. Loader on the executive, becomes sole vice-president. Joe Wilson of Campbellford remains treasurer.

Should the executive board deem it necessary, another election will be held at the next general meeting March 14. Last election was in November, 1971.

Mr. Andras is currently active as a labor spokesman on the Family Planning Council and the labor management advisory committee of Loyalist College. He has been president since the Belleville and Trenton labor councils amalgamated in 1969 to form the Quinte District council.

Terming Mr. Andras an "aggressive" president, Mr. Loader said the two of them had made an effective team.

Big Swing In Temperatures

TWEED (Special) — What a difference a few miles and a few feet in elevation can mean in overnight temperatures!

This was indicated by Tuesday night's temperatures throughout the Tweed district when a low of 19 below zero was recorded at Plevna, while less than 25 miles away at Tweed, the reading was two above.

North Front Street TENANCIES

Now is the time to talk business for the leasing of ultra modern office space in a building my principals will construct on a prime site on North Front street in April or early May.

In order to make the highest and best use of this premium priced land — the owners plan to build a structure with capacity over and above their own use.

The additional space will be planned to meet the specific requirements of individual professionals and business firms.

Planning information on the number of square feet of floor space and other specific tenant requirements is desired as soon as possible for estimation of potential capacity and lease agreements.

In addition to the benefits of ever increasing passing trade this demand will be greatly augmented by the needs of an estimated permangnt population of 5,000 to 10,000 new home owners and tenants who will occupy the developing acreage of the surrounding Parkdale and North Park street in coming years.

An Industry's Future

What are the prospects for an overall improvement in the fishing industry in Ontario? Well, there is optimism at least according to statements by government leaders of late.

Changes — not yet spelled out — may be in the offing, the Ontario Council of Commercial Fisheries was told by Premier Davis in Toronto recently. The premier said the government wants to be as helpful as possible in developing a strong fishing industry. There are difficulties, he added, but there is a feeling of optimism.

As if to confirm the government's good intentions, the new minister of lands and forests, Leo Bernier, told delegates his office will be open to hear of any problems in the commercial fishing business.

Excellent! However, if we are to see a new deal for fishermen it will mean holding the government to its word, not to mention more stringent control over pollution. The meeting heard from a government scientist (Dr. Donald Hurley) that experiments are under way in the Bay of Quinte to determine possible cures for excess nutrient enrichment of water from municipal and agricultural sources.

"To maintain fish we must be able to control their environment to a much greater extent than ever before," he said.

That there is a long way to go before such control is achieved is evident from an article in the current issue of Weekend magazine by Peter Martyn. Here we are made aware of the terrible reality of pollution as it affects gaspy fishermen who pursue their ancient vocation in the face of this scourge and economic vicissitudes.

We learn from them that during the 20s fishing was a big industry, but lake trout have fallen victim to the lamprey and while the whitefish still run in the fall it is greatly reduced in numbers. For several years in the late 50s the female whitefish were sterile — for reasons either unknown or unstated. Said one of the men, Lid Haggart, "It could have been the DDT or fallout or almost anything."

His guests out-scorned the lake trout as not "where man has never set foot" (isn't that an intriguing factor in this vast land?) have revealed fish with mercury content "way over the 'allowable' limit . . ." The mercury, he said, could have been there for a hundred years, perhaps since time immemorial.

In any event, it is encouraging to observe this stepped-up government interest in the welfare of the fishermen and in the progress of their industry. It is of significance to those in the industry locally as well as farther afield.

Hazardous Roads

If Highway 401 is in treacherous condition since last week's snowfall — as confirmed by motorists and truckers — the entire district is in varying degree similarly affected.

There is a great deal of hard-packed snow on road surfaces and it seems to us that some areas have been completely neglected by sand crews.

If there was sand on the Bay Bridge road and on the causeway for example, over the weekend, it must have been quickly scattered by traffic, for on Monday morning the road surface was still one of hard-packed snow fur the most part.

It invites for hazardous driving, especially when some sports seem completely oblivious to the dangers and drive at speeds far in excess of what is safe for the conditions.

Whatever the reluctance of road crews in getting out and doing this necessary job, it should be remedied. One problem seems to be a conflict of responsibility — as between city, township, county and department of transport — not transportation and communications as the latter is now styled.

Each should know its area of responsibility and spare no pains to make the roads safe.

Silver Medallist

Congratulations to Canada's Karen Magnussen on her silver medal in the Olympic figure skating competition. She may have been lucky at that, for behind her was Janet Lynn of the United States; the 18-year-old Los Angeles girl a performer of classic grace rated by some as the best free skater in the world, took a fall which certainly went against her. Gold medallist Beatrix Schuba meanwhile is no poet of motion as a free skater; however the tall and attractive Austrian girl knows her Fs and Qs as it were, and it was her earlier faultless performance in the compulsory figures which won the day.

Common Market—Now Northern Ireland

"No Retreat From Responsibility" Is Heath's Creed

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — The Northern Ireland crisis, after paralysing the effectiveness of the Stormont administration, has hardened and spread until it poses a direct challenge to the philosophy underpinning Prime Minister Heath's approach to a revival and renewal of Britain's world role.

In a sense, if Heath's policies fail in Northern Ireland, the failure may weaken his determination in other critical areas where his rigid posture of "no retreat" forms the basis of his political faith, even to the point of rejection of pleas from his own supporters for a greater demonstration of flexibility.

Heath believes that yielding to pressures—against a leader's judgment of what may be best for the country—led to Britain's weaknesses in the past, to a fall from a powerful world position and to corrosion of economic strength.

Stubborn persistence in pursuit of predetermined positions and principles led to his victory in the 1970 general election, he believes. Opinion-testers had a written him off. He proved them wrong. The victory appeared to add to his conviction not to be swayed or tempted simply by the prospect of immediate popularity.

Perhaps no issue illustrated the rigidity of his political faith as his European Common Market membership policy. Great battles still loom in Parliament over the detailed acceptance treaty.

British sovereignty is a deeply sensitive issue. Some of his supporters tremble when considering the community struggle over legislation whereby Common Market law must be made to prevail over British law.

But it is almost an accepted fact that with Heath there will be "no retreat from responsibility." The prospect that opponents are likely to hit a stone wall in trying to force him to compromise probably adds to the prospect of his final victory.

But Northern Ireland is a different matter. Heath's expressed determination to uphold the British Islands no retreat position appears to have added to political inflexibility, arousing emotions and passions which have spread around the world.

His determination likely is based on the conviction that since the Stormont Protesants have been elected by a majority of Northern Ireland citizens there can be no collusion with the IRA terrorists who resort to the heightened guerrilla warfare and mounting deaths is to strengthen police action; to demonstrate in military fashion that British Islands no retreat from its responsibilities.

In effect, the prime minister is in direct collision with the outlawed but ever-present Irish Republican Army.

In its many acts of violence, the IRA has proven it may have more than a match for the Stormont administration. The question is whether it will force Heath to retreat from his North Ireland policies under the pressure of violence and international opinion.

Growing Influence of Committee System

From The Queen's Park Bureau of The Intelligencer
By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — In one of those contradictions which add to the spice of life, we in Ontario are getting into a curious situation regarding the United States.

On the one hand we hear more and more preaching against U.S. ownership and U.S. domination of our culture and society.

But, on the other hand, we slowly and very quietly are moving more and more towards the U.S. political system.

There are two significant elements in the U.S. congressional system so far as we are concerned.

One is that the executive is non-elected and is not directly responsible to Congress.

The second is that the individual elected representatives have strong powers, particularly through committee system.

There is little chance that we now, or perhaps ever, will adopt the non-elected, non-responsible executive system.

But we definitely are moving towards a strong committee system, with more and more stature for the elected members.

Our members have been claiming now for years, with increasing loudness, that they are neglected.

But gradually their position has been getting stronger.

This has been because successive governments and leaders have been placing increasing emphasis on committees.

Except for private bills, which had to approve legislation of local municipalities, the standing committees would meet once or twice a session, go through some semi-routine for nalities, and never be heard of again.

Then, however, they began to be given some function and stature.

Particularly, they were given the responsibility of reviewing legislation—and along with this the power of amending it.

My guess is that this stature and function is now to be extended.

Premier William Davis has said he has been concerned that private members don't have enough importance and enough opportunity to contribute. And he has said he has plans to do something about this.

My speculation is, and it, of course, is only a speculation, that he will make committees an integral part of the machinery of our government, possibly, if one direction, by appointing permanent chairmen (as is done in the U.S.), giving them their own staff of experts and broader powers of investigation than they now have.

Though this would be heading towards the U.S. system, there would be a difference. Particularly elected members, who wouldn't say it is a forward step.

Donald Deacon A Possible Liberal Leader

From The Queen's Park Bureau of The Intelligencer
By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — There's getting to be quite a bit of talk about the Liberal leadership convention and it shapes up as an interesting show—even though we don't know as yet just when it will be.

And coming on strong in the seattle-butt is a name you may not have heard too often—Donald Deacon, member for York Centre.

Don Deacon starts with at least one thing going for him or against him: he is different.

He is a big, Hollywood handsome, former investment dealer, with an equally handsome family, a House and Garden farm home on the outskirts of Toronto and the wealth to support them all, he is a type that is seldom seen in Canadian politics, unless they have been seduced into the federal field with the promise of a cabinet job.

Politics has little attraction to such men. And to find one of them voluntarily throwing himself in heart and soul is extraordinary.

But Deacon is extraordinary beyond this.

But most of all he is unusual for approach.

He isn't the old-time politician. He doesn't take the position that everybody on the other side is dishonest, stupid or dealing from partisanship.

He approaches any subject from the position that there is room for improvement and then says what he thinks could be done, basing it on hard reasoning.

After one term in the house he has developed himself as an expert stature in the fields of municipal affairs, transportation, finance and planning. And he's left the impression he could grasp any other area quite quickly.

Also he has done impressive work behind the scenes in organizing for the party. He' selected many of the candidates for the past election.

And though most were beaten they did well in the best groups the Grits have fielded.

As a potential leader there are two questions about him, however.

One is whether he can sell the public. He is quite different from the razzle-dazzle type so many people look for in superb governments.

The second is that he is middle-of-the-road. And will the Liberals in convention accept this?

Congo Missionary's Widow Returns

The missionary effort of Christian churches, taken together and not looked upon as individual effort by relatively limited church organizations, some of which have rather narrow aims, represents a vast attempt to bring Western religious ideas and scientific technology to native peoples.

Sitting in Judgment

Yorkshire Post

After all, does not the United Nations spend most of its time (and money) discussing Rhodesia, South Africa, South - West Africa, apartheid and Portuguese colonialism, while studiously avoiding sensitive subjects of equally pressing importance to oppressed peoples? Just look at some of the countries which have volunteered to prepare a draft resolution on Rhodesia. They include Sudan, whose genocidal war against the southern Negroes stirred the United Nations not at all. And Guinea, whose record even in the pages of the staid review of the International Commission of Jurists reads like something out of a parsnips?

Mailmen Balked

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

What a surprise to learn that our Belleville postmen are allergic to snow!

Judged from the way they wade through it across lawns on delivery rounds, one would have thought they gloried in it.

What was the objection to a Saturday delivery to compensate for the lost Friday —which presumably was not lost as a pay day?

Garbage and Its Disposal

From the Queen's Park Bureau of The Intelligencer
By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — It is somewhat fitting that one of the first stories of this new year should have been about an apparently bold decision to send masses of trains with masses of garbage to a massive dump in northern Ontario.

Fitting not because Northern Ontario is a fitting place to receive garbage or because of any thought that this may turn into a garbage pile.

No, fitting rather because this probably is not so wild a dream, and because it is probably the first of a series of what once would have been wild dreams which we will see become reality, particularly in transportation.

A problem that is already acute in some areas, it is recognized that it is on the way to becoming critical and plans, or at least studies, are underway to try and meet it.

Government research people have been at work now for a considerable time looking at new approaches that might be taken.

They all are being looked at. And the only real question is what's next!

Well, the garbage, thafact is that it is there, it has to be gotten rid of, more and more there are no disposal sites near the big centres, and so it has to be carried distances.

And trains? When you look at it, why not?

The thought of doing this with trains at first is a bit astonishing.

But if really isn't so radical.

New York city, for instance, has been getting rid of its garbage for years in barges. Taking it well out into the Atlantic and dumping it.

It's likely we will see our garbage trains.

As for the areas on the receiving end. It's not a nice thought you're going to be a dump for other people's garbage.

But after the initial stage it shouldn't be too bad.

Any areas selected will certainly be as remote as possible from communities. With modern land-fill methods the sites eventually can actually add to the natural attractiveness. And it can be taken as certain that any government dumping garbage in an area will make certain there is some recompense for it.

Incidentally, it is not likely there would be a dump in northern Ontario for a long, long time.

Suitable waste lands in southern Ontario would be the first choice.

Blizzard Duties Concern Council

MARMORA (Special) — Concern for the safety and health of township employees who have been working since a day during the March 1971 past week prompted a lengthy discussion at the Marmora and Lake Township Council meeting on Saturday afternoon, as the council sought a solution to the problem.

Because it was the feeling of the council that snowplowing equipment should be used 24 hours a day during emergencies, council considered hiring temporary help to supplement the five employees and placing the men on shifts.

Road superintendent Albert Leonard reported that all roads in the townships were open and he felt the situation was under control, provided another big storm did not arrive too soon.

Approval has been given to the municipality's application for $13,600 in winter works money and will enable the council to proceed with several projects they have in mind.

Two applications for land severances were approved, and may now go before the Land Division Committee —

A letter from the department of lands and forests reminded council that fire warden for the 1972 season should be appointed by March 15.

Council received notice from the department of transportation and communications that approval has been given for a $28,336 road bylaw for 1972.

Reeve Wilkes brought council up to date on the situation regarding the proposed waste disposal site for Marmora Village and the Township which is being protested by Mr. and Mrs. George White, owners of a nearby trailer camp.

An unsuccessful search for another site in the township having been carried out by the committee application has now been made to the department of energy and resources, waste management branch for a permit to proceed with the present property under consideration.

Council approved a wolf bounty payment of $15 each for George McGregor, Charlie Barrons and Jim Barrons.

Acting on a suggestion of councillor James Cook, council will seek a meeting with Belmont Township Council to discuss the future of the boundary road north from Cordova to Vansickle Settlement.

A fee of $1 was authorized for a 25-year lease on sufficient land belonging to Murray Empey for a school bus turnaround.

Prospects for a new road to serve developments in Lake Township aren't very promising, Reeve Wilkes reported during discussion on developing tourism in this area. Reeves has made several inquiries into the matter and has received nothing but discouragement from officials.

North Front Accidents Increasing

Traffic accidents along Belleville's fast developing North Front Street have more than doubled in the past three years.

This was indicated at this week's traffic and light committee meeting by Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie as he reported the accident rate for the busy north end thoroughfare for the years 1969, 1970 and 1971. The record did not include the intersection of North Front and College Streets.

According to the chief's report, here were 35 motor vehicle collisions in 1969, 63 in 1970 and 75 last year.

Chief Crosbie said the accident rate in the area was consistent with the increased volume of traffic.

The busy north end arterial route has given rise to a number of complaints about the difficulty being experienced in getting onto North Front Street from some of the intersecting streets.

An over all study of the area is being carried out by the city engineer's department to come up with a solution to the problem.

NDP to Select Candidates

Local New Democrats will select candidates for the pending federal election at a nomination meeting in Belleville next week.

Competing for the nomination in Prince Edward-Hastings riding are Richard Lamb and Ian Reilly. Candidates in Hastings riding are William Kells, Richard Williams and Eldridge Brethour.

Ed Broadbent, MP for Oshawa, will be guest speaker at the 8 p.m. meeting Tuesday at the Kiwanis Centre. Those selected will be the first full-time federal candidates ever nominated by the NDP in this area.

Mr. Lamb, journalist and teacher from Hillier Township in Prince Edward County, ran for Hastings in the recent provincial election, finishing third behind Clarke Rollins and Rev. Ian Munro. Vice-chairman of the journalism department at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute he was a Canadian delegate to a United Nations conference on food and agriculture in The Hague, Netherlands, in 1970.

His opponents Ian Reilly, is no stranger to politics either. He ran provincially in 1963 and has represented the NDP in the last two federal elections. He received the largest vote of any NDP candidate east of Oshawa and Peterborough when he competed against Lee Grills and Robert Temple for the Quinte seat in 1967. A Belleville resident, he is an international representative with the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, CLC.

Hastings candidate William Kells now is studying World Religions and History at Queen's University. He retired from the RCAF in 1967 after serving for 23 years in such posts as Egypt and Cyprus. Long active in the CCF and NDP, he and his family of nine have lived in Deseronto for the past 8 years.

Richard Williams, at 23, is the youngest candidate running Tuesday night. A resident of Mountain View, he holds an MA in psychology from the University of Toronto and teaches at Loyalist College. He has strongly criticized past Liberal and Conservative governments, claiming they are the result of a "misapplication of salesmanship" on the part of big business.

Final candidate is Eldridge Brethour, a Bancroft fuel oil distributor and resident of Cardiff. Politics is somewhat of a tradition in his family, his father, Fred, having run for the CCF in Hastings West in 1959. Treasurer of the Eastern Ontario Co-ordinating Council of Tourist Associations, he is a member of Lodge 462 of Masonic Order.

Public Speaking Contest Friday

The Elementary Oral Communications Festival, formerly known as the Ontario Public Speaking Contest, will be held at College Street Public School in Trenton on Friday, Feb. 11 at 1:30 p.m.

Eight finalists chosen from their respective areas throughout Hastings County will compete in the county finals. Each participant will prepare a talk of not less than three, and not more than five minutes on a particular subject which he has personally researched because it interests him. Talk which has form, but individual character and freedom is to be aimed at rather than the spoken essay.

In order to test the student's powers of personal communication and courteous response there will follow a period of questions and discussion.

The winner of this Festival will qualify for the zone finals to be held at Sir John A. Macdonald School, Belleville on Saturday, February 26 at 1:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend these events.

Non-readers Those Who Complain

VANCOUVER (CP) — The people who get most upset about obscene literature are those who have never read any, an American sociologist says. Dr. Otto Larsen of the University of Washington says most people are interested in pornography only because it is taboo, and if laws against it were removed, its appeal would greatly decline.

Women's Study Courses Taken by Many

It is apt to be a mix of disciplines, part history, part sociology, part literature, plus revolution, socialist as well as feminist, plus the personal experience of all the students and the teacher.

Hundreds of people are taking such courses. The University of British Columbia has almost 700 enrolled in a course on the Canadian Woman. The University of Toronto has 200 in an interdisciplinary class and expects it to expand next year. There are a variety of smaller classes, credit courses for undergraduates and extension courses for all comers.

A sampling in Toronto indicates most of the courses are designed and taught by feminists. Their degree of conviction ranges from plain through radical, but to a woman, they are teaching for the cause.

Joanna Stuckey teaches a tutorial course at York University that examines the attitudes to being male and female that have held in various cultures.

"The theory of the course is that they are not opposites, but complementary.

"I'm interested in doing this kind of course because I'm trained in literature and I'm a feminist.

"But I don't believe in doing what men did, in putting down men. I think it's important to see what this kind of myth has done to men as well as to women. Because they are victims as well as women, they're victims in a way that has given them a better position.

Maggie Hodson-Walker teaches images of women in literature from current popular magazines through the classics. She teaches at extension course to a group she says is 95-per-cent housewives and mothers, and tutorials to a new-fledged college students at York.

She says her aim is to teach about "the oppression of women, learning to define the Barbara Capersen says wryly her classes can be as dull as any other, but agrees they can also start emotional arguments.

"Theories of the family can be very touchy. I think we'd have more arguments if there were more men in the classes, but I don't know if they would be useful arguments.

She and Robin Endres are two of the 20 teaching assistants who teach the interdisciplinary Women in the Twentieth Century course at the University of Toronto.

The course has six main themes—images of women, women in the family, sexuality of women, women in the work force, women in revolution, and the history of the women's movement.

Motives for taking the courses are mixed. Prof. Stuckey says she has two feminist students looking for ammunition. Maggie Hodson-problem and acting on it."

She says she gets more argument from the freshmen than from the older, more experienced women, but still feels the must go a little cautiously with the older group.

"For them a lot of this is threatening analysing marriage and the family, because this is what they're into. I realized a lot of the things I was saying were annihilating things for them. I had to slow down.

"I've used quite a bit of the same material in both groups, but I don't have to be quite so pussy-footed about it with the undergraduates."

Walker says she has two male students looking for girls.

Robin Endres says: "The motives cover a wide range. Some women take the courses to learn about their own oppression.

Some are there because they're doing difficult work in a form in which they could do it in a normal seminar. For instance, some are getting into difficult economic concepts as they apply to women.

"For some it's a kind of refuge where they can discuss their own experiences, such as problems with day care."

Hundred-word Story of Environment

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Sir: "Picture show while man crazy. Cut down trees. Make big tipi. Plough hill. Water wash. Wind blow soil. Grass grow. Deer graze. Window gone. Whole place gone. Buck gone. Squaw gone. Papoose too. No chuck-away. Pigs. No corn. No plough. Boy, die.

"Indian no plough land. Great spirit send grass. Long grass. Buffalo eat grass. Indian eat buffalo. Hide make tipi. Make moccasin. Indian no make terrace. All time eat. No hard job. No hitch Hike. No ask relief. No shoot pig. No build dam. No give dam. Indian waste nothing. Indian is Indian waste nothing. Indian no work. White man crazy."

The above was written by an Indian for a farm journal which offered a prize for the best hundred-word description of the term "ecology" or the building of a large dam. Needless to say this won the prize.

— News and Views, Newfoundland. Department of Social Services and Rehabilitation.

Dear Doris: I am 18 years old and suffered a nervous breakdown because I held so much back.

My childhood was a fairly unhappy one. When my mother and father were killed in an accident, I moved in with relatives. This did more damage than good because my cousin (my 17) seduced me and I took it because I didn't want to move to another home or make trouble.

I hope you won't look at this as a crank letter but I regret to feel that this letter will be read by someone who is not in a position to do anything.

When I started college in September everything hit at once. I was in an all boys class. I was scared to death of them. I thought they were out to get one thing, but it was then they saw I was a nice girl.

I know I should move but lately I've been able to have the upper hand at home. I don't want to cause trouble even though I may be hurt a little more.

The real reason I'm writing this letter is that I fell in love and I know he loves me but I have been fighting him off because I have all these other problems in my life.

— Very Mixed Up.

Dear Very Mixed Up: And you feel that sending me an unsigned letter with all the unhappy details of your childhood will help to relieve you of the burdens you have carried for so long. Is that it?

I have a feeling that with your insight and your courage you will come through.

In growing up years you lacked the love that every girl needs, from loving parents or foster parents. Now you find it hard to accept love when it comes your way.

Remember this: You are a very important person; worthy to love and to be loved. If you completely trust the man you love, make a point of telling him your whole story. This will really clear the decks for you. My best wishes to you for a happy future for a "nice girl".

Dear Doris: I have a friend who is a wonderful wife and mother. But I have seen her husband cheats on her. She stays home and looks after the home and children, also works. And he's away working most of the time, and chasing other women.

But he seems to love her and the children regardless. He's filthyish but he thinks he's a lot younger.

Should I be a tattle tale or should I mind my own business? — Plain Nosy.

Dear Plain Nosy: Mind your own business. She doubtless has her suspicions, and if the situation calls for it will come to a head by itself.

Delivering bad news in a case like this only puts you in wrong with everybody.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CORNELL

Should reading be made easier to learn?

YES. Many people say someone like Abraham Lincoln learned to read despite the handicaps he had to overcome. Yet most human beings, let's face it, are not going to struggle to learn to read under adverse conditions. That doesn't mean there should be any letup in teaching people to read, though. Perhaps someone who has been cozzed to learn to read may read something that will inspire him to be another Lincoln.

Are hippy people happy people?

THEY WOULD like to be, those extraordinarily hippy-as displinished from hippie-people; but many of those who are unhappy as well as overweight are torn with conflict. They justify their heaviness by saying, "What's the crime in being fat?" At the same time, deep down, the heavy individuals either find it hard to enjoy overeating because they wonder if there might not be some truth in the warnings against carrying too much weight.

Does neglect mean a marriage is shaky?

NO, not when there can be a down other reasons a wife or husband neglects to do something that will please a spouse. For instance, if a telephone message isn't relayed, that doesn't signify that his wife is beginning to fall out of love with her husband. Perhaps she simply forgot to tell him who called in an unconscious effort to offset the feeling that she thinks she is being taken for granted.

Family Cooking

Tasty Oriental-style Cuisine

By ALICE DENHOFF

President Nixon will visit China shortly after the celebration of Chinese New Year in 4670 of the lunar calendar. While the world awaits important news, or possibly even results, of this momentous meeting of East and West, why not celebrate the occasion by serving delicious Oriental-style cuisine?

LUNAR LO MEIN

1 peeled cucumber, cut into ¼-inch thick pieces
1 tablespoon horseradish
1 clove garlic, mashed
¼ cup prepared oil and vinegar salad dressing
2 packages (15 ounces each) frozen chicken chow mein, thawed
2 packages (3 ounces each) frozen chicken livers or shrimp chow mein in cooking pouch
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sliced scallions
1 cup cooked peas
1 can (6 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
1 can (13¾ ounces) chicken broth
1 package (8 ounces) vermicelli or spaghetti, cooked and hot
2 tablespoons soy sauce

Combine first four ingredients; chill one hour. Prepare chow mein according to package directions.

In a large skillet, saute scallion until golden. Next add peas, mushrooms, chicken broth and hot chow mein. Stir in soy sauce. Cook and stir to keep hot. Drain cucumbers. Arrange lo mein on a platter or in large casserole. Garnish with "full moon" cucumber slices. Makes about six servings.

STIR-FRIED EGGPLANT AND HAM

1 medium-sized eggplant, unpeeled and cut into ½-inch cubes
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 clove garlic, minced
1 large red onion, cut into rings
1 cup 1-inch cubes smoked ham
½ teaspoon salt
Fresh radishes, optional

In a large skillet, place eggplant in hot oil; add garlic. Saute until eggplant becomes soft and translucent. Add green rings, ham and salt. Fry while stirring, three-four minutes. Add chow mein to ham mixture; stir to blend. Continue cooking until mixture begins to bubble. Serve garnished with a fan of thin radish slices for a pretty effect. To make fan, carefully slice radish through in thin sections. Spread slices gently, being careful not to tear radish.

Yields about six servings.

Ann Landers

This Wife Needs Psychiatric Help

Dear Ann Landers: How can a wife keep her sanity when her husband tells her he can't stand up his mind whether he wants her or another woman? He has asked me to be patient and I'm trying.

We've been married 11 years, no children, and I'm desperate. He dresses up in his best to take her out — always to her place when we have unpaid bills, and makes no bones about it. His sex life is with her and I know it.

If anyone had told me I could live like this I would not have believed it. I pray constantly for the strength to hang on. If I could stop loving him it would be easy. Please, Ann, tell me how to get this man to accept the fact that he needs psychiatric help! — Ky of California.

Dear Ky: Never mind about him. Get some psychiatric help for yourself. A woman who sets herself up for such emotional assault and battery needs to find out why.

Dear Ann Landers: I liked your answer to that high school girl whose boyfriend drank but nothing but beer and therefore was sure he could never be an alcoholic. I've got news for him. I'm 46 years old and have been an alcoholic since I was 15. I'm dry now, thank God, but in all those years I drank nothing but beer. I tried a martin once and it made me sick.

My minimum consumption was six bottles a night—more often nine or 10. I drank at least a case of beer every weekend—usually the quart bottles. I got drunk at home, at parties, at weddings, funerals, conventions, picnics, on my lunch hour—at every opportunity. I told myself for too long that it was only beer and couldn't hurt me. Then one day I woke up with bleeding ulcers.

I'm an arrested alcoholic now and I haven't had so much as a touch a drop of anything that contains alcohol. And this time I mean it. Please keep telling 'em, Ann, until your typewriter ribbon wears out. And then I'll buy you a new one.—Pittsburg's Ex-Beer Drunk.

Dear Pitts: Thanks for the letter—and for the offer. I hope those readers out there who are kidding themselves will get your letter a second thought. Or a third or a fourth.

Dear Ann Landers: Your recent attack on the Other Woman reminded me of the hell I went through for seven years, only the Other Woman in my case was my mother-in-law. Jim and I had never discussed every thing. The only way I could get him to go anywhere on weekend plans was to listen to Jim's daily telephone calls to his mother. I suppose that's why she was not a widow. Her husband died and well—and living with her.

Jim moved out of the house, but his mother's was only two times I lost count. Every time he left, the children went into a tailspin and I had my hands full. When he moved out two years ago, I packed my rest of his clothes, dropped them off at his mother's and told him to stay there. The following year I met the Other Man. We are going to be married in June and I'm happy for the first time in nine of years. P. S. His mother lives in Australia.—A New Weezer.

Dear Weez: At the risk of being coy, I'll repeat myself. Men who are hopelessly hung up on their moms are easy to spot. How come you women don't recognize the Mama Boy before marriage? Congratulations on your second choice. A guy who puts that many rallies between himself and his mother does not have the problem.

Students Given $250 Grant

WINNIPEG (CP) — The University of Manitoba Student Union has granted $250 to two students to study the need and demand for a women's studies credit program on campus.

"It becomes very obvious," said Susan Wood, one of the students, "after even a superficial examination of the university curriculum that not only the historical contribution of women to the development of civilization, but also their present sociological status and psychological condition have been almost totally ignored."

Miss Wood said most academic study is done by men and concentrates on the actions and thoughts of men. "The time is long due that the other half of the species — womankood — be given equal consideration."

She said a series of credit courses in women's studies is envisaged. These courses would be designed to consider the history, social status, psychology, legal role and political activity of women.

Publicity on Redevelopment Plans Withheld in Kitchener

TORONTO (CP) — When do developments become news that should be reported to the public by newspapers, television and radio media?

This ethical question has been raised by a two-part series of stories in The Globe and Mail about the way the news media in Kitchener handled—or did not handle—information about early negotiations for the redevelopment of a downtown block which included the old city hall and a regionally famous farmers' market.

Redevelopment was approved by a plebiscite last December by 58 per cent of those who voted.

In essence, The Globe and Mail says in its articles that the Kitchener-Waterloo Record, a TV station and two radio stations knew about the redevelopment plans well before they were announced publicly, but did not give the news to readers or listeners.

In an editorial today, The Record says it was merely waiting "for the egg to hatch before it tried to describe the chick."

The Globe and Mail says W. D. McGregor, "whose radio and television stations were obviously part of the news blackout," said his stations "bent over backwards" to allow opponents of the redevelopment plan to air their case.

The Globe and Mail says that opponents of the plan would agree.

It also says that once the project had been made public The Record reported opponents' views extensively, including their charges that The Record had suppressed the initial news."

"Even the paper's most trenchant critics . . . do not say the paper withheld information."

The Globe and Mail quotes Record officials as saying reports on the redevelopment during the early stages were not published because advance news might have driven up the price of needed property.

It says The Record was set to publish the story on a Monday, after the redevelopment project was brought into public light at a city council meeting, but had to break the news the previous Friday after it appeared in a student newspaper at the University of Waterloo.

It notes The Record supported the redevelopment editorially and points out connections between civic and business leaders in Kitchener and the developer, Oxlea Investments Ltd.

The Globe and Mail, in an editorial Tuesday when it published the second of its stories, says:

"No matter how good the intentions or how pure the motives—and there is nothing to indicate that any of those involved had anything but Kitchener's best interests at heart—the right of the public to know was flouted and the credibility of the paper and broadcasters involved was diminished."

The Record's editorial says:

"Even if we believe that the merits of the plan outweigh the demerits, we have given at least as much space to the views of those opposed as we have to those in favor. . . .

"The Record has been a resident of Kitchener for a long time. It has always acted in the city's best interests. It will continue to do so."

Abortion Injunction Removed

OTTAWA (CP) — An injunction restraining a married woman from getting an abortion was removed by an Ontario Supreme Court justice Tuesday, apparently enabling the woman to seek a therapeutic abortion.

The interim injunction was issued Jan. 26, the day she was to have an abortion, at the request of her husband on behalf of himself and the "infant plaintiff" as the 17-week-old fetus was described in court documents.

Last week lawyers Arthur Cogan and Richard Addelman began action on behalf of the wife to have the injunction rescinded. They and the husband's lawyer, David Dehler, arrived prepared for battle Tuesday. But what Mr. Justice W. D. parker termed "a family affair" was ironed out in his chambers and the details were not announced.

"I'm very pleased with the result," Mr. Cogan said later. However lawyers for neither side would say whether or not the action Tuesday means the woman can get an abortion.

The husband's writ seeking a permanent injunction was adjourned indefinitely, with the stipulation that one days' notice accompany action by either side.

A permanent injunction would require a trial and Mr. Cogan said the unborn child would be in kindergarten by the time the court's crowded docket allowed a trial.

Mr. Justice Parker emphasized in court that a judicial decision hadn't been made and no precedent had been set. "The parties had settled their dispute in an agreeable way."

Women Ask Abortion Law Change

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Ad Hoc Committee on the Status of women told Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey Tuesday that abortion should be a private matter between a woman and her physician.

The committee, representing 41 national organizations, told the minister in a brief that all sections of the Criminal Code dealing with abortion should be repealed.

It said abortion should be equally available to all Canadian women and counselling services should be provided. But abortion should continue to be regarded as an undesirable method of birth control.

While Mr. Mackasey later described the meeting as "a very fruitful 2½ hours," he said he was not prepared to make promises as to possible changes in abortion laws.

Swimmers' Pool Saved

The Ontario Water Resources Commission had planned to build such a plant near a park and 200 feet upstream from the only children's swimming hole in this village 10 miles southwest of Galt.

Villagers, criticized the proposed location and Tuesday Reeve Mrs. Allen Pole said the OWRC has advised her its consulting engineers will seek another site.

Wampum Belts Still Missing

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP reported Tuesday that it had made no progress so far in the case of the missing wampum belts.

The belts were made in the early 17th century and record the 117 articles of the constitution of the Iroquois Confederacy of the Six Nations.

Miles Mitchell from the St. Regis Reserve near Cornwall, threatened last week to lead a band of Mohawks in raids on RCMP headquarters and the Museum of Man to recover the belts, said to have been seized in the 1920s by the Indian affairs department.

Union Members 'Fed up'

Airport Technicians Say Pact to Maintain Services Is Off

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking airport technicians in Montreal said Tuesday they consider an agreement with the federal treasury board to maintain vital services is no longer valid because it is being broken by the employer.

Lucien Garant, Montreal vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said his members are "fed up" with being asked to perform non-vital jobs not stipulated in the agreement.

The union was not asking the men to leave their jobs yet, he said, but if they did there would be no service at all of vital radar, navigational and communications equipment.

About 1,200 union members employed by the transport department walked out Sunday in their contract dispute with the federal government but a prior agreement with the government kept 466 technicians at work to service vital equipment across Canada.

So far, the technicians' strike has had minimal effects on air travel in the country.

Mr. Garant said 16 union members in Montreal were designated to maintain the vital equipment. But they have also been asked to do other jobs such as changing and repairing the magnetic tape which records pilots' conversations with air traffic controllers and repairing the public address system.

Mr. Garant said these functions were not designated in the agreement and the designated men have refused to perform the tasks.

VANCOUVER (CP) — It was business as usual at Vancouver International Airport early today, but at least a partial shutdown was expected later following a request by 10 unions representing airport employees that members stop crossing picket lines set up by striking technicians.

Leaders of the 10 unions pledged full support to the technicians, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, in their contract dispute with the federal government.

The "Don't cross" edict was to take effect at midnight, but a spokesman for Air Canada said early today that company employees were crossing the picket line and working normally.

A spokesman for the airport administration said no services had been curtailed, "as of yet."

Services that could be affected should the union members refrain from crossing picket lines included aircraft maintenance, food, gift shop and news stand services, limousine and taxi service and air freight.

Meanwhile, Pacific Western Airlines was scheduled to appear in court today to apply for an injunction to stop what the airline termed illegal picketing by the technicians.

'Deplorable' UIC Action Is Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Paul Godfrey, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto social services committee, said in an interview Tuesday that the Unemployment Insurance Commission treats people in a "deplorable" manner and he asked Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey to meet with him to discuss the situation.

Mr. Godfrey, a controller in the Borough of North York, said people are "treated like cattle" at the Toronto unemployment insurance office.

"A lot of people who are qualified to receive benefits are not receiving them. It is a problem that must be rectified."

He said he had received hundreds of complaints from persons who were not able to contact the commission by telephone. Mr. Godfrey said he also tried to contact the commission by phone and got only a busy signal for 1½ days.

"At last I got a recording saying all the lines were busy and would I please wait."

He said he then talked to a commission official, who wouldn't give his name, saying it was commission policy.

"I was given the cold shoulder until I told them I was an elected official, then they really treated me properly.

"I say that nobody should be treated that way. It's a ghastly way to treat people."

June Vote Expected In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament Hill's consensus is that there will be a general election in June.

That would be four years to the month since Prime Minister Trudeau gave Canada its first majority government in six years.

Liberal party strategists said Tuesday they are inclined to rule out a sudden election call when the new session of Parliament begins Feb. 27.

Some opposition MPs have been predicting that Mr. Trudeau might dissolve Parliament for an April or May election immediately after the Feb. 27 presentation of the speech from the throne, an outline of government legislation for the session.

One Liberal party spokesman said the cabinet has been working too hard on new legislation to throw all the results away with a snap election call next week. There would be time at least for orderly presentation of this legislation in the Commons.

Another political adviser to the Liberals said Mr. Trudeau would not deliberately cramp his campaign style by subjecting the country—and himself—to chill election stumping in February, March and April.

Mr. Trudeau's style is the big open-air meeting, particularly at shopping centres.

Hull Man Gets New Larnyx

OTTAWA (CP) — Herve Landry, a 61-year-old Hull man, can speak for the first time in two years.

Held against the throat and operated by a finger-switch control, the artificial larnyx transmits vibrations into the lower end of the vocal tract.

The vibrations are formed into speech by use of the tongue, lips and teeth in the same way a normal speaker produces sounds.

The quality of the sounds is somewhat mechanical, but skilful use of a pitch-control lever makes this less noticeable.

"Mr. Landry can probably achieve sentence intelligibility of 97 per cent or more with practice," said a Bell Canada official.

'Play It Again Sam' Says Taxman

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal revenue branch is capitalizing on a recent wave of nostalgia by reaching into Hollywood history to tell Canada's 9.25 million taxpayers to make out their income tax returns this year just as they did last year.

"Play it again, Sam . . . the old way," said Humphrey Bogart to his piano-playing friend in Casablanca, and the branch says confused T-1 tollers should do the same.

Tax returns filed this spring are for income received during the 1971 calendar year. Tax reform legislation passed in December is effective only on income earned after Jan. 1 this year.

But returns are already flowing into the computerized taxation data centre here and confusion between the old and new is causing problems.

They have done such a good job of explaining the implications of the new law, now they have to tell everyone to ignore the massive publicity when filing their 1971 return.

Bill Musgrove, revenue information officer, says 2.2 million returns have errors in a normal year and an even greater number is expected this year.

The Bogart takeoff theme is to be carried in daily and weekly newspapers across the country. The campaign will be carried to New Canadians in 18 languages other than French and English.

Television and radio spots are to take the biggest bite of the $447,000 campaign.

Opening lead — king of spades.

There are no magic rules to guide you to the best opening lead, and often the wrong choice will produce a disastrous result.

Consider this deal where South got to six clubs doubled. Perhaps East should have opened with three spades, which might have shut the opponents out of the bidding, but instead he started with one spade, permitting North-South to get together at clubs.

West's spade lead was very doubtful, for he should have realized that North's cartel was on the level and that a spade lead would accomplish nothing.

Whether West should have led a diamond or a heart is perhaps debatable — without seeing all four hands — but his actual lead proved fatal.

Declarer ruffed the spade in dummy and led the queen of clubs. East following low. South now made a good guess by going up with the ace and leading five rounds of hearts, discarding all his diamonds in the process.

West ruffed the fifth heart, but that was the only trick for the defense. As a result, declarer made the slam, scoring 1,600 points — instead of going down one, 200 points, which would have been his portion had West led a diamond originally.

Had West realized that a spade lead was wrong, he might have led a heart in which case declarer would still have made the contract. But then again, West might have led a diamond in which case the slam would have failed.

His actual lead, a spade, could produce only a negative result — since North was bound to be void of spades — whereas a diamond or heart lead had a good chance to produce a positive result. In effect, West's spade lead misfired because what he failed to do was to eliminate the negative and accentuate the positive.

Tomorrow: Card reading.

Diversity Urged

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed says the province has become "overly dependent" on its natural resources. His new Progressive Conservative government wants to diversify the province's economy with money from increased natural gas exports. (CP Photo)

Quebec to License Egg-sellers

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec cabinet has approved a proposal that certain chain store owners, distributors and wholesalers be required by March 1 to acquire a government licence to sell eggs.

The approved order-in-council, published Monday, said the decision to impose the licensing regulations was taken Jan. 26 by the Quebec Agricultural Marketing Board.

Police Lost Contacts During Kosygin's Visit

Police Supt. Victor Telford said two-way radio equipment proved useless, putting him out of contact with Insp. Edwin Johnson, who led mounted Metropolitan Toronto officers into the crowd.

The Ukrainian Canadian Committee has charged that police were brutal in acting against the crowd outside the Ontario Science Centre where Premier Kosygin was addressing a meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The charges led to the inquiry being conducted by Judge Anthony Vannini of Sault Ste. Marie.

Supt. Telford said the Toronto police communications bureau is looking for better two-way radios for future use. It is also looking for camera equipment to photograph demonstrators at night and better loudspeaking equipment to talk to a crowd.

The police manual tells officers at a potential riot to urge demonstrators to avoid violence but Supt. Telford said his officers had to rely on lung power to get the message across.

Supt. Telford said the police had not decided in advance how the crowd might be dispersed because they were not sure how large the crowd would be and where it might be heaviest.

Once the horses were called in after the crowd bulged police lines between the science centre and the other side of Don Mills Road, he had no way of directly communicating with Insp. Johnson.

Supt. Telford said he does not agree with provisions in police manual, which say the mounted unit in front of an unruly crowd as a show of strength before more drastic action is taken.

"My experience has been that once you bring the horses in you provide another target for the crowd and excite them—I guess to be honest we haven't followed it (the manual) at too many demonstrations," he said. "I feel, as a commanding officer, we have an area of discretion in this field."

He was one of several officers who were called Tuesday to give their side of the incident.

Another witness was Constable Edward Bain, 31, who said his grandparents were Ukrainian and he found himself trapped in his sympathy for the demonstrators and the need to preserve order.

He said the demonstration began with a friendly atmosphere between the police and the crowd. But as it became more unruly, police along the line were pelted with candles and candle holders. Eggs and firecrackers also were thrown from the back of the crowd and he saw two officers hit with a placard.

Constable Ronald Bartley said he was struck in the face with a candle and saw members of the crowd swinging placards "in I guess what you'd call a threatening manner." He also saw demonstrators battling with a mounted officer.

David Morris, a reporter-photographer for the Toronto Star, said the demonstrators yelled "Pigs" at the police. He saw one youth hitting a police horse across the rump with a furled umbrella.

The inquiry continues.

Police Pensions Refused, Court Calls Councillors

STRATFORD (CP) — Members of Stratford city council who have refused to pass a bylaw establishing police pensions as outlined in an arbitration award, have been ordered to appear before the Ontario Supreme Court March 1.

Papers were served on individual council members Tuesday night by R. S. Moore, Stratford Police Association president.

The documents order councillors—all members of council—were named—to appear at 11 a.m. at a Supreme Court sitting in Toronto to hear an application directing them to take action on the arbitration award.

Council on two occasions has set mute when the police pension bylaw was presented for first reading.

Last fall, a board of arbitration awarded a two-per-cent supplementary pension for the Stratford Police Association members.

Red Carnation Fund Reverses Liberal Policy

Creation of the fund was announced Tuesday by Mr. Trudeau and Senator Richard Stanbury, party president.

Although the announcement came in what is widely expected to be an election year, the fund's avowed aim is to raise money to, in Mr. Trudeau's words, "maintain the party's activities between elections."

The three-page news release, which never used the word "money" although it did say donations "up to $500" would be accepted, contrasted sharply with the last specific party money drive under former prime minister Lester Pearson.

In May, 1967, an appeal by Senator John L. Nichol, then party president, started this way:

Senator Nichol's letter asked specifically for $10 but added that if that was too steep they could send less because "every cent is welcome."

"Many good Liberals will want to help but will not be in a position to do so—and this is clearly understood."

There was no inkling in the Trudeau-Stanbury news release that there might be a Liberal somewhere who would not be able to contribute.

"When I assumed leadership of the Liberal Party of Canada, one of my objectives was to encourage participation in our party by Canadians in all sections of the country and broaden the financial base," the release quoted Mr. Trudeau.

Stanfield Wants Tax Cut

MONTREAL (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield told the house-building industry Tuesday federal government should "sharply reduce" the 11-per-cent federal tax on building materials.

Reduction of the tax, he said, would result in better housing at a lower cost. "And if it is possible, I should like to see it (the tax) vanish entirely."

Mr. Stanfield spoke at the annual conference of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada which brought about 1,400 delegates from across Canada to Montreal.

Most businessmen have felt harassed by the present Liberal government, the Opposition leader added, and "an atmosphere of harassment does not encourage initiative."

Welfare Mailing Halted

QUEBEC (CP) — The province's welfare recipients will have to pick up their cheques in person for February and March, Claude Castonguay announced Tuesday.

The social affairs minister said the temporary measures to replace the regular mailing of cheques were being introduced to control rising welfare expenditures. But he added that invalids and the blind will continue to receive their cheques by mail.

The government feels the move will enable it to decide if the money is being distributed to people who really need it.

Indians and Eskimos Deprived of Hunting Rights

HAMILTON (CP) — Canadian Indians and Eskimos are being cheated out of their hereditary hunting and fishing grounds with the help of the federal government, an Osgoode Hall law professor said Tuesday night.

Prof. Tony Hooper told a seminar on Indian rights that while the United States government is providing $1 billion in compensation to Alaskan Eskimos for land lost to oil and mining industries, the Canadian government is giving away land with out even consulting the natives.

Speaking at Mohawk College in a seminar sponsored by the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada and the Mohawk College students' association, Mr. Hooper said there is a good argument to be made for compensation to Canada's Indians and Eskimos for land lost to them.

He added that the federal department of northern development now is giving away drilling rights on the hunting grounds of the Eskimos without even negotiating or bargaining with them.

"The U.S. has recognized the aboriginal rights of their Indians and Eskimos to their land and various bands have shared in millions of dollars of compensation," he said.

"But the Canadian department of northern development is handing out drilling rights to Imperial Oil and the department of Indian affairs has made no attempt to help these people go in court to establish their aboriginal rights to the land."

Butch Smitherman, founder of the British Columbia Association of Non Status Indians, told the seminar that because a large percentage of Ontario's Indians live below the poverty line, their rights are compromised every day.

He said their land is taken, their fishing waters are polluted and they are discriminated against in housing, employment and civil rights.

Cloyne School Is Experiment That Works

By WILLIAM RENDELL

CLOYNE — A unique new educational experiment, a kindergarten to Grade 13 school, which began here five months ago has attracted the attention of educators throughout the province.

The school, known as the North Addington Education Centre, serves the northern sections of Lennox and Addington County and combines library, classroom and cafeteria facilities for 600 pupils who range in age from four to 20 years.

The concept of a school that combined under one roof the facilities needed for both elementary and secondary school students was arrived at following consultations between the Lennox and Addington County Board of Education and the Ontario Department of Education.

According to the school's principal, William Rowsome, the idea appealed to the board because the facilities at four area elementary schools "had reached such a low level that replacement was necessary."

The board originally thought of building a large elementary school at the Cloyne site," Mr. Rowsome explained. "However, someone suggested that they consider putting both the elementary school and a small regional high school under one roof.

"The more they thought about it, the more the idea appealed to them. I guess because it was a new facility for the province, we decided to try our hand at the idea."

Students at the school have all classes arranged in the new "ungraded, credit system" which allows each student his choice of subject combination within the courses available at the school.

"Obviously, we can't offer an extremely wide choice of courses to the students in our high school classes," principal Rowsome continued. "But within the framework of available courses, the students do have a fairly wide choice."

At present, a staff of 37 teachers and one part-time teacher handles the general range of academic courses plus occupations, music, art, home economics and special interest courses. Students in the elementary section are unable, at present, to take courses from the secondary school section due to general regulations issued by the department of education.

Pupils at the school find themselves travelling long distances each day to the new regional facility and, as in other schools, this has posed problems for both staff and students.

"Students from Denbigh have a daily trip of over 28 miles, one way," Mr. Rowsome points out. "For children who are just over four years of age and just starting kindergarten, this is quite a trip indeed.

"But you must remember that up until this time very few centres in this area of Ontario had either the facilities or the staff to offer any classes for younger children.

"With many of the children having older brothers and sisters riding with them on the bus, the situation is not as bad as it first looks." The principal commented. "As well, the children only come to kindergarten every other day."

The school itself is located on a beautiful 80-acre tract of land in the centre of the village of Cloyne. The heavily wooded land to the west of the school is used by many of the classes as a natural, outdoor study area.

Principal Rowsome says that "Life in the north offers many advantages, the pace of living is slower and more restrained and I'm positively convinced that we are sitting on top of a veritable gold mine. This area will become one of Canada's most popular vacation areas."

The school has been attempting to play a larger part in the life of the community by offering its facilities for interested groups and by conducting interest courses for adults. The courses, at present, are conducted only by the Lennox and Addington County Board of Education but plans have been completed for the commencement of a wider variety of courses to be offered by Loyalist College.

These new courses include instruction in institutional cooking, health, first aid, small motor maintenance, small business management and cooking. All of the courses will be offered at the North Addington Education Centre and will be open to anyone living within driving distance of the school

Russia Swamps Yanks

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Russia skated to a 2-0 first period lead and crushed the United States 7-2 today, virtually eliminating the Americans from the gold medal chase in the championship hockey tournament at the Winter Olympics.

The win gave the Russians five points and moved them into a tie with Sweden for first spot in the six-country round robin. Both teams have 3-0-1 records. Sweden scored its second win of the tournament earlier in the day, downing pesky Poland 5-3.

Another Skier Bites Dust

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Marc Hodler, president of the International Ski Federation, said today veteran French skier Annie Famose had been suspended and given a deadline to present evidence she did not engage in commercial activity.

"If she cannot supply such proof, she will remain suspended indefinitely," Hodler said.

Soviet Olympic Cream Starts Coming to Top

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — A powerful Russian woman won her second Nordic skiing gold medal by a margin of five seconds and a fleet Illinois lady speed skater gave the United States its first gold of the Winter Olympics today.

Russia shot to the top of the medal and points standings Norway won its first gold of the Games, retaining the biathlon title, and Czechoslovakia finally got a medal — a bronze — and seemed certain to add a gold one in figure skating.

Galina Koulakova of Russia completed a rare Nordic double, winning the women's five-kilometre cross-country race; Dianne Holum of North brook, Ill., captured the women's 1,500-metre speed skating title in two minutes 32.63 seconds, an Olympic record, and Magnar Solberg, a 30-year-old policeman from Trondheim, Norway, successfully defended his biathlon championship.

The Firth twins, Shirley and Sharon, of Inuvik, N.W.T., were out of the money in the cross-country skiing, but Sharon did least her best after placings. last run.

Jungle Jim Hunter of Calgary was 13th, the best of the Canadian skiers in the men's giant slalom, a two-day race. The initial run left the favored French team without top stars among the first seven. Norwegian, West German and Italian skiers were left going into Friday's Canadian singles champion Toller Cranston of Toronto was the top-placed Canadian in Wednesday's overall showing, placing 12th in the men's figure skating after completion of six compulsory figures.

Karen Magnussen's silver medal in the women's figure skating and a fourth place by Laurie Kreiner in the women's giant slalom are the only placings high enough so far to earn points for the Canadian team. The Vancouver skater picked up five points and the Timmins, Ont., skier three. Fifteen events remain of the 35 on the program.

Miss Koulakova, the fabulously strong Russian winner of the 10-kilometre cross-country gold medal, added the five-kilometre title today with a strong finishing burst.

The 20-year-old world five-kilometre champion covered the distance of 5.1 miles in 17 minutes and one-half second—only five seconds ahead of Finland's 34-year-old bronze winner in the 10 kilometres, Marjatta Kajosmaa took the silver in 17:07.58.

The bronze winner was Helena Blazkova of Czechoslovakia in 17:07.32. The 23-year-old secretary is the first Czech to win a medal in Olympic cross-country racing. She was 8.1 seconds a second ahead of Russia's world 15 - kilometre champion, Alevtina Olyunina, silver winner in the 10 kilometres. Less than seven seconds separated the first four.

"This was the closest field there has ever been in the cross-country," said Canadian coach Herger Silverson. "It looked like an Alpine race."

Sharon Firth was 26th in 16:96.4, more than a minute behind the Russian winner. Shirley Firth was 30th in 18:26.07; Roseanne Allen of Inuvik 40th in 18:33.70, and Helen Sander of Dauphin, Ont., 41st in the field of 44 with 19:36.01.

In the day's other major action, world champion Ondrej Nepela of Czechoslovakia held a commanding lead in the men's figure skating after completion of the compulsory program. All nine judges placed him first—meaning he got 9.0 ordinals.

Patrick Pera of France with 30.0 ordinals and Sergei Chetveroukhin with 38.0 were second and third. No one else was close to the top three who will battle for medals in the freeskating Friday. In points, Nepela had 1,178.1, Pera 1,121.6 and the Russian 1,101.9.

Cranston, Canada's lone entry, had 102.9 ordinals and 961.7 points for his 12th-place standing among 16 entries.

After 30 events, Russia leads in gold medals with four and East Germany, the Netherlands and Switzerland have three apiece. West Germany has two and five other countries one each.

In the unofficial team scoring based on the 10-8-6-4-2-1 traditional system of scoring points for the first six placings in each final, Russia is the new leader with 76 points. East Germany has second with 66 and Norway third with 55. Canada, with eight points, is in 12th place and 18 countries having points.

Gaudaur Repeats Bias Against Importing Entries

MONTREAL (CP) — If Jake Gaudaur's views count for anything then the Canadian Football League will remain Canadian.

The CFL commissioner said again Tuesday night, as he has done many times before, that he is opposed to a bid from millionaire Robert Schmertz to have a CFL team based in New York's Yankee Stadium.

"But I'm just an employee of the league," Gaudaur told reporters. "I'm not sure my views will count for anything."

Gaudaur, along with the owners and general managers of the nine CFL teams, are in Montreal for the league's annual meeting.

The general managers spent Tuesday picking off 70 players in nine rounds of this year's draft of Canadian college players. They'll meet today to outline routine recommendations on scheduling and import quotas, but the big day is Thursday when the CFL executive is expected to decide on expansion, Grey Cup sites, imports and proposals from the CFL Players Association.

Reporters caught up with Gaudaur after the college draft Tuesday and he was no time tearing apart the New York franchise bid.

He started out by saying he had simply collected the pros and cons of the bid for the owners to consider at the meeting. He added that "you just couldn't find a more desirable group than the Schmertz people."

Then he said:

"I'm sure Schmertz is smart enough to know what it takes to draw in New York. It takes something like Joe Namath.

"He's got money enough to go out and hire 10 Joe Namaths. And I'm sure that's just what he'd do.

"Now I ask you, how is Regina going to compete with that?

"And if New York is a success how do you deny Chicago, Dr Detroit? Or Tampa? I've talked to groups from all these cities and they are all substantial.

"Some day there wouldn't be much of Canada left in the CFL."

To gain admission New York would need the unanimous support of the four Eastern Conference teams and a majority of the five Western Conference clubs.

A serious split could result over expansion into the U.S. One or two teams could pack up and leave the CFL in favor of joining a new U.S. major league.

"I've told the general managers the threat of a new league is a very real possibility," Gaudaur said. "And I've also told them there is the possibility the new league would threaten our territory."

Meanwhile, at the earlier college draft the nine CFL general managers took only 44 minutes to run through nine rounds and select 70 of 245 eligible players.

Montreal Alouettes, last-place team in the conference of the 1971 Grey Cup losers, had first pick and named Larry Smith, six-foot 210-pound running back from Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Que.

Council Scuttles Grey Cup Bid

In December the mayor made a tentative bid to the Canadian Football League to hold the game for the Canadian professional football championship in Lansdowne Park and all but promised artificial turf would be installed in time for the game.

The last Grey Cup in Ottawa was in 1967.

But in a 3½-hour session Tuesday, council rejected 16 to 7 a proposal that the city finance the project.

An alternative suggestion that the city loan the Central Canada Exhibition Association, owners of the football stadium, the $177,000 needed for artificial turf, to be recovered over seven years, also was rejected, 15 to 10.

Marj Got Rink Together

It was just a case of getting it all together as Marj Merklinger's CFB Trenton's rink captured the Intelligencer Bonspiel trophy Tuesday.

The first requirement for victory was getting the team itself together. The foursome had never before curled as an entry until their win over the 23 other rinks entered in the event.

The skip, who has lived in the Quinte district for only two years after moving from Winnipeg, joined vice - skip Ruth Rickman, second Joan Broadfoot and lead Beryl Broadfoot as the new Intell champions. Their victory ended a two-year win streak by Jane Sheppard's Quinte rink.

Even during the bonspiel itself the Merklinger rink had difficulty making everything fall into place as a Tuesday morning slump almost eliminated them from first event play. "It seemed like this morning nothing worked and tonight everything was working," noted the winning skip.

By far the toughest of their five wins came in their Tuesday match with Betty Swallow's Petawawa entry. The eventual champions were trailing by three points in the seventh of 10 ends before rallying for the win. "If there's a patron saint of curlers, he must have been looking over our shoulders," offered vice-skip Ruth Rickman of the team's comeback win.

The champions defeated Kate Cook's Quinte rink 7-4 in the final game to prevent a two-in-a-row feat by the home foursome. The Cook team had captured the Madsons Bonspiel two weeks previously in the last women's competition held at the Belleville club. A takeout shot by Marj Merklinger on the very last stock gave the foursome any hopes of a tenth-end comeback by the Quinte foursome.

The Quinte club did manage a win in the second event as Helen McCorquodale's rink defeated Helen Binning of Whitby by a 9-6 count. Other members of the second event champs included Mary Livingston, Marie Bell and Rita Moore.

In the third event final it was Noreen Sugarman of Kingston downing Marnie Clare's Quinte rink by an 8-2 score. Kay O'Neill, Carol Pearson and Moira O'Reilly rounded out the winning team.

Nine of the 24 rinks were from the host Quinte club with the remainder hailing from Trenton, Napanee, Picton, Kingston, CFB Petawawa, Picton, Whitby and Lindsay. It was the 12th year that the event has been held.

Cheerful Champs

Marj Merklinger's CFB Trenton rink had good cause to be cheerful Tuesday when they captured the 12th Annual Intelligencer Women's Bonspiel. The foursome which had never before curled together emerged as first event champions over the 23 other teams entered in the two-day event.

Members of the rink included second, Jean Broadfoot; skip, Marj Merklinger; vice - skip, Ruth Rickman and lead, Beryl Willerton.

Second But Not Second

Kate Cook's Quinte rink came close to winning their second consecutive women's bonspiel of the winter but instead finished second in the Intelligencer Bonspiel Tuesday. The Madson's Bonspiel champs were beaten 7-4 by Marj Merklinger's rink in the finals of the Intell first event.

LUCRATIVE BEGINNING -- by Alan Mayer

Gas House Leaders Can't Breathe Easy

The Intell took over sole possession of first place in the Gas House Hockey League last night, but that warm feeling they had wasn't satisfaction. Five teams continued to crash down the neck of the leaders in the race for the league pennant.

The Intelligencer took first place strength of a 2-1 win over Rollins Lumber, with whom they had been tied for top spot. Jim's Pizzeria moved out of the Lumbermen into second with a 6-4 decision over the Hospital while Wilson Concrete and the Teachers moved up to within three points of the top by recording wins.

Floyd Crawford's goal late in the game gave the Printers their win over Rollins, Bill Allan had got the losers ahead to an early 1-0 lead with Fred Stickle tying things up for the Intell.

Jim's got a goal and three assists from centre Carl Stonhower to help turn aside the Hospital. Defenceman Doug Olsen added two goals for the winners with single tallies going to Jim McGuire, Steve White and Dave Middleton. For the losers Bill Van Alstine had a pair of goals with Dan Murphy and George Hicklin counting a goal and assist each.

Vern Fraser turned in a great refereeing effort as Wilson Concrete stopped Dave Johnson 3 - 0. Gerry Simonson and Peter Enright each had a goal and assist with Wilsons with the other score going to Dave Millar.

The Teachers kept pace with the pack by stopping Cassidy Electric by a 3 - 2 margin. Gord Smith and Jack Schofield each included a goal in their two scoring points with the other scores going to Al Mott, Brian MacKenzie and Kevin Manion.

Sevens Prove Lethal To Quintes in Kingston

KINGSTON — Three sevens proved to be as lethal to the Belleville Quintes as snake eyes would be to an ardent craps shooter.

Peter Kennedy, who sports number seven for the Kingston Aces, scored three times in the final period to give his team a 7-5 win over Belleville. The Queen's University student's hat trick prevented the Quintes from gaining ground on Oakville and Woodstock in the gamble for the final OHA Senior A playoff position.

The loss was a particularly bitter one for the Quintes to swallow, considering the fact that they had held a 3-0 first-period lead.

Ralph Plane's goal at 3.01 of the first and Mike Healey's tally just 43 seconds later put the Quintes in command of the contest. Ray Johnston made it 3-0 late in the period when he converted a Dave Jones' pass.

Kingston finally got on the scoreboard with just 32 seconds to play in the first period with Dick Cherry doing the honors. The former professional clicked again for the Aces in the second period to narrow the deficit to one goal, which Bob Clayton erased with a tally at 10.07. Kingston playing - coach Tom Thorlby made it 4-3 at 13.58.

Belleville jumped back into a tie just 16 seconds later when Al Ferguson connected for his 24th goal of the season. Defenceman Dan Creighton collected his third assist of the night on the play.

Two goals by Kennedy gave the Aces a 6-4 lead and his tally in the final minute sewed things up after Wayne McConnell's 22nd had cut the Kingston margin in half.

The Aces, playing before their smallest crowd of the season (1258) managed 35 shots on Steve Rees, while Kingston defender Skip Wing was called on for 29 stops. Belleville drew seven of the game's 11 penalties including a misconduct and game misconduct to Dave Jones for arguing Kennedy's second goal.

The Quintes' only consolation Tuesday was that the Woodstock Royals, one of their main opponents for a playoff spot, were beaten 7-5 by the Galt Hornets. The loss by Belleville kept them three points out of sixth spot.

Woodstock has been threatening to drop out of the league after Friday's game with Belleville. If their home crowd don't improve. However, a withdrawal by the Royals would mean forfeiting their $1000 performance bond, which makes one move unlikely.

Leafs Keep Plugging in Win Over Blues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs have been having their problems in the National Hockey League but at least they keep trying and their perseverance has been paying off.

The Leafs were up to their usual standard of marksmanship in St. Louis Tuesday night, bouncing pucks off the Blues goalposts while falling behind 1-0.

But, not unlike their performance in New York Sunday when they came back to tie the Rangers 2-2, the Leafs kept plugging and wound up with a 3-1 win on goals by Rick Kehoe and Paul Henderson late in the third period.

In the only other game Tuesday, Philadelphia Flyers downed Vancouver Canucks 3-1 to move to within one point of the fourth-place Blues in the West Division.

The Leafs' victory edged them back into fourth spot in the East, one point ahead of the idle Detroit Red Wings. Toronto could increase the margin tonight when they play host to Pittsburgh Penguins. The Red Wings remain idle until Thursday.

O'Shea set out immediately to please his new employers by scoring for the Blues in the second period and he was one of the outstanding players in a Blues uniform as he tallied on a line between wingers Phil Roberto and Brian Lavender.

St. Louis goalie Jacques Caron played a strong game in the first two periods although the goalposts helped him on shots by Leaf centres Dave Keon, Norm Ullman and Jim Harrison.

But Caron emerged good when he was caught guardian late in the third providing Kehoe an assi for his sixth goal of the Henderson scored the w goal with just 53 seco making and Caron ag guilty of misjudgment. derson put the puck in sharp angle.

At Vancouver, centre Clarke scored twice and set up another goal Kelly as the Flyers rall 2-0 lead before the t point in the final period.

Police Chief's Relationship to Urban Leader Said Handicap

MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Drapeau told the Quebec Commission Tuesday Jean-Jacques Saulnier had political handicap" but it not serious enough to pre his appointment as Mon police chief in 1971.

Mayor Drapeau, testifying at inquiry into Mr. Saulnier's act as captain of the moral squad in the 1950s, pointed that the Montreal chief is brother of Lucien Saulnier, ative councillor-chairman the Montreal Urban Com ity.

Lucien Saulnier was pre ently executive committee man of the City of Mont under Mayor Drapeau.

Mayor Drapeau also testified and carefully investigated Saulnier's disciplinary record, including an incident concerning a color television set, received from a Montreal hotel owner in 1963 while he headed the morality squad.

The police commission hearings, now in their third week, were called after published reports said Mr. Saulnier had received the television set from Israel Kugiel, the late owner of the LaSalle Hotel.

Mayor Drapeau said he first heard of the television incident in February, 1971, when Mr. Kugiel telephoned him to protest he had meant no embarrassment in having the $700 set delivered to Mr. Saulnier's home.

He said the phone call came just after police had opened an investigation into the alleged gift.

"It was the first and last time I ever spoke to Mr. Kugiel," the mayor said.

Earlier testimony at the inquiry had revealed Mr. Saulnier tried several times to return the set before it was taken back.

Mayor Drapeau said he raised the question of the television set to Marcel St. Aubin, retiring Montreal police chief, immediately prior to selecting Mr. Saulnier as Mr. St. Aubin's successor.

"I asked Mr. St. Aubin if there had not been an incident concerning a color television set and inquired why there was no record of it in Mr. Saulnier's file.

"He told me it could have been because the chief had not felt it important enough to list included.

The mayor explained that he, Mr. St. Aubin and Gerard Nolding, executive committee chairman, spent an evening studying the files of every member of the police department's general staff. About 50 positive candidates were whittled down to two possibilities.

"Mr. St. Aubin mentioned a name, but Mr. Nolding and I decided that that man had a psychological handicap that would prevent him from doing the job adequately.

"That left us with Mr. Saulnier's file," Mayor Drapeau said.

Earlier Tuesday, the mayor said that two former morality squad members had come to him in 1962 with documents relating to the conduct of Mr. Saulnier.

Mayor Drapeau said the documents were brought by Lieut. Emile Decharme and Constable Leo Villeneuve, both of whom have appeared as witnesses at the inquiry.

The mayor said the documents did not include a declaration alleged to have been made by Martha Adams to Lieut. Decharme incriminating Mr. Saulnier.

Miss Adams, 42, currently awaiting trial on charges of living off the avails of prostitution and keeping a bawdy house, told the commission Monday the declaration was a "forgery" and "ridiculous garbage."

Miss Adams, called to testify again Tuesday, reiterated her statement that she had been tipped four times in 1964-65 prior to police raids but said she did not know who had given the warnings.

Augusta Choquette, Miss Adams' lawyer, said the commission will be asked formally to broaden the scope of the inquiry to include Lieut. Decharme's conduct.

Quebec Peace Officers Continue Strike

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Quebec peace officers vowed Tuesday to continue their walkout until the Quebec government modifies its position.

"We're going to stay," union official Jean-Marie Gelineau told more than 2,000 prison guards, game wardens and autoroute policemen gathered here since Sunday after they voted to maintain their position.

The 3,000-member Provincial Peace Officers Association is protesting what it calls extended delays in negotiations for a new contract.

Some 22 of 25 provincial jails were closed Tuesday although no incidents involving more than 1,000 prisoners have been reported.

The guards, without a contract since June, 1971, are seeking wage parity with federal guards. This would give a man with eight years experience $8,000 annually, a 40-per-cent increase.

The government has offered, and the guards have rejected, pay scales that would bring an eight-year man earning $6,000 now up to $8,625 in three years time.

Canadian, U. S. Negotiators Agree on Lakes Pollution Fight

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian and United States negotiators have reached tentative agreement on the contours of a maximum international program to halt pollution of the lower Great Lakes.

Authoritative sources say there are good prospects that final agreement will be achieved by the end of next month, though some details of the document and its several appendices have still to be negotiated.

A Canadian source said the "broad skeleton" of an agreement was worked out in two days of talks in Washington in the last week of January.

It was the second formal round of discussions between high officials of the two governments since a Canada-U.S ministerial meeting agreed in principle last June 15 that the two countries should jointly launch a cleanup operation on the lakes.

After the ministerial meeting held in Washington, Canada's environment minister, Jack Davis, told the Commons it was expected negotiations on the text would be finished in time to allow signing "in the early autumn."

However, technical discussions took longer than anticipated. One of the chief complications was a difference between Canada and the U.S. on the banning of detergent phosphates, identified as the main source of pollution which is threatening parts of the Great Lakes system—particularly Lake Erie—with slow death.

Canada has acted to reduce the contamination, requiring that phosphate content of all detergents be lowered to no more than five per cent by the end of 1972.

The U.S., however, has declined to institute similar action at the federal level, on grounds the proposed substitutes for phosphates —nitrilotriacetic acid—is a health hazard.

The recent burst of progress places the negotiating teams in a good position to meet a tacit deadline imposed by a funding agreement worked out between the federal and Ontario governments last August in anticipation of a major Canada-U.S. effort.

Written into the agreement is a provision that parts of it will expire unless Canada and the U.S. conclude an accord by March 31 this year.

Under the federal-provincial agreement, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will advance Ontario $167 million in additional funds for sewage treatment facilities by 1975.

That represents two-thirds of the total cleanup cost that Canada will incur under the international accord.

The cost to the U.S. for similar treatment facilities on the American side of the border is estimated at more than $2 billion.

The Canada-U.S. agreement will give the International Joint Commission the authority it needs to oversee a cleanup operation.

Mackasey Says More Will Be Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey said Tuesday there will likely be more people out of work in the next month or two than in January, and that the rise in the January jobless rate was "pretty well what was predicted."

But he added that the government's local initiatives program to create jobs had so far produced 50,000 new jobs and could produce 20,000 more by the end of this month.

He indicated that the government does not plan any new employment programs. It was looking at unemployment as a long-run problem.

The number of jobless jumped to 665,000 in January from 530,000 in December, Statistics Canada reported earlier Tuesday.

Along with the local initiatives program, Mr. Mackasey cited economic policies announced in the fall and trade promotion by Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin as responsible for a business upsurge this winter.

But the business upsurge was not being followed promptly by increased employment, the minister said.

For that reason, the government had to analyze unemployment in a highly technological economy, where firms may expand production without hiring more workers.

Mr. Mackasey said the December-January rise in unemployment was about the same as last year.

But he agreed that was no comfort to the person out of work.

Gasoline Price Raised

TORONTO (CP) — Most major oil companies have increased the price of petroleum products east of the Ottawa Valley.

Generally, the increases are in the range of one cent a gallon with the price of some products being raised half a cent in western Ontario.

There was no indication how these increases would be reflected in retail prices.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Be kind and self-assured. Close ties, demand explicit pledges. Settle home arrangements, or minor family reunions.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Gather your strength and resources for a definite campaign. Steady working pace promises results. Influential friends are cooperative, given half a chance.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Get technical opinion on a puzzling condition. Your mate has best to say, on many subjects. The true problem may have little or nothing to do with what is said, however.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): The hardest thing can no longer be evaded by talking about it. Make your best effort to get what you want and need.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Centre your effort, on neglected projects. An object or benefit given for lost or hopeless may be salvaged by diligent effor'.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Negotiations, applications, discussions of career objectives, working conditions are favored today.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct.22) : Joint ventures take time and effort, may require personal travel. Give for the greater good and better immediate results.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make the most of every social opportunity. Leisure moments offer fruitful meditation.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Older people ask your presence, need your advice, may in turn be very useful.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Business has to lighten up somewhat to celebrate human strength, cater to human weakness, make readjustments before you can go on.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Seek further amiable contact—there's more to be gained long run in terms of emotional fulfillment.

GETS THEM TALKING

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Pascau, moderator of CBC Radio's national open-line Cross Country Checkup, says "If any project could be a major factor in achieving any kind of Canadian unity," it would be his show. "It's frequently said that Canadian people don't get along because they don't talk to each other. Checkup has got them talking."

THE 'CRY AND THE COVENANT — Morton.

The mother of Ignaz Phillipp Semmelweis lay racked with fever after his birth but this was not an unusual happening in the year 1818, when multitudes of women died of puerperal fever. Semmelweis attended a good private school, but was not, according to his teacher, a good student, since he asked too many questions. When he finally became a doctor and graduated from the University of Vienna, he was assigned to the Vienna General Hospital. While working in the maternity wards, he found the shocking statistics of deaths among the mothers and new-born infants of a mysterious fever, known as puerperal fever, so staggering that he dedicated his life to finding the cure. The cure he discovered was simple hygiene, but although he proved many times that lives could be saved by cleanliness, the learned medical men of his day refused to accept such a simple solution. This is the story of a dedicated and courageous man who gave his life to fight a deadly scourge.

PENMARRIC — Susan Howatch

An engrossing family epic, set in wild and lovely Cornwall. The story begins in 1890. At the centre of the story and casting its magnetic and destructive power over generation after generation, is the inheritance Penmarric, a great gloomy house surrounded by Penmarric lands. Mark Castaigne brings his bride to Penmarric, and it is there that their children are born and it is to Penmarric that she brings his illegitimate sons after a terrible revelation destroys his marriage. Growing up together in the "inheritance" and torn between their allegiance to rival mothers, their childhood antagonisms years, bitter hatred and rivalry. Always their lives are dominated by Penmarric, which each either craves or rejects.

RICH MAN, POOR MAN — Irwin Shaw

Irwin Shaw is a superb story-teller. The characters he creates in this, his latest novel, become as real to us as one's next door neighbors. The Jordache family, the father a German emigrant, live in a small city on the banks of the Hudson River. The story begins after World War II when everyone is wildly celebrating victory and each of the Jordache children chooses his own way to celebrate. It is primarily the story of these children, two boys and a girl from the same family, pursuing the illusion of happiness and success each in his own way, but it is also the story of an era in American life which saw the "American Dream" become distorted in a time of McCarthyism and university riots.

THE SHADOW OF THE LYNX — Victoria Holt

Victoria Holt has added yet another to her long list of successful novels. Her latest has its setting in England and Australia. Her heroine Nora Tamasin finds herself an orphan after her father dies in Australia where he had gone to make his fortune in the gold fields. Nora's father has appointed as her guardian Lance Herrick, who brings her to Australia and a new life. Fate takes a hand when Nora finds a gold nugget which leads to riches for her guardian and a decision to return to England. The gracious setting in England is the mansion known as "Whiteladies". Here the final chapters of a story, which began with an unrelenting search for gold and revenge, has its conclusion.

MARIANNE AND THE MASKED PRINCE — Juliette Benzoni

The author of this book is already well known in North America for her "Catherine" series of historical romantic novels, set in medieval France. This new series, of which this is the second book, is about Napoleonic France. Marianne d'Autrichal had been arraigned out of France at the time of the "Terror" by her godfather and grew up in England. She marries an impoverished English lord from whom she flees on her wedding night, believing she has killed him. Back in France she falls into the hands of Napoleon's Minister of police. Intrigue follows intrigue until Marianne comes to the attention of the Emperor Napoleon and enters the glittering life of the court.

A NEAT JOB

ATIKOKAN, Ont. (CP) — Thieves made off with $800 from the high school here by using school tools to open a safe. Police said the thieves did a neat job in moving the safe from the office to the automotive section where they used a cutting torch to open it. The thieves were so pleased with the result that they took the tools along with them.

MRS. J. W. KILBURN, 324 Clemow Avenue, Ottawa.

Says Mrs. Kilburn, who's been shopping Loblaws for several years: "I feel I do better here—for quality and price—than I would at another store. If I didn't think so I wouldn't come to Loblaws. I've tried other stores but I always come back to Loblaws because I'm satisfied here. It's as simple as that. The produce section is very good—and so is the meat—in fact, whatever I buy here I can always depend on it being of good quality. Also, there are some very good specials that you can take advantage of and save money". Mrs. Kilburn, who shops for four, says she also appreciates being able to get roasts and steaks cut to order at Loblaws meat counter. As she says: "the quality and service at Loblaws has always been excellent".

Tiremen Square

It was "10-4, over and out" for the Western Tire juveniles last night as they lost by just that count to Belleville.

The 10-4 defeat evened the blot of five OMHA series at one game apiece after Belleville had taken a 4-3 decision in the opener.

Greg Duffy and Rick Meagher each had a goal and assist for the Tiremen with Russ Harrington and Brian Rumbles getting the losers' other goals.

LONDON (AP) — It's all getting a little bit like James Bond. The events of the last month have been in a world of sheer fantasy.

All I keep hearing are two names. One is Howard Hughes, the eccentric millionaire I've never met in my life.

The other is Clifford Irving. the name of a man I have loved and neither I still believe has pulled off the literary coup of the century.

If this affair had not got into the world headlines, I know my affair with Clifford, my lover husband, it was, would still be a secret today.

There is nothing I can do. What damage has been done, has been done, but I fervently hope it will not cause any damage to his wife Edith because I know they are very happily married.

It was 7½ years ago in Ibiza when we found ourselves in a small beach party together.

Clifford—I'd read several of his books and knew him by reputation—was in the party and we discovered we both lived on the island.

I was then living with my husband Frederik and our children.

It wasn't until last year that our friendship developed into love in that world I had not harm or injure Clifford in any way. Because how much as I do I cannot believe the book is false.

I believe Clifford himself would dearly like to think so, but I'm sorry to say Clifford will prove to world it is.

And what of the two of now? Who can say. Only will tell.

McKeough Wants Social Services Returned to Private Sector

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Tuesday consideration should be given to returning the provision of social services, such as health care, to the private sector as a long-term solution to spiralling government costs.

Speaking to the Proprietary Association of Canada, he disputed "shocking growth" in government spending, the shared-cost federal-provincial programs which he said were a "major impediment to our ability to bring about what I consider 'cost-effectiveness'.

He referred to the seventh annual review of the Economic Council of Canada which showed that public spending in health and education services alone will outstrip the entire Ontario economic output in the next 30 years.

He said the public sector generally or any individual government in the world "cannot possibly live with what will be the result of existing trends."

Mr. McKeough said the national medical health care program provides "a negative incentive towards conservation of medical resources."

He referred to insurance plans that encourage excessive use of hospitals; reimbursement programs designed on a cost-plus basis; financial and other rewards that encourage dramatic forms of surgery at, possibly, the expense of research funds for preventative medicine."

He saw "one potential ray of light" in determining how to bring the private sector back into the provision of social services.

"I feel that the only long run solution to the predicament that we, along with all other jurisdictions now find ourselves in is to do just that. But it is certainly not likely to be resolved in my lifetime or in yours.

"It must be thought about, however. At least I feel it should, and the thinking should be done now."

The treasurer expressed opinions that current trends in spending by governments won't be allowed to continue, although "means of action are, as yet, quite undecided."

But he made plain that he considers the best cure for some social problems is "the private rather than the public sector."

"In other words, to accumbent upon us, all of us, to think about and to design ways that make it more in the private interest to do public good—and right now."

By keeping "more and more responsibility upon government" and taking programs and activities away from entrepreneurs, he said, begin to lose the opportunity of harnessing incentive as it exists outside of government."

He repeated that Ontario will continue to opt out of many cost-sharing programs with Ottawa in exchange for a greater sharing of income tax revenues.

"Health, because of the staggering rate of growth this program is displaying, is most particularly vulnerable to the requirement of greater cost-sharing, and we are accordingly unwilling to having less administrative control thereover."

Mr. McKeough said he is disturbed that cost-sharing programs have placed about one-third of the provincial budget "out of my control in terms of priority setting."

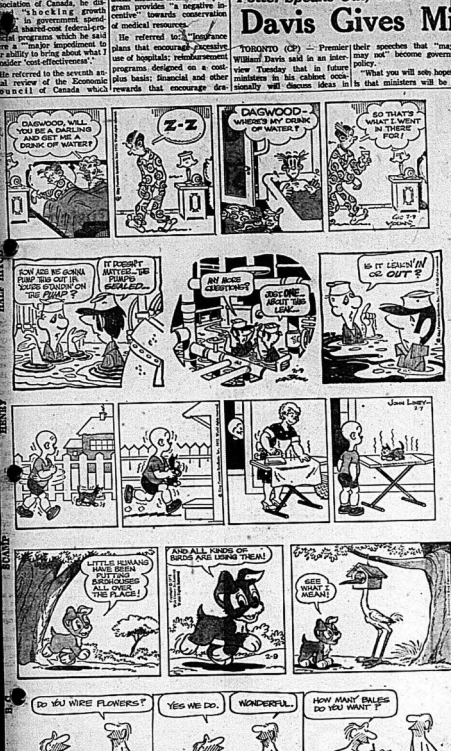
Ontario currently is directly involved in more than 40 continuing cost-sharing programs with Ottawa.

Potter Speaks Out, Too

Davis Gives Ministers Right to Voice Own Ideas

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said in an interview Tuesday that in future ministers in his cabinet occasionally will discuss ideas in speeches that "may or may not" become government policy.

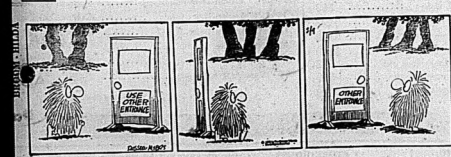
"What you will note hopefully is that ministers will be free from time to time stating ideas that may or may not become government policy," Mr. Davis said. "You don't want to preclude them from making these observations."



The premier was commenting on a speech Tuesday by Treasurer Darcy McKeough in which he foresaw that the private sector might have to be encouraged to participate in providing social services as the gap between government revenue and the public's demand for services widens.

Recently Mr. McKeough also said that because of the government's deficit and its determination not to raise taxes, there would have to be a cutback in provincial services.

Dr. Richard Potter, the new minister of health, also discussed his own ideas in Sault Ste. Marie last week, when he told an audience that doctors should be paid 100 per cent of their fee schedule rather than 90 per cent by the provincial health plan.



Mr. Davis said these statements are "just to stimulate discussion of some of these ideas."

"These are things that have been said before and are being said again to stimulate some sort of response, but they are not necessarily reflecting government policy."

Liberal Joins PCs

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A former Liberal member of the Newfoundland legislature said Tuesday he had decided to switch allegiance and support the Progressive Conservative government of Premier Frank Moores.

Jack Forsey, a member of the house from 1956 until 1962, said he was an active Liberal supporter until a few days ago when he "reached the point of no return."

Province Can't Stop Wild Boar Hunting

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial lands and forests department says it is virtually powerless to prevent creation of two wild-boar hunting preserves described by the Ontario Humane Society as "outdoor slaughterhouses."

In a letter to Tom Hughes, OHS general manager, F. A. Walden, director of the department's wildlife branch, says there is "no suitable legislation" to govern establishment of the preserves, because the boars aren't indigenous to Ontario.

The preserves are planned by Paul Rapai, in Northumberland County, and Walter Litz, a Bolton, Ont., businessman. Litz hopes to start one on a farm near Proton Station, 35 miles southeast of Owen Sound.

The society finds the whole proposal entirely repugnant," said Mr. Hughes. "It has no justification as a sport and can best be compared with an out door slaughterhouse."

Mr. Rapai, a 69-year-old tobacco farmer from Delhi, Ont., said the OHS accusations are exaggerated. He said he regards himself as "both a sports man and an animal lover," and added that the OHS should spend more time looking after neglected animals.

Mr. Litz said he got the idea from similar preserves in the United States and that his proposal has the approval of local fish and wildlife officials.

Don Mansell, fish and wildlife officer for the Lake Huron district, said Mr. Litz's proposal has been referred to the department's legal branch "for authorization."

"We feel this is the type of venture needed," said Mr. Mansell. "There are a number of hunting areas operated by the department and this idea of Mr. Litz could lead to better hunting for hunters in the area."

However, Mr. Walden said in his letter to Mr. Hughes that the wildlife branch is "apprehensive about the possibility of escape."

Mr. Rapai recently released about 40 of the animals—European wild grey boars and Mexican razorbacks—on his 600-acre fenced preserve in Northumberland County's Seymour Township. The animals were obtained in the United States and featened up on his Delhi farm before being shipped to the preserve.

He said he is not yet certain how much he will charge for day's hunting, though the OH said it has learned that a going rate will be between $3 and $400.

Mr. Rapai said the location of his Delhi farm provides shelter for the boars and plenty of food.

New Treatments Need Study

By G. C. THORTSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thorteson: You always said there was nothing that would dissolve gall stones, but how do you explain the article about acids about doing it with bile salts? I'd certainly rather take bile salts than have my gall bladder out.—I.P.

Who wouldn't? But hold your horses. This is the sort of reaction that comes along every time anyone reports some new attack on any illness, and I urge you to re-read the article carefully—though the fine print, it is very.

The report is at least as fascinating to physicians as it is to patients, with this difference: Patients who read it hurriedly jump to the conclusion that gall bladder trouble has been solved.

Physicians know from reported experience that there's a long and necessary gap between the first reports and the time when, if ever, the new treatment turns out to be safe and effective.

Note that the medication wasn't bile salts. It was a particular acid extracted from bile salts, and then given to patients by many methods.

How many patients? Seven! How many were helped? Four! How long did these take this to act? Six months to two years! Did all the gall stones disappear? In four of the five successful cases the stones got smaller, but did not disappear.

Interesting as the report is, and it comes from reliable sources, it's experimental work with a handful of patients, and there are all sorts of questions which need to be answered before doctors can start giving this treatment to their gall bladder patients.

Why does it work with some patients, but with others? We've got to find out. If it reduces size of gall stones in some patients, does that mean you have to keep on taking the bile acid forever, to keep the stones small? If so, can this harm the patient in other ways? If the stones become smaller, does this allow the stones to move into the common duct and cause acute gall bladder attacks? Do the stones, even if smaller, still irritate the gall bladder and cause serious attacks?

These are just a handful of questions. It may well take several years, and perhaps more, before these and other questions are answered. This is true of almost every important new advance that has ever been made. It takes time. Then the inevitable publicity, and time is spent about what a given treatment should do and what it can't do, and how to know which patients can be helped, and what precautions must be taken.

Having seen the misery of people with acute gall bladder attacks, I fervently hope that this new approach will be fruitful.

But knowing how long a time must pass between the first few experiments and the time when a new treatment is ready for your doctor to use, I have to warn that, for the time being, at least, you will have to go along with present methods for treating this ailment.

I don't mean to throw cold water. I know that about one person in 15 will have some gall stone trouble, and one in 50 will have to have surgery for it. If gall stones can be prevented, or eliminated, that's going to be wonderful.

But for now, we'll have to wait and see.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: What are the 12 chemical tests involved in the SMA test?—Mrs. M.M.

Not always the same tests, but the standard parts of it are tests for sugar, cholesterol, uric acid and others. In addition a variety of blood enzyme determinations are usually included.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: Do boys under the age of 5 suck any testicular fluid?—Mrs. M.M.

No.

Canadian Firm's Bid Said 'Canned' By U.S. Parent

OTTAWA (CP) — Hughes Aircraft Co. of California is building Canada's communications satellites because its competitor, RCA Ltd. of Montreal, was asked by its parent company to withdraw its bid, a senior government official said Tuesday.

Pulp Firms Ask Quebec Tax Relief

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's beleaguered pulp and paper industry has asked the provincial government for tax and other relief amounting to $24 million this year to help the industry out of its current financial woes.

The request was contained in an 83-page brief released Tuesday at a news conference by Paul Lachance, president of the Council of Pulp and Paper Producers, which groups Quebec's 16 most important pulp and paper companies.

Mr. Lachance said the brief was presented earlier to Premier Robert Bourassa and he promised to give full attention to the industry's requests and to inform officials of the government's attitude after a short study.

Mr. Lachance said the requests made to the government in the brief would cut production costs by about $4 a ton and would encourage the companies to try to reduce costs by another $6 a ton to keep the industry competitive.

The council president said the industry feels it is absolutely necessary to reduce its production costs by $10 a ton if it is to survive in Quebec.

Canada's Surplus Declines

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's exports in December were $1.52 billion, showing a monthly trade surplus of $223.9 million, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

The surplus was down, however, from the December, 1970, mark of $251.9 million. Almost all the decline came in Canada-U.S. trade, which produced a surplus of $107.1 million in December, 1971, and $221.2 million for December, 1970.

Total imports for December were $1.39 billion.

Farmers Want to Be Able to Suggest Prices

EDMONTON (CP) — How much should a farmer receive for a pound of butter, a bushel of grain, a gallon of milk, or a bushel of apples?

Those are questions the Canadian Federation of Agriculture wants to be in a position to answer. And that's what the country's major farm organization wants to be able to recommend at future annual meetings.

After hearing reports on the opening day of the federation's annual meeting Monday of dismal financial returns from 1971 operations, the more than 150 delegates moved to set up a committee which would allow the organization to say just how much a farmer should get for his produce.

The committee will study farm business management and make a detailed study of what it costs to produce various commodities.

A resolution said the CFA, at a time when provincial and federal governments are seeking ways to determine which farmers should be retired and which must be helped to become more efficient, has failed to establish pertinent farm-income information.

The resolution said information is lacking on how much net income is desirable for farmers, what return on investment should be considered necessary and what net return should accrue to the farmer and his family for their labor and managerial ability.

The study will "further recommend to subsequent annual meetings price levels that should give the farmer a reasonable equitable return on investment, management and labor."

In the meantime there is a solid case for continued government financial support for agriculture, the meeting was told.

Charles Munro of Ottawa, CFA president, said in his annual report that the exceptionally depressed situation of net farm income provides an unanswerable case for solid government support and assistance.

Mr. Munro said it is essential that the public be made aware of the farmer's dismal financial plight in comparison with other segments of the economy.

Since 1998, the farmer's share of the consumer dollar has dropped to 45 from 69 per cent while during the same period consumers had to pay 38 per cent more for their food, he said.

One problem affecting many farmers has been the high interest rates charged by the federal Farm Credit Corp., he said, and delegates moved Tuesday to remedy this.

They passed a resolution saying that the FCC interest rate should be set at not more than five per cent and that all past loans written at higher rates should be renegotiated.

Railways Ordered To Maintain Service

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways have been ordered to continue running all passenger trains between Montreal and the Maritime provinces.

But the railways are eligible for federal subsidies of up to 80 per cent of annual loss on the uneconomic lines, the Canadian transport commission says. Losses amounted to $14,634,296 in 1970.

Applications to discontinue the rail services were filed with the commission between 1969 and 1970. Under the National Transportation Act, the railways must apply for discontinuance but qualify for federal subsidies.

The commission said it is satisfied there is a continuing need for a service between Montreal and the Maritimes.

The order will be asked formally Feb. 25 to submit ideas to the commission on how to improve the Montreal-Maritimes passenger train service.

The commission made a similar request before outlining suggestions to rationalize the transcontinental passenger train service between Montreal and Toronto and Vancouver.

The commission is discussing integration of the transcontinental passenger train services with the CNR and CP Rail. It suggests broadening the talks to include the Montreal-Maritimes passenger train system.

The CNR service between Montreal and Halifax took most of the Montreal-Maritimes losses in 1970—$12,302,280.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: We are driving up north soon where there aren't many service stations. What should we carry in the car to protect us in case we get stuck miles from a service station?

ANSWER: The average motorist carries in his car as preparation for emergency only a spare tire, jack and rim wrench. Even then, the spare is sometimes soft or flat or the jack is inoperative. Winter driving in the city can be hazardous enough, but to take the car up north in cold weather, or anywhere off the beaten track, totally unprepared can end in deep trouble and sometimes tragedy.

To cut down the chances of becoming stranded miles from nowhere in sub-zero weather, the car should be thoroughly serviced, including a good tune-up. Anti-freeze may be strong enough to protect at city temperatures, but can congeal in the radiator at high speeds when temperature plunges well below zero. When this happens, the engine soon boils and cannot be shut off. Then, almost immediately, the heater is useless and the temperature in the car quickly drops.

Always keep a small kit of tools in the trunk and familiarize yourself with their use. But even if you don't know what to do with them, a passing motorist might.

Carrying a set of battery booster cables can not only prove a boon to yourself in sub-zero weather, but may enable you to prove yourself a good Samaritan to some other driver in difficulties.

Another useful item is a domestic battery charger which can be plugged into any electrical outlet. Left plugged in overnight in cold weather, it keeps the battery fully charged and warm (important because the battery is at only about half its full capacity at zero temperature).

An electric block warmer is another way to assure starting when the car has been parked for several hours in frigid weather.

For traveling in a sudden blustery snowstorm, snow tires are a must. Lacking snow tires, a pair of strap-on chains can keep you going where you might otherwise bog down in deep snow.

Carry a couple of blankets and make sure clothing is warm enough to protect from the penetrating cold should you find yourself stranded on a lonely road.

Remember that shoes and plain rubber boots offer small protection in deep snow or extreme cold. Everybody in the car should have fleece-lined overshoes. Motorists and passengers have perished when the car skidded and dropped into the ditch in a heavy snowstorm.

Never travel without a flashlight. Imagine trying to change a tire or check a stalled engine in the pitch dark. You can buy lanterns with flashing red and white lights that can be placed on the roof of the car in an emergency. Also available are flares to set out around the car in the event of a breakdown right on the roadway.

First aid kits are available at reasonable cost and are invaluable when travelling anywhere at anytime. Don't forget a shovel for digging out of snowdrifts when you can't get going right away.

QUESTION: — On our forthcoming trip to Florida, we want to visit Walt Disney World near Orlando. Will it be difficult to get accommodation nearby?

ANSWER: — Disney World has one major problem — it's too successful. It has drawn over two million people since it opened in October. On one day, the 12,000-car parking lot had to be closed shortly after it had opened and there were 30-mile line-ups.

There is an average attendance of 60,000 a day. The park has two hotels with 1,587 rooms and a 200-site campground and there are some 16,000 rooms in the area. You can drive in from other areas such as Cocoa Beach, Daytona Beach, and New Smyrna Beach. These are on the Atlantic coast with beautiful sandy beaches and within 70 miles of Disney World. You will probably find the prices less expensive also.

Try for crowd-free days are to avoid the opening rush hour; arrive around noon or even a little later. When you get in, take sight-seeing buses around the grounds. These buses will take you to all of the most important places to see, and you won't waste time trying to find certain places of interest.

Disney World is twice the size of Manhattan and comprises 27,500 acres, so it would be very tiresome trying to cover it all on foot if you only have a few days.

It is open week-days from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Located just off Interstate 4 at U.S. 27, it is about 20 miles southwest of Orlando, 70 miles from Tampa and St. Petersburg and about 50 miles from Cape Kennedy by the Bee Line Expressway. If you are flush with money you can take Shawnee Airlines flights directly to the park from Orlando to Tampa Airports. The airline fare is $5 a person from Orlando and $20 from Tampa.

People Projects Urged

by COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

At last night's annual dinner meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, Frank Murray, in his final address as president of the chamber said: "My one recommendation to the incoming executive is limit-less more people projects and take the cramponds off gaining industrial trade.

"We will have to decide what we want from our community in the very near future and make some very definite plans on how to achieve it," he said.

A book prepared by the Municipal Industrial Policy Committee, Mr. Murray continued, says that "because of increased population and dwindling of resources we may only have 20 years left, even though we do not yet fully understand the significance of that as they sit here."

Mr. Murray, to support his proposition that "growth is inevitable" said, "It is just about time we began running the risks of growth for our own municities as well as the world.

"I wonder if it would be feasible to have a Belleville Day and suggest to the army with their airforce and navy that the mission stick in its place, form the Municipal Council of Belleville and Mr. Murray.

"A committee that would keep in touch only with industrial and Diplomatic industries, but the growth of parks and recreational facilities by working with supporting groups of committees," he said.

"Keeping them in touch with each other and the needs of the community."

"We are not getting to run (members) enough," he said. "I feel that with the new administration can solve this problem.

will make to the incoming executive," said Mr. Murray.

The first of Mr. Murray's criticisms of the chamber was a lack of communication between the executive and the membership.

"There are certain things we do well and we try to continue them," said Mr. Murray. "These things are typified by the creative efforts of George Van de Water and his rock garden and Mrs. Ann Hubbard's lunches. He tries and effects will mean much to the economic life of the community."

U.S. Rejects Trade Offer from Canada

Unique Link Denied By U.S.

By Irving C. Whynot
Canadian Press
Business Editor

United States rejection of the proposed trade package with Canada appears to make it clear the U.S. has also rejected a more basic claim — that Canada be given special treatment because of its bilateral and unique trading position with the U.S.

Canada tried to press this claim when the U.S. imposed its stringent economic moves—including the extra duty on imports—last August but it was rejected out of hand. The U.S. argued that it had to treat everyone the same.

There are no indications that the U.S. has changed its stand since, so it appears Canada is staring on this foe in the latest attempt.

What irks many Canadian businessmen is a lack of understanding — apparent lack of it — of the Canadian position.

Connally's Comment Hints at Trade War

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has rejected Canadian proposals on a new trade package and warned of possible strong action unless agreement can be reached soon.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally announced the rejection Wednesday when the administration sent to Congress its dollar-devaluation legislation aimed at helping the U.S. solve its balance of payments problems.

In Ottawa, Canada's minister of trade, Jean - Luc Pepin, said he DLS. apparently did not believe agreement with Canada was an absolute necessity.

While speculating that U.S.-Canada negotiations may be enlarged to cover other commodities, Mr. Pepin insisted the next move was up to Washington.

Prior to the rejection announcement, he said the government had spent a difficult day waiting until the last moment to hear the U.S. response to the proposed free trade. Canadian cabinet ministers met in an emergency session on the situation earlier in the day.

The trade department official said everything was "in a state of flux" as Canada attempted unsuccessfully to come to a last-minute agreement with the U.S.

"Regardless of agreements that have been reached with Canada," Mr. Connally said, although agreements had been worked out with Japan and the Common Market.

"The United States will seek to correct the large and enduring imbalances in trade agreements with that country (Canada), if he did not achieve them in these measures.

In Ottawa, Mr. Pepin said he did not know what measures the U.S. might take but said the statement "doesn't sound like a good omen."

Mr. Pepin said lack of agreement was regretable but the

Trudeau Explains

Canada Will Not Give In

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today the United States wants a better trade deal with Canada than this country is prepared to give.

"Both sides have stuck to their guns," he told reporters on his way into a cabinet meeting which was expected to discuss Wednesday's U.S. rejection of the proposed settlement of trade differences between the two countries.

Mr. Trudeau maintained that there is "no relevance" between the trade negotiations and his assurances from President Nixon in December.

Mr. Trudeau said after his Washington meeting with Mr. Nixon that the president promised that the U.S. does not want an annual trade surplus with Canada.

Mr. Trudeau at that time described Mr. Nixon's undertaking as a "fantastically new statement," a "breakthrough" and words "unequalled by any other president in speaking about Canada."

Asked whether he believes there is a split between Mr. Nixon and his treasury secretary, John Connally, the prime minister said that question would have to be put in Washington.

Trade minister Jean-Luc Pepin suggested that there is such a split.

He told reporters that Mr. Connally is "obsessed" with the need for an annual balance of trade between Canada and the U.S. and in each trade field.

Persian Villages Buried by Blizzard

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Rescue workers braved deep snow drifts but reported failure today in their search for several thousand persons missing in north western Iran.

The government radio said 18 bodies have been recovered so far from the village of Sheikhbad, near Bezaiyeh. The entire community of 150 persons was buried under eight feet of snow when blizzards hit the region earlier this week.

Soldiers have been digging for two days, the radio said, but they appear to have reached the hamlet too late to save any lives.

The bodies were found in the few houses the soldiers managed to reach early today. Thousands of cattle were also buried.

There has been no information on the fate of more than 2,000 persons in about 200 villages buried by snow between Serab and Khenaja, near Mergheh. Reports indicate they have been buried for more than a week.

U. S. Marshals Air Armada As Warning to North Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — The United States marshalled its biggest air armada in months today as a warning to North Vietnam and it abruptly stepped up its air strikes in South Vietnam to counter recent increases in Communist ground attacks.

The show of aerial strength was intended as a warning to North Vietnam of heavy retaliation in the event of the big C ommunist offensive predicted this month. Nearly 60 fighter-bombers and B-52 heavy bombers were in Vietnam, Thailand and off the coast of North Vietnam, and about 40 more B-52s were ordered from the United States to the western Pacific.

The U.S. command reported that air force and navy fighter-bombers flew 94 combat strikes in South Vietnam, more than eight times the daily average inside the country for the last four months during which the U.S. flyers have been concentrating on the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos.

Nearly a score of U.S. B-52s retaliated for a rocket attack Wednesday on Da Nang and its air base with the heaviest air action in the area in several years.

The carriers in the Tonkin Gulf also sent scores of war planes to attack supply routes in Laos and dispatched reconnaissance jets over North Vietnam to pinpoint targets to be hit if President Nixon decides to attack the North again in force.

The carrier Constellation arrived back in the gulf at dawn. Its port leave in Hong Kong cut short, and its planes joined those of the Coral Sea and the Hancock in the air operations. It is the first time three carriers have been operating off the Vietnamese coast at one time since November, 1970.

Reports from San Diego indicated a fourth carrier, the Kitty Hawk, might be on her way to Vietnam soon with another 75 planes.

Don Sutton Replaces Houston as Manager

At last night's annual meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, it was announced that J. C. (Pat) Houston would step down from his secretary - manager position at the chamber office.

He leaves the chamber after one year of service in that capacity, but will be retained on the chamber Board of Directors, beginning March 1.

Donald Sutton, now employed by T. L. Buckley Co. as a sales and public relations man, will take over the position.

Formal induction ceremonies were also held for the incoming executive. Frank Follwell will replace Frank Murray as president of the chamber.

Concerning with comments made by Mr. Murray, Mr. Follwell said, "Our first priority for the coming year must be the resolution of the lack of communication."

Commenting on the chamber, he said, "we must try to achieve many things as outlined by Mr. Murray, including an environmental issue."

Mr. Murray said earlier in the evening, "we must keep the environment we enjoy today."

Mr. Follwell, while complimenting the work team that handled the convention bureau, said, "I can see Belleville having some of the largest conventions in Canada in the next few years."

Mr. Austin capsulized his stand by saying, "at least part of today's profit is needed to pay tomorrow's cost."

Mr. Austin, in a dual role of public relations man and executive director of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, presided over the election of the new board for the chamber.

Agreeing with Mr. Austin on the principles of the profit system, Mr. Follwell thanked him by saying, "We . . . as retail personnel should be the disciples to preach the necessities of the free enterprise system."

Both New on the Scene

Conditions Criticized

TRENTON (Staff) — Allegations of cramped working conditions, unfair wage policies and inadequate prevention at OIC's converted bowling alley office on Dundas Street East will be forwarded to the Public Service Alliance of Canada.

A representative from the Canadian Labor Congress said he would place the matter in the hands of PSAC which shares its Toronto building with the CLC.

Ernie Arnold, who sits in on monthly meetings of the Quinte District Labor Council told Tuesday's assembly no further action could be taken at this point. He was responding to cheers made by a council member based on information received from an employee at the OIC office.

The member reported that more than 250 persons, most of them casual help, are "crammed" into the office which was taken over by OIC to alleviate crowded conditions at the main office at 494 Dundas Street East. Employees work three hours of overtime many evenings and often come in Saturdays, and receive straight pay, he said.

The office handles manual claim payments.

Rink Ventilation To Cost $11,000

It will cost an estimated $11,000 to properly ventilate the Dick Ellis Rink in west Belleville.

This is the estimate of consultants Totzek, Sims and Heskett Associates and a recommendation from the recreation-arena committee to carry out the installation will go to city council next Monday.

Estimated cost of ventilating the ice area is $5,500 and for other off-ice areas $5,500.

And the rink operators are having other problems with their ice scraper. This winter opportunities for 1000 in repairs have been necessary for the scraping machine and committee thoughts are that the machine might have to be replaced.

Recreational director Lorne Williams is also directed to bring in quotations for a new machine for the next committee meeting.

Austin Planning To Resign

W. E Austin, public relations manager for General Motors of Canada told The Intelligencer last night he was planning to resign his position as executive director of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Austin was guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

"I have done my share and plan to step down in June when the next executive meeting comes up," said Mr. Austin.

The Ontario executive, which is a managing, advisory body for provincial chambers, is made up of president, vice-president, treasurer and two executive directors.

Mr. Austin said, "It is usually expected that once on the executive, a person can direct to the president slot. With my commitments next year not enough time, I feel I should leave now."

Mr. Austin's successor will be chosen from chambers across the province.

Trade Offer Rejected

Canadian government felt it had offered reasonable compromises on issues of interest to the U.S. —such as the auto pact and the defence sharing agreements— and would wait for the American to take the next step.

Prime Minister Trudeau, going into a cabinet meeting today, said the Americans want a better trade deal with Canada than this country is prepared to give.

In Washington, a main concern is a trade imbalance with Canada which last year totalled $3.9 billion. There was also a $1.5 billion deficit in 1970 and the U.S. is trying to reduce this deficit with Canada and other major trading nations in an effort to solve its over-all trade imbalance.

The impasse in Canada-U.S. negotiations also raised speculation that the protectionist mood in some quarters of Congress now would be focused on Canada, but top treasury officials were markedly conciliatory when discussing problems with Ottawa.

William Eberle, President Nixon's special representative on trade, referred to Canadians as "good friends and good neighbors," and said: "We are in touch with the Canadians on a regular basis—it's not the sort of thing you close the door on."

To some Canadian observers the sending of the bill to Congress without Canadian agreement, despite intensive negotiations here and in Ottawa in recent months, offered a sort of breathing space.

Although congressional leaders have promised prompt action on the bill to devalue the U.S. dollar by increasing the price of gold to $38 from the present $35 an ounce, it does not get a hearing before the House of Representatives banking committee until Feb. 29.

It was understood here that in the final day before treasury finally sent the bill to Congress Wednesday night both the Canadian and U.S. parties had made so-called "final offers"—but were unable to bridge the gap.

As part of the devaluation deal worked out by the Group of Ten finance ministers here in December, Canada promised to send the covering legislation to Congress when he had new trade agreements to accompany it for the "scrutiny" of Congress, and this bills now appear stalled it still is possible an agreement with Canada could be reached before Congress starts work on the bill.

If not, however, a number of leading Canadian figures are possible, although treasury officials maintained the opposite in that direction. Congress, for instance, could offer amendments to restrict Canadian goods from the United States and the president has executive authority to impose surcharges of import quotas and the like.

Observers say there is unlikely to be much opposition to the devaluation bill itself, but it could provide a debating forum for congressmen urging the U.S to get tough with trading partners. If agreements with Canada still was lacking it is presumed much of any such amendment would be aimed at Canada.

If You're Shy Say It in Print

"I love you," he says. "I love you," she says.

Just three little words that speak rose-colored volumes for two people.

Simple, isn't it? Or is it? Love is perhaps one of the difficult symptom of the human condition to articulate successfully.

It wasn't just the jitters that made Valentine's Day a centuries-old institution. In fact, the exchange of greetings grew to such a cascade a long time ago, industry had a hand in it, keep the flow going.

Since communication is The Intelligencer's business, its columns seemed a natural outlet for the exchange in its community.

So, for the first time, the newspaper this year is organizing a special classified advertising column for what it calls "person - to - person" exchanges of Valentine's Day messages.

But, the staff in charge of the project — consciously or subconsciously — must have recognized it's not sometimes that simple to say "I love you."

Promotion for the column — for publication Sat. Feb. 12 — permits lovers' exchanges to run up to 25 words!

It will cost an estimated $11,000 to properly ventilate the Dick Ellis Rink in west Belleville.

This is the estimate of consultants Totzek, Sims and Heskett Associates and a recommendation from the recreation-arena committee to carry out the installation will go to city council next Monday.

Estimated cost of ventilating the ice area is $5,500 and for other off-ice areas $5,500.

And the rink operators are having other problems with their ice scraper. This winter opportunities for 1000 in repairs have been necessary for the scraping machine and committee thoughts are that the machine might have to be replaced.

Recreational director Lorne Williams is also directed to bring in quotations for a new machine for the next committee meeting.

Trenton Board Reviews Floor Plan of Offices

TRENTON (Staff) — The administrative board of the town (clerk - comptroller, treasurer and works commissioner) has been given the responsibility of revising the floor plan for the new municipal offices just received from Mayor Duncan McDonald said today council had made the decision at a committee of the whole session because "Mr. Larry (clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry) and the staff know best what the needs are as far as offices are concerned . . . and when everybody is happy . . .

One essential question to be dealt with by the board in its report to council is "who gets his own office and who doesn't," Trenton engineers, Lasalle Associates, have drafted a plan of the new municipal offices for council's consideration and the board feels some alterations to it are needed.

By the plan reviewed in a behind - closed - doors session of the council following Monday's regular council meeting, many partitions in the new office complex would be movable, ensuring greater flexibility.

The office will comprise the third floor of a new mall-town parking garage on the site of Trenton's former post office on Dundas West that is now being demolished.

The limestone tower will be retained in a way similar in design to the now-scrapped Eaton Centre Project by which the clock tower of Toronto's old city hall would have been retained with a new building to rise behind it.

Access to the new town hall, according to the just-completed Lassing plan, would be by an elevator set in the landmark tower. Visitors would get off the elevator at the third level, entering a foyer and reception area.

In the Lassing proposal, council chambers flank the west side of the foyer, along with the mayor's office and committee rooms close to Dundas West. It is expected revisions will see these rooms shuffled with the council chamber moved forward.

Although council estimated price-tag of the new office-parking garage at $300,000 in its 1972 capital works' budget, the mayor said today an accurate cost will not be known until tenders are called.

The administrative board will make its alterations to the Lassing floorplan for the town's new public building in the next three weeks, when the matter will be discussed at the next council meeting.

Night Fire Threatened Village

The burning building pictured here was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Mills and their four sons Brian, Douglas, John and Gerry of Consecon. Flames and heavy smoke have started in a workshop attached to the dwelling, forced the family into the street in 10 above zero temperatures and threatened nearby buildings before being contained.

Blaze Restricted To One Building

CONSECON — Flames that threatened to wipe out the centre of the village last night destroyed a two-storey frame dwelling and left the six occupants homeless.

The alarm, turned in at 7:30 p.m., brought nearly volunteers and ten regulars from Trenton, racing to the scene over slippery roads with three fire engines. They prevented the fire from spreading to the United Church next door and houses nearby on the main thoroughfare.

In the meantime, the Bob Mills family made their escape from the burning building, successfully, although Mr. Mills, upstairs at the time of the outbreak was compelled to use a window to reach safety.

At the scene, Amelisburg's fire chief Arnold Wetherall praised the mutual aid arrangement and explained that the township volunteers would be more effective in western parts of the township after the fireball opened at Cerrying Place this weekend. Volunteers with their equipment took 25 minutes to reach Consecon, more than 20 miles away, after they were called. Trenton regulars were already on the scene. The firemen, however, were credited with saving the village from harther fire damage.

The township volunteers at the height of the fire here were called to an outbreak in a small calf barn on the Gordon Lizton farm at RR1, Carrying Place. An overheated oil burner exploded, killing six calves in levelling the building. Firemen arrived too late to be of any assistance.

Senior Citizens Seek More Space

The Belleville Senior Citizens group has outgrown its limited meeting space on the ground floor of the recreation building on Pinnacle Street and is asking for larger accommodation.

The group members, at their January meeting, passed a recommendation asking that a senior citizens' centre be included in the 250 units proposed for the city by the Ontario Housing Corporation and that the accommodation be available to all senior citizens, not just tenants of the buildings.

The OHC now provides a communal room for recreational activities in the senior citizens' apartment complexes, but use is intended only for residents.

The senior citizens' recommendation was passed along to the recreation - areas committee by way of a letter from club president Mrs. Kathleen Adams, who said they hope outgrown their present meeting room with result that activities were limited.

The senior citizens group now has a membership of about 325.

The recreation committee yesterday recommended that a mayor's committee be set up to meet with representatives of OHC and the provincial social services department to discuss the possibilities of such a senior citizens' centre being set up.

The feeling of the recreation committee is that such a centre should be in a senior citizens' apartment building where it is provided that's handy and cost less to operate than would a separate building.

Falling Tree Kills Foreman

TWEED (Special) — A 20-inch-thick tree trunk has been fatally injured by a falling tree during a dead elm removal program in Madoc township.

Madoc provincial police said today that Robert Moore, 372 Arthur Street, Tweed, died Wednesday night in a Kingston hospital from injuries received Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Moore was taken to Belleville General Hospital with head injuries but was moved to Kingston.

Mr. Moore, married with one child, was acting as foreman for a tree removal gang working on L. O'connor's farm in Madoc township.

Police said he had been talking with other members of the work party when he stepped into the path of the falling tree.

Worm Larva Carrier Still Eludes Researchers

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A common contact factor is still being sought by Toronto scientists to explain the rare presence of parasitic microorganisms in the optic nerves of two Belleville-area women.

Dr. C. B. Lenk, health officer for Hastings and Prince Edward counties, said today he has not yet heard any results from University of Toronto specialists conducting tests to find the source of the organisms.

The organisms have been identified as the larvae of ascaris worms, said the health officer. Such worms breed in animal species — including foxes, cats, dogs, snails and frogs — but rarely in humans.

Both women — a teenage girl from the Corbyville area, and a Belleville housewife — are still in a Toronto hospital, said Dr. Lenk. Their identities have not been revealed by the health officer.

The cases were discovered several weeks apart, and there was no contact between either woman as far as health authorities could determine. The laboratory search now underway is seeking a common carrier factor.

Last week, specimens of well water, a portion of a wild frog found in the refrigerator of one woman's home, and samples taken from both households — a cat and a dog — were described by university researchers by Dr. Lenk.

For health officials a puzzling side effect is that two such cases should occur in an area of relatively small population.

Dr. Lenk — who during service with the former British colonial service in Africa had heard of such cases — said last week such an incidence-ratio was rare, particularly in Canada.

Since the incidents were publicized, he has received mail and phone calls from around the province — one, a call from a St. Catharines woman, who said her son had suffered a similar eye problem 18 months ago when he was three years old.

However, in that particular case, said Dr. Lenk, the larvae was from a different species of worm.

The St. Catharines case perhaps indicates human invasion by such parasitic organisms may not be as rare as first thought, said Dr. Lenk.

Nevertheless, "three (cases) for the whole of Ontario is not really much," added the health officer. "It's tragic enough. One case is bad enough."

While medical authorities are aware that larvae can be transmitted through animal carriers, "we would like to know more about it — and I hope the investigation will be successful," said Dr. Lenk.

The hunt for a common denominator involves elimination of various possibilities and is a research problem involving "laborious procedures," said Dr. Lenk.

River Watch Starts Early

Continuing cold weather means sustained vigilance along the Moira River to guard against any possible flood threat, Quinte Emergency Measures co-ordinator Angus Duffy said today.

The problem is posed by slush ice, now forming upriver. Borne downstream, it clogs channel access to the Bay of Quinte and causes a water backup.

Thus a wind sent city work crews to Victoria Park yesterday where the Moira had flooded its banks and was slowly rising in the city's downtown area.

Using a mobile crane, the crew punched through river ice to clear the channel of slush.

The work went on today, but already pressure has loosened the ice floe in the commercial area, said Mr. Duffy.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said work will continue until the entire channel is flowing freely.

Fast-moving water is a critical factor. With continuing cold weather—last night's low in Belleville was seven degrees below zero—the danger is that new obstruction could freeze solid, said Mr. Purcell.

Such an occurrence would greatly complicate removal problems and increase the danger of flood.

The cold spell is creating slush in open water at the city's north end and further upriver. The Ontario Hydro Picton Thermal Electrical Victoria Park channel could be blocked any time, estimated Mr. Duffy.

The emergency measures co-ordinator said the city will be maintained on the river, likely until spring breakup.

Thurlow Has Garage Plans

Thurlow Township has received plans for its proposed storage garage.

The five-bay structure, to be located on Highway 2 just north of Corbyville, also incorporates office space, a storeroom and a lunchroom. A fuel oil storage tank will be located at the site.

Councillor Garnet Denyes revealed Wednesday that the township was hoping to sell the barn now being used for $25,000. "The cost would be so bad," he said.

Council will hold a special meeting within the next couple of weeks to study the specifications. An official from M. J. McAlpine of Belleville, consulting engineers on the project, will attend the meeting.

Province's Plan Helps Rinks

Committee members yesterday learned that $6,388 has been allocated to assist in the maintenance of outdoor rinks.

"It won't pay the entire cost but will assist considerably," noted committee chairman Alderman Robert Jeffrey.

Health Costs

Dr. Reginald Anderson's address to Rotarians was explicit concerning why health costs are mounting and why such promising programs as the Queen's self-care unit increasingly will be necessary if the upward financial spiral is not to reach intolerable proportions.

That the public is in part to blame was indicated when Dr. Anderson pointed out that the hospital/bed population ratio in Ontario is higher than any place in the world while people here occupy hospital beds more often and stay in them longer than any other people in the world.

And at the local level, where the self-care unit is proving its worth, there are nevertheless hospital patients who say they have paid their medicare and prefer to remain in hospital. And each day a patient remains there he costs the public an extra $50, said Dr. Anderson.

There we have a glimpse of the reasons behind spiralling health costs. It would be interesting also to know just how much the accident rate, on the highways — and in increasing numbers, from snowmobile activities, is affecting health costs.

A retired cabinet minister had his eyes opened in this regard recently. He is J. J. Greene, who has given up his job as minister of mines, energy and resources as he is still recovering from a stroke suffered in Japan last September. Mr. Greene, undergoing treatment in a Toronto hospital, said recently many of his fellow patients were young persons who had been seriously injured in car accidents and were being helped to regain use of limbs.

Frequently too, the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario advertises the need for safety in a variety of situations, as in "Falls Hurt — Watch Your Step." Falls, says the advertisement, hurt more men and women than any other on-the-job accident.

"Work and walk decisively," the ad urges, "no accidents don't happen." And it points out some simple precautions — such as making sure a ladder is firmly anchored top and bottom, avoiding the practice of riding the tailgate of a truck for instance (youngsters, we might add, are being warned to stay away from snow-clearing equipment), walking down steps while carrying a large box that obscures the view ahead, and walking on surfaces where there has been a spill . . . instead wipe it up first.

By acting defensively in all such situations we can avoid injury that can mean hospitalization and therefore more strain on medical facilities and budgets.

Community Programs

Earlier this month reporter Lenny Williamson noted that the Queen Victoria School community program was doing so well it was putting a strain on accommodation. Consequently plans were being made to open up Queen Alexandra for some activities for teenagers.

Moreover, there seems to be good rapport between the young and the not so young. A picture of the Q.E. community program evening activities showed a young fellow in a game of cards with three senior citizens.

In stark contrast to this was the report the other day of indifference to such a program among west hill citizens. Out of the first 300 questionnaires delivered to households by Richard Austin for the city recreation department only 100 could be retrieved and of these a mere 17 had been answered.

Such missives are known to get mislaid or lost of course, human nature being what it is, so it is encouraging to see that a second approach is to be made with a further 150 copies. Maybe even those who gave a blunt "no" and closed the door will demonstrate more interest the second time around. As for the senior citizens who feel they may be past participating in such a program, our earlier reference to the card game worthies at Queen Victoria may help dispel that notion.

Let's hope this will be the case; for one thing it will help justify some of our provincial make-work programs, of which Mr. Austin's work on the survey is one. That he personally is not allowing the dust to gather under his feet is shown by the fact he approached each of the householders with a copy of the survey, explaining it and indicating he would return to pick it up.

Ministerial Deputies Still The Real Power

Cabinet Shuffle Does Not Impress Opposition

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Before you buy that pretty political package of the recent 13-man cabinet shuffle, as a whole new deal, think.

It is, as former Conservative Prince Minister John Diefenbaker said in his brass-tacks way: "The same old team."

A stand-in, for former Prince Minister Ben ("The Bandit") Benson when the ex Prime lacing it to the working middle class Canadians, was fenced in to Parliament.

Pat Mahoney did the force-feeding as Benson's parliamentary secretary — a sort of minister - in - waiting; waiting, that is, for promotion, so now he'd his stripes by hiding and jogging the Commons with Closure.

Which makes Mr. Mahoney very much one of "the same old bunch."

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield put it in a little more delicately: "The Senfe familfer faces to continue the same familiar policies."

New Democratic Leader David Lewis, dropping acid but missing the mark, scoffed that the cabinet package had been wrapped as a pre-election gift to business and industry.

He saw Prime Minister Trudeau as a gambler discarding Byron Mackasey, Ronald Basford and Edgar Benson to improve his hand in playing for the business and industrial community's election campaign fund pot.

For Benson in Finance with his tax bill, Mackasey in Labor with his Code, and Basford in Consumer Affairs with his Competition Act were supposed to have so turned off business and industry, the Liberal party's "bagmen" dunning the corporate board rooms for campaign money were getting only cricket and dime "contributions".

The three "shorted," or discarded ministers were as daringly controversial as their legislation.

Result was, to hear the lamentations of the Liberal backroom boys, that campaign "contributions" were being allotted 50-50 between the two major parties instead, as has been the accepted practice, of the government getting 60 percent of the take and the opposition only 40.

So - to improve the government-image where it counts most — for Finance — Trudeau rewarded Benson and drew the cabinet's "Mr. Clean," that handsome, low-key, supposedly political - White - Knight - to-Bleeding-Accord, John Turner, relate of the Justice Department.

The Mr. Clean" became the "he had handled the dirty jobs" for the Trudeau cabinet — the making of homosexuality legally acceptable, bail rather than arrest, easier abortion and more rights for the criminal and less authority for the police — he somehow had managed to avoid soiling his lily-white image.

He seemed to stand apart, above and beyond it, while making it all happen with what must have been political miracles.

But in Finance?

Uh, uh.

He goes in there as a new boy.

Into the clutches of the old hands who transformed good, decent, Ben Benson into a seedy, great-guy Edgar Benson into Ben the Beastly Bandit.

And in the Treasury Board.

The old hands — Deputy Finance Ministers Sid Robinson, Marshall "Mickey" Cohen, T. L. Shoyama, William C. Hood and other assistant Jamiesons, the mechanics who tossed the money-grenades hurled by, the dedicated machinery of the economy in these last two lean and hungry years of recession, are still there at the controls.

Missing only is Assistant Deputy Minister J. R. Beattie, who for six unrelenting years, was the acknowledged boss who handled the new Tax Reform Laws which nobody understands.

Having made the irresistibly inviting Benson, Basford and Mackasey targets for the fast cat, the counselors, reformer Beattie departed the Finance Department.

If the shuffle meant a whole new ball game, Deputy Beattie stood head-and it was the same old game with the same familiar faces.

New — but used — men in different jobs, he said, but no backoff from the labor, business, and most of all tax laws.

And John Turner supported all three things, did he not?

Another Look at the UIC Operation

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Permit me to say that I rate the piece under the h and of Noel Stockton as rubbish. If course the Commission considers that the bowling alley is adequate for its purpose. In the first instance people like Mr. Stockton don't have to work to it — and in the second, nobody ever expected a casual employee to comment in a newspaper on the conditions.

It is funny that Mr. Stockton has had no complaints. O many occasions all casual employees have been addressed by unit and section supervisors who have apologized for the various shortcomings that exist. Does Mr. Stockton really think that folks who have been unemployed are likely to stick their necks out by publicly stating their grievance — they would be out of the door in short order.

Mr. Stockton is quite right- "Term Casual" can grieve, that is, if the Commission ever gets around to swearing them in as such, or perhaps he is not aware that this procedure has to be followed.

Regardless of whether or not the bowling alley is providing employment for 2 to 6 government agencies still should be sensitive to working conditions. After all, the conditions directly affect their working performance.

I have seen members of the staff collapse at their desks and have to be taken home in a state of nervous exhaustion, and many have stated that their even doctors are appalled at the hours and conditions. If Mr. Stockton dares, I challenge him to circulate a questionnaire that will allow casual employees to answer questions without being victimized.

Last Friday we were advised that casuals would be paid time and one half for overtime. What about all the hours that were put in, in order to fit the UIC out of its backlog of claims? I suppose the government in its quest for a just society can overlook such things. Yet they have made a tacit acknowledgement that overtime should be regarded equally and in the manner comparable with other members of the staff.

Perhaps Mr. Stockton would care to comment on the treatment of the last batch of casual employees that were hired as CR-2's, a clerical category, they were soon all placed on the processing of pay — a CR -2" category. Now that the rush is temporarily over they have been told they will have to stay as CR-2", with no retroactive pay for the backlog of overtime they incurred.

Perhaps UIC officials can come down from their broadloom tower and get down to basics and find out if the staff has any gripes. Real assurance of what exists will soon shake Mr. Stockton's picture of a happy contented bunch — it's very easy to take liberties with people who are desperate for a job.

For myself, I have written to my member of parliament and asked him to investigate the whole set up.

ZOMBIE

Couple Wants Doctor

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

For the past three months I have been trying to arrange, without success, for constant medical advice for my older sister and myself.

We are elderly people (I am 78). We are not hypochondriacs, but would be grateful-reasonable to have one regular doctor who knows us and our conditions.

Having been unsuccessful in finding such a practitioner on our own, I approached Dr. Mc-Cor, Dr. F. J. Rubsell Scott. He referred me to the welfare department.

We are not welfare cases. We are willing and able — indeed anxious — to pay for any service provided.

My next appeal was to the chief of police. He referred me to a doctor, who, after cursory examination, prescribed some pills. That was the last we saw of him, even though my sister subsequently fell, injured her shoulder and was taken to hospital on his advice over the telephone.

Let me emphasize that all we seek is regular, routine advice and treatment, as required, from a doctor who will be familiar with us and our conditions.

While I realize that doctors are busy men in this city, surely what two elderly people seek is not too much to ask for.

Intimidation on Part of Both Blacks and Whites

Rhodesia Settlement Thwarted by Racist Intrigue

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — The British Government appears to be waiting hopefully for some possible change in its fortunes in Rhodesia which may possibly sustain its settlement terms with Premier Ian Smith.

So far, the outlook seems bleak. Public sessions of the opinion-sampling Pearce commission indicate an overwhelming rejection of the terms by Rhodesian blacks.

But British officials suggest it is too early to draw any firm conclusions. Lord Pearce and his commissioners, who have been in Rhodesia for a month, are expected to remain there for another month before returning here to write their report.

In addition to public gatherings to test black and white acceptability of the terms, the commissioners are receiving replies through the mail, at the current rate of about 1,000 letters a day.

British officials suggest that while public demonstrations may be saying "No" to the terms in public, they may be expressing different opinions in private. And the reverse may be true, as well.

Adding to complications is the growing evidence of intimidation — by both black and white. Lord Pearce has virtually accused Smith himself of practising intimidation by not providing a satisfactory reason why he has jailed former premier Garfield Todd and his daughter, Judith, as well as leading figures in the African National Congress.

This council, bringing together two governments and black political parties, has led the black drive against the settlement under which Britain would recognize the white-minority Smith regime and drop economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

Since the Todds were locked up, along with reported hundreds of restless blacks, the riots which marked the opening Pearce commission sessions subsided.

Salisbury whites argue that the African National Council forced many of the blacks to say "No" through pressure. The blacks counter that white bosses threatened black employees with loss of their jobs if they did not say "Yes."

Amid these contradictions and confusion, the Pearce commission itself becomes somewhat unsure about what the British government says it will rely heavily on the commissioners' findings in deciding whether the settlement terms are to be implemented.

The fact that British officials advise observers not to be basing on what the commission's findings may provide suggests there is much more to evaluate than the current wave of rejection among the blacks.

Leisure Requirements

Editor,

The Belleville Family YMCA and the Community Services of Belleville and District have created a joint committee to study the use and needs of leisure time facilities and programs for all age levels in Belleville.

Through living room dialogues with a randomly selected group of citizens, we hope to find out the assessment of the relevancy of what exists will be frankly discussed, and an action program of what should be done will evolve.

In coming days, you may be receiving an invitation to a parlor meeting at a neighbor's home. If you do, we earnestly hope that you will be able to attend.

Copters Have Cold Weather Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — A $24 million program to equip the Canadian Armed Forces with a new reconnaissance helicopter, just now getting off the ground, has hit bumpy weather.

A defence department spokesman said Tuesday a number of "bugs" have been detected in the first half-dozen of 74 Kiowa air-jeep helicopters ordered two years ago from Bell Helicopter Co. of Fort Worth, Tex.

Most of the problems are related to Canada's cold-weather flying conditions and some have already been overcome by the aerospace engineering and test establishment at Cold Lake, Alta.

The spokesman said experts are hopeful the remaining trouble-bits will be licked by or about the time deliveries are completed Oct. 31. Canada took delivery of the first machine Dec. 16.

The following difficulties have been encountered:

1. Under certain conditions of blowing snow, screw-mudates in the engine inlet and causes engine failure. The problem has been dealt with by modifying the inlet.

2. At temperatures of 15 to 30 above zero, in high humidity, ice may form on the fuel-control governor and cause the engine to overspeed. A fuel control heating kit has been devised to overcome the problem.

3. At temperatures under 25 below, there is inadequate cabin heat.

4. Under 15 below, there is apt to be insufficient battery power.

5. At 15 to 25 below, only marginal defrosting of the pilot's and co-pilot's windows.

6. Tail-boom damage has occurred during practice touchdowns with the power off. Such landings with the rotor still spinning but not under power have been prohibited for the time being.

The helicopters thus far received — two are at Cold Lake base and four at the Portage la Prairie, Man., training establishment — have not been grounded, the spokesman said.

"The Canadian Forces were made aware of the problems by the U. S. A rmy, which had encountered them while flying the Kiowa operationally in Germany. However, the warning wasn't received until after Canada had ordered the machines.

Negotiations for recovery of the cost of modifications were said to be under way with Bell Helicopter and with Allison Motor Co. of Indianapolis, makers of the engine.

"I do not think we have ever bought a plane that did not have bugs in it," said one spokesman today, adding "nobody forced us to buy this plane."

He stressed solutions have been found to most of the Kiowa's difficulties and the work done now relates to finding "optimum designs."

"We know there were going to be troubles with snow flying but did not know exactly what they were . . . it is the best plane available for the job," the Ottawa spokesman said.

The helicopters were purchased for use both with Mobile Command in Canada and with NATO forces in West Germany.

Top RCAF Association officials, Fred Way, national president and Ron Butcher, general manager, show Belleville 418 Wing president Ed Karkheck, centre, a plaque designed to signify employees of an air industry are members of the Air Force Association. The recently elected Mr. Way was also appointed Mr. Butcher visited the local Wing on a get-acquainted tour of Ontario.

Air Force Association Plans to Add Members

An additional source for membership to perpetuate the Air Force Association was explained to the members of the Belleville 418 Wing RCAFA by Fred Way, national president of the organization and Ron Butcher, the new general manager, on a tour of Wings in Ontario.

Acting on a motion passed at a national convention two years ago, Mr. Way stated membership now will be accepted from employees of any air industry, companies manufacturing aviation parts plus those involved with flying clubs. In the past only serving and retired air element personnel and young men who have completed Air Cadet training qualified for membership.

Mr. Way showed the gathering a plaque especially designed to be displayed by companies that chose to become a part of the air force association. These companies would also be on the mailing list of the national publication, Wings at Home.

Retaining the interest of members plus regaining the interest of delinquent persons was the prime concern of Ron Butcher. The possible across-Canada membership could be 50,000 to 60,000 instead of the 10,000 that now stands.

Echoing Mr. Butcher's feelings, the national president felt the key to the success of any wing was involve the members emotionally. Varied programs are required to satisfy the groups' social needs, brief business meetings are a must, with-bulk of the decisions and responsibility carried by the executive.

Concluding his speech, Mr. Way remarked, "We have always been proud of being air force. We have always been known as air-minded people, now let us prove it through our words, deeds and actions."

418 Wing president Ed Karkheck thanked the visitors, noting that many of the members had met Ron Butcher in June at the Antique Air Show. At that time Mr. Butcher was still serving and acted as liaison officer for the Toronto regional wings.

Fred Way was elected national president at the convention held in Saskatoon last October, and is the manager of a flying training school in Calgary.

Request for Help Tabled by Council

TRENTON (Staff) — The town has been asked to pay a share of legal costs involved in a fight before the Ontario Energy Board that checked a large gas rate increase.

In a letter from the Northeastern Municipal Association, organizers of the intervention for concerned municipalities, the request is made that Trenton pay approximately $1,700 toward the bill of nearly $50,000.

Although gas rates were allowed to climb by only 12 percent of the amount requested by the Northern and Central Gas Co. — a substantial saving to 93 municipalities in Ontario — Trenton is undecided whether it should pay toward the costs for representation at energy board hearings.

Trenton did not commit itself to help finance the anti-rate increase action when municipalities were polled to do so in early 1970. As the municipal association writes, "at that time we solicited your support morally and financially but did not hear from your council one way or the other."

Councillor Ted Parker told council Monday, "it leaves us as freeloaders if we do not pick up part of the cost — even though we did not commit ourselves . . . it is a matter of whether we have moral responsibility."

With its financial priority, council decided to table the matter "until budget time."

Belleville had been asked to participate both financially ($4,300) and morally but sent along only a statement of moral support.

TORONTO (CP) — The University of Toronto campus "is not hallowed ground" and students can expect no special consideration from the law while on the grounds, says Harold Adamson, Toronto police chief.

Ontario Denies Bid to Cut Aid

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario treasury department spokesman denied today that the province has threatened to reduce its share of equalization payments which aid poorer areas of Canada.

The spokesman, commenting on a statement Monday by Finance Minister Peter Nicholson of Nova Scotia, said:

"They (Nova Scotians) must think we're awfully small people. We've never ever questioned the need for equalization payments."

Mr. Nicholson said fear that Ontario would reduce its share of such payments prompted Nova Scotia to levy a succession duty. The duty will be retroactive to Jan. 1 under legislation to be introduced at the spring sitting of the house.

The tax, was dropped by the federal government Dec. 31, in favor of a capital gains tax which it will share with the provinces.

Hearts in a Big Way

They were a little early for Valentine's day, but who cares what day it is when you want to tell someone how you feel. Shirley Yanover and Tom Walters took the time yesterday to say it in snow on the surface of the river.

Le Dain Replies

TORONTO (CP) — Gerald LeDain, chairman of the report on the non-medical use of drugs, answers a critic by calling him naive.

Mr. LeDain said in an interview Tuesday the "sweeping generalizations" of Toronto psychiatrist Dr. Andrew Malcolm of the Addiction Research Foundation were "not sustained by his criticism."

Dr. Malcolm, in a 27-page criticism, called the report incompetent, sometimes misleading and potentially dangerous.

Electronic Technicians Meet Mediator

OTTAWA (CP) — The strike of 2,200 electronics technicians entered its fourth day today amid conflicting reports of how it was affecting Canadian commercial air traffic.

Negotiators for the technicians and their government employers were to continue efforts to find a strike-ending settlement today.

The talked for almost 12 hours Wednesday, breaking off sometime after midnight until 9 a.m. EST.

As the two sides met with mediator Gordon Simmons of Queen's University, a spokesman for the union in Montreal said 400 workers designated by the agreement as essential for emergency duty would walk off the job at any time unless the government moved to insure flight safety.

Esther in Ottawa, William Andreeff, president of Local 2228, International Brotherhood of Electrial Workers, said the government was taking dangerous risks in attempting to keep up a "business-as-usual" front at airports hit by the strike.

The Experts Say

Never Shop for Perfume Along With Other Woman

EDMONTON (CP) — A woman should go shopping for her perfume either alone or with a man, says beauty consultant Kathleyn Whitton.

Miss Whitton, who operates a cosmetic and perfume shop called the Third Face, thinks women ought to pay more attention to perfumes and wear them more often.

"We should wear perfume to create an aura of beauty around us, not only for others but for ourselves as well. Others appreciate perfumes, if they are worn carefully. And they make us feel beautiful within ourselves."

An ardent astrology-buff with a deep interest in spiritualism, the tall, willowy brunette believes the stars can help you in choosing a perfume.

"Astrology can be a help in finding your scent. It helps make us aware of ourselves through symbols, makes us look at the essential nature of ourselves, and that's what perfumes reveal."

She groups perfumes in four major types: neutral, stimulating, exogenic and tranquilizing. These four correspond with the four elements of astrology: air (Aquarius, Gemini, Libra), earth (Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn), fire (Aries, Leo, Sagittarius) and water (Pisces, Cancer, Scorpio).

A woman born under one of the water signs should look for her perfume under those that are in the tranquillizing group—those with pure, single-flower scents with gardenia or rose bases or sometimes with a sandalwood base, she said. These might include perfumes such as Diorissimo, Chamade, Capucci or Inprevu.

Neutral scents are those with lime or ming bases. Stimulating perfumes have spice bases and the exogenic scents, which please those born under the fire signs, have musk, amber or jasmine bases.

She is a Virgo—"we're very fastidious and aware of accents"—and she prefers some of the Chanel perfumes, such as No. 5. This she calls "the intellectual perfume."

She says she doesn't believe that a woman has to stick to one scent. But a perfume wardrobe should be selected from among the same types of bases.

Perfumes linger in the clothes, but they can complement each other."

A woman also can wear a perfume that complements the outfit she has chosen, Miss Whitton said. Then the scent reinforces the mood she is trying to create.

"On days when I need to be aggressive, I wear red—and Chanel goes well with that."

Other perfumes, especially those suited to the fire signs, such as Miss Dior, Quelques Fleurs or Je Reviens, are "cool."

"They make me think of white-greens, of lily-of-the-valley, for instance."

When a woman is shopping for a perfume, she should rely on her subconscious, her intuition, and buy what she likes. "Too many women are influenced by packaging, ads and the sales pitch.

A woman should never shop for a perfume while she is ill or angry, said Miss Whitton.

"The body takes o a different chemical reaction and it will affect the smell."

"When the person is gone, the perfume will linger."

COSTLY OPERATION

MONTREAL (CP) — The average price in Montreal for surgery to enlarge breasts is from $400 to $500. The operation, which can last up to two hours, involves inserting pillfilled bags with the same weight and feel as natural breasts. However there is no guarantee as to how long this operation can prevent breasts from sagging.

Correspondence by Talking on Tapes

Dear Doris: I appreciated the suggestions you gave me many months ago for hobbies which would take my mind off the problems presented by my job.

Now you have me working on a stamp collection which is growing by leaps and bounds.

But the World Tapes bug has been the most exciting. I have found a very nice gentleman and a charming lady in France, who speak, slowly, in French for me; the gentleman teaches French at University of Southern California.

Both are so kind and helpful and all in all it has proved a real boost to me. — Contented Now.

Dear Contented: I recall, too, that there was a change in your job, which relieved you of some of the terrible worry you used to have.

World Tapes Correspondence is growing in popularity all the time. Mostly using the little cassette tape recorder.

To hear a person's voice brings him closer, I guess, than to read his letter. And when it comes to using recorded communication for learning a language, the advantages are obvious.

World Tapes promote international understanding — an imaginative kind of communication!

Details to anyone writing in.

Dear Doris: My wife is very weak (mentally) and has been in a mental hospital several times. It therefore is difficult to invite any friends in for a social visit. I will be 50 in March I held a birthday party for her and invited as many friends (adults) as the house would comfortably hold. This large group of people did not seem to bother my wife, so I plan on doing the same thing again.

My problem is, with a large group of friends, just sitting around and talking is not satisfactory. Could you send me your suggestions for adult party games for groups of 10 to 20 people? — On My Own.

Dear On My Own: Good for you. The company of friends who love her can do nothing but good. When a large group of people come together for a party an amusing game or competition makes for laughter and activity.

For the money you enclosed I am sending you a half dozen leaflets I have describing games and skits. These are home of fun.

Get a pal to work with you on arranging everything including refreshments, invitations and other preparations. Good luck!

Dear Doris: I enjoy your column so much. Please send me the little P.S. Handbook.

Best Wishes.

Dear Best Wishes: I'm sending but I'm sure you managed to guess the price wrong and when you see it you will agree that the correct price of 25 cents will only barely meet printing and those 18 pages, not counting any of the art work or the actual writing.

I hope you will find it useful. The general idea is not to supply textbook material but to encourage our do-gooders to tell their story without being scared stiff of editors. Newspaper reporters and radio people are looking for news, remember, and are easy to get along with.

The little Public Relations Handbook prepared by my committee of our Ontario Association of Professional Social Workers, I hope will be the first down some of the basic principles of communicating.

It is still available, in exchange for 25 cents and a large, self - addressed stamped envelope.

Ann Landers

Ann Goes Back to Original Advice

Dear Readers: In the past, when my readers have persuaded me that I've made a mistake, I have retracted my stand. I don't mind admitting a mistake—only a fool believes he is infallible.

Recently a woman wrote about a family problem. Her husband nearly died because of what she described as a sloppy operation. She asked me how to go about suing the surgeon. I advised her to consult with the grievance committee of the county medical society. Dozens of lawyers blasted me for that advice. "Taking a complaint against a doctor to the county medical society," wrote one attorney, "is like asking the Ku Klux Klan for help with a segregation problem."

I printed the lawyer's letter and advised my readers to skip the county medical society and see an attorney. When that column appeared, the roof fell in. Doctors by the hundreds wrote to say: "Your original advice was right. Why did you change it?" The calibre and tone of the mail caused me to do some serious re-evaluating. And now I'm doing something I've never done in the 17 years I've been writing this column. I am going back to my original advice.

Here's what I have learned as a result of this exchange. There are shoddy technicians and incompetents in every field. The medical profession is no exception. But unfortunately, when a doctor makes a mistake, there's a funeral. The medical profession has set up committees in hospitals to check every surgical procedure. The removed tissue is examined and a pathologist has before him the evidence. He knows the answer to the question: "Was that operation necessary?" If a surgeon removes a healthy appendix or a healthy breast, he won't be around long enough to perform too many more unnecessary operations.

The medical profession also has grievance committees to hear complaints. The men who serve (without salary) are the top physicians in the community. If they find evidence of criminal negligence or malpractice, they will help the complainant by testifying in court against the doctor. The medical society is not interested in protecting incompetent members of their profession.

The United States would do well to adopt the Canadian and English procedures in regard to criminal suits against physicians. This would curtail shameless the contingency system which encourages lawyers to exploit patients. As a result, most physicians have malpractice insurance and will settle out of court rather than take the time from their practice and risk the bad publicity connected with a lawsuit. An unprincipled lawyer will take any case regardless of merit for a percentage (usually 30 per cent) of what he can collect from the doctor—which of course means from the insurance company.

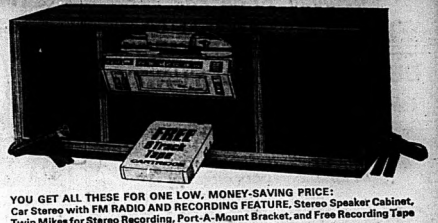
Malpractice insurance in California runs as high as $12,000 a year for some anesthesiologists and plastic surgeons. Who do you think pays for these astronomical policies? The patient, of course.

The patient also pays for the doctors' medical bills, because the doctor will take five sets of x-rays instead of two, and eight laboratory tests instead of three. He wants to have plenty of evidence in case he gets sued.

I am not defending organized medicine. My interest is in improving health services for Americans of every economic level. I am constantly needling the American Medical Association to get with it, and I've done my share to get Congress to allocate money for medical education and research. But I do believe the medical profession does a good job of policing its own. The dedicated physicians want to throw the rascals out.

Navy Accepts Some Women

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States Navy has opened its door slightly to women naval officers—but it made clear there is not going to be a lady captain on the bridge.



Navy Secretary John Chaffee said Tuesday young women could enrol in the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps at

But there would be no midshipwomen at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., despite pressure from senators, he told a news conference.

Senate champions of the Women's Liberation Movement have nominated two women candidates for Annapolis this year, hoping to breach the barrier of the 12,000-cadet all-male Naval Academy.

Nixon Confident Leadership Not Issue

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon says he is confident his leadership won't be an issue at the provincial party's annual convention this weekend in Ottawa "unless I raise it."

Mr. Nixon, 51, appeared confident about his own standing and future in the party as he spoke in an interview Wednesday about the three-day convention, expected to attract 1,200 delegates.

Nineteen federal cabinet ministers will take part in seven panel discussions Saturday prior to a major address at 4:30 p.m. by Prime Minister Trudeau. The election of officers takes place Sunday.

Mr. Nixon takes the spotlight Saturday noon when he appears before delegates to give his annual "accounting" as leader.

It will be the first serious test of his status in the party since the disastrous fall election when Liberal opposition in the 117-seat house fell to 20 seats from 27.

Mr. Nixon said his speech will deal with the fall election, the future of the party "and my own future."

Mr. Nixon said he discussed his plans with his caucus last week and has its support. "The mail I've been getting unfailingly urges me to stay on."

Officials say they believe Mr. Nixon will remain as leader in the interests of party unity because of the forthcoming federal election. The role of the provincial Liberals in a federal election, expected this spring, will be one of the themes of the weekend convention at the Skyline Hotel.

Policy Role To Be Paramount

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Justice Secretary Allan Lawrence said Wednesday night the five new policy ministers in the Ontario cabinet should be use the public as "sounding boards for ideas."

"We will be available for public meetings, briefs and representations," Mr. Lawrence told the London Young Progressive Conservative Association in explaining the role of the new ministers.

"This will be a two-way process. On one hand, I and my secretariat will be enunciating justice-related policies on a regular basis seeking public reaction and comment.

"On your part, as the public, you will be encouraged to reply, to become involved in the formation of policy.

Mr. Lawrence is one of the new ministers appointed to detection, natural resources, social finance and inter-governmental areas.

He said the new setup is an attempt to develop policy without being burdened with day-to-day departmental responsibilities.

"Most of us have been too busy attempting to solve yesterday's problems, instead of planning to divert tomorrow's."

Text of his address was released before delivery.

Davis Shuffles Deputy Ministers

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis Wednesday moved five senior civil servants into key posts as part of the reconstructuring program of the Ontario government.

Everett Biggs, 59, deputy agriculture minister, becomes deputy minister of the environment.

G. H. U. Bayly, 53, secretary of the treasury board for the last nine months, was named secretary of the newly-created management board of cabinet.

T. R. Hilliard, 55, deputy public works minister since 1966, will take over from Mr. Biggs in the agriculture and food department.

J. C. Thatcher, 48, deputy minister of the environment, moves into Mr. Hilliard's old job and R. M. Warren, 34, deputy minister of the department of provincial secretary and citizenship, will be deputy minister of the newly-created solicitor-general's department.

Jury Picking Is Postponed

MONTREAL (CP) — Jury selection in the Jacques Rose trial was postponed Wednesday until Feb. 21 while the defence argues a motion to disallow Court of Queen's Bench jurisdiction in the case.

Rose, 36, is charged with kidnapping Pierre Laporte in October, 1970.

Jean-Serge Masse, assistant defence lawyer Robert Lavallee, in the trial, said legal arguments on the court's jurisdiction and other defence motions will continue today and next week.

Mr. Justice Marquis ordered Rose returned to the court today "without molesting the prisoner."

When the trial began Monday Rose was brought to the court by force because he said he would be a "guest" to leave the detention centre and cross the picket line of striking Quebec prison guards.

Rose entered court Wednesday dressed in blue pyjamas, a maroon dressing gown and slippers. He was handcuffed to a police constable.

"Once again I have been brought here by force."

Some Workers Give Up Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — Seventy-eight casual workers employed by the Ontario government have decided to give up their jobs April 1 rather than join the provincial civil service and take pay cuts.

James Auld, former public works minister, told 170 men last week they had until Tuesday to decide whether to work for civil service rates or not at all.

The men are skilled tradesmen the government has decided it no longer wishes to employ on a casual basis to work on provincial building projects.

Rags to Riches

French-Canadian pop star Michel Pagliaro, in London to record programs for British radio and television, says his promotion in Britain is the "biggest break I've ever had." The 25-year-old singer, one of the best-selling pop artists in Canada, has gone from rags to riches, he said before his success. "I was down-and-out in Montreal for two years." (CP Photo)

Quebec Backs Down on Challenge

QUEBEC (CP) — Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer said Wednesday there is little public support for Quebec's stand on refusing to pay unemployment insurance to hospital and social employees.

Until now, Quebec has maintained that school and hospital employees are exempted from paying unemployment insurance.

After meeting with the presidents of Quebec's three largest labor organizations Mr. Cournoyer said "the juridical basis of the Quebec government was not solid enough" to challenge the federal government in the courts, at least in the area of unemployment insurance.

In January, Quebec ordered all public and para-public institutions to withhold their unemployment insurance contributions from Quebec civil servants who declared such employees to be civil servants.

The issue was to be held in trust until Ottawa and Quebec could agree on a definition of a civil servant.

Prisoner Release Said Normal

QUEBEC (CP) — A spokesman for the Quebec justice department said Wednesday night the release of about 50 prisoners from provincial jails that day is normal and in accordance with provincial law.

He said it is not directly linked with a walkout of prison guards which began last week end.

The spokesman said provincial law allows for the release of prisoners detained for non-violent offences after they had served three-quarters of their sentence. Extra time off is also given for good behavior or for medical or humanitarian reasons.

Most of the 3,000 members of the Provincial Peace Officers Association, which includes prison guards, game wardens walked off their jobs to protest what they called intended delays in negotiating a new contract.

Nearly 2,000 association members have been meeting in Drummondville since Sunday.

Federal legislation that went into effect Jan. 1 said that civil servants directly linked to the government and Crown corporations would be exempt from further unemployment insurance contributions.

However, para-public and public employees and employees who were not part of the civil service and had to pay unemployment insurance premiums, from which they had been previously exempt.

Quebec has not taken a final decision on whether to contest the federal manpower legislation, but the cabinet would be asked to make a decision within a few days, Mr. Cournoyer said Wednesday.

Trenton Persistence Sends Kinsmen to Defeat in Overtime

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Persistence paid off for Trenton's Kiwanis Bantams, who fought back from behind twice to take the check of OMHA play-off action with a 3-2 overtime win over Belleville Kinsmen Wednesday night.

A week ago it appeared the Trenton bantams were all done playoff action for the year after Belleville carried three straight scoreboard victories over them in their first-round OMHA series.

But a Trenton protest over a disallowed third game goal because of a penalty timekeeper's mix-up was upheld and gave the Trentonians new life in the form of Wednesday night's game.

For the first two periods, it appeared as if the eventual conflict would be the same, anyway, with the Kinsmen skating to a 2-1 lead on goals by Rick Barbeau and bolding a wide margin of territorial advantages after Trenton's Rob Oliver had temporarily tied the game early in the middle period.

Vojda banged in his third rebound past Belleville goalie Jeff Merrill at 5:07 of the third frame, and Trenton seemed to take control of the game from that point.

Only some steady puck stopping by Merrill, once on a point-blank shot by Vojda later in the period, kept the faltering Kinsmen on an even footing.

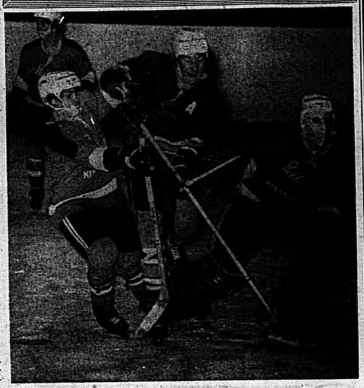
But Vojda's perseverance, on a power play at 8:18 of the 90-minute overtime session, proved fatal to the Belleville team's hopes of a series sweep when he stole the puck in the Kinsmen end and poked it past Merrill to narrow the Belleville series margin to 3-1.

The best scoring opportunity in the remaining minute-plus of overtime was Trenton's, when a long shot from their end just missed an empty Belleville net vacated by Merrill for an extra attacker and went through the crease.

The teams meet for the fourth game of the best-of-five series in Trenton Saturday morning.

Belleville's Maurice Rollins-Cheverie are the other city OMHA representatives with a chance to wrap up a first-round series this weekend. The powerful leading Trenton 1-0 in a best-of-three set, play host to Trenton at the Memorial Arena Sunday at 1:30.

Both Belleville's Blake Kerr Imperial midgets and Western Tire juvenile get a chance to redeem themselves in play-off action Sunday.



The Imperials, who are deadlocked 1-1 in a best-of-five series with Trenton Lions after winning their series' opener 12-1 play the third game Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Memorial Arena.

The Trenton, who also won the second game of their best-of-five set after drawing first blood, meet Trenton Junior Beaks Arvellos in the Memorial Arena at 7 p.m. Sunday night.

Meanwhile the Towers Food City novices will be attempting to prove that their perfect 14-0 record in regular season Quinte-St. Lawrence play was no mistake when they meet Kingston in a 4:45 p.m. Sunday game at the Belleville Memorial Arena. Towers leads the best of five division playoff 1-0.

Minor Breakthrough

Nothing serious developed from this scoring thrust by Bill Fox, but the Trenton bantams did go on to edge Belleville Kinsmen 3-2 in overtime Wednesday to prolong their best-of- five Ontario Minor Hockey Association first-round playoff series. Belleville defender Bob Thompson and goalie Jeff Merrill do their best to keep Fox from being too cagey.

Srs. Save Face

Picton seniors gained some measure of revenge for their junior and midget counterparts in a high-school basketball triple-header with BCI last night.

The Prince Edward seniors stunned the Collegians 78-42 with Doug Dermuth hooping 30 points and Kevin Quinn 22. In the other games it was all BCI, however with the juniors winning 79-36 and the midgets taking a 35-20 verdict.

Now That's Heavy!

By MAURICE SWITZER

You'd think a sports group that trained in a garage would be tickled pink to have one of its members qualified as a Canadian Olympic Team member.

But Belleville's Apollo Barbell Club hopes to send not just two of their number to this year's Munich Games, but two in one class.

Heavyweight (242 - pound class) Price Morris is a natural, the only Canadian weightlifter to already have passed his Olympic qualifying test twice.

The 1,053 pound, three-lift total that won the Frankford strongman four bronze medals at last summer's Pan-American Games, and the 1,089 total he registered at a November meet in Toronto make the six-time and defending Canadian champion a lead-pipe cinch to qualify for the Canadian contingent to Munich.

"I'm still supposed to lift the Olympic standard this year — at the Ontario Senors (Sarnia, April 8) or at the Canadians (St. John's, Newfoundland, May 20)," Morris explains.

This year's 242 pound class minimum, determined by the tenth-best performance in the world in the past year, is 1,047 pounds. On the two occasions Morris has exceeded that standard, he has established Canadian records.

But the Apollo Club heavyweight would like some company on the trip to Munich, and he feels training mate Gary Walt is a natural travelling companion.

Walt, the oldest of four weightlifting brothers, will be competing with Morris in Saturday's "Big 25" Contest of Ontario's top senior weightlifters at Quinte Secondary School, beginning at 2 p.m.

"I think I can do 1,050 Saturday," says Walt, a jovial

Apollo Club weightlifter Gary Walt hopes to join teammate Price Morris on the team for the 1972 Munich Olympic Games. The Belleville heavyweight, oldest of four brothers in the Apollo Club, will be one of eight local entries in Saturday's "Big 25" contest at Quinte Secondary School.

Two Medals for Northbrook

U.S. Speed Skaters' Commuting Pays Off

Northbrook, where? North Illinois, the town that grew two Olympic gold medal winners for the United States in skating, Dianne Holum and Peter Mueller.

Northbrook is a community of 30,000 near Chicago whose skating is well organized by town officials and everybody seems to take part. Hundreds of youngsters play hockey on artificial rink, more than 1,000 people figure skate regularly and there is organized baseball and cycling.

But the only Olympic speed skating rink in the United States is 75 miles away in West Allis, Wis., where the Northbrook champions train regularly when not in Europe.

While Anne's dream of winning in the Olympics was fulfilled, another girl's was shattered. Sylvia Burka of Winnipeg, trying hard to finish in the top bracket, fell and was disqualified.

The 17-year-old blonde Canadian had been paired with Miss Henning, the judges said she "fouled" the American and they gave Anne another turn—and —around the rink. The result was the American clipped a tiny bit more off the Olympic record she had set in her initial try.

"It was really happy about dressing Anne," Sylvia said after she was taken to the Olympic village with her coach. "I'm sort of an injury to her hip. "It was something I had dreamed about."

She had been working toward the Olympics for the past seven years.

Miss Henning, wearing a faded knit cap and a pin of the comic strip character Snoopy on her suit, set an Olympic record of 43.33 seconds.

It was the better of her two clockings—she did 43.75 in her race with Miss Burka. Seven of the 29 skaters were under the old record. Olympic champion Lidiya Skoblikova of Russia set in 1964, when she won all four gold medals in the Games. The 21-year-old Russian skater is the only person to win a gold in the 500-metre distance, doing it in two Olympics.

In all, the record was lowered by 11 times—twice by Miss Henning.

Miss Holum, 20, won the 1,000 metres Wednesday. Now the two friends will compete in the 1,500 metres Friday. Their gold medals are the only ones the United States has won with a combined time of 3:17.24.

Fred Tydrum, 24-year-old bachelor Norwegian farmer, won the 10-kilometre cross-country gold medal and another Norwegian, Magne Myrmo, got the silver with favorite Vyacheslav Vedenin ending with the bronze.

Tydrum, silver winner in the 15-kilometre covered 2016 miles today. In one hours, 43 minutes 14.75 seconds. He was among the last to start and just the benefit of knowing how fast his nearest dangerous competitors had been moving.

Vedenin, a Red Army officer who won the 30-kilometre gold, finished about a minute and a half behind Tydrum, gold medal winner and a member of the Norwegian cross-country relay team four years ago.

There were no Canadians in the race.

Paul Hildgartner and Walter Plaschner, Rabbit Federal policemen from Bolzano province in Northern Italy, and the East German pair of Horst Hornlein and Reinhard Bredow won gold medals in the double luge when they finished with identical 1:28.35 clockings for two heats. No silver was awarded.

The bronze went to another East German team, Klaus Bonsack and Wolfgang Pfeifer, who totalled 1:28.16 for the two runs. East Germany won eight of the nine medals awarded in the luges, the little toboggan-like sleds with the prone riders. The Germans swept the medals in the men's and women's singles earlier.

In the speed skating mixup, Miss Henning made no complaint against Miss Burka, who felt she should not have been disqualified.

It all happened quickly at the 250-metre mark on the crossover, where skaters change lanes. Normally, the girl in the outer lane has the right of way. But the girl on the inside is ahead, however, the right of way switches to her.

Sylvia, in the inner lane, took a long, shallow curve in changing lanes, forcing Miss Henning to stand up, break stride and lose rhythm as she switched to the inside. Some observers thought Anne might have bettered her world record of 42.75 and another of 42.50 awaiting ratification.

Swedes Sunk

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Czechoslovakia defeated two goals in the third period today to defeat Sweden 3-2 in Olympic hockey action. The win paved he Czechs a berth in the semi-finals of the six-nation round-robin tournament. Russia and Finland, both already assured of a semi-final berth, battled to a 3-3 tie.

Russia beat Poland 9 - 3 and the United States downed Finland 4-1 earlier in the day.

Czechoslovakia plays Russia on Sunday in the final game of the tournament. If Russia wins or ties they will be declared outright Olympic champion. If the Czechs win they will grab the gold.

Sweden can finish no higher than second place. If it does, they still have to beat Finland Sunday and hope Russia either beats or ties the Czechs.

A win by the Swedes and a tie by the Czechs would give the Czechs seven points. In the event of a tie, goal difference will be the deciding element of an injury to her hip. "It factor. Russia has a plus-13 goals against subtracted from goals scored.

Goalies in Limelight, Even Absent Gamble

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltenders were among the stars in three National Hockey League victories Wednesday night while another netminder was conspicious by his absence from a fourth scheduled game.

Philadelphia Flyers goalie Bruce Gamble was taken to hospital in Oakland suffering from what doctors said appeared to be a heart attack.

Gamble went to hospital after the Flyers arrived in Oakland from Vancouver where he played in a 3-1 victory over the Canucks the night before.

In Minneapolis, meanwhile, lanky Cesare Maniago stopped 36 Los Angeles shots as Minnesota North Stars defeated the Kings 6-1. At New York, veteran Ed Giacomin worked even harder stopping 41 shots as the Rangers took a 4-1 decision over Chicago Black Hawks. Jim Rutherford stopped the slumping Maple Leafs at Toronto for a 4-1 Pittsburgh Penguins' victory.

Gamble, 33, was reported not feeling well after Tuesday night's game at Vancouver and was taken to hospital after the Flyers arrived in Oakland. He was reported suffering from high blood pressure, exhaustion and what appeared to be a heart attack.

Gamble had played nine of the Flyers' last 10 games. The club called up Russ Gillow from Spokane of the Western Hockey League to back up Favell.

The Flyers started quickly against the Seals with Bobby Clarke's goal in the first minutes but then dropped behind 3-1 in the second period and Seals goalie Gilles Meloche yielded only one more Philadelphia goal by Bob Kelly in the third period.

In Minneapolis, Maniago twice stopped breakaway attempts by Bob Pulford and beat Real Lemieux and Ralph Backstrom on similar threats.

It was Maniago's 12th victory over Los Angeles against one loss in the last two seasons of play.

The North Stars, meanwhile, managed only 23 shots at the Kings goal guarded by Gary Edwards. The win was the first in four games for the North Stars while the Kings' unbeaten string ended at six.

The Hawks outshot the Rangers 42-20 at New York but Giacomin was outstanding, making seven difficult saves before Hawks' netminder Gerry Desjardins was called on for his first save with more than eight minutes gone in the game.

Billy Fairbairn scored now on power play and once while the Rangers were short-handed to put New York ahead 2-0 before Bobby Hull's 38th goal of the season put Chicago back in the game in the second period.

But Giacomin was unbeatable the rest of the way and Ted Irvine and Rod Gilbert padded the New York lead.

At Toronto, the Penguins outshot the Leafs 35-31 and Rutherford's task was made even easier by the erratic shooting of the Leafs who lobbed many of their shots on the net from long range.

Syl Apps Jr., son of the former star Leaf centre, said some advice from his father helped him score on a penalty shot awarded him in the second period when Toronto defenceman Brad Selwood pulled him down on a breakaway.

Apps said his father once told him he shouldn't go near the bench because he could become confused by advice from his team-mates. The only person to seek advice from was your own goaltender.

"So I just skated over and talked to Jimmy and he told me to watch how far the Toronto goalie came out of his net.

"Parent came out a fair distance to cut down the angle then when he moved his right leg I fired and beat him."

Rutherford was on his way to his first shutout of the season when Leafs' Jim Harrison beat him with a backhand shot with less than two minutes remaining in the game.

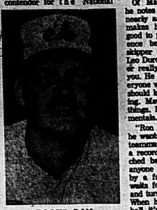
Boots Seeking Crack At Southpaw Pitching

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

The name is Charles Day, but just call him "Boots" — rather make that "Boot" for the time being.

Montreal Expos' centrefielder Charles "Boots" Day discovered that cleats, as well as boots, are sometimes made for walking when he tore the ligaments in his right leg during an exhibition basketball game with the Montreal Alouettes.



"It was the day before I was going to start working out," explained the slender centrefielder. "Now I can't run. I can't throw. I can't do anything," he sighed during his stay in Belleville to address a meeting of the Industrial Management Club Quinte Chapter as part of his winter public relations job with the Expos.

"I don't really mind the travelling," he said of his promotional work. "there isn't any way that coach, except for a few trips like this." He admitted that "you do get into some questions over and over but the nice part is meeting people. It's the type of work I've wanted to do for some time."

A .283 hitter while platooned in the Expos' outfield in his second Montreal season, he expressed dissatisfaction at facing right-handed pitchers only and hopes to talk manager Gene Mauch and general manager Jim Fanning into giving him a chance to play every day. He grew his long mane goal as playing in the World Series, which he only established a mark he is striving for is, "to score day bat 300."

Born near Syracuse, N.Y., the 25-year-old ballteek signed originally with St. Louis Cardinals before coming to Montreal via the Chicago Cubs. He admitted scepticism at first about moving from the first-place Cubs to the cellar-dwelling Expos, but now feels that "Montreal is great. The fans are a big part of the game exciting. Even a lot of the out of town players look forward to coming there. We are sometimes looking in the stands ourselves to see what's going on."

Boots feels that Montreal is close to being a serious contender for the National

BOOTS DAY

League pennant and that their starting rotation is as good as any in the league. "We need another relief pitcher, a power hitter and a back-up man for Wine and Stoneman."

Minor Lacrosse Picks Payne

Roy Payne was re-elected as president to head the 1972 executive. Other elected officials included Ned Rainboth (1st vice); Jack Donald (second vice); Mrs. Audrey Cox (secretary) and Jim Nuttall (treasurer).

Nominated as statistician was Merv Schmidt while Austin Watkin was installed as referee-in-chief and Jim Ryan as publicity director.

Palmer's Name in Lights

ROD PALMER

GANANOQUE — Some of the lesser scoring lights in the Belleville Bobcats' attack were on the boom in Wednesday's 6-3 win over Gananoque.

Except for personal performances the game meant little to the Bobcats who have already clinched third spot in the Eastern Ontario Junior B league standings and have only one regular season game remaining before opening the semi-final playoff series with the Orleans Crusaders.

Facing 39 shots, while his mates were peppering Gananoque goalie Bob Harrison had a busy night in goal for the winners, teammates could direct only 23 drives at Larry Campbell in the Gananoque nets.

The visitors took a 2-1 lead in the first period on goals by Horwood and Palmer to offset Larry Wyborn's score. Palmer scored again for the only goal of the second period.

In the final frame it was Ed Morgan scoring twice for the G-Men with Jeff Howard, Jackett and Brian Conklin returning the fire for Belleville. The losers were assessed five of the game's eight penalties.

The Bobcats' final regular season game will be Friday night when they meet Picton in a 8 p.m. bout at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Quinte Encores Not Enough

BARRIE — Four players gave encore scoring performances for the Belleville Quintes Wednesday night, but the result was still the same — another 7-4 Senior A loss.

Ralph Plaus, Al Ferguson, Wayne McConnell and Ray Johnston all scored two goals and goal is as many nights but to no avail as the Quintes dropped a 6-4 decision to Barrie after losing 7-5 to the Kingston Aces Tuesday.

Two goals by John McMillan and singles by Doug Acomb and Bob Baird gave the first place Flyers a 4-0 lead at the end of the second period after the teams had battled through a scoreless first frame.

Plaus scored for Belleville to spoil Ken Payne's shutout bid, before Pete Panagiabko made it 2-1. Ferguson, with his 25th goal of the year and McConnell's 23rd narrowed the margin to two goals before Connie Mandala put matters out of reach. Both Barrie's goalie, Ron Jury replaced early three times in the 20 minutes.

Left-winger Ray Johnston counted with only three seconds left to play in the game. The hard - working winger has come close to doubling his season's output in just two nights having scored Tuesday and Wednesday while counting only three times in the previous 33 games.

The shorthanded short - staffed Quintes were minus the services of Lorne O'Donnell, John Hutt, Ron Galpin and Dan Congdon for the contest and lost Perry Chittick and Mike Bos-

Belleville faces a "must" situation as far as playoffs are concerned when they play on Wednesday in a home and home series this week. They will play Friday night in Woodstock, while the return bout slated for 8 p.m. Sunday at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

With the four games remaining in the regular season, the Quintes are still four points behind the third place Royals, and three points of the sixth and final playoff berth held by Oshville.

CFL Teams 'About 50-50' Over Admission of New York Entry

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Football League executives across today's proposed New York City application to join the nine-team league, but it appears that any decision on the story will probably be deferred a future date.

The feeling among team general managers Wednesday was the franchise bid by Robert Schmertz to operate a CFL club in New York's Yankee Stadium needed further study.

The Eastern Conference general manager, who asked be no anonymous, suggest it should be "about 50-50."

He said he "would vote on the case until all concerned can learn more about it."

He said there are many factors to be considered. Despite fact Schmertz was accepted in every way, there was no guarantee that Yankee Stadium could be available to house the proposed franchise.

"We'd look silly if we granted the franchise and then it would be unfair to part to play in or we had to withdraw," he said.

In order to have the New York entry accepted, all four EFC teams must vote in favor of the move, along with three of the five Western Conference clubs.

The American bid started out the meeting with a dominant running, 45 for 2 to 2 against.

But by the time the afternoon scheduled meeting of general managers were over, the picture was in the words of one EFC league executive, "about 50-50."

"Anything could happen," he said. "A lot of people did a lot of thinking today and I'm sure they'll do more before they vote."

The EFC general manager said some officials thought the New York bid was a solid one but still the reservation that it needed more investigation.

Those basically against the idea held reservations in the other direction, he said.

An official of the Western Conference took a different tack. "If we accept a team from the United States, are we still the Canadian Football League?"

Commissioner John Gaudaur, who does not vote on the issue but merely supplies the pros and the cons of the deal to the club owners, said he suspects there is a wide difference of opinion among the clubs.

He said the price of the proposed entry, if accepted, will not be less than $2 million.

CFL president Sam Berger, owner of Montreal Alouettes and quoted earlier in the week as in favor of expansion, had apparently shifted his attitude, saying the application deserved serious study.

"It can't be dismissed out of hand."

Toronto Argonauts' president Lew Hayman said his "personal opinion" is one of opposition to the move. But this might not be the ultimate view of the Argonaut football club.

"I'm against it as a member of the expansion committee," he said. "I'm opposed because I think the ultimate result would be the demise of the CFL."

Ralph Sazio, Hamilton Tiger-Cats' general manager, said he is a "strong believer" in the Canadian aspect but I could argue either way.

He said the possible danger to the league lay in New York being "the whole hob—if New York stars, what happens next?"

Most other general managers, while aware of possible lucrative television contracts, appeared most concerned about what would happen to the salary structure of their clubs.

The New York entry, with 50,000 seats to sell, could, in Burger's words, probably buy a team no other club could compete against.

Kierans Wants Canada to Buy Control of Few U. S. Firms

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Development Corp., should use about $1 billion in U.S. funds now held by the federal government to buy control of a few U.S. multi-national corporations, former communications minister Eric Kierans suggested Wednesday.

The idea was part of a three-part program he proposed to increase Canada's standard of living while taking domestic control of the economy at the same time.

He was addressing the Ontario legislature's select committee on economic and cultural nationalism during its three days of hearings in Ottawa.

Mr. Kierans, who quit the cabinet last spring, said the $1 billion in U.S. currency could come from the government's foreign exchange funds, which it said, is maintain the international value of the Canadian dollar.

The money could be used to buy control of International Nickel Co. or Chrysler Corp., and their head offices could be brought to Canada, Mr. Kierans said.

The three policies Mr. Kierans prescribed were:

—An expansionary monetary policy, including a $2-billion national deficit yearly for 10 years, to put money in consumers' pockets and spur spending and investment.

—A reduction, by 10-per cent a year, of all tariffs, which would hold down prices by opening protected Canadian business to foreign competition, and which would result in the eventual pullout of U.S. subsidiaries.

The three policies together would restrain inflation, expand the economy and permit the gradual takeover of industry by Canadians.

Mr. Kierans, whose cabinet departure stemmed from disagreement over economic policy, conceded that with his proposals, especially free trade, the country might see "a lot of guys go bankrupt."

"But they never should have been in business in the first place."

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Twenty-four Prince George College Catholic high school students — 16 boys and eight girls—claimed a world volleyball marathon record recently after keeping the ball rolling for 90 hours, 10 hours longer than the mark set in 1970 by a high school in Great Britain.

Feed Grain Problem to Be Studied

EDMONTON (CP) — The fuse to the explosive feed grains problem was ignited Wednesday at the Canadian Federation of Agriculture annual meeting but it fizzled when the delegates referred it to a committee for further study.

The federation's feed grains committee, co-chaired by E. A. Boden of Regina, Saskatchewan Federation of Agriculture president, and Roland Pigeon of Montreal, of the Co-operative Federee de Quebec, presented a 16-page interim report. It said the committee had not had enough time to study and assess the situation fully.

Delegates, representing all provinces except Newfoundland, approved the committee's recommendation that it complete the study on a top-priority basis.

But a subsequent attempt by the Quebec delegation to have the federation take some immediate action was rejected in a standing vote.

Albert Allain of Montreal, president of L'union Catholique des Cultivateurs, moved that as long as the feed grains situation was unresolved, the federal government should pay the amounts necessary to the Canadian livestock feed board to enable the board to absorb entirely "any prejudice created to the position of Eastern Canada and British Columbia."

The problem is complex and involves the area of jurisdiction of the Canadian wheat board and freight assistance paid on feed grain moving from the Prairies to Eastern Canada and British Columbia.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1♥	2♠	Pass	4♠

Opening lead — nine of hearts.

Card reading is the process by which a player can determine the makeup of the unseen hands and, as a result, play his cards to the best advantage.

Consider this deal from a national pair championship. At most tables South arrived at four spades, despite East's opening bid of a heart, but the real challenge of the hand appeared not to rest on whether game was reached or at did on whether declarer made ten tricks or eleven. In pair championships, an extra trick is worth its weight in uranium.

Those declarers who bid and made four received only an average score on the deal. They lost the opening heart lead, later finessed the queen of clubs unsuccessfully and finished with ten tricks after losing a heart and two clubs.

But the declarer who made eleven tricks fared much better on the hand, achieving a multiple six for the score of 620 points with the North-South cards, instead of 620 points.

These declarers said homage to Easy's opening bid of a heart and quite reasonably decided that East had to have the king of clubs.

Accordingly, after East won the heart lead with the jack, they took the diamond return with the ace, drew three rounds of trumps, played a club to the ace, a diamond to the king, and then a low club towards dummy.

When West followed with the deuce, they played low from dummy and were rewarded for their simplicity when East was forced to win the trick with the king. The club deck, though only a minor challenge to anyone versed in card reading, brought these declarers a tie for top score.

Plants in Three Towns Closing, 420 Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — The future of 420 wage-earners employed at Comco manufacturing plants in Oshawa, Orangeville and Uxbridge, Ont., remained cloudy Wednesday despite a meeting involving federal officials, union and municipal representatives and two local MPs.

Another meeting, between the two MPs and Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, is to be held Friday.

Noranda Mines Ltd., owner of Comco, has announced it will cease operations June 30. Comco, formerly Coulter Manufacturing Ltd., employs 118 persons at the Orangeville plant, 85 in Oshawa and 225 at Uxbridge, plus 45 salaried personnel spread among the three plants.

The plants manufacture parts for automobiles.

Norman Cafik, Liberal MP for Ontario riding, told reporters Wednesday the meeting, which he had arranged, left him hopeful some of the jobs could be retained. There had been two offers made to Noranda to buy parts of the operation.

"I feel as a result of the meeting that we can preserve some of the jobs. I would guess that perhaps 80 to 100 of the jobs can be retained in the combined operation if one of the offers made to Noranda is accepted."

The federal officials at the meeting, Mr. Cafik said, indicated their willingness to help prospective buyers evaluate financial conditions of the operation and prepare a formal purchase offer. The government would also provide a loan if the purchaser could not raise the money elsewhere.

"Whether the meeting today was a success or not will depend on what happens with my discussions with Noranda," he added. Noranda has not yet replied to the two purchase offers, he said, although auto companies are steadily taking their business to other firms in anticipation of the closure.

Since January, Comco's orders had declined from about $5.5 million to $1.5 million.

Mosquito Designer Jobless and Broke

TORONTO (CP) — Inventor Eddie Jack, a prime mover in production of the famed Canadian Mosquito fighter-bomber during the Second World War, celebrated his 57th birthday last Friday unemployed and practically penniless.

"I am a lost man," he said in an interview. "After all the things I have done, all the things I have invented, all the work, all the doors I knocked at. Nothing."

This is the same man of whom Joe Holliday wrote in his book on the Mosquito a few years ago:

"Of the many Toronto men responsible for getting the Canadian Mosquito into production and for increasing its effectiveness, perhaps the most versatile and ingenious was Eddie Jack."

That literary tribute doesn't pay the mortgage. And now, Eddie Jack is expecting a court writ ordering him out of the home which he has shared with his wife and five children for 16 years.

The de Havilland Mosquito was one of the fastest and most deadly warplanes in the Allied arsenal. With a fuselage built entirely of wood, most of which came from west coast timber stands, the aircraft was used extensively by the air forces of the United States and Great Britain as well as the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The twin-engined Canadian-made model first saw action in 1941.

When production was started at de Havilland's Downsview, Ont., plant in 1942, Mr. Jack, then a plan former, was asked how long it would take him to duplicate the British-made nose of the fighter-bomber, a highly tech nical construction problem.

"Oh, about 24 days," he replied. He did it in less than that, little knowing that General Motors in Oshawa had spent months and more than $100,000 on the same problem, with little success.

After the war, Mr. Jack continued to provide de Havilland with innumerable technical innovations and improvements, including a portable repair kit to patch holes in aluminum floats.

He has produced a gadget that, fitted to a jet, enables a skier to walk uphill without sliding backw. He turned out detailed plans for a flying saucer as long ago as 1950, which he said "could carry five people from their own backyard to places as far as Winnipeg at a speed of up to 370 miles an hour."

Mr. Jack resigned from de Havilland in December, 1960, after being told he would have to take a salary cut a "should look for somewhere else."

Just before Christmas, he took a winter caravan to North York borough, only to be injured in an accident two days later.

Last Friday, after two years of virtually unbroken unemployment, he lost his last court appeal to keep his home and was ordered to pay $2,000 in mortgage payment arrears or lose his home. (CP Wire Photo)

Abortion Possible, But She Will Have Child

OTTAWA (CP) — A 27-year-old woman who suffers from anemia says she will have her fifth child although a court injunction restraining her from having an abortion has been lifted.

Her burdens, unbearable, may have been enlarged as a result of court action. The woman, a French-born teacher who says she is the major support of her husband and four children, may face a stiff legal bill.

A pro-abortion group she has dealt with here said Wednesday it will try to raise funds to pay her legal bills.

The woman, tired after two weeks of legal skirmishes, left her western Quebec home Wednesday on a brief vacation with two of her daughters. She said before leaving that she will have the child.

Indian Blames White Society For Making Him A Failure

HAMILTON (CP) — An Indian writer from British Columbia described himself Wednesday as a "monumental failure" in white society and blamed it on white attempts to regiment and categorize the native population.

D. G. Poole of Vancouver was speaking at a seminar on Indian education at McMaster University. He said white society attempts to remould Indians in its own image.

"I bought all that stuff about working hard and getting ahead —but that's a whole snow job," he said. "Until I was six I had my identity, then I was sent to school and it's an experience of total rejection.

"Education was a put-down of my whole life. I don't remember talking about the 60,000 years of my people. I said there must have been something wrong with us."

Mr. Poole said he grew up trying to forget he was an Indian. It was only after he reached adulthood that he realized the system as it relates to Indians has "been wrong for a long, long time."

"I had to go out and learn ineffuality."

Other speakers included Jeanette Corbiere Lavell, a young Indian woman from Ontario's Manitoulin Island, who a few months ago won a precedent-setting court declaration that an Indian woman cannot be deprived of her Indian rights because she marries a non-Indian.

She said the primary problem with the federal Indian Act, which her court action invalidated in part, is that it was drawn up by white people with no participation by Indians.

Mrs. Lavell said she was infuriated when she lost her rights by marrying a white man because the act allows Indian men to retain their rights when they marry non-Indian women.

And, "a Indian woman who marries an Indian gains all the rights of a Indian," she said.

Finder of Payoff List Was 'Punished'

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal police constable lost the Queen's Police Canadian title Wednesday as had been published a "payoff list" containing the name of Jacques Saulnier, now Montreal's police chief.

Constable Leo Vijneauve, 32, testified at the commission's inquiry into Mr. Saulnier's conduct that he had found the list Nov. 8, 1950, while an officer in the morality squad, then under Mr. Saulnier's command.

Constable Vijneauve, a 13-year veteran of the force, said the list was seized 120 documents concerning Mr. Saulnier's conduct that he had turned over to Jean-Paul Gilbert, then chief of the Montreal force.

"Nothing was done, and I was the only one to be punished. I was transferred."

Earlier in the inquiry, now in its third week, Det. Constable Gilles Lod told Constable Vijneauve and three of his colleagues had all been shifted out of the morality squad Nov. 18, 1950.

Also called were Inspector Emile Duchamme, Constable Rolland Clermont and Constable Denis Couture.

In his testimony last week, Mr. Gilbert said the quartet was transferred because their cop-raiding methods irked Mr. Saulnier's hierarchal mode it "impossible for the morality squad to function."

Constable Vijneauve said the documents were later submitted to Mayor Sarto Desjardins and Mr. Gilbert had done nothing and the mayor was his superior.

Constable Vijneauve said Wednesday he had met with the mayor after the list was discovered but the mayor refused to look at the documents over a period of two years.

"Every thing was done by him either. I sent the mayor a registered letter on Jan. 24, 1951, and told him that unless he took some kind of action I would turn everything over to the press."

The witness also said that despite all the information he had collected on Mr. Saulnier he had never been actually accept any bribes or money.

Two Groups Behind Rioters

TORONTO (CP) — Constable Jack Sinclair told a provincial inquiry Wednesday police had been under great pressure Oct. 25 and the pressure came from three secret members of the Jewish Defence League and the right-wing Edmund Burke Society were waging their placards.

The crowd was demonstrating that night against Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's visit to Toronto. The police line stretched between the thousands of demonstrators and the Ontario Science Centre where Mr. Kosygin was speaking a banquet of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The inquiry is investigating charges by the Ukrainian Canadian Committee of brutality by police when Metropolitan Toronto mounted unit officers rode into the crowd after, argues from the rear on mounted bodies on the police lines.

Constable Sinclair said he saw a demonstrator bring his placard down on an auxiliary officer's head. He said he was jumped on and severely scratched by a girl who screamed "in a frenzy."

In a separate incident, Constable Sinclair said he was stabbed in the hand with a sharp metallic object and struck under the eye with a rock.

The officer was one of a panel of police witnesses who said they were abused by the crowd.

Jobs Found for Men at B. C. Mill

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — News last Dec. 9 that the M. B. King Lumber Co. was to be closed carried promise of a bleak Christmas for the mill's 100-plus employees.

On that day, the mill's owner, Fullerton Lumber Co. of Minneapolis, notified the entire work force that the mill would be closed permanently. At the end of the following week, 100 more men were dropped from payroll and today only a handful remain to complete clear-up operations.

Normally the closing of the mill would have been recorded in the dispassionate unemployment statistics of the federal government. This story, however, has a happier ending.

Almost all of the original 100 men are working, and jobs are being found for many of the 80 who managed to hang on until the end of January. The reason is close co-operation between management, labor and the federal manpower department.

On the heels of the closure announcement, the manpower department became involved.

"They knew we were closing and they were here like bird dogs," says Don McMahon, 51, personnel manager of the King mill.

Ralph Aasd, a 42-year-old economist representing management, asked the welfare-labor International Woodworkers of America, and the company to get together with emphasis on people to consider ways to get jobs for the mill's workers.

There was considerable bitterness among the workers who were losing their jobs because of a United States company.

"I found the union and management were pretty fair about it," Mr. Aasd recalls. "There was wide difference of opinion and there were bitter fights. But when it all came down to the problem itself, which was how to relocate the people involved, there was equal concern."

When legal arrangements were complete, it was Mr. McMahon, Marvin Rasmussen, third vice-president of the IWA, and an employees of Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd., a logging company, who worked things out.

They brought Forest Industrial Relations, a bargaining agent for Forest Industries, into the picture. Other plants that were members of FIR were required to consider the employment of laid-off IWA members in their new hiring.

"Out of the first 100, we placed all but four, except for a few who chose not to go back to work right away," says Mr. McMahon.

Mr. McMahon praised Mr. Aasd, saying training of workers was effected, including English classes for the 40 or more Orientals who might have needed language help.

Mr. Aasd is quick to disavow any bureaucratic role by his department.

"We don't want government involvement. We want to pull away as soon as we can, for bureaucracies have a way of making a mess worse, rather than better.

"But all of us in these days have to think along different lines. When there is a shutdown we have to understand that we are dealing with human beings, not units of input and production."

Emptying Ashtrays Brings Charge

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman of the Environmental Law Association said Wednesday the organization has achieved a legal milestone by getting a justice of the peace to lay a littering charge against a driver from a private complaint.

The charge, under the Highway Traffic Act, was laid Wednesday by Justice of the Peace W. F. Patterson. He agreed to issue a summons to bring the case to court March 2. Maximum penalty is $50.

The complainant in the case, Chris Martzokas, 28, an electrician, said he saw a woman stop a convertible on Yonge Street last month, get out and dump the contents of her ashtray. At another intersection she reportedly did a second ashtray. He noted the car's licence plate number.

Penicillin Discovered By Many Scientists

WINNIPEG (CP) — At least 16 scientists uncovered the secret that penicillin mould destroys microbes before Sir Alexander Fleming, the British bacteriologist, made the same discovery to win the Nobel Prize for medicine in 1945, Dr. Hans Selye said Wednesday.

Dr. Selye told students at the University of Manitoba's three-day Festival of Life and Learning that research he uncovered showed 16 scientists considered their discovery to be incidental and unimportant.

"You have to be able to see the importance of a thing before you discover it," said Dr. Selye, professor and director of the Institute of Experimental Medicine and Surgery at the University of Montreal.

While doing post-graduate work at a United States university in 1931, one of his professors complained that moulds were spoiling research projects by killing off the microbes.

"He said he would have to clean down the lab, sterilize everything and start anew. I agreed. I was no Fleming either."

THIN HOUSE WINS

VANCOUVER (CP) — A house that was built despite protests from neighbors on a lot only 16½ feet wide has won an award for its designer, Peter Wadle. The house—just 12 feet two inches wide—was built after council gave permission to Mr. Wadle, a University of B.C. architecture student. It won an award from the Canadian Housing Design Council in January.

To Your Good Health

Check Usual After Months Taking Drug

By G. C. THORSTEON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteon: My doctor prescribed propylthiouracil for an overactive thyroid. I have been taking two or three of the pills for a year and I feel fine.

Can this medicine be taken permanently and can it have any side effects in the long run?

I heard about a hospital a few miles from here that is supposed to be able to cure my thyroid condition without surgery. Can you advise me on Us?—Mrs. M.P.

Propylthiouracil is an "antithyroid drug" and used for cases like yours to slow overa thyroid gland that is too active.

It is usually used for a year to 18 months, after which the drug is usually stopped, and the patient is watched to see whether the condition has been satisfactorily controlled.

Yes, there can be side effects with continued use, primarily effect on the white blood cells, skin reactions, and fever. So naturally a physician keeps watch over a patient, with periodic blood counts, to detect trouble if any develops.

As to other treatment without surgery (in some cases, however, surgery is the best answer) there are other anti-thyroid drugs, and there is also the so-called "atomic cocktail," which contains radioactive iodine. Iodine is automatically attracted toward the hyroid gland, and the radioactivity it brings serves to reduce activity.

Thus I would take the st'ries about that hospital with a grain of salt. It may use any or all of the various non-surgical treatments, and I dare say that your present physician already knows about them. Sounds to me as though he is treating you very successfully and I don't see why you have the urge to go off hunting for some other treatment.

Dear Dr. Thosteon: My husband had a blood test and discovered he has uric acid. The doctor gave him little information. Can you enlighten me? Diet, etc., also?

The doctor must have given him some information—high uric acid is responsible for gout and often for kidney stones, and hence should be kept under control with medication and, to a lesser degree, by diet.

Dear Dr. Thosteon: I am 52 and have had minor prostate trouble for 20 years. It suddenly became worse four years ago and I saw a urologist who made an examination. He said the condition was serious and I needed immediate surgery.

I went home to get ready to go to the hospital and discovered that the examination had evidently dislodged the obstruction and I could urinate freely.

I did not go for surgery but now the trouble is coming on again. At my age would it be better to have surgery or just another examination in hopes that it will give relief for several years?—H.H.

I'd say that you were lucky that the examination served to open up the passageway, but it would be tempting fate to expect to be that lucky again. Your age, however, is no bar to having the surgery. It is done with patients older than you are.

Note to Mrs. M.C.: Are you sure he said "blood test?" I don't know of a blood test for cancer of the colon, but tests of other types are, of course, in use such as a blood count to determine anemia. (Yes, there are plenty of causes other than that, of cramps and diarrhea.)

Tough Negotiations On Trade PM's Aim

Union Keeps Airports Open

OTTAWA (CP) — Executive of the striking electrical technicians union, working around the clock, had managed early today to keep some technicians working in every Canadian airport but Montreal.

"We're on a winning streak in keeping the men at work," said Bill Andreoff, president of the International Brotherhood of Electric Workers, after 24 hours in strike headquarters here, mostly spent in keeping designated technicians on the job.

Designated workers—men who by agreement or law are staying on the job to do essential work—reviewed the situation last night to leave their jobs at Halifax, Montreal, Ont., Gander, Nfld., Toronto and Montreal.

But only Montreal was out early today and Mr. Andreoff said union officials from across the country were telephoning Montreal to urge that the designated employees return to work.

The men at Gander went out at midnight but were persuaded to go back to work by 3 a.m.

Three technicians were standing by at Montreal to deal with any situations, Mr. Andreoff said.

The designated technicians at Toronto airport had given the executive a firm undertaking to remain at work only until 10 a.m. Mr. Andreoff said in regard to the deadline to continue on the job.

Meanwhile, union representatives broke off mediated talks with the government at 3 a.m. today after a long night and planned to be back at the bargaining table at 9 a.m.

There was no indication of what progress was made at the night-long session.

There are 651 workers in Local 2228 of the IBEW-member union, designated by law and by agreement with the department of transport to continue maintaining equipment essential to commercial air safety despite the strike which started Sunday in support of contract demands.

But these workers and the union have steadfastly maintained that essential equipment could not be kept at the peak of efficiency required for public safety with so few men working. They also have complained regularly that they are being ordered to work not designated for them under their agreement.

In a telegram to Transport Minister Don Jamieson, Montreal technicians said they would walk off their jobs "until such time as the safety of the flying public is assured," claiming that vital equipment was becoming inoperable or deteriorating below international standard.

The telegram accused the department of irresponsibility "in continuing your policy of business as usual."

Mr. Jamieson replied that as long as the designated workers remained at their posts, he "cannot take any action against that we are acting in an irresponsible way or in any way compromising flight safety."

Power Returned

LONDON (AP) — It was cold beans, cold meals and candlelight for Britons today as power stations closer to the country turned off the electricity for up to eight hours a day. ...

With a nationwide coal strike in its fifth week and fuel supplies at power stations dwindling, blackout by rotation began shortly after midnight Thursday. The power was cut for three or four hours in one area, then came on again at another district was hit. At any given time, a third of the country was without power.

Tobacco Growers Supported

EDMONTON (CP) — Ontario's 4,000 tobacco growers have received national support from the Canadian Federation of Agriculture in the battle against what they call repressive federal legislation against cigarettes.

Delegates at the CFA annual meeting approved a policy statement asking that tobacco producers be consulted before any future legislation affecting the industry is introduced.

Federal government legislation is prohibiting cigarette advertising and set maximum levels of tar and nicotine content was introduced at the last session of Parliament but was not dealt with.

Talks With U.S. To Be Resumed

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations with the United States on mutual trade concessions will continue after their current hiatus, government leaders assured reporters Thursday.

Prime Minister Trudeau, emerging briefly from a long cabinet meeting, said the negotiations would continue at some unspecified date, and added:

"They are negotiating toughly and I hope we are too."

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, who has been involved in the talks both directly and through his top departmental advisers, said negotiations "are continuing," but made it plain that their future depends on the U.S. changing its position.

The negotiations reached a stalemate earlier this week, and the U.S. announced Wednesday night that the Nixon administration would go to Congress to get approval of a dollar revaluation and trade bill without firm commitments from Canada. It had agreements from Japan and the European Common Market to make some trade concessions.

In Ottawa, the government got qualified support from political opposition leaders for its tough stand. Both Conservative leader Robert Stanfield and NDP leader David Lewis called on the government to make more information public about the negotiations, but said they did not want to upset them.

Mr. Pepin told a news conference the government would not consider public its last offer to the U.S. before the negotiations broke down. It was "elementary" that the government should keep its bargaining cards close to its vest.

The trade minister said Canadian and American negotiators, including his deputy minister James Grandy, had been "grumbling" to an agreement on a set of U.S.-Canadian proposals, subject to ratification by their political bosses.

It appeared that John Connally, U.S. treasury secretary was the stumbling block. Mr. Pepin said Mr. Connally "has a number of postulates in his mind, and has had a job to do."

"You can explain to him all the factors involved, all kinds of explanations, but his preoccupation is with the U.S. balance of payments."

The full extent of the U.S. demands on Canada has not been made public officially. Mr. Pepin said the U.S. had said initially that there were only certain "irritants" in Canadian trade rules. Connally replied that it had some U.S. irritants to discuss.

After working on these, Mr. Pepin said, it became clear the U.S. wanted more substantial concessions. "They asked a lot more, and didn't give anything in return."

The U.S. would make no concessions to Canada on the entry of Canadian uranium, nor on its copyright law which effectively prevents American books being printed in Canada for the American market.

Both Mr. Pepin and the prime minister said Canadian energy resources had not entered the negotiations. Mr. Pepin said further, however, that oil "could be in their U.S. minds—it should be"—that Canada's energy storehouse might become important to the U.S.

Mr. Trudeau said there was no question of adding Canadian energy-resource sales to the U.S. in a package deal.

Next Step Is Hanoi's Nixon View on Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has drawn the line against further concessions to the North Vietnamese until they negotiate on his eight-point peace proposal.

"The next step is up to the enemy," Nixon told a news conference Thursday. "Our proposal is on the table and it is going to stand there until we get a reply from them."

At the same time, the president appeared to hit somewhat harder at Democratic White House hopefuls who spurned his earlier plea for caution in their criticism of his Vietnam policy.

The responsibility for the enemy's failing to negotiate may have to be borne by those who encourage the enemy to wait until after the election," Nixon said.

Although Nixon said the other side has not yet responded, North Vietnamese leaders and diplomats have been quoted as rejecting the U.S.-South Vietnamese formula for peace, including a ceasefire, internal troop withdrawal and release of war prisoners.

North Vietnam spokesmen have insisted the United States abandon support of the regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

Thieu has expressed unhappiness over a statement by State Secretary William P. Rogers that the United States remains flexible on details of a possible political settlement of the war.

But Nixon said he wanted to reassure the South Vietnamese president that "there will be no new proposals made unless it is a joint proposal."

Beef Scarce

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — A beef shortage in Ontario is almost certain to occur unless the province moves into the cow-calf business to provide at least part of the cattle for Ontario feedlots, Agricultural Minister William Stewart told Thursday.

Although he did not say when a beef shortage might occur, Mr. Stewart said the government will introduce Feb. 24 a revised government incentive program to assist financially the establishment of cow-calf operations.

B. C. Man Charged In Bomb Threat

RICHMOND, B.C. — (CP) — Konstantinos Izsoghos, 29, an unemployed laborer, Thursday was transferred to this Vancouver suburb by RCMP following his arrest in Powell River, B.C., on a charge of attempting to extort $200,000 from CP Air.

Izsoghos was arrested Wednesday night at his home in Powell River, about 80 miles north of Vancouver, following a five-day police investigation into a bomb threat last week against the airline.

Police found a bomb last Friday in a parcel locker at Vancouver International Airport after a CP Air employee received a demand for $200,000 from an anonymous telephone caller. No money was paid.

Belfast Bombings Continue

BELFAST (AP) — Bomb blasts wrecked a furniture store and an office in downtown Belfast today as the Irish Republican Army maintained its harassment of British Ireland and 15,000 British troops.

This followed the killing of two British soldiers by a land mine Thursday night.

Gun-wielding guerrillas struck first at the furniture store and planted a gelignite charge after shouting to the staff to get clear.

In a similar swoop later, three men burst into nearby C. P. Air employees' offices, dumped a tartan bag on the floor and said: "Get out. There's a bomb."

An office worker said the men grabbed a bundle of banknotes before escaping.

No one was hurt in either incident but the blasts set off fires in both buildings and shattered windows in the vicinity.

Newspaper Delares Author Says He Never Met Hughes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Los Angeles Times says that author Clifford Irving and his research aide have admitted to federal authorities that they never met the reclusive billionaire Howard R. Hughes, the subject of Irving's purported "autobiography."

The Los Angeles Times says that sources close to a federal investigation of Irving's sale of the "autobiography" said Thursday that Irving and Richard S. Suskind told federal authorities the book wasn't written under the circumstances they had earlier claimed.

Irving has said he recorded material for the book in face to face interviews with Hughes in motels, and perked cars throughout the Western Hemisphere, but that Hughes insisted on keeping the tapes after the interviews were transcribed.

Irving and Suskind are reported to have refused to spell out details of how they created the 230,000-word manuscript until they get assurances that Irving's wife, Edith, won't be prosecuted by either U.S. or Swiss authorities, the Los Angeles newspaper says.

In a story from New York by John J. Goldman and Robert L. Jackson, the Los Angeles Times says it is understood that no promises were made by U.S. officials.

Mrs. Irving is the acknowledged "Helga R. Hughes" who deposited and then withdrew from a Swiss bank account $950,000 McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. gave Irving for payment to Howard R. Hughes for "autobiography." The cheques were made out to "H. R. Hughes."

The Los Angeles Times says the admissions by Irving and Suskind were said to have been made during a closed-door session in New York Wednesday with U.S. Attorney Whitney North Seymour and top members of Seymour's staff. Lawyers for Irving and Suskind also were present, the newspaper says.

What's He Brewing?

The answer's sorry bonehead lovers, it's only rust, iron mess of tubs, pipes and valves is the 23-year-old filtering system at the Kinsmen swimming pool on Dundas Street East. Colin Wilcox, chairman of the Kinsmen pool committee, hopes to persuade fellow club members to replace the antique purifier with a new, $9,000 system this spring. Here, he is checking broken viewing glass.

Employers of the Blind Receive Vote of Thanks

This week (Feb. 6-12) being White Cane Week, the Canadian Council of the Blind (CCB) and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB) are making a special bow to employers of blind Canadians.

"Blind people have never been more successful," said A. N. Magill, managing director of the CNIB. "Their success grows from their own hard work, careful vocational counselling and training and the assistance of public spirited employers."

He spoke of the training a blind person takes before he is recommended to a company. It begins with several weeks of formal study in a CNIB centre where the trainee learns to read and write braille as a means of jotting down notes. He learns to use the White Cane as a means of mobility. He also learns the numerous skills of everyday living. "Most important is a positive attitude," Mr. Magill said, "which emphasizes ability instead of disability.

"Training includes the provision of textbooks for students. They forward their books to the national library to be read on tape or transcribed into braille." With more than 200 blind young people now enrolled in the universities of Canada, the textbook service is a major project. These students enter into social work, law, computer programming, economic research, fine concession jobs and many others. One blind student is even studying arts trophyics at Harvard University.

"It is thanks to the understanding and co-operation of sighted employers over the past 30 years," said Mr. Magill, "that blind students have been able to enter many challenging new fields on an equal basis with the sighted."

Thanks also goes out this week to the 12 employment officers of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, working in every province of Canada, these placement officers, blind themselves, secured jobs for more than 2,500 persons.

Well-trained in placement skills, the employment officer knows the capacity of his blind applicant. He supplies on-the-job training in the plant and calls back often to check on progress.

Is Woody A Herald?

Zero nighttime temperatures may be the order of the day but spring cannot be far away.

At least that is the hopeful feeling of a John Street resident who yesterday spotted a redheaded woodpecker in the trees near her home.

She admitted there may be a few of the woodpeckers who dare the rigors of a Canadian winter rather than take the long flight south but said they are usually among the first birds to return to herald the approach of spring.

"He was just beautiful," was her enthusiastic comment.

Pool Chairman Insists on Filter

The Kinsmen swimming pool on Dundas Street East will be ready to open the day school lets out with water that's the cleanest in Belleville.

So says Colin Wilcox, chairman of the Kinsmen swimming pool committee, who has made his final pitch for a new, $9,000 filtration system to the club's executive Sunday.

The equipment is vital if the pool is to survive.

"We can't open without it. Last August we had a sign up on the gates of the pool. We'll never open in the health standards with the system we have now," said Mr. Wilcox.

He described the iron unsightly which has been recycling water for 23 years as "obsolete". Plastic filters, long cracked, are held together with synthetic rope. To compound the problem, the manufacturer has gone out of existence two years ago.

"If we don't do something this year, we won't do it the next. And the system will go beyond repair."

What he has in mind is a twin tank sand filtration system capable of replacing the 180-foot pool's entire water supply in 6 hours. Automatic and free, it weighs six tons and requires a chlorine refill every five days — as opposed to the present system's six-hour refill period.

Opposition to the proposal has come from within the club. Several members, including the plumbing done by members, with individual contracts

Drivers Charged In Collisions

Two drivers have been charged with failing to obey stop signals as the result of separate accidents yesterday.

At 10:15 a.m., Harry Lovelace, of Marmora, was proceeding south on Herchimer Avenue, when he came in collision with a car driven by Harry Howard Abbott, of 86 Southview Avenue.

Mr. Lovelace, charged following the accident, was treated for head bruises and released from hospital. His wife, Beatrice, was admitted to hospital with bruises to face and legs. She has been listed in satisfactory condition.

Five minutes later, and three blocks away at the corner of Bridge and Farley, George F. Switzer of Marlbank, collided with a car driven by Mrs. Muriel Eileen McKinney, of RR1, Carrying Place. Mr. Switzer was charged.

Mrs. McKinney was taken to Belleville General Hospital by City Ambulance. She is listed in satisfactory condition with fractured ribs and facial lacerations.

Dogs from Northland Fit Right in Here

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BANNOCKBURN — When it comes to winter travel, snowmobiles leave Donald McEwen cold.

Years ago, he rediscovered a flesh-footed substitute: The dog team.

It may be slower going, admits Mr. McEwen, hailing by a trapper's cabin to rest his huskies after a 15-mile trek through the wilderness of Grimsthorpe township. But he still personally prefers his sled team to snowmobiles.

For one thing: "It's a more personal. You can talk to your animals, encouraging it if the going's getting rough. It's surprising the way you can encourage them along."

There's something else in his motive, man and his dogs make a memorable contrast these days on the wintering landscape — the silent folds of which have at last been relieved by the machine age and its raucous snowmobiles.

Mushing it in the bush, his sled drawn by a stream of huskies, evokes a romantic image in the back country surrounding this Highway 62 hamlet, 15 miles north of Madoc.

It started in 1961 when he went to Moosonee as a missionary. There he saw dog teams in service — by Cree Indians — and even a fellow missionary.

"I never owned a dog in my life until I went up there, and I saw how they used them. It was fantastic."

About 18 months later, his mission ended and he returned to gentler climates in southern Ontario. But his fascination came too — in the lively shapes of eight huskies.

The dogs adapted easily to the move — for a significant reason!

But there is one important variation: The McEwen dogs are Siberian Huskies — a slighter, more versatile breed than the Canadian northland species.

Characteristics include high intelligence, hardy travelling stamina, gentleness and, particularly, adaptability.

"They adjust to any kind of life. They're tremendously pliable," says Rev. McEwen.

The origin of the species is the key to their adaptability, apparently. First bred in Siberia, they were used for a variety of purposes — herding cattle, transport, or just domestic pets.

The result today is what Rev. McEwen describes as a "good general purpose" canine — the cultivated offspring of which respond as readily to the cultivation of family hearth or harsh wilderness.

That's his first-hand experience since coming south with his original eight Siberians, which naturally began producing offspring.

He's since sold them as pets, entered them in sled races (increasing in number with the popularity of winter carnivals) successfully displayed them in dog shows — and, inevitably, used them for transportation.

On the move, he keeps his 11-dog team — paired at intervals behind an experienced lead dog—to a silent pad of about nine miles an hour. But the dogs can skim up to 20 miles an hour in spurts. An ordinary team will cover a good running average of 36 miles a day; a "well-trained" group up to 50 miles, says Mr. McEwen.

His bush forays often cast him as a travelling companion to trappers — now working what may be the busiest season in years in an area believed to have the highest concentration of beaver anywhere.

But the main centre of activity is here, where he came 18 months ago. His home property includes a kennels. Nekaneeu — a Cree title meaning leader among dogs.

Nekaneeu has produced Siberians which are now owned from the Maritimes to the West Coast and down through the United States, says Mr McEwen.

As a species "I don't know if there's much demand for them or not," he says. "But I have never had any trouble selling them."

He estimates he now has an annual average of 30 pups for sale — tagged at $85 for pets. Permission for breeding privileges costs extra.

Buyers come from all areas of life and the country — doctors, lawyers, blue - collar workers from cities and country — anyone "who wants a pet for their family."

As domestics, they have some added attractive features, he says.

The skin of Siberians, for instance, produces no odor—an attraction for people allergic to such conditions.

Also, says Mr. McEwen, himself the father of five, they are "gentle with children."

To guard against in-breeding he exchanges stud services with other Siberian breeders when necessary.

Personal Touch Added to Valentines

The Door in The Wall, a recently opened art boutique on the Footbridge, is hand crafting Valentine cards, tailored specifically to the wants of the customer.

"It is a special day, meaning many things to many people," said Shirley Yanover, half proprietor of the shop, "By designing our own cards for the customer, he can control the content of the card, right down to color, size and what is written inside."

The motif of the store dictates that anything to be sold in it must be completely original and done by artists from the area.

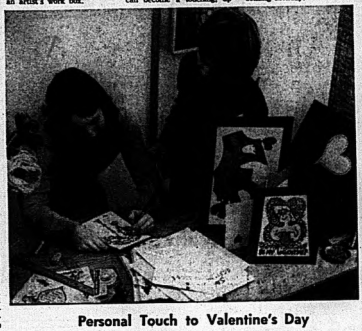
"People have come to expect this theme, and many had inquired about cards before we had any notion of really making them," said Tom Walters, Miss Yanover's partner.

Some avante garde, some sentimental and most funny, the cards are being produced in all shapes and sizes, each with its own handmade envelope.

"In as many cases as possible we try to include, on the card, a cartoon of the person either sending or receiving it," said Miss Yanover, "It makes the card that much more personal."

Each card illustration is created by Miss Yanovre using the wide assortment of colors and media available in an artist's work box.

"We start the card with a rough pencil sketch to give the customer some idea of what the card will finally look like," said Miss Yanover who does the majority of the illustrations.



"Once the form is set, the normal process of refining the lines takes place, and after that come the final lines of India ink and paints," she said. "Paper cut-outs are also used in some cases."

The lettering on the cards is all hand done, in with the inspiration of the customer can become a touching, appropriate message for Valentine's Day.

A card, measuring approximately 10-by-11 inches sells for about 30 cents. Miss Yanover claims if an order is placed before noon, the card can be completed by store closing.

"It is a slow process, but that is because I want every card to have a personality suitable to the customer and be unique," said Miss Yanover.

Liberals Likely To Stand Pat

TRENTON (Staff) — Although Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon has led his party to defeat in two consecutive provincial elections, Liberal organizers in the Quinte area say there is little likelihood of his position being seriously challenged at the Ontario convention opening today in Ottawa.

According to Quinte district president Bill Mennies, one of eight representing the Trenton area at the weekend gathering in the National Capital, "the party executive backed him unanimously at a meeting in December . . . if some one calls from the floor (this weekend) for a vote of confidence, it will probably be voted down."

Mennies contends "a fight like that could split the party apart" before an anticipated federal election. No leadership contest is needed for another year in the Ontario party."

One of the policy proposals to be dealt with in the convention's business sessions is one drafted by Mennies himself.

Mennies says he will bid to have the party press the federal government to revise its old age and Canada pensions programs so that individuals may have the option of retirement at age 60 with a reduced pension.

Getting It Across

Tourist promotion for the summer season is gathering momentum — if indeed it ever stops — as witness the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council's current campaign in the United States.

In fact the LORDC promotion of seven vacationlands of South Central Ontario emphasizes year-round facilities. Cover pictures are divided between summer boating and snowmobiling in winter. Inside too is a wide selection of tourist scenes and facilities — but, and this could be our only criticism — in placing the winter emphasis on snowmobiling there is not a single picture of either a ski resort or anyone on skis.

For that matter isn't snowmobiling play relatively close to home, while it is the skiers — especially from the United States — who like to go off in search of fresh winter pastures? There is that party of snowmobilers from Minnesota who set off recently overland to Moscow, via Greenland and all that, but they are an exception.

Aside from this oversight (skiing does get a mention though in individual resort ads), this is one of the best brochures we have seen for a long time. It includes a map of the region, a series of excellent color pictures including a familiar postcard scene of Belleville in the "heart of Quinte vacationland," and on all it has opened our eyes to a lot of possibilities.

LORDC has been displaying its wares in Cleveland and of course the state of Ohio has always been a lot of vacationers our way. Seeing among the Americans at our prime source of vacation visitors and making personal contact is the traditional way of getting the message across, as well as advertising. There is no reason why for this kind of people-to-people promotion, but we could give it an even keener edge by allocating a certain number to each state with something like this on the cover: From the people of Ontario to the people of Ohio (substitute Arizona, Colorado and so on, for each state).

For our own part, Belleville needs to get across to them that its self-congratulatory legend of "the friendly city" (are we really that friendly?) We do have a good deal more in the way of tourist attractions and facilities than we did in years past, and we should be spreading the news instead, getting our own brochures to places like Rochester whose yachtsmen come here frequently in the summer. Indeed, we have often thought there should be a boat service across the lake as in the old days, perhaps even a hydrofoil or hovercraft . . . but that is another story.

Library Dilemma

There is legitimate concern among members of council as they weigh an estimated $200,000 library addition project against such pedestrian needs as roads, bridges and services generally.

We have no quarrel with the plan as such; it is agreed the library does need to expand. However, it is when we read this sort of thing — that the library addition would have a "dressed up front" on Campbell Street and a rear "open to people" they would have the rug jerked from under them.

With President Nguyen Van Thieu safely re-elected president of South Vietnam last October, the continuing steady pullout of the master political plan appeared sound.

But although the war has become so much a part of the domestic scene, the political contenders for their prize, a presidential nomination in November next year, have not yet come to grips.

Now, in the wake of the recent temporary removal of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and Nixon's sensational discovery of 6 months of secret negotiations, the ball is at last in the front-page area as it ever was.

The Democratic candidates have been quick to embrace it anew, with leading contender Senator Edmund S. Muskie of Maine charging Nixon's latest peace initiative is "pure politics" while Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota said it was simply a rearrangement of existing offers.

The latest lineup of top Nixon administration officials, including State Secretary William Rogers and Defence Secretary Melvin Laird — hinted forward to attempt to sell the rug out from under Muskie. So far, it hasn't worked.

The public debate was enlivened during the weekend when Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief delegate to the Paris peace talks, said in a television interview that his side will not release American prisoners of war in exchange for withdrawal of all U.S. forces. He said, however, Hanoi would have agreed to such a deal — and would, Mr. Nixon to get out of the war "very beautifully" prior to Thieu's re-election last October. However, Rogers said in reply that the North Vietnamese always said it won't return the POWs unless the U.S. throws out the Thieu government. Their demands would mean total defeat for the United States.

Under Nixon's latest plan, the Thieu government would resign one month in advance of new elections but Hanoi's observers suggest that with the Thieu political machine would be set to win, the elections would be meaningless, thus virtually assuring his re-election.

Muskie's simple two-point plan called for the U.S. to offer a withdrawal date in return for the prisoners, and press Saigon to work out a political settlement with the Communists. Of course, the risk loss of an American supporter.

It goes one step beyond what all Democratic presidential hopefuls have said previously — simply a specific withdrawal date. Humphrey has called for a cease-fire, Senator George McGovern of U.S. troops at this moon out and release of the war prisoners.

Rogers, a mild and diplomatic man, displayed more than a hardness of his criticism of Muskie, charging the senator had been misled by the prospect for a negotiated peace by initiating the Paris talks when in fact the enemy had refused to accept a formal reply from Hanoi.

However, what will count in the November U.S. election is just how the average voter responds to this rather sophisticated debate. Nixon backers are confident the peace talk will be followed by a flurry of good news and the withdrawal of more U.S. troops. Democrats are confident the peace issue will be overshadowed by the economy, unemployment and the presidential campaign.

This many observers agree, means that the present Administration has the edge. Only a major upset in the economy, unemployment and inflation or the emergence of a new issue could reverse unimpressed by the talk of withdrawal over two-thirds per cent of the eligible voters.

Former Social Credit Leader
Robt. Thompson to Quit Politics and Return to Teaching

By FARMER THUSTON

OTTAWA — The Social Credit movement in Canada is dead except in the minds of Robert Thompson, one-time leader of the party and now a Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Simcoe East.

Mr. Thompson told me:

"I'm not going to run again for the party. It doesn't have any future. It's dead. It's finished."

Mr. Thompson said he will run as a Tory in the next election, which he thinks could be as early as this fall or as late as next spring. He said he was persuaded to run originally by Mr. Stanfield, who promised him a seat in the Senate if he was defeated.

Mr. Thompson is not the only Social Credit MP who is thinking of running for the Tories. Another is Fabien Roy, Beauce, Que., who has been approached by Conservatives with the promise of the Speakership.

Mr. Thompson said he will not run in the Simcoe East riding where he was defeated in the last election.

The party has been very strong in Rosedale Colchester and Alberta on a provincial basis. But they became local and supporting the party federally when they say little hope for its success. What is more important they say is a chance of being on the winning government side in the next election. Ideological conflict of philosophy or policy between the two parties, people voted Social Credit provincially and supported Mr. Diefenbaker federally.

Of his own switch of parties, Mr. Thompson remarks there are more blimpreses among the Conservatives in Red Deer than among his own Social Credit supporters. His own people were glad to make the change and hoped he would be re-elected as per cent of the Social Credit vote in the last election. This is a high percentage of the normal Conservative vote, but they have been supporting the Tories provincially for 36 years. The Conservatives elected, rose to almost 10,000 votes from less than 5,000 in 1968 as a secret.

Had it not been for the prime minister's personal popularity, Mr. Thompson said, they would not have had a chance of being elected as the Conservative party. Party may have been an amalgamation of the two parties in Alberta, with the Social Creditors voting Conservative federally and the Conservatives voting Social Credit provincially. But there was a feeling that Mr. Manning's successor, Harry Strom, was no go-getter. Federally he did not have the assistance of the national medicare scheme was one such sign. The result was that the provincial Conservatives, under a new, young and attractive leader, got a new lease on life.

"Looking back over his 10 years in Ottawa, Mr. Thompson says he is glad he took part in Social Credit politics. He has met his high standard of integrity in the Diefenbaker government. He does not believe the charges of corruption around the Mr. Diefenbaker period in power.

"Mr. Diefenbaker proved to be a great leader. He was not too technical, but he was not afraid to take a stand. He had force as election. If conditions had been different within his own party he would have been a failure and the history of Canada would have been much different," Mr. Thompson said.

The most positive period of his career was 1957-67 when there were minority governments. He likes to think his small group of Social Credit members, including Hon. Olson by the Progressive Conservative party, played a useful role in the events of the time.

Of the future, Mr. Thompson can see Prime Minister Trudeau setting a majority government in the remaining years. He remembers seemed to peak with the election of David Lewis as leader and have never recovered. The Liberals Conservative strength will increase slightly in the West, about in the East and will gain with the gains of Ontario seat. If Mr. Caouette wins some from the Liberals in Quebec, this could lend the way to a Conservative win.

If party rumor having political implications is any indicator of personal relationships in the party. Right now my political sources tell me that relations are not good with the calling of the election and I keep up the position of getting involved in politics in B.C., Mr. Thompson told me.

But I still get the impression it wouldn't be difficult to put him back into harness in the future.

President and His Vietnam Critics

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Almost a year ago, President Nixon offered a friendly bit of advice to his Democratic challengers: Don't count on the Vietnam war as an issue in the 1972 presidential election.

Those who did, he said in effect, would find the war had become a non-issue. They would have the rug jerked from under them.

With President Nguyen Van Thieu safely re-elected president of South Vietnam last October, the continuing steady pullout of the master political plan appeared sound.

But although the war has become so much a part of the domestic scene, the political contenders for their prize, a presidential nomination in November next year, have not yet come to grips.

Carnival Visitors Question Reckless Operation of Snowmobiles at Zwick's

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Today my family and I were attempting to enjoy a walk at Zwick's Island Park in the mid-afternoon. It was soon evident that such an undertaking was definitely not peaceful nor was it safe. Power units were continually "played chicken with" by snowmobile operators and more than one wife came to us from being hit by a juvenile driver "doing his best". Such behavior can only be interpreted as evidence that it was felt we had no business being in such a park for the safety consciousness of the snowmobile clubs and people.

We approached two or three of the drivers every appearance of being in charge of the carnival festivities, distinguished by their sash bands, and explained our situation. We were told by the first to complain to contact a group of snowmobilers whom they got together like this. If this is so, why plan activities for people who do not own snowmobiles? Such a policy was to be going and it was clear that the carnival committee members resented the interference of a group of pedestrians as long as their pleasure was not disturbed. I take no undue exception in the mentality that derives great pleasure from driving around in circles at 30 and 50 mph. I do not advocate banning the use of snowmobiles entirely, but surely an area of Zwick's Island Park could have been reserved for use of the snowmobilers and a section set aside for the pedestrian spectators. The sooner rigid and arbitrary ranges are imposed and the law more vigilant, those of the snowmobile activity will be safe for all. I have visited areas of the Park, near the restaurant, land shell and cook out. Surely these latter areas are not used by the snowmobilers due to their inconvenient capability or lack of it.

Mr. Premier, I plead with you to take some steps to make the park a fit place for the entire mobile population, and not just the people.

Respectfully,
Pedestrian First.

European Resistance
Snowmobiles: U. S. Viewpoint

New York Times

The snowmobile, for several years a growing affliction in this country's woods, is now encountering growing resistance in the mountain sports of Europe. The International Commission for the Protection of Alpine Regions, created by the rising numbers and danger of this noisy, fume-belching vehicle, has called for national curbs on its use. Its chief business now is to find means for the protection of the Alps' wildlife and wilderness. They damage the soil and vegetation, and often leaving their own trails of litter. Falling into snow-covered ponds or small streams they endanger the lives of their drivers and of others as well. And to maximize those of the terrified animals they encounter.

Nobody denies the fun they provide. Nobody begrudges it. But they require restriction and intrusion. Some reactions are excessive, but not nearly enough.

Europe has developed super-sensitivity to noise. It has refined the speedometer to the point where drivers fear to look at it, all the exhilaration they want when wrecking the simplest machines of others.

But a Canadian official put it there should be a prime place on God's green earth for man to escape from his self-without hearing a damned motor.

Such a place is already shared by the Alpine authorities, calls for a loud noise.

Aussies' One Man One Vote

Richard Needham in The Globe and Mail

I've always liked the story about the professor who was trying to get an Australian to make a choice about democracy. "One man, one vote," he said, and the Australians looked blank. He tried again and again. "One man, one vote." Finally a bewildered Australian cut in and said, "You mean one bloody vote?" The professor nodded his head and the Australian said, "Well, I've got the best idea you've ever heard in your life. I say that in the first place."

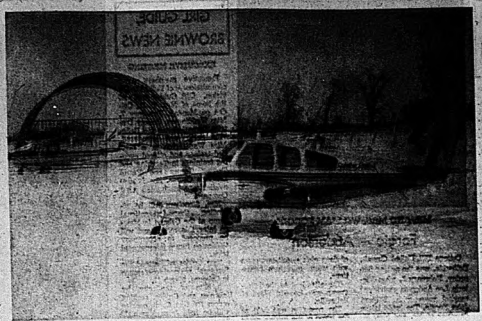
Segregation Of Children Said Unwise

TRENTON (Staff) — Segregated forms of education for children with learning disabilities may be harmful, says Betty Beattie, a special education co-ordinator with the Toronto Board of Education who addressed the Quinte Association for Children With Learning Disabilities here Wednesday night.

She told the local group that individualized programs for each child present a better alternative to the approach of having separate schools for exceptional children.

In Toronto, she said, the special education budget now tops the $13 million mark and caters to the needs of 7,000 children. 1,000 who require personal speech therapy.



The special education specialist indicated that the goal to work for is to "keep the children in an environment as close to the regular classroom situation as possible." Moving from a segregated environment, through transitional stages, the exceptional child could eventually be placed in the classroom although he may need special assistance in the beginning.

"We are fighting the labeling of children, the stigma attached to the child being different and the isolation of children from contact with their peers and neighborhood friends," she said.

In one case, she said 14 former residents of the Ontario School for the Blind, Brantford are now living at home and attending regular schools. As a sidenote, she contended "classmates and teachers have benefitted from this in that they know what adjustments a handicapped person must make and how to live" and work with a handicapped person."

Quintair's Twin Otter and Unfinished Gugnset Hangar

Air Service Gets Green Light

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Belleville's private air service company, Quintair Ltd., has been given the green light ahead to get off the ground on a paying basis. Recently, they received their all-weather flying certificate, which will enable them to take flights even in adverse

Up until approval, the company only held a clear-weather licence, which permitted them to fly only if visibility was clear. Poor weather, at the last minute, would have cancelled any prepared flights.

"We didn't solicit business at that time because we couldn't be dependable," Robert Howell, executive member of Quintair, told The Intelligencer.

Because of proximity to CFB Trenton, an extensive investigation was ventured before the Belleville company could receive the all-weather certificate. With co-operation from control headquarters at the airforce base, Quintair pilots will now be able to fly under instrument control and direct contact with the flight tower.

Passenger service to all points in Canada and northeastern parts of the United States will form a major portion of their proposed business. Cargo will also be carried, but Mr. Howell said emphasis would be placed on the more "beneficial" passenger program.

Company executives plan to solicit business from local firms, with a full-scale advertising campaign scheduled.

Mr. Howell claims Quintair can supply a better service than those provided to larger centres. Unlike companies in Toronto, the helicopter firm will be able to land at almost any airport. Scheduled services are, in most cases, required to land at predetermined airports.

"This service is going to depend largely on traffic generated by the company businessman said. It will also dictate the type of equipment we will have.

At present, Quintair Ltd. owns a five-place, twin-engine Beech Baron, which has been checked regularly for maintenance purposes. Within a week, a temporary hangar at the Belleville Flying Club airport, will be completed.

These facilities are sufficient for our needs right now. We haven't really discussed larger facilities. We'll have to wait and see what is needed."

The whole concept of a local air service, came into the public eye in June of 1969, with the appointment of local municipal officials to the Quinte district air services committee.

Investigations began immediately into the possibility of establishing a scheduled air service in the Quinte area.

It wasn't until September of 1970, that Quintair Ltd. expressed interest in establishing a charter service.

Eight months later, Charles MacNaughton, then minister of highways and transport, told the legislature an assessment would be made on the influence air services would have on regional development.

The transportation official said by 1973, Air Canada would pull out of the regional air carrier service. He expressed interest in finding Ontario-based regional carriers to replace the Air Canada flights.

An experimental route, with six established regional carriers chosen for the project, was to have been established in various parts of the province. While operations have begun in northern regions of Ontario, representatives of the Quinte air services committee were told by the province, that local requirements did not warrant such a service at this time.

By July of 1971, Quintair had received its private charter, and plans for the service began to take shape.

"I'm going to be hitting the track in fast gear. This is something that's really been waiting for," the company official stated enthusiastically.

Human Waste Fertilizer Said Best Available

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

How human waste can substitute a demand to the environment.

Not if it's properly treated, says an official with the Quinte Water Resources Commission. Human wastes have been spreading human fertilizer on their fields for years without giving the matter a second thought.

Mr. Bill Bowen of Tyendinaga township recently a pail of it to study a sample of it.

"Pretty sparse," says Don Little, hydrologist of Belleville's Filter Pollution Control Plant. "We've got a fellow in Tyendinaga township who removes a pail of it from his septic tank every spring, when he empties it out and spreads it on his vegetable garden. It's the best fertilizer available."

Mr. Bowen, who is the vicinity of Marie Robinson's 50 acre farm at Thurlow's fourth concession of Sidney, carried away odors, pollution from the rumors of real potential devastation of their land.

But according to the OWRC, the Waste Management Branch of the federal Department of Energy and Resources and Mr. Robinson himself, their complaints are grandiose.

"There's no odor whatsoever when the sludge leaves the plant," says Mr. Little. "There may be gases from it, but I've not felt after it's been treated."

The OWRC-supervised plant uses various chemicals to destroy potentially harmful toxic properties. "There are no seeds in it to grow afterward," adds Mr. Little.

As for the pollution threat, Paul Davidson, regional engineer with water management, told a Thurlow council meeting Wednesday that British farmers apply as much as 200,000 gallons per year to each acre of land without reaching the saturation point. Mr. Robinson, with its 1,000 gallon capacity truck, averages five trips a day between the spring, when he could spread 5,000 gallons per acre, and the fall, when he could spread 10,000 gallons per acre.

Mr. Davidson, whose department of water management is the provincial counterpart of the OWRC, said inspection of the Robinson farm has revealed there is no danger to the water supply.

Deseronto to Provide Fire Protection

TWEED (Special) — The town of Deseronto and the Tyendinaga reserve have come to an agreement on a new fire control contract concerning reserve land.

Councillor Edward Gordanier, chairman of the fire and police committee, said that the reserve council has agreed verbally to the contract offered by Deseronto. The council will be asked to give its confirmed had previously taken in fire calls on the reserve for free but was no formal agreement between the two municipalities.

The contract provides for fire protection for all land west of Norman's Road, just west of the council house on the York Road to the east boundary of the reservation, an area of about 32 square miles.

The Point Anne fire department has been serving this area in the three west of the Wyman's Road.

The contract calls for the reserve to pay $25 for the first call that it makes on the job, $20 for each additional hour and at an hour and each fireman who answers the call. Generally four or five men answer a fire call.

Educational Unit Discusses Role of Psychologist Team

MADOC — A special guests of the Madoc and District Home and School Association, the Pschologist Team of Educational Services provided an interesting program at a regular meeting held last Monday evening in the Madoc Township Public School at eight o'clock.

The team consists of Mrs. Gage, the Psychologist of the Centre Hastings area; Miss Johnston, the Special Education Teacher and Miss Kierans, Mrs. Gage began the presentation by explaining the difference between a psychologist and a psychiatrist. The latter is a medical doctor who studies and treats abnormalities of the mind; while psychologist studies normal behavior, specifically working with children who have a learning or perception disability. It was explained that Mrs. Gage studies the problem child in his environment and reports her findings to Miss Kierans, who in turn, suggests corrective measures. Miss Johnston then carries out these recommendations until an improvement is shown.

Miss Johnston showed a movie which illustrated some of the more extreme cases encountered, complete with commentary, and then left the floor open for a question and answer period.

Following a brief break for coffee and a light lunch, group discussions proved to be an informative time for all present.

During the business of the meeting, Mrs. F. McCoy, principal of M.T.P.S. gave a report on the school's activities of the year. Briefly, she mentioned the events planned for Education Week coming up in March; an index study on Canada by the students; and the plans for an operetta to be held some time in the spring. Different Story in Caring for In-laws

Dear Ann Landers: I don't mind the fact that when I have friend's presents between us and ask for advice when it comes to them, nurse them, help them, defend them, do favors for them and be generous to make their lot in life easier. But why worry the hell out of me and do everything for me but care for in-laws.

LUCKY BREAK

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — A 35-year-old divorced woman whose neighbors said she had been extremely depressed jumped out of a sixth - floor apartment, crashed into an aluminum awning and tumbled to the sidewalk. Her only injury was a broken foot.

But when her parents get sick and old. It's a different story. The husband carries under his arm a bundle of intellectual and social stuffs. It's the time of "when I married you I married your family, I didn't marry your parents."

Well, I'm your column is, so you claim, a true reflection of life and people. Well, I'll tell you what some of the hundreds of letters you have received on this subject tell me. I'm interested only in boy-girl things. I'm married and have a little family of my own. I'm busy.

Dear B.S.I. of Tube. Of course, some husbands feel as yours does but there are also thousands of husbands who are grateful to their wives' parents. My own husband's folks moved across the street and I can look out the window and see people as they do their shopping, hurrying from one place to another. Both are in their 70's. I see hundreds of parents today with expensive toys. They want to spend their youngsters happy. How strange and ironic that these same people who would probably spend their rent on a gift don't realize that the best gift they can give a child is himself—his love, time and attention. When this is missing, no other gift can take its place.

To parents who smoke have been asked by their children to quit. Do they refuse? How many of these parents will die prematurely because they can't control their cigarettes? If these parents have no regard for their own lives, they should at least consider what it means to their children. Dear Ann Landers: Mrs. Utah, American Cancer Society.

Dear A.L.: You took the words out of my mouth. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I was engaged to an awful man and he sort of broke the engagement. I kept the ring, which is a beautiful solitaire. I now have a new boyfriend who wants to buy me an engagement ring. I don't see why he should put out a lot of money since I already have a ring. I'd like to sell this ring to my new boyfriend and tell my ex-fiance that I sold his ring and give him the money. This way the boyfriend could buy me a lovely ring at a good price and the ex-fiance would get part of his money back.

Dear Waiting: You say your ex-fiance "sort of" broke the engagement. If this is true the ring, according to law, is yours. If you have any doubts about the ring belongs to him—in which case you have no right to sell it.

Mixed Up Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Do kids hate a strict teacher?

NO, but if a child teacher misses a no-nonsense one who must agree to help the children learn, instead of using the child's time to learn the discipline of learning, many a so-called strict teacher has more trouble with parents than he or she does with the pupils. Some mothers and fathers are so afraid that discipline will appear to be doing a better job than the parents in being able to motivate the children.

Can marriage "cure" jealousy?

ONLY if jealousy before marriage was based on someone's lack of self-confidence. A girl, for instance, might have doubted her ability to attract and hold the man she eventually married. Now with a wife, though, the girl will find no need for jealousy. But, if her jealousy before marriage was based on the man's previous lack of promises of constant loyalty, the girl may need profound help to cure her problem.

Could a snob win esteem as a boss?

NO, although employees will work for a snob who has a position authority—not because they respect him, but they have to. Otherwise, they dont a chance to get on his level and become a snob. His employees will readily mean that he realizes being able to tell others to do something that he believes they would not like to do himself—even though by their position he had just been relieved of doing that same work himself.

Successful Living

Mothers Advised Not to Be Martyrs

By DORIS CLARK

Sometimes I think those mothers who "give up everything" for their children are leaving cedar to that family. If someone tells you, God-fearing(?) that they've given up everything for you, don't let it please you! More likely than not, it gives them a feeling of guilt!

Martyred mothers don't have much fun, and so they rely be not much fun to live with either. And how about that day, which will surely come, when the all - grown - up family are completely absorbed in their own affairs and no longer in need of any sacrifice at all?

It's a sorry state of things if Mother then finds herself alone in a clean, empty house with absolutely nothing to do.

Prevention is better than cure, Mother. We all need diversions and outside interests as we go along.

Dear Doris: I feel very happy that someone like you can give voice to your continual love ideas. They are much needed at this time while people, including professionals like some doctors, nurses and social workers, are still laboring under fallacies which are getting outmoded.

But you left out something that: "The pace has to be right." Anything — as I take it — that advanced age is the cause of a dragging pace. This is the common point of view.

Couldn't it be the other way around? That the slowing down causes aging?

I have found this to be true in my own case (66) and some others I've pointed it out to. Anyway, just for fun. That there is a great deal of truth in it I'm sure. But how much? — One of the Young-Old.

Dear One: If you were to ask my opinion, I'd say that the "pace" or enforced retirement, pressure to go downhill in the eyes of the world is, short order. I'd say you were perfectly right. The persons who feels useless immediately begin to be less useful.

I suspect it works both ways. We know that at 50 or 60 we're expected to operate as strenuously as in earlier years. Experts constantly urge aging persons to guard against heart attacks by pacing themselves.

But interest in living does not have to slow down. For many people, at 65, and for nearly 95, "life has been the best part of her life," she says.

She has been able to explore more new worlds through reading, travel and constant contacts, than she had ever dreamed of when she was just starting full time.

Dear Doris: I have been trying to locate a Jeanette and McCall's Needlework Pattern number 1452 "Mother Goose and Sparkle". — Mrs. A. A.

Dear Mrs. A. A.: Have you tried writing direct to the McCall Corporation, 671 Front Street West, Toronto 28, Ontario?

Or perhaps one of our readers will come up with it for you. The title makes it sound colorful and something worth having.

Montreal Prostitution Chart Reported

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec Police Commission inquiry into the conduct of Montreal Police Chief Marcel Lessard was told Thursday of an undercover chart on Montreal prostitution.

Constable Leo Villeneuve, 35, testified the chart was an example of the personal information of "young girls working in the streets" and was compiled by Constable Lessard while he was a captain with the morality squad, in the 1960s.

The constable's statement on the existence of the chart came in the closing minutes of Thursday's hearing on the commission also ended its third week of public sessions. It is scheduled to resume hearings next Tuesday.

It was Constable Villeneuve's second full day on the witness stand.

On Wednesday, he testified he had found a "pimp's list" Nov. 4, 1966, which included the name of Mr. Saulnier. Until then, he said he had never suspected Mr. Saulnier of accepting bribes.

The constable was questioned further on the gang of Robert Dey. He said he had found Dey had in a search in connection with a bribery conviction laid by the RCMP.

But the mention of the prostitution chart near the end of the session drew protests from Jean-Louis Leger, Mr. Saulnier's lawyer.

Subsequent questioning by Judge Roger Comeau, commission chairman, established that Constable Villeneuve had not prepared the chart himself but had been given it by a former policeman.

Mr. Leger also asked that the testimony concerning the chart be ignored until the beginning of a morning session, which would leave the full day to examine the evidence.

"I had better advise the commissioner that if the witness is permitted to introduce this document, they had better be prepared to sit until midnight," Mr. Leger said.

Mr. Leger, holding a photocopy of the three-page chart, said he was quite aware of what the witness was going to say. "I won't let the witness out of [illegible] chair until I have questioned him extensively," the lawyer said.

Constable Villeneuve, relieved the contents of the chart [illegible] other his testimony was officially ended and he had been dismissed by Judge Comeau.

Lucien Saulnier Resigns

MONTREAL (CP) — Lucien Saulnier, a tough administrator whose name has been synonymous with financial and political fits for more than a decade, resigned Thursday as chairman of the Montreal Urban Community executive committee.

Mr. Saulnier, 55, told a news conference he will be taking a position in private industry and wants to spend more time with his family of six children.

For 10 years Mayor Jean Drapeau's right-hand man as chairman of the city's executive committee and for the last 18 months overseer of the rioting [illegible] won and the best estimate is 112, including a Hollywood Oscar in 1953 for Neighbors. (CP Photo).

Protestant MP Charges Soldiers With Murder

TORONTO (CP) — A Protestant member of the Northern Ireland Parliament accused the British Army Thursday of "premeditated murder" in the shooting deaths of 13 people in Londonderry Jan. 30.

Jean Cooper, the member for Derry South, told an audience of 1,300 that claims by the British Army that they were shot at were not true.

"No shots were fired at the British Army. It was cold, calculated murder of innocent people. This was premeditated murder. They decided to shoot a few people in hope of flushing out the IRA."

Mrs. Cooper was in London-derry the day Bloody Sunday, as it has become known, took place.

She described the march that day as peaceful, except for some youngsters throwing stones at the soldiers — an every-day affair in Derry, he said.

The marchers arrived at a barricade, and British troops used gas, rubber bullets and a water cannon to disperse them.

The marchers had fallen back about 600 yards, he said, when without warning, the troops opened fire.

"I saw British paratroopers on one knee shooting the fleeing people in the back. The army was taking pot shots."

Mrs. Cooper said he crawled about 150 yards and saw a boy and a girl, about 17 or 18, running hand in hand. The boy was shot and killed, and the girl who [illegible] was shot twice.

He said paratroopers had fired on as they tried to get to the dead and wounded, and doctors were not given access to the wounded.

At the end of his speech, he was given $2,500 from the newly-formed Canadian Committee for Irish Justice. Mr. Cooper said the money would be distributed among the relatives of those killed in Derry and the relatives of men who have been interned under emergency regulations.

Liberal MP Loses Case

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Otto, Liberal member of Parliament for York East, said Thursday he has failed in an attempt to stop the Unemployment Insurance Commission from denying vacation pay on earnings when calculating benefits.

Mr. Otto brought a test case before a commission board of referees earlier this month on behalf a constituent, construction worker Frank Oliveri, who applied Jan. 21 for unemployment insurance benefits after being laid off at a construction project. Benefits were denied because he received $371 vacation pay Jan. 4, one day before his layoff.

Elephant Throws Tantrum

BANGKOK (CP) — One of Thailand's sacred white elephants threw a tantrum on its way to appear before Queen Elizabeth at a glittering state banquet Thursday night—and sat on a police car and crushed it.

And the Queen, denied the privilege of feeding the rare beast sugar cane, was entertained instead by Princess Chulabhorn, 14-year-old daughter of her hosts, King Bhumibol and Queen Sirikit.

The princess gave a piano recital.

The elephant was led sulking back to its quarters at a zoo, where it joined the Thai royal household who politely told reporters the beast had been persuaded to return home and the ceremony had been called off.

Canadian Skiers Settle for Honor, Not Medals

Misses Kreiner, Crawford Ranked in World's Top Seven

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Although they didn't win any medals for Canada in the Winter Olympics, Laurie Kreiner and Judy Crawford were ranked today among the top seven skiers in the Alpine combined world championship.

The International Ski Federation awarded the world championship to Annemarie Proell of Austria and placed Miss Kreiner fifth and Miss Crawford seventh. The ratings are based on over-all performances in the three Olympic Alpine events.

The federation made the awards shortly after Barbara Cochran of the Vermont skiing family won the women's Olympic slalom by 2-100ths of a second. It was the first ski gold for the United States since Andrea Mead Lawrence won two in the 1952 Games at Oslo, Norway.

Miss Crawford, 20-year-old Toronto student, placed fourth after two runs. Miss Kreiner was fourth in the giant slalom Tuesday.

Together with Karen Magnusen of Vancouver, silver medallist in figure skating, they are responsible for all of Canada's points in the Games.

There is virtually no chance for a bobsled medal in the four-man competition.

The main hope for a bobsled medal went but the chute today when Canada's toy sled piloted by Bob Storey of Ottawa flipped on a curve during the initial heat. Two Canadian sleds were slightly hurt, and Storey took his team out of the event.

The second Canadian sled, piloted by Hans Gebrig of Montreal, was lying in 14th place after two heats and with little chance of catching the leading Swiss bob in the last two heats to be run Saturday.

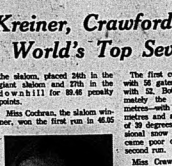
Monika Pflug of West Germany won the women's 1,000-metre speed skating gold medal, upsetting record-holder Anne Henning, the 16-year-old Northbrook, Ill., girl who won the 500 metres. Miss Henning finished third and another U.S. gold winner, Diane Holum, was sixth.

In other finals, Russia won the biathlon relay gold medal and a 19-year-old Polish electrician, Wojciech Fortuna, captured the 90-metre ski jumping title with leaps of 364 feet two inches and 367 feet one inch. He earned 213.9 points, beating the silver winner, Walter Steiner of Switzerland, by one-tenth of a point.

Ondrej Nepela won Czechoslovakia's first gold medal of the Games, taking the men's figure skating title. Tuesday, who will defend his world title next month in Calgary, built up a big lead in the compulsory program and needed only a mediocre free skating performance to win. But his performance was smooth and graceful although he fell while attempting a triple-toe loop.

All nine judges rated him first and he scored a total of 2,729.1 points, well ahead of the rest of the field. Sergei Chetvertoukhin of Russia won the silver and Patrick Pera of France the bronze. Americans Ken Shelley and John Misska Petkevich were fourth and fifth.

Marie Therese Nadig of Switzerland, winner of the downhill and giant slalom gold medals, fell in the slalom and lost her chance to score an unprotected triple.



But she took her bad break in stride and said: "After all, I have two gold medals and that is more than I dared hope for."

The fall cost her the world combined title. The 17-year-old green-eyed Swiss girl had been leading by a wide margin until her mishap in the slalom. She apparently hit a gate pole and stumbled. She continued the race but gave up a few gates afterwards.

Miss Proell, the World Cup leader, won the combined title by placing second in the giant slalom and downhill and fifth in the slalom.

Miss Proell took the combined title, for which no medal is awarded, with a total 26.64 penalty points. Florence Steurer of France, third in tody's slalom, was second with 59.51 penalty points.

Miss Kreiner was fourth in the giant slalom, 12th in the slalom and 20th in the downhill and received 63.10 penalty points. Miss Crawford, fourth in the slalom, placed 26th in the giant slalom and 17th in the downhill for 89.46 penalty points.

LAURIE KREINER

Miss Cochran, the slalom winner, won the first run in 46.05 seconds and was second in the second in 45.19. Her total time of 1:31.24 was 2-100ths of a second better than the French runner-up, Daniele Debernard, with a first run of 46.08 and a second of 45.18, fastest in the field. Miss Steurer followed with a two-run total of 1:32.03.

The silver and bronze medals were the first for France in these Games. Four years ago on home ground, France won nine medals including four gold.

The first course was set up with 52 gates and the second with 52. Both were approximately the same length—500 metres—with a drop of 194 metres and a maximum grade of 30 degrees. There was occasional snow and visibility became poor on top during the second run.

Miss Crawford had runs of 47.13 and 46.3 seconds and a total time of 1:33.95. Miss Proell followed with 1:34.03. Laurie Kreiner was 12th in 1:37.39 and her sister Kathy 15th in 1:40.27.

"This was definitely my kind of course," said Miss Cochran, one of five skiing sisters and brothers. Her sister Marilyn and her brother Bob are on the Olympic team. Marilyn was disqualified in the slalom.

In speed skating, six Olympic seven events with one race left. Miss Pflug, a 17-year-old aprecords have been broken in premier bobsledder in Munich, won the 1,000 metres in the record time of 1:31.40, wiping out the 1968 mark of 1:32.60 set by a Dutch girl, Carry Geyssen.

In all, six girls were under the Games mark. Atje Keulen-Deelstra, a Hollander, took the silver in 1:31.81 and Miss Henning the bronze in 1:31.62. Sylvia Burka of Winnipeg was 22nd in 1:32.65.

In the men's ski jumping, Canada's top effort was performed by Montreal Zdenek Med, a 24 year-old student, who scored 194.3 points, finished 11th over-all after Thursday's second leg, the highest-ever placing by a Canadian man in the event.

Ahearne Preserves Two Points

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — The International Ice Hockey Federation today suspended West German hockey captain Alois Schloder from international competition until Sept. 1 because a test indicated he had taken an unauthorized drug.

John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the IIHF, said Olympic officials had recommended that West Germany should forfeit its 6-2 victory over Yugoslavia on Monday the game after which Schloder was tested.

"But we refused to do that," Ahearne said.

Schloder was not invited to appear before the IIHF when it met Friday, Ahearne added, because "there would be no point in doing that."

"We had the medical opinion and we are not qualified to go into that."

The IIHF decision leaves West Germany first in the consolation round at the Olympics with three victories against no defeats. Norway is second with a 2-1 record and each has one game left to play.

He told a reporter he had taken no drugs of any sort on the day of the game in question —West Germany's victory over Yugoslavia in which he scored two goals.

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Ondrej Nepela, the skating wonder from Czechoslovakia, won the Olympic Games gold medal Friday night as Russia's Sergei Chetvertoukhin edged into second place for the silver and Patrick Pera of France won the bronze.

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Anatoly Tarasov, coach of the defending Olympic champion Russian hockey team, said Thursday it is not only his wish to have more hockey contests but that of the Soviet Union's ice hockey federation. "I would like to say it is not just my personal attention of Mr. Tarasov, but a request of the U.S.S.R. Hockey Federation to arrange a series of games through the IIHF," he said. The Russian coach emphasized in an interview that any exhibition or tournaments pitting his team against National Hockey League players must be under conditions arranged by the International Ice Hockey Federation, represented by A. J. (Bunny) Ahearne, and president Clarence Campbell of the NHL.

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Canada's No. 1 four-man bobsledders flipped on a turn in their first run at the Olympic Games Friday but escaped serious injury. Bob Storey of Ottawa and Michael Hartley of Calgary were slightly injured when the sledders were thrown clear of their vehicle. The spill disqualified the Canadians from the medal chase. Storey suffered a severely bruised right knee and mild concussion. Hartley had a badly bruised right shoulder and minor superficial lacerations.

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — The board of the International Ski Federation (FIS) ruled today that veteran French skier Annie Famose must ask a French-language radio and television station on charges of unlawfully using her name and photograph in advertisements or face disqualification. The board further ruled that Austrian ski ace Karl Schranz must do the same thing against a company which has used his photo for advertising purposes previously, but FIS President Marc Hodler added in disclosing this that neither Miss Famose nor Schranz was under suspension. "The suspension of Miss Famose can be considered lifted if she pursues legal action," Hodler said.

Getting there wasn't easy. We discovered that back in 1965, when we brought our first Toyotas to Canada.

We started learning what Canadians wanted in a small car. Since then, the Toyota story has been one of consistent improvement and success. Take a look back over the years.

From the first Crowns, Coronas and Corollas to the newest Celicas. Every Toyota now has better looks, more horsepower and more extras that are standard equipment. We don't believe that staying the same for twenty years is a virtue. And we don't believe in adding the superfluous just for the sake of change.

Toyotas now have such things as front disc brakes. Overhead cam engines. The only standard cross-flow engine in the industry. Unit body construction.

Rear window defrosters and a long list of other improvements and features which are usually extra cost "extras" on other cars.

Of course, improving our cars isn't all we learned. We've kept our dealer network and parts and service organization growing at the same pace as our sales. Consistent improvement, constant development. It's the kind of thinking which has made us what we are in Canada today. First.

CFL Having Growth Pains

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Football League is having a tough time deciding whether it wants to expand into New York.

Owners and general managers of the nine-team league met behind closed doors for 2½ hours Thursday and reached no decision. The matter was deferred until today.

There has been no vote taken either on the expansion committee's report or the question of New York itself, Jake Gaudaur, CFL commissioner said after Thursday's session.

He also said he anticipated a decision today on the franchise bid by Robert E. Schmertz to establish a CFL team in Yankee Stadium, then quickly added that it was possible the question could be deferred to a later date.

The expansion business aside, the league executive did come up Thursday with some positive decisions.

One involved increasing the number of teams to 15 on an east-23-man team from the previous 14. Each club now will have to carry only 37 Canadians.

The 1972 Grey Cup game was awarded to Toronto, largely on the strength of a guarantee that artificial turf will be laid in the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium.

This year's all-star game will be played in Calgary June 28 with the champion Calgary Stampeders playing the all-star players from the eight other CFL clubs.

No decision was made on the 1974 site for the Grey Cup game, but several cities already were adopted including:

1. A kicker may place the ball on a kickoff, punt or field goal try, that strikes any part of the goalpost crossbar or upright in the air will be declared dead immediately. If the ball is kicked from on the 25-yard line if it was a kickoff, the 10-yard line if it was a punt or missed field goal. A completed field goal will count.

Previously the ball was still in play if, after striking any part of the goalpost, it fell into the goal area.

2. A stronger play shall be illegal following a substitution by the team putting a ball in play, particularly a substitution by either team would nullify a sweeper play.

3. To prevent occasions when the defensive team may be caught off guard by a player not wearing his helmet while in an offensive role, the rules committee made it mandatory for the player to wear helmets while on the playing field.

4. Rescinded was a rule giving officials discretion to substitute a ball dead on a short kick that ends up in a crowd in the end zone. Now officials shall use their judgment to determine whether a no-yard penalty shall be applied.

Two suggestions were rejected by wire margins — that there be four downs instead of a two-point conversion be implemented. Defeated in a close vote was a suggestion that artificial blocking be allowed on punt returns.

On the question of expansion, CFL president Sam Berger of Montreal Alouettes said Thursday the issues had polarized. The indication was that Montreal was not keen on Eastern and Western Conference lines but between big cities and small ones.

Berger summed up some of the arguments on the New York franchise. He listed three basic ones—the Canadian character of the game, the problem of "loser teams" being established up by the greater and the obvious financial gain from moving into the U.S.

The new import ratio raised the chance of some Canadians being overpriced.

Red O'Quinn, Montreal general manager, said reporters the additional import gave CFL teams two alternatives. They now can replace what was the 36th Canadian with a young import for "say $5,000 a year" and carry and naturally get a better ball player" or get a "good American and pay him less than a Canadian who has outpriced himself."

The salary figure Dalla Riva, a Canadian, is reported to be holding out for is $30,000 or near that. Coach Sam Etcheverry hopes the problem will be solved soon but "if not, we'll use an import at tight end."

Kiner said Canadian Football League games will be televised live to the U.S., beginning in June. Kramer will be one of the football announcers. (AP Wirephoto)

Driver Okay... For Now

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Westwood, 31, of Clarkson, Ont., was granted permission Thursday to race and drive standardbreds at Greenwood Raceway pending outcome of an appeal hearing Feb. 22 and 23.

Wellwood sought a hearing after he was suspended March 1 for 30 days and fined $300 by Greenwood judges because of a photo finish at the mile-and-a-half trotter Eli Dares.

The test was made after the gelding won the third race on March 1. Presiding judge Robert Roberge said the test showed the presence of a drug in the mixture of caffeine.

Wellwood, voted Horseman of the Year the past three years on the Ontario Jockey Club circuit, was unable to explain the positive test.

"It could have been someone with a grudge against me," he suggested. "None of the men that work for me did it."

Gordon Chown, chief supervisor for the Ontario Racing Commission, said Thursday that Wellwood is free to continue his duties until the hearing Feb. 22.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers Thursday announced the recall of goalie Don McLeod from Providence to replace Bruce Gamble, who suffered a heart attack Tuesday night. The Flyers will meet Minnesota North Stars on Saturday night. Flyers' spokesmen said Gamble, 33, is resting in an Oakland hospital.

Cowan Named for Fame

TORONTO (CP) — Five golfers have been elected to Canada's Golf Hall of Fame, the Royal Canadian Golf Association announced at its annual meeting today.

The late Florence Harvey of Hamilton, Gary Cowan of Kitchener and Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., were the amateur golfers named. Stan Leonard and David Black were the professionals.

Cowan, 33, won his second U.S. amateur title last year and was the low individual scorer in the world amateur team championship in 1962, one of 16 times he has represented Canada in international team events. He was the low amateur in the Masters in 1958 and won the Canadian Amateur in 1961.

Weslock, 56, is a four-time winner of the Canadian amateur championship and has been low Canadian in the U.S. Open. He has been a member of the Canadian team three times in world amateur competition, five times in the Commonwealth championship and seven times in Americas Cup play.

Miss Harvey, born in England, won the Canadian women's open championship in 1903 and 1904 and was a semi-finalist in the United States Open in 1910. She founded the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union in 1913. Leonard, 57, won a total of 41 tournaments including the 1953 Tournament of Champions and two other major events on the U.S. tour. The Vancouver golfer was an eight-time winner of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association title and a nine-time member of the Canada Cup team.

Black, 59, came to Canada from his native Scotland in 1950 and was a professional in the Montreal area until he moved to Vancouver in 1970. He won the CPGA tournament four times and was runner-up in the 1911 Canadian Open. He retired in 1945.

OTTAWA (CP) — Far fewer bettors trotted off to the horse tracks last year, leading to a $10.66-million drop in wagers from 1970.

Only $564,792,222 was bet at both standardbred and thoroughbred races in 1971, despite an increase in the number of races and racing days.

Total attendance in 1971 was down 333,108 to 10,651,438 while overall price money also dropped $385,554 to $30,312,411.56.

Lafleur Finds Holes In Toughest Defence

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For a rookie who was supposed to have difficulty adjusting to National Hockey League competition, Guy Lafleur is having little trouble.

While Montreal Canadiens' rookie Lafleur the first choice in last summer's junior draft, some skeptics doubted whether his ability to score 130 goals in his last season in the Quebec Junior Hockey League would mean much when he went up against NHL defences and goalies.

Lafleur faced the NHL's top defence Thursday night—and scored three goals and assisted on another to lead the Canadiens to a 7-1 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

In other games, Boston Bruins whipped Vancouver Canucks 9-1; Detroit Red Wings downed Buffalo Sabres 4-2; Pittsburgh Penguins beat Los Angeles Kings 6-1 and Minnesota North Stars defeated St. Louis Blues 3-1.

It was the third three-goal game of the season for Lafleur—despite the fact he was up against the Hawk defence which has allowed the fewest goals against in the 14-club league.

The Montreal right winger drew an assist on Frank Mahovlich's 28th goal of the season and the Big E also supplied four assists as the Canadiens moved to within five points of second-place New York Rangers in the East Division.

Chicago outshot the Canadiens 40-30 but goalie Ken Dryden frustrated the Hawks' bid as he did in the Stanley Cup final round last year. Gary Smith was in the Chicago goal.

The 18,114 fans at Montreal Forum gave Lafleur a standing ovation when he came ice for the first time in more than a year. He had been sidelined since early in 30, 1971, with a fractured ankle and he made his return look back with assists on two of Lafleur's goals.

Montreal's Marc Tardif and Chicago's Doug Jarrett collided in the second period and Tardif went to hospital for x-rays of his bruised back but Jarrett returned to the ice soon after. Chicago defenceman Keith Magnuson was another casualty as he retired from the game after reinjuring his left wrist in the first period.

While the Hawks fell for their second loss in a row, the North Stars picked up their second win since their 5-0 loss at Chicago last Sunday and pulled back to within 10 points of the West Division leaders.

Veteran Gump Worsley kicked out 34 shots to help the North Stars against a Blues squad that had the encouragement of 18,000 fans.

Right winger Lou Nanne scored in the first period and set up another goal by Murray Oliver late in the game to lead Minnesota's offensive against St. Louis goalie Jacques Caron, who made 37 saves.

At Boston, scoring leader Phil Esposito got back on the scoreboard for the first time in more than a week with an assist on Mike Walton's goal in the first period.

Esposito, who hadn't gathered a point in the Bruins' three previous games, also scored his 35th season goal early in the third period.

GUY LAFLEUR

Bruin defenceman Bobby Orr scored his 34th of the season and helped set up three other goals while Fred Stanfield collected two goals.

It was the Bruins' 20th straight victory on home ice.

Pittsburgh appeared delaytalized to average the 6-1 loss suffered Thursday by Los Angeles and netted Kings goalie Gary Edwards with 46 shots on the way to the victory which pulled them out of the last-place tie with Los Angeles in the West Division.

Ron Schock scored twice and earned an assist to spark the Penguins who now are just four points behind fifth-place Philadelphia Flyers and five points behind Kings and St. Louis.

Detroit regained fourth place in the East Division, one point and tonight but will tomorrow are in action Saturday. Calif'wide Golden Seals visit Toronto, Los Angeles is at Montreal, Buffalo at Boston, New York at Pittsburgh, Detroit at Vancouver, Vancouver at St. Louis and Philadelphia at Minnesota.

Tonight's schedule is at Chicago, Montreal at Boston, Toronto at New York, Philadelphia at Buffalo and Vancouver at Pittsburgh.

WHA Preparing For Player Draft

ANAHEIM (AP)—The World Hockey Association has no players, and four of its 12 teams don't even have names. But the fledgling league, which holds its first player draft here this weekend, will start sending

Three Win Patrick Trophy

NEW YORK (AP) — John Snooks Kelley, Boston College coach, and Elmer Lach, Montreal, former Harvard coach, were cited today for their contributions to amateur hockey in the United States by being named co-winners of the Lester Patrick Memorial Trophy.

Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, was chosen earlier this week as a Patrick Trophy recipient for his contributions to professional hockey in the U.S.

Kelley, whose 466 victories at Boston College is an all-time record for a college hockey coach, is in his 36th season at the helm. The Boston U. coach has announced his retirement effective at the end of this season.

Welland coached Harvard for seven seasons until his retirement last year. He previously had played 11 seasons in the NHL, placing the circuit in scoring in 1939-40 while with the Boston Bruins. He also coached the Bruins in 1939-40 and 1940-41, leading them to the Stanley Cup title the latter campaign.

shock waves through the hockey world in a hurry.

For one thing, one of the WHA's founders, Gary Davidson, was also a founder of the American Basketball Association, now a success. But the statement which sent shivers around the NHL came from W. D. Bill Hunter, president of the Edmonton Oil Kings.

"We'll be drafting from all levels - professional, college, junior and European," he said.

And Olympic hockey players, too," added the WHA's executive vice-president, Dennis Murphy.

Davidson, the league president, said a diverse draft could create a bidding war between the league and the established National Hockey League. These NHL players whose contracts run out this year are eligible for the WHA draft, Davidson says, because the WHA considers signing an NHL's reserve clause.

Here are the teams which will draft players Saturday and Sunday:

Miami Screaming Eagles, Los Angeles Sharks, Winnipeg Jets, Edmonton Oil Kings, Calgary Broncs, New England Whalers; Minnesota Fighting Saints and four clubs with no nicknames yet that are based in New York City, San Francisco, Ontario and Dayton.

Trout Grow Scarce

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Easing of angling pressure on the lake trout waters of North Hastings is necessary if the fish population is to be maintained.

Some lakes in the Bancroft area already have been fished out, Belleville Fish and Game Club members were told Tuesday night.

Hans Von Rosen, fish management officer, Lands and Forests, Trenton, told the meeting that present fishing problems are nearly due to mistakes made in the past.

The last 20 years of open season have been more than liberal, he said. They started on May 1st some years ago and have been liberalized to the point that this year the season opens in North Hastings, January 1st with a daily limit of five fish.

In the Lennox and Addington areas the season opens March 15th with a daily limit of three.

Last fall, Mr. Rosen said, some people wanted a year-round open season. "The government can only do what the people want. If they want all-round seasons they'll get them."

"The question is", he said, "do you know what you want?"

The lake trout is a slow-growing coldwater fish, he said, and more angling pressures means a greater need decline.

Catches in the key lakes in the Bancroft area were quite good in 1956-57, Today they are no where nobody goes, at least the few that do are not happy with their catches, I'd say.

Water is the time when the fish are most vulnerable, he said. "This is the time when pressure should be reduced".

Closing of lakes for two or three years is not advisable he said. If a lake was stocked and closed for two years by the second year 75 per cent of the fish would be dead from natural causes.

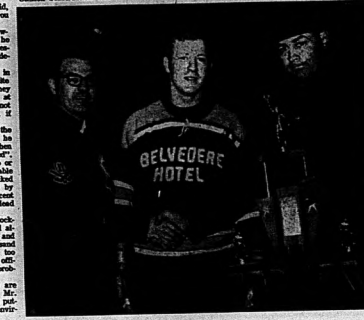
"There is no sense in stocking a lake, closing it and allowing poachers to go in and reap a harvest. A thousand lakes are managed by too few Lands and Forests officers. They have many problems".

Asked why more fish are not put in these lakes, Mr. Von Rosen said "we are putting in as many as the environment permits.

The potential of a lake to carry fish is limited in some cases, due to availability of food and other conditions. Putting in young fish is not a guarantee of larger fish later, due to environmental conditions.

Lake trout, he said, are readily caught in the second half of the winter because there is very little food. In wintertime, too, he added, the small trout are taken before it has a chance to grow." If we did not permit them to fulfil their function, we are not going to get any fish.

"We should let the lake trout mature. As the limit was possible at one time but it had its problems. If we want lake trout to grow we must adopt methods to allow small fish to escape."



Mr. Van Rosen pointed out there are many brook trout lakes available for recreation. It is a short lived species and the more pressure put on this trout means a greater return for everyone.

"We need good networks of roads in the northern lakes not only for fishing purposes but to help protect timber and other natural resources," he said.

Hustling Hotelman

Belvedere captain Gene Francis hustles for a loose puck in last night's Quinte League Hockey game with Stinson Construction. The Hotelman forward scored twice on goalie Ken Genereaux who filled in for Stinsons to help his team to an 11-3 victory over the short - staffed Constructionmen. The two teams will meet in the league semi-final playoff series beginning Thursday Feb. 24.

Three for Three

Belvedere coach Bill Vesterfelt and team captain Gene Francis accepts the Quinte Hockey League pennant trophy from league president Al Kelleher. The Hotelmen showed the form that has brought them three consecutive pennants by thrashing Stinson Construction 11-2 Thursday. They have lost only two of 17 contests this season while recording 14 wins and a tie to make a shambles of the pennant race.

Henderson's 5 Helped

It was 11 over seven in the Quinte Hockey League last night, Belvedere Hotel, which had clinched their third pennant in as many years, downed Stinson Construction 11-2. The Constructionmen could field only seven players for the contest.

Bob Henderson rapped in three goals for the winners with Gene Francis, Bill Goodfellow and Gary Reid scoring two each. Other goals went to John Baker, Larry Marshall while Jack Francis drew five assists.

For the short - staffed Stinson's squad it was Ted Waite and Rick Rosebush scoring a goal and assist each. Each team was assessed one penalty.

In the other game played Central Taxi held on to a 6-4 verdict over Hall's Dairy. Central built up a 5-1 lead and then withstood a late surge by the Dairymen for the victory.

Al Walker and Tom Pierce scored twice each for the cabbies with Mark Acquafredo counting a goal and two assists and Terry Casselman picking up the other score.

Seniors Face Fateful Weekend

The Belleville Quintes hold their playoff fate in their own hands this weekend when they face the Woodstock Royals in a home - and - home OHA Senior A series.

The Quintes, currently battled in eighth spot, could move into playoff contention with a pair of wins over the fifth-place Royals. Woodstock leads Belleville by four points, while Oakville Oaks hold a three-point edge for the sixth and final playoff spot.

The Oaks aren't facing any bed of roses this weekend. Tonight they face the third place Orillia Terriers, while Sunday they visit fourth-place Kingston Frontenacs.

Two key cogs in the Belleville playoff bid will be "Iron Man" Lionel Botly and Wayne McConnell, the only Quintes to participate in all 36 games so far this season.

Botly, a defensive - minded rearguard has been a stabilizing influence on the blueline, while defenceman McConnell has been the team's hottest scorer of late. Last year's scoring leader, he collected 5 in last week's home - and - away series and Saturday's game his total to 23 goals for the year. He trails right winger Al Pierce, who has counted 25 times for the team scoring leadership.

Saturday's game in Belleville against the Royals, scheduled to get under way at 8 p.m. in the Memorial Arena.

Midgets Vengeful

Some old rivals will be renewing acquaintances in the BCI Midget Basketball Tournament this weekend.

The BCI Midgets, carrying an unbeaten Bay of Quinte COSSA record so far this season, could face the only team to defeat them this season — Cobourg West. However, the two powerful high school squads don't promise to hold a monopoly on the action. Henry Street High School of Whitby, the "D" champion in last year's tournament are carrying a pretty impressive record of their own.

Henry Street, sporting a perfect 17-0 mark so far this season will be putting their unbeaten record on the line in the Saturday tourney.

Other schools entered in the event include Kenner of Peterborough, Picton, Moira, Quinte and Cobourg East.

The tournament will open 10 a.m. Saturday with BCI meeting Cobourg East a n d Moira taking on Kenner. The consolation championship is slated to begin at 5 p.m. with the championship game scheduled for 6.30 p.m.

Bobcat Schedule Ends

The Belleville Bobcats will be trying to keep their winning record intact for the season tonight when they meet the Picton Canucks in an Eastern Ontario Junior B game.

The Belleville B's have not lost a game all season to Picton or Gananoque, the most recent addition to the six team loop.

Providing a "helping hand" for the Bobcats will be defenceman John Mulvihill whose nine helpers against Picton this season have made him the leading pointgetter in games against the Quintes. Mulvihill, who has counted a goal and nine assists against the new entry has been one of the bulwarks of the Bobcat defence which has been operating with only three regulars of late.

In the goal scoring department, Jeff Howard rates as the top threat to the Canucks having scored five times.

The game tonight will present the final home-and-third - place Belleville bell-they-hist of seven scheduled Hastings against Oshawa. Ga times at the Belleville Mem ial Arena is 8 p.m.

Tenders must be accompanied by a certified cheque payable to the trustee for 10% of the tender, which deposit will be returned if the tender is not accepted or forfeited as liquidated damages if the tender is accepted and the purchaser does not complete the purchase other than due to an objection to title which the trustee is unable or unwilling to remove and which the purchaser will not waive. The balance will be payable on closing which should be indicated in the tender but should not be later than March 31, 1972, and tenders will be accepted on the usual and conditional provisions set forth in the standard real estate Agreement of Purchase and Sale, with the Purchaser to be given until closing to investigate the title at his own expense.

To Your Good Health

Genetic Counselling Available

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a man, 23, engaged to be married and need some advice about genetics and mutations.

I was born without my left arm from the elbow. At that time the doctor told my parents that the umbilical cord probably cut the arm off when the fetus was just forming, or that the position in which I lay stopped the growth of the arm.

Now that I am about to marry I am worried about the possibility of having children with the same problem. There are no other cases like mine in my family.

Your answer may change my fiancee's mind about marriage. — F. S.

In the first place, I vigorously doubt both possibilities that you mention. A lot less was known, if years ago, about human development, but people wanted answers anyway, so I dare say the doctor did a little reaching for some answer that would satisfy your parents at the time.

We certainly don't know all the answers today, either, but we know much more than we did. The likelihood is that some maternal factor caused your defect. Your mother may have had some illness early in the pregnancy. She may have used some medication that caused trouble. That's why we preach so incessantly these days that pregnant women should use no medication except on specific instructions from the doctor.

Lack of any similar defect in the family would raise doubts as to whether you would be likely to pass it on to children, but really you'd like something more positive than my guesses.

In the last few years there has been a large increase in the number of genetic counselling services. These are limited to the larger medical centers, since you live in a large city, you won't have to go far to find one. Ask your doctor to refer you to such a place, and get an expert opinion. That should help to satisfy both you and your fiancee.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please discuss the effects of mildew in unventilated or damp places such as basements. Is it harmful to humans? Does it breed diseases? Is the air unhealthy to breathe? — N. B. M.

The air is not unhealthy to breathe, but the molds and fungi, depending on what kind they are, can cause long problems at times. Likewise, some folks can be allergic to them with resultant miseries.

The only wise course is to find some way of providing cross ventilation. A dehumidifier in a basement can be the answer sometimes.

Feed Grain Problem Threatening to Split Farm Federation

EDMONTON (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Agriculture has turned its major thrust to looking at the industry's figures at the international level but as its four-day convention ended a promise to decode problem was unresolved.

Acknowledging that one of the biggest problems is to improve the financial plight of Canada's farmers, the federation said it must consider over-all problems on international basis.

But the CFA is faced with the possibility that its Quebec affiliate, Union Catholique des Cultivateurs, will withdraw the support of its 60,000 members later this year unless the controversial feed grains problem is resolved quickly.

The problem is complex and the federation moved last year to set up a two-man committee to investigate and make recommendations.

It involves the jurisdiction of the Canadian wheat board over feed grain sales and freight assistance paid on feed grains moving from the Prairies to Eastern Canada and British Columbia.

Eastern livestock producers must purchase feed grains through the Canadian wheat board while western livestock producers have access to feed grains outside the board's control at lower prices, a situation which the eastern delegates said is discriminatory.

At the same time, western feed growers maintain that the wheat board has to retain control to provide them with the highest return for their product.

Western livestock growers say the East makes savings because they are closer to markets in areas of concentrated population.

An interim report by the feed grains committee recommending more time for study on a top priority basis was approved by the 109 delegates but it left the Quebec contingent unsupplied.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

Below are six bidding sequences. Where the question mark appears, indicate whether you consider partner's last bid forcing (compelling you absolutely to bid again) or nonforcing (permitting you to pass). If partner's last bid merely urges you to bid again, treat it as non-forcing.

1. North		South
1♠		1♥
2. North		South
1♠		2♦
3. North		South
1♠		1♦
4. North		South
1♠		2♥
5. North		South
1♦		2♥
6. North		South
1♠		2♥

1. Not forcing. North may have a minimum opening bid and South may have a minimum response, and it therefore would not make sense to treat the weak bid as forcing. If North wanted to be certain of another response from South, he would have to bid two spades (a jump shift) over one heart.

2. Forcing. Whenever the responder (an distinguished from the opening bidder) names a new suit, that bid is forcing. Thus South's initial spade response was 100 per cent forcing, and his two diamond bid is equally forcing.

3. Not forcing. A jump raise by responder is forcing, but a jump raise by opener is not forcing. It is true that South will seldom pass in this sequence, but nevertheless he does have that conditional privilege.

4. Not forcing. One heart by South would be forcing and so would two hearts (a slam try) but three hearts is merely a horse of a very different color. It is a preemptive bid, pure and simple, and shows something like seven hearts to the K-Q-J and very little else. North may therefore pass with minimum values.

5. Forcing. North is probing for a game, possibly a slam, and South must bid again.

6. Forcing. Once South bids over three clubs (which is not forcing), his side is committed to a game. South may be simply portraying his diamond length with game or slam in mind, or he may be merely marking time to elicit further information from partner. In any case, North is not permitted to pass. If he did, he would be blowing hot and cold.

Tomorrow: Stop, look and listen.

What The Stars Say

Saturday, February 12

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Go politicking for social goals among people who are able to be helpful. A day of powerful events is promised.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Like as not you have to deal with several different things at once. Avoid the hasty and weak solves most of the problem.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Go-getters are active all around. Find common cause with new agents who arrive and get some chronic hindrance cleared off.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Close relationships thrive with very little attention. Find time for hobbies, sports, pastimes.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Give extra care and thought to your situation. Get busy and tidy up with home and personal accounting connected with it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Ask for co-operation, particularly where the project is for the general surrounding or change of work.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): In quite a busy weekend, the usual chores are short cut or neglected as you scramble to catch up on news, the people you care about and their doings.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A friend makes a sound assertive move. You also have a chance for showing off your accomplishments to powerful people.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be yourself, and as boldly competitive as you can, shunning routine. You have an interested audience. Some bargain may be available fairly late in the day.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Go ahead full steam with anything over projects and equipment you've been able to put together, ready or not, and do your best.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stick to your plans long enough to settle essentials, then join the swing toward fresh social contacts. Find a party or share a good show.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): An early start finds you in company you hadn't expected, doing things a little different from your long-established week-end habits. It can be a great fun

Welfare: Youth Crisis Coming

Report Sounds Alarm

TORONTO (CP)—Officials today studied a massive report on Ontario welfare which sounded a note of alarm in saying that "a seeming generation of youth" is pouring into the labor market at a time when employment is at its lowest ebb.

The report noted that 46 per cent of general assistance recipients are under the age of 25 and that single persons are going on welfare rolls at a higher rate than heads of families.

But there is little evidence of persons being on welfare because the don't want to work, said Isaac Barry Swadron of Toronto, who headed a government-appointed committee which held public hearings in Kitchener, Hamilton, Ottawa, Toronto and Sudbury.

Key points in the 208-page report released Friday:

—A person has no moral right, nor has he a legal right, to support from public funds.

—A single person on welfare should accept any job he can get, even if the job is low paid or he is overeducated for the job.

—An employable person who refuses to accept any reasonable employment should lose welfare rights.

—Every welfare recipient who is able to work should be required to register at a Canada Manpower centre.

—Persons on welfare who volunteer for training programs should receive additional allowances.

—One provincial department should assume over-all responsibility for Ontario's manpower policy.

—The provincial government should bring its subsidized residential programs into line with employment demands.

—Employable persons should be eligible for only an "unemployment allowance" and unemployable persons should receive a "living allowance." Those potentially employable but requiring training would be paid a "development allowance."

—Moving people about Ontario, placing them in jobs where jobs were available, was ruled out. Relocation difficulties would be "exceptional."

However, a recipient who voluntarily travelled outside his municipality should be ineligible for travel costs and continued general help as long as he, a person in need, making reasonable efforts to obtain employment.

Irving Script Hoax Says Life Magazine

NEW YORK (AP) — Life magazine says it has cancelled plans to publish excerpts from a purported autobiography of billionaire Howard Hughes after determining that the manuscript is a hoax perpetrated by Clifford Irving.

The magazine's parent company, Time, Inc., Friday dropped the agreement with McGraw Hill, Inc., to pay $750,000 to publish the excerpts in Life, and said in a statement it had learned "how Irving put together the manuscript and carried out this hoax."

McGraw-Hill announced later it was still reconsidering its contract with Irving to publish the manuscript as a book but had "discovered additional information concerning a possible source of the material."

The information, it said, was provided by James Phelan, a free-lance investigative reporter who collaborated with former Hughes' aide Noah Dietrich on a forthcoming book about the industrialist.

Phelan spent Friday helping both McGraw-Hill and Time piece together details on how the Hughes book was assembled. Time said it would release these details in a cover story in next week's Time magazine.

Neither Irving nor his lawyer could be reached for comment.

Ralph Daigh, executive vice-president of Fawcett Publications, which plans to publish Dietrich's book, Howard, the Amazing Mr. Hughes, said Dietrich had told Irving caught have gotten hold of that manuscript.

The New York Times reported in today's editions that the U.S. justice department had told the federal prosecutor in New York it would approve immunity for Irving's wife and his former researcher, Richard Suskind, if Irving would plead guilty to predetermined charges.

Swiss authorities said they would refuse to drop bank fraud and forgery charges against Irving.

Mrs. Irving, a Swiss citizen, in return for her husband's co-operation in the U.S. investigation.

The Swiss reluctance to grant Mrs. Irving immunity was seen as an obstacle to any deal between Irving and the U.S. justice department.

The Swiss are said to want the return of all the McGraw-Hill money Mrs. Irving deposited in the Zurich bank account. About $175,000 of the $650,000 she withdrew has not been found in Swiss accounts.

Inventor Shows Clean Air Bus

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Industrialist-inventor William Lear introduced his vapor-turbine engine but to the public Friday and said it more than meets the standards the Clean Air Act sets for vehicles to meet by 1975.

The 50-passenger bus moved smoothly, quietly and fume-free down the runway at Stead Airport north of here.

The vapor-turbine engine was installed in a stock model coach, purchased from General Motors for $1.

He said his vapor-turbine engine car will be ready in about 60 days and will be displayed at the International Auto Show in New York in April.

Lear, who developed the Lear Jet, estimated mass production costs for the car engine at about $200, but it would take an estimated $35-million to get it into production.

BELFAST (AP) — Prime Minister Brian Faulkner has appealed to Northern Ireland Protestants to finance a campaign to counter "vicious propaganda being poured out against us" by militant Roman Catholics who want Ulster merged with the Irish Republic. "We must actively publicize our determination to stay British", Faulkner declared Friday night. "It is not enough for the government's voice to be heard . . . it is also vital that the voice of the ordinary people of Ulster comes across loud and clear.

Trade Pact Becomes War Of Attrition

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Only a few months ago, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin was describing Canada-U.S. trade differences as a "balanced package of irritants."

But these irritants appear now to have developed into a war of attrition, possibly made more inflammable by the fact both countries face elections this year. But so far, opposition party criticism has been extremely muted.

Prime Minister Trudeau and Mr. Pepin say that bargaining on an agreed exchange of concessions will start again. But they don't say when and they insist that Canada won't budge an inch from its present position.

The next move is up to the U.S., Mr. Pepin has said.

American demands centred on the 1965 auto production pact, the Canada-U.S. defence sharing agreement and more liberal Canadian allowances for duty-free goods that Canadians can bring back from the U.S.

Those emerged from negotiations launched by President Nixon's economic moves last August to stem the American balance-of-payments drain.

Round one of that phase ended last December when the U.S. agreed to devalue its dollar and ended the surcharge of 10 per cent on imports.

Round two ended this week for the U.S. and its trade talks with Japan and the European Common Market countries. But not for Canada. The U.S. rejected the Canadian package and Treasury Secretary John Connally said the U.S. will seek appropriate means of reducing the imbalances in trade with Canada.

Abrasive Atmosphere Exists

It had been hoped here that the package would be accepted, giving some room then to talk questions raised by the U.S. These included basic changes in the auto agreement over a period of two or more years, trying to meet the U.S. position that full free trade in autos and parts should be the goal.

Now there is only agreement to disagree, and evidence that a much more abrasive atmosphere exists. There is general belief here, for example, that Mr. Connally is the main push behind the U.S. position, perhaps partly from image build-up in early negotiations.

Canada held out against Mr. Connally's insist that the Canadian dollar be repegged at a value higher than the depreciated U.S. dollar. The dollar continues to float.

The situation reinforces the theory that Canada no longer can claim a special position in relation to the U.S. despite its role as main supplier and customer of the U.S. economy.

Much more than the so-called irritant issues really are at stake now, some observers believe. Canada's water and other natural resources are cited.

A source close to the Canada-U.S. negotiations says that under the surface of the trade talks ran a strong wave of American pressure to open up the whole energy field for barter.

So far, Canada has resisted this pressure. It has discussed the subject with the U.S. from time to time but has been extremely wary about being dragged into any energy deal.

Control Policy May Irritate

Some sources here say water also is a major component although it is hard to find any American official who agrees at all with that view.

Canada may throw a new irritant into the fray shortly when it unveils policy on control or otherwise of foreign investment.

The government's Foreign Investment Review Act, which Mr. Trudeau said it would not use any drastic control action, is expected to become screening device may be as far as the government will go, with a rate expected to provinces aren't cut off from development funds.

Another meeting between Mr. Trudeau and President Nixon has not been set things out.

Mr. Nixon is scheduled to come here this spring but possible dates are still noting discussed and nothing has been definitely settled yet.

Some of the U.S. Congressmen will be here next week for meetings with Canadian MPs during the annual meeting of the Canada-U.S. inter-parliamentary group.

Canadian officials now are wondering what the U.S. might do to reduce the trade imbalance. A new surcharge on imports, revision of quotas on Canadian goods?

Canada had a $1.1 billion trade surplus with the U.S. in 1970 and $1.3 billion in 1971.

It is expected to be whopping deficits. And Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. companies pay hundreds of millions of dollars in profits to their parent firms.

Pepin Says Connally Obsessed

In the trade negotiations, Canada and the U.S. apparently had made concessions, though they have not been made public. But Canada did get enough concessions to suit the U.S., or at least Mr. Connally, "and we have been stuck to their guns," Mr. Trudeau said.

Considering the amount of trade the two countries do with each other, those guns are pretty awesome.

Mr. Pepin says Mr. Connally is "obsessed" with the need for an annual trade balance between Canada and the U.S., and not only over-all but in each and every trade field.

Mr. Pepin said Thursday Mr. Connally points to U.S. deficits in certain fields, such as cars and armaments, but ignores U.S. surpluses in others, such as the book and magazine trade.

Cabinet On Hand

Trudeau Delivers Key Speech As Election Fever High

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau gives the keynote speech today to a convention of federal and Ontario Liberals with federal election fever high on the agenda.

Billed as the annual convention of the Ontario Liberal Party, the three-day gathering will hear from 13 federal cabinet ministers, as well as Mr. Trudeau who will speak mostly off the cuff, to the 1,200 delegates at 4:30 p.m. EST.

Caucus presidents of the 88 federal ridings in Ontario met privately Friday night to discuss strategy for the next federal election, expected this spring.

The heavy federal presence at the three-day convention, which ends Sunday, has made the question of Robert Nixon's status as provincial party leader almost a side issue.

Mr. Nixon delivers his annual state-of-the-party message to delegates at noon today. He is expected to devote most of it to the party's loss of seven seats in the Oct. 21 provincial election. Both Mr. Nixon and John Richard of Ottawa, retiring provincial party president do not expect the leadership will be an issue, particularly with a federal election looming.

Mr. Nixon could use the occasion to announce his resignation, although party officials say this is unlikely. The 43-year-old Brantford teacher has been leader through two election defeats, in 1967 and 1971.

No matter what happens at this convention, the decision on a leadership convention rests with the party executive, which under the constitution must call a convention to name a leader within two years of a provincial election.

Mr. Nixon has not said what he will do, only that he will discuss "my own future with the party" in his address.

Mr. Richard described the convention, which began Friday with registration of delegates and routine organizational meetings, as a joint meeting of the federal and Ontario wings of the party.

"But we have to be realistic," he told reporters Friday. "This is an election year, and we in the Ontario party have to be aware of our dual role."

Clem Neiman, a Toronto lawyer who will head the Ontario drive in a federal election campaign, said the emphasis on federal policies at the convention is necessary "because the next election we'll be involved in is federal."

"After this election, we can get back to provincial matters." Mr. Nixon said earlier in an interview the provincial and federal wings of the party do not operate independently of each other.

Provincial Liberals have always supported their federal counterparts at election time, Mr. Nixon said. He plans to campaign actively in the next federal election.

Originally, 18 federal cabinet ministers were to participate in six panel discussions today. But some were unable to attend at the last minute.

Other panels will discuss international affairs, social policy, culture and communications and the individual in society.

. . . In Alberta, A Lone Voice

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — The possibility of a federal general election this year was discounted. Friday by Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey during a tour of southern Alberta.

He told a news conference "a betting man" would take odds on there being "no election this year."

The Liberal government's term expires in 1973.

Party Needs To Be Streamlined: Liberal Report

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario Liberal party needs streamlining and women need more authority, party committees say in reports to be presented today to the annual convention.

The report by a standing committee on organization under chairman Jack Heath said the party is "facing a challenge to its future" which must be met with new or modified techniques.

"Our party badly needs to be streamlined," said the analysis made in the aftermath of the party's defeat in the Oct. 21 provincial election.

"Riding presidents often said that we were over-organized, with too many levels, boards and committees." Flexibility was needed for the future.

The party should commit itself to maximum assistance to ridings and responsibilities must be "clarified as well as supervised."

John Richard of Ottawa, retiring provincial party president, is one of two candidates for the party's eastern Ontario vice-presidency which stretches from Pembroke to Oshawa.

Sandbanks Problem Still Unsolved

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

More tests are needed before an alternative site for commercial sand-removal operations at Prince Edward County's Sandbanks can be confirmed.

The indication follows a Toronto meeting Thursday between provincial government authorities and representatives of Lake Ontario Cement Company — which holds a lease for canal removal from the famed beauty spot, an operation which has created considerable opposition from conservationists.

James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward - Lennox, who attended the meeting with Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier, said yesterday further soil analysis is necessary to determine if a substitute site located in the Picton area has the proper composition to qualify as an alternative supply source for company production.

Meantime, in Belleville, a spokesman for PACE Peoples Against Contaminated Environment — said the group will launch a province-wide campaign to spur government action if a substitute site is not found.

Mr. Taylor said an esker — a post-glacial formation — had been proved in the Picton area by Department of Mines personnel seeking a suitable sand quarry site for the company.

Last week, Mr. Taylor was quoted as saying an alternative site had been located — touching off letters to a Toronto newspaper.

"It was certainly my impression, from the information I had, that there actually was an alternate source," recalled Mr. Taylor yesterday. "Now there is some doubt as to the chemical composition there."

Now, after Thursday's meeting, he said he was not "fully convinced" that the geophysical makeup of the esker at an alternative site.

"It may or may not be. We hope it is," he said.

Both the company and the mines department are working together to determine the esker's geophysical nature.

"I expect they will be doing further testing in order to determine if the Picton site is a sound substitute," he said.

Mr. Taylor, elected for the first time in last October's provincial election, indicated the issue called for a "realistic" approach.

He didn't believe the company would negotiate sale of its leasehold rights without a suitable substitute to quarry at.

"And I think we would have to be careful in taking what they have unless there was some suitable substitute."

The cement company has probably a plant investment of around $50 million in Picton — an operation which generates jobs, and, with exports to the United States, has added economic significance.

The province just couldn't embark on a course of action which would shut down operations.

Both government and the company, are being "objective" in their approach to the problem, he said.

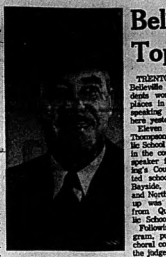
Propane Adds Boom To Wreck

Thirty six train cars were left to burn-out Friday after a CN derailment near Morrisburg which continues this morning to block the two main lines between Toronto and Montreal.

Explosions from four propane gas tankers shook Morrisburg homes, blowing doors open and rocketing one tanker 700 feet into the air. Seven other cars were blown into the bush.

The mishap occurred at 8:15 and CN spokesmen say "the fire remains burning today.

In all, 77 cars were reported to be included in the 2.30 p.m. train travelling between Hamilton and Montreal.



None of the five-man crew were reported injured as a result of the incident.

While CN crews continue to work this morning, clearing the debris from the area and replacing the 1,200 feet of ruined tracks and ties, trains will operate on the adjacent CP line.

A CN spokesman said this morning "the detour means an extra 18 miles of travel."

Trains leave the CN track at Brockville, head north to Smiths Falls and Ottawa, and then south to Dorval (east Montreal) where the train is detoured back over CN line.

This detour continues today.

Belleville Speakers Top Contest List

TRENTON (Staff) — Two Belleville public school students were first and second places in county-wide public speaking competitions held here yesterday.

Eleven - year - old Kerri Thompson of Park Dale Public School was over-all winner in the contest that drew one speaker from each of Hastings County's eight amalgamated school groups (Trenton, Bayside, Belleville, Quinte, North Hastings). Runner-up was Alison Jeffrey, 10, from Queen Elizabeth Public School.

Following the two-hour program, punctuated by a brief choral concert, spokesman for the judges, Intelligencer managing editor Donald Souther declared that Kerri had won in large part because of her responses during question-and-answers session before the judges' board of former teachers, Mrs. Grace Anderson and Mrs. Doug Burr and Alderman Souther.

Choosing rock publishing as her topic, Kerri told Mrs. Burr that finishing semi-precious stones had become a year-round hobby for her father.

"Is it costly?" the judge enquired.

"It is more like we are in business," replied Kerri, who explained the family had graduated to progressively more sophisticated polishing equipment.

Peter Alison Jeffrey, youngest of the speakers facing the student audience in the College St. Public School Theatre, the topic was also personal — an account of a visit to a Madrid bullfight.

Her conclusion? "It was a horror in the afternoon," she said at the end of her reminiscences.

Other contestants were Lana Donaldson, 11, of D. R. Lane School in Shirley Twp.; Debbie Sloe, 12, of Stirling Public School; Karen Hagen, 11, of Broadner Public School, Trenton; Ken Lawson, 11, of Consecon Public School; Derrick Grose, 13, of Trenton Public School; and Debra Wiggins, 13, of Madoc Public School.

Public Shares Blame for Hospital Abuse

By ALLAN DICKIE

TORONTO (CP) — It's been more than 20 years since a young Belleville doctor who had just become a freshman alderman criticized his city administration.

In fact, he was so outspoken that the incumbent mayor challenged him to "run for mayor if you don't like it."

Naturally, Dr. Richard Potter took up the challenge. He won.

And now, as Ontario's new health minister, he says he probably won't change much.

"I've been a bit of a controversial figure at times," Dr. Potter, 57 said with a grin as he sat in his new office on the 18th floor of the Hepburn Building at Queen's Park this week.

He says his career in politics has been aimed at improving Ontario's health services and "I'm thrilled to be given this opportunity."

Dr. Potter took a 12-year hiatus from active politics after serving his year as mayor of Belleville in 1951. He says he quit after getting what he wanted — a health unit for the city and an improved garbage disposal program.

He first ran provincially in 1967 and at one point headed the legislature's health committee, where, it is said, he ran afoul of then - premier John Robarts for his blog on running things his own way.

Dr. Potter, who served six years as a medic in the Canadian Army during the Second World War, had to wait until William Davis was elected premier to get the post he coveted. He got it last week when Mr. Davis announced his new cabinet.

"We have to find more efficient and economical ways of caring for hospital patients," Dr. Potter said, emphasizing that one method might be to centralize hospitals so they don't continue to duplicate services.

"If we're going to develop hospital services to meet the needs of the public, hospital boards are going to have to stop vying with each other."

He said more than one hospital in Toronto performs heart transplants with a duplication of tremendously expensive medical teams and equipment, when one Toronto heart transplant setup might suffice.

He also mentioned two hospitals in Sault Ste. Marie 10 yards apart and which for the most part provide duplicate services.

The hospitals could well complement each other with different specialties rather than duplicating services, he said.

Dr. Potter said doctors were the "scapegoats" for rising medical costs when patients also had to bear some of the responsibility.

"When I quit practicing two years ago, 50 per cent of the patients I saw didn't really need a doctor and I'm sure its the same today.

"And far too many hospital patients don't need to be there. If the people were paying for services themselves they wouldn't be going to doctors so much.

"One of the things we as a government have got to do is to educate the public in just how they should use these health services," Dr. Potter said.

"The more a service is abused the more it costs and the only way to meet rising costs is to increase premiums or increase taxes."

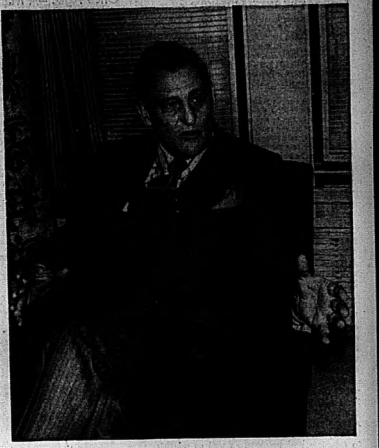
Dr. Potter, father of four who likes to relax by building furniture and restoring old his Belleville home, said he wants to see the private sector play an important part in hospital services.

"I don't want to see the government taking over nursing homes, for instance, and so I don't think that's going to happen."

He noted that "the government will not allow a gun to be held to the head" by the private sectors in asking for costs. "But let's keep the private sector in there as long as we can," he said.

He said he was delighted so far with the success of an experiment in Belleville where ambulatory hospital patients were transferred to a motel and treated by hospital staff in civilian clothes.

He sees it as a cheaper method of treating patients during the final stages of their recovery periods while at the same time providing more hospital beds for patients who really need them.



"We've had a lot of requests for information on the experiment from other areas of the province and from other provinces," Dr. Potter said.

With typical bluntness, Dr. Potter said he "now wants to convince my confreres" in the legislature to make public health a priority item since other areas such as highways and regional government have already been at the top of the list.

"Health problems are equally important and my job is to develop a health program," Dr. Potter said.

And when he's finally finished with politics he said he'd like to feel "that I played a part in developing the most complete health program possible."

Busy Bee Kept School Humming

Youngsters at Belleville-District Christian School have finished a project that kept things humming for weeks — a quilting bee. The finished product, for donation to the Red Cross, was given final inspection yesterday by teacher Mrs. Jane Vander Wilp and students (from left) George Westerhof, 9, Edna Jongenotter, 9, Carol Bytsma, 11, Billy DeSnoo, 8, and Gerard Klompmaker, 8.

When Squares Get Together--

What happens to 450 squares in a situation manned by live-by, imaginative youngsters? a

Naturally, they're drawn together.

That's what happened at the Belleville District Christian School on Highway 14, just north of Belleville, recently.

Only the squares were created by the students themselves — individual pieces of multi-hued cloth, designed for incorporation into a quilt for some worthy cause.

About a dozen youngsters in the school's lower grades toiled intermittently on the squares as a class project, starting 20 October.

There was only one problem. Transforming them into a quilt called for some heavy sewing. So, the youngsters called for help — and some mothers volunteered, machine sewing the patchwork pattern laid down by the young students.

The bright-colored quilt was finally finished just after Christmas.

The next thing: How to put the project to practical use?

"They wanted to give it to someone in need," said principal Jim Wilms. "We looked at several possibilities — and we decided to give it to the local Red Cross."

CF-5s On Way to Venezuela

TRENTON (Staff) — Four of the 20 CF-5s recently sold to Venezuela by the Canadian government left CFB Trenton Friday for a three-hop flight to the South American nation.

Canadian pilots from the Aeronautical Engineering Test Establishment, Ottawa have been putting the planes through their paces in the skies of southern Ontario in recent weeks and will be responsible for flying all the planes to Venezuela. Two of the pilots leaving this morning will stay in South America for several months to assist the planes' new owners with training programs.

A plankload of technicians and support personnel is also on its way to Venezuela.

Trenton's Aircraft Maintenance and Development Unit is operating a paint shop in which Canadian markings are being removed and those of Venezuela applied to the planes. AMDU officials say this program will continue until April, when the last of the 20 aircraft will depart.

Trenton Posties Honored

TRENTON (Staff) — Area postmaster Roy Wainwright of Belleville, visited the federal building here Thursday on a special occasion, to present long-service awards to members of the staff of the Trenton Post Office.

The 16 local postal employees receiving lapel pins for a quarter of a century of public service were: Gordon Hamm, Donald Dobson, George Brillinger, Edward Hunt, G. C. Reid, Clifford Gasen, George Greer, Kenneth Craddock, Walter Douch and George Briggs. Mr. Dishart also received recognition for his quarter of a century of service as a postal worker.

Experts Taking Over Garbage Disposal Chore

Many of the rural municipalities in the Quinte district are taking steps to establish their own sanitary land fill garbage sites but there is a growing tendency to leave the garbage disposal business up to the experts.

New air management regulations now rule out the burning of garbage and municipalities, both urban and rural, are being forced into burial of refuse.

For years, Belleville operated its own sanitary land fill garbage disposal area in the Zwick's island area, but as available sites became filled, the city was forced to look further afield.

So about a year ago the city entered into an agreement with a private firm for disposal of its garbage at a Sidney township site on Alkenside road, north of Highway 2, between Belleville and Trenton.

The city's garbage collector, Quinte Sanitation Services, transports the garbage to the site for disposal.

Base cost of garbage collection to the city is $140,000 annually with the actual figure tied to population with another $25,000 being paid for disposal at the Sidney site — this is also based on population.

Collection of commercial refuse in the city is arranged by individual businesses with a private contractor.

But, as an indication of how garbage collection is being left to the professionals, Quinte Sanitation also does garbage pickups in Trenton, at the Canadian Armed Forces Base at Trenton and in Sidney and Huntington townships.

Garbage from all four municipalities as well as the Trenton air base is disposed of at the Sidney township site.

Fund Is Started For Fire Victims

CONSECON (Staff) — The collection for the Robert Mills family, left homeless in a fire here Wednesday night, is being supported by Trenton Branch 110 of the Royal Canadian Legion and the Salvation Army at Trenton.

This is the second time fire has struck the World War II veteran and his family. They lost all their possessions in a house fire on Quinte Street, Trenton, 20 years ago.

On Wednesday night, the family of six managed to escape the flames with only the clothes they were wearing. Mr. Mills, an electrician, lost $4,000 worth of tools, plus the station wagon he uses for his work.

None of their property was insured.

Those interested in donating clothing, furniture, and funds have been asked to contact either the Legion Branch or the Salvation Army headquarters at Trenton.

New Store Rises in Trenton

Steel girders now indicate the giant scale of Trenton's new Woolco department store being built on block-deep site from Dundas West through to Quinte Street. Contractors have set a mid-summer target date for completion of the largely two-storey retail outlet that will be integrated with the town's long-standing Woolworth's store. Concurrent with this expansion, the old post office (right) is being demolished to make way for a new town hall and parking garage complex. The landmark clocktower will be retained.

Market Needs

Canada and the United States remain locked in some thorny arguments over trade discrepancies, such as the auto pact which favors Canada and which the United States sees as a further threat to its already difficult balance of payments situation.

Now, as if to counter the prospect of lean times in trade with the United States, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin is setting up a series of consultations with Canada's trade representatives throughout the United States and centatives throughout the United States and overseas. This is a good move, but it is one which might profitably have been taken long ago by the present government as a means of boosting trade. In fact such a step has been urged by Prime Edward-Hastings MP George Hees who pioneered it long ago when he was trade minister in the Diefenbaker government. A complete review of Canada's trading patterns is in order, and the next step should be plans to establish new markets, as well as nourish those that already exist.

The Bank of Montreal, in conjunction with the Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce, puts out a brochure listing Canada's export markets "in brief." This could explain who some countries are not listed, Cuba for one. Fifty-one countries, from Australia to Yugoslavia, are listed in the 1970 edition in our possession.

We notice that Argentina, Colombia and Chile are listed, as well as Brazil, but not Bolivia or Paraguay. Does this mean we have no trade with these countries? The brochure notes the contents concern our "principal trading partners," so this may be why some are left out; we think it would be in the public interest though to let all our trade contacts, while sparing no-effort to expand trade with them and open new markets.

Trade Anomalies

Since British goods are being given the bird (as they would say over there) in the Irish republic, it follows of course that Irish products may suffer from retaliatory moves. The Irish have imported the same canned goods, biscuits and chocolates that are to be found in the supermarkets in Canada, not to mention Irish woollens. Irish linens, incidentally, come largely from Northern Ireland where the industry in concentrated.

There is another ironic sidelight to all this: here in Belleville one can buy glossy postcards of Upper Canada Village and the Old Fort Henry Guard with Union Jack held high, and printed and published by a firm near Dublin, yes in the republic where only recently the burning of a Union Jack precipitated the fire-bombing of the British embassy.

This firm turns out high-quality calendars and postcards in Ireland but also has a wealthier eye for business abroad. The Canadian cards, incidentally, are distributed by a Peterborough firm. It all goes to show that economics usually triumph over partisan politics.

Once Again—A Matter of Dollars

Defence Could Be Another Hot Seat for Edgar Benson

By FARMER TISSINGTON

OTTAWA — Former finance minister Edgar Benson may be in the process of making that well-known leap from the frying pan into the fire as he switches from handling the country's dollars to dealing with the people's protection as our new minister of national defence.

Benson's latest controversial tax reform legislation put through, the story is that he quiet pipe smoker from Kingston, Ont., wanted to get off the hot seat of balancing budgets and books and opted for defence on the theory that this would be a much quieter backwater.

But there is growing evidence that defence matters are likely to heat up again. The last big controversy was, of course, the multi-billion dollar maneuvers introduced by former minister Paul Hellyer. Since then we have had some comparatively minor, though costly flare-ups concerning the Bonaventure, the CF-5 aircraft, the Bras d'Or mothballing and now the belowpar destroyers.

Just to keep the pot simmering, Conservative critic Robert Stanfield has suggested that if his party is elected he will favor retaining many of the changes brought about under Mr. Hellyer, but also a greater degree of identification - separation among the three armed services.

But Mr. Benson's biggest task will probably be in an area which is now familiar to him—money—for the defence department is caught in a bind which is becoming tighter by the year. More and more of the available defence dollars are going toward what the brass hats call new fighting equipment. PO and M stands for personnel, operation and maintenance costs.

Former defence minister Donald Macdonald has hoped to keep the total defence budget stable and to allocate about 25 per cent of it to new weapons and equipment. But as PO and M costs rise each year, that leaves fewer bucks to produce the bangs, and the military mind is understandably concerned about the volume and frequency of the bangs the armed services can produce on demand.

The department is currently up to its gunwales in its helicopter-destroyer program and the poor face the necessity of replacing its Argus anti-submarine fleet and, at the same time, will have to replace many of its outdated guns, tanks and trucks by discarding the tendency for the upper echelons to proliferate the costs of operation and maintenance on a steady climb, it will be difficult to properly equip our new defence forces and our servicemen on overseas commitments. And the dwindling dollars left for new and modern fighting machinery.

Mr. Benson has not yet made clear his own views on these and other defence matters, but it seems very likely that his general targets will be not unlike those of Mr. Macdonald. These are to maintain the strength of the armed forces at about the current levels and to keep them reasonably well equipped.

He may be able to effect some switching about and make the services more flexible, even

U. S. Questions Activist Role

Quiet Battle of Nerves Waged Between Churches and Taxman

NEW YORK (AP) — A quiet battle of nerves is going on between the United States government and American churches over their freedom to take positions on political and social issues.

In one case, the conflict already is in the courts.

It also was pointed up in a study by a group of Episcopal (Anglican) attorneys, saying the Internal Revenue Service seems to be taking a tougher approach in churches' in an attempt to curb their activities on political-social matters.

"Although governmental surveillance and control of church activities is commonplace in some countries, it is virtually unprecedented in the United States," the study notes.

However, it says that in some recent instances, threats by government agents of a loss of tax exemption have frightened churches into dropping plans for certain programs.

"It can have a chilling effect on certain of these actions," said John M. Evans a Manhattan lawyer and member of the Guild of St. Ives, an organization mainly of lawyers that made the study.

In at least one instance, it was learned, a Massachusetts church defied warnings of a possible loss of exemption and the revenue service is reported to have backed down.

But generally, the "churches are running scared," says Canon Walter D. Dennis, secretary of the guild. They're aware of the heavy cost of losing exemptions, and are thus hesitant to criticize IRS activity, lest it happen.

In one case, a U.S. district court in Oklahoma recently struck down an IRS action against an organization of conservative Evangelist Billy James Hargis, ruling that its activity is in harmony with its faith and ordering a tax refund.

The case is headed for the U.S. Supreme Court through a government appeal, and other church groups, some of which differ with aspects of Hargis' ministry, are considering joining in the case on his side.

The study notes that most major American churches maintain that participation in social-political affairs with moral implications is a religious responsibility, and they've done so extensively, previously without government interference.

They've dealt outspokenly with such issues as the Vietnam war, racism, poverty, housing, welfare systems, medical care, economic maldistribution.

Several specific cases are cited in the study, without naming them, but it was learned that some of those referred to include:

—A decision by the Episcopal Church to cancel a special action." This, it was learned, is the National Council of Churches, made up of 33 Protestant and Orthodox denominations.

1970 offering planned to aid student political activity, after the IRS warned that the program would "jeopardize" denominational tax exemption.

—A continuing examination of records of a "major" national association of churches with respect to its involvement in 'political' and 'social'

Under the IRS code, tax-exempt organizations are restricted to those that devote "no substantial part" of their activities to propaganda, attempts to influence legislation, or taking sides in political campaigns for election.

The guild study notes that regulations do not absolutely prohibit involvement in political issues, and some church studies have 'indicates' only one per cent of itself go to such purpose."

Bomb Damage Repaired

Consumer Aid

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec consumers' workshop cochided shoppers would be better served if guarantees on appliances were written in plain language, if service costs were proportionate to the cost of the appliance, and if advertising was more technically-oriented rather than filled with superficial details about color and trim.

Loud Music Source of Irritation

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am having trouble every time two teenagers bringing their friends home, and playing the record player at least at full blast. This annoys Father almost to the point of distraction. — Boiler Factory.

Dear Boiler: Can't say I blame you. Noise like that can be devastating to any nerves.

Recent findings rock music would suggest that loudness is the important thing — not any effect of musical harmonies. Yet we have definite evidence that this type of deafening sound is just that — deafening. The hearing of some of our young people has already been permanently affected.

Decided to pay for providing the kind of open house which means your kids bring their friends home; and you don't want any of them to feel unwelcome. But this is your house, too.

Could you make a bargain with them: allow the first half-hour at top volume, then reduce the decibels of sound to the point where you can hear yourself think?

Dear Doris: Are mature births, with life on this earth only a short period of time, unwanted, listed in the family tree?

Do second marriages get listed? Are adopted children listed? — Family Tree.

Dear Family Tree: Even the tiny souls who have seen the light of day but briefly, second marriages whether through widowhood or divorce action, adopted children (who should be listed as such) — they all go in.

It is not-costly to have the help of a professional organization in tracing ancestors. In Ontario it is the Ontario Genealogists Society, Box 66, Station Q, Toronto 7, Ontario. Overseas there is the Society of Genealogists, 37 Harrington Gardens, London, S.W. 7, England, or the Scots Ancestry Research Society, 29 York Place, Edinburgh, Scotland.

It's a great pastime — and sometimes the skeletons you dig up make exciting reading. Of course, if one of them chances to be of the horse-thief variety you are likely to quietly bury him again.

Dear Doris: Mother is a fairly healthy lady for her 76 years, except for her eyes. She has an aging condition which unfortunately the eye specialist can do nothing for. He told her she would never be completely blind but she cannot now see to read, crochet, knit etc.

This is a terrible let-down for her, as her hands were never idle. I felt so sorry for her yesterday when I visited her as she seemed to be losing interest.

Now I would like to know what kind of help and where I can get it for her. A gentleman with somewhat the same condition told her he received special books free from Insitute for Blind. — Eye Failure.

Dear Eye Failure: Braille is of the most distressing of handicaps — theoretically. I think, for folk like your mother who so much enjoyed their fine hand arts. Yet it is really wonderful to have assurance that she will not go completely blind.

The chief resources for her are: (1) The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, which will inform you about "talking books" and other materials she can see and work with. May even encourage her to learn Braille.

(2) The Canadian Council of the Blind, a club for near-blind and blind; but with a large membership of school people as well, across Canada.

A trained counsellor at CNIB can tell you about things your mother can do with her hands, failing eyesight and so about summer camps, special appliances.

(Your own dilemma may not be as hopeless as this looks. Write to Doris for help.)

Ann Landers

Thinks Mom Unfaithful; Should She Tell?

Dear Ann Landers: I can't give you much information because I don't want anyone to guess who wrote this letter.

My father is a trucker. He's away sometimes as long as five nights in a row. My mother is seeing another man. I am sure. He comes through the back door and has a key. Mom's bedroom is in the back of the house and this man goes right in and leaves the same way—sometimes at dawn.

I have seen him a few times but he doesn't know it. I've also heard his voice and it sounds familiar, like a friend of my father's. I think this is pretty raunchy but I don't know if I should say anything to my dad. He has a hot temper and he just might kill somebody. I need some advice.—Knee Too Much.

Dear K.T.M.: If you are absolutely certain and not guessing or imagining things, I suggest that you say something to your mother. But do not say anything to your father. A child should not inform on either parent. The feeling of guilt for whatever happens afterwards could be too much of a burden for young shoulders to carry.

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column about a son who bought his parents' cast-offs (second-hand car, broken appliances, etc.), he said that after 25 years he wasn't going to change, that he was emotionally immature and still needed parental approval to feel like a good boy. Your advice was: "Let him continue to do it. He needs it for emotional security."

I am considering marriage to a 44-year-old bachelor who is still tied to his older sister's apron strings. If I try to cut him loose will I be branding his emotional security?

When my opinion differs with his sister's he becomes withdrawn and he invariably ends up siding with her. Even though his sister is married and has a family of her own he seems to lean on her as if she were his mother.

I am a widow and would be considered by his community if I married him. What do you think?—Should Be Free.

Dear Neb.: I think his sister is a mother-substitute and will remain, the dominant woman in his life as long as she lives. You will never change the pecking order, dear, so the questions you must answer are these: Can you live with it? Do the advantages outweigh the disadvantages? Only you can provide the answers.

Dear Ann Landers: Hooray for the advice you gave the daughter who screamed at her mother! (Her mother also screamed at her.) I hope she reads it.

My mother and I were both screamers and it was a terrible habit. Finally got to the point where we couldn't carry on a civilized conversation. Every discussion ended in a shrieking match. Over my husband's objections I decided to get counseling. The results were spectacular. Mom and I still never be bosom buddies but we can at least conduct ourselves like adults. I actually enjoy being in her company for the first time in my life.

It's impossible to feel like a good person when you think your own mother dislikes you. And it's worse when you think it's all your fault. I learned a great deal about myself, and about her, too, from verbalizing the things that were bothering me. I'm glad I followed your advice to "get counseling" was a copout. Now I know better.—Happy At Last.

Dear Happy: Thanks for letting me know you are happy at last and that counseling did it. Are you listening, students?

Second Glance

A ROSE IS A ROSE - - -

"I always love to call my lady Rose, for in her cheeks roses do sweetly grow." — Henry Lichfild.

"I am a rose.

"Since the rose is the love flower of St. Valentine's Day being celebrated this month of February, you may find the story of my family of interest.

"Strange as it may seem, though English speaking people like to think of me as their own, I am in truth an exotic belonging to Asia and the Middle East.

"I am quite of all my so-called grace and elegance, I am, genetically speaking, of humble origin; a glorified bramble. A distant relative of the blackberry's white flower.

"My primitive forebearers in northern Persia, mountains and southern China shoreshow travelled westward via the Balkans into Europe and eastward by way of the Himalayas into India, America. And I find it fascinating that we colonized the temperated and subtropical zones of the northern hemisphere long before men were civilized.

"As a point of interest, fossils in the Miocene m of the Rose, which is a part of L'Hay-les-Roses rose garden just outside of Paris, France, show two roses are still growing in gardens today, namely; the god rose, and wild shrub rose. From China, they were growing a million and a half years ago in places as far apart as modern Europe and Colorado.

"It is thought the first rose growers were the Persians, known today as the Iranians. They made the rose the emblem of love, for their goddesses. Later rose appeared in the Madonna's garlands.

"Who made it possible for me to grow in gardens? None other than the Crusaders (who also brought with them the rose songs and stories of Islamic and Persian poetry) which would later become part of all Europe's literary language. Even a new world thinking, where by all the relationships in the world are as relationships" between the parts of the rose, symbiotic perfect harmony, was founded by Ramon Lull, a Majorcan.

"While Chinese ancestors of nearly all the popular garden roses had reached Europe in the 18th century, such as the Tea Rose (roses from China are really more elegant and aristocratic than the flatfaced, countrified ones from the Middle East), yet the history of modern rose begins with a woman.

"She was Napoleon's Empress Josephine, who in 1800 had her gardeners collect specimens of every known rose in existence and 250 distinct varieties were assembled after a world-wide search. In 1817 the public was invited to the first modern rose show.

"The show proved a challenge for the recent discovery of the art of controlling hybridation, resulted in a rose explosion, you might say. Twenty years later, 1400 varieties of roses were on sale in England. Every since, there are between 300 and 400 new rose varieties on the market annually.

"However it is said, that 'in no country of the world does the rose grow in such perfection as in Persia.'

"I am proud of my family. I am proud to be a rose."

WI Topic at Study Guild

Members of the Women's Study Guild along with a number of friends Tuesday enjoyed a talk and the showing of slides by Miss Hazel Thompson, guest speaker at a recent meeting held at the home of Mrs. George Mayhew.

Miss Thompson introduced her topic by recounting the story of Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless and her many accomplishments in the field of home economics and related activities, child of which was the formation of the Women's Institute in the Hamilton area. This month of February sees the WI celebrating its 75th anniversary. The various facets of the program and work of the WI were presented.

The speaker proceeded to explain how the various branches had formed all across Canada, culminating in the Federal WI being formed in Winnipeg in 1919. From Canada the idea spread in many countries throughout the world, and finally the ACWW was formed in Sweden. Permanent head offices are located in England. There were 1,200 delegates from 34 countries who attended the meeting in Norway.

Showing slides of the conference site and opening ceremonies Miss Thompson spoke of the persons who organized and presided over the various sessions of the conference. Pictures of representatives in their natives costumes from many countries of the world were most colorful, and the interesting capsule accounts of their addresses to the assembly showed not only the chief difficulties of the country women, but also the accomplishments and endeavors towards improving their lot.

In conclusion Mrs. Thompson showed slides of the country and people of Norway and Oslo, of the entertainment and hospitality provided for the delegates by the Norwegians.

Miss Thompson, a former teacher in Belleville was introduced by Mrs. J. W. Sherry and thanked by Miss Olive Elson who presented her with a small gift which could be used in her second career as a travel hostess.

Mrs. K. A. Orr gave the devotional period basing her talk on recipe for the new year. The hostesses served lunch.

CHRISTIAN UNITY SERVICE

FRANKFORD — An hour of christian unity was held in St. Francis of Assisi Church, Frankford, Tuesday evening with all blue churches of the area participating.

Father McGarvey opened the service and was assisted by Rev. James Dunlop of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle, Mr. A. Sharpe of Trinity Anglican Church and Father Dunphy of Bateva.

The music was provided by the Young People of St. Francis of Assisi Church.

The collection taken was donated to Telecare.

The homily was delivered by Rev. Charles Staples of Trinity Anglican Church.

A social hour was enjoyed by everyone, following the service, in the parish hall where women of all the churches served lunch.

The Young People of Shilo ring provided musical selections again for the group.

ST. ANDREW'S WMS

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society took the form of a Valentine party.

The church hall was nicely decorated for this special occasion. A warm welcome was extended by the president Mrs. W. M. Clendenning, to local and out-of-town guests as well as the members of the group. The convener Mrs. R. Kingston conducted the program which consisted of a duet by Mrs. I. Bolton and Mrs. W. Hastie; also a solo by Mrs. I. Bolton. Readings were given by Mrs. R. Kingston and Mrs. G. E. Miller.

The mission study on Africa was introduced by Mrs. F. Sheffield. On display were artifacts and a map from which the region of the area to be studied was pointed out.

Devotions were conducted by Mrs. J. Craig and Mrs. V. Weir, which consisted of scripture reading, African prayer and African folk songs. The tea tables with red and white cloths centred with a floral Valentine motif created a festive atmosphere. During the lunch hour a happy time of fellowship was enjoyed by guests and members.

A short business period followed. The president gave a resume of the annual Presbyterial meeting which was held in Kingston: reminded the group of the World's Day of Prayer, March 3, at 2 p.m. in Victoria Ave. Baptist Church and the Toronto-Kingston Synodical annual meeting April 18-20 in St. Andrew's Church, Lindsay. It was with deep regret that members learned of the sudden passing of Mrs. Glen Thompson of Shorthills, who was a past president of Council.

The president closed the meeting.

'Do-it-Yourself' Program Is Enjoyed

A most successful "Do-It-Yourself" program was enjoyed by members of Christ Church ACW on Tuesday afternoon at their regular meeting. Highlighting the numbers presented were two vocal selections by Mrs. R. B. deB. Wright, accompanied by Rev. John Utley.

Others contributing to the impromptu program were Mmes. James Wright, Jean Elborn, A. Kempster, C. Bolton, J. Hickey, L. Pitt, D. Stewart, J. H. Bone, L. Adams, E. Wason and L. Beeby. A variey of serious and silly various readings, poems and jokes kept the large group in a happy mood.

It was discovered that Women's Lib was not a new thing after all and that reference to this may be found in the Bible in the Book of Numbers.

The business portion of the meeting was in charge of president Mrs. R. H. Golding who opened the proceedings with prayer and a hearty welcome to members, old and new and to several visitors.

Reporting on the Charity Bazaar, recently held at Quinte Mall, Mrs. Beeby said that there had been a fine response from parishioners and members and that it had been a great success, both financially and in good fellowship.

Mrs. Vesterfelt reported that the weekly euchre parties are proceeding well with good attendance. The president gave a short report on the annual vestry meeting of Christ Church held recently.

The ACW will cater to a wedding reception on March 25, and volunteers are needed to help with this event.

Coming events include the communion service on Ash Wednesday, Feb. 16 at 10.15 a.m. a luncheon for the clergy of the district who will be broadcasting, presided over by Roy Bonisteel of the CBC.

Members were asked to volunteer to assist with staffing the coffee shop at Hastings Manor every third Saturday. Those interested should call Mrs. A. Dougard, 962-6523.

A short discussion about the annual Blossom Tea was held, and members were asked to submit any suggestions to improve regular meetings. The March meeting will be a dessert luncheon for members and their friends with cards following.

A reminder that the World Day of Prayer for Women would be held this year at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Friday, March 3 at two p.m. was given; also that the evening group, ACW would be holding a rummage sale on Feb. 19.

Mr. Utley closed the meeting with benediction and all present took part in the Greeting of Peace, after which tea was served by Mrs. W. Ashon and Mrs. Fred Lester.

Horticultural Society Holds Card Party

TWEED — At the euchre party held Monday in the Hungerford Township Hall in the village of Tweed, there were 14 tables in play.

The event was sponsored by the Tweed Horticultural Society and the conveners were Mrs. Oakley Trudeau and Mrs. Roy Parks.

The winners of the prizes were: Mrs. Jane Hughes, Greg Swan, Mrs. Kilborn Lutz, Mrs. Thomas Lynn and the door prize was won by Peter Courneyea.

A tasty lunch of do-nuts and coffee was served at the conclusion of the games.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Does a 'real man' wipe the dishes?

YES, and a genuine "he-man" of a husband will also do anything else that he can to help his wife run the household. He simply doesn't give it a second thought when he sees something that has to be done; he goes right ahead and does it. The husband who wouldn't dare lift a hand to help his wife, however, may have some deep-seated hang-up as a result. Such fellows may be afraid to do anything that would seem "unmanly."

Is a child's need for love overrated?

ONLY if parents think a child could survive without food, drink, clothing and shelter. "Love gives your child a base for all his future development," says Dr. David Goodman in "A Parents' Guide to the Emotional Needs of Children" (Hawthorn). "The well-loved child is easy to handle, responsive to suggestion, quick to grow." From then on, it is a joy for the parents and child to live a meaningful life together as a family.

Are retirees glad to quit dull jobs?

NO, even though many a worker looks forward to when he can retire from a job that seemed to be more of a drag every day. Pretty soon, though, no matter how much he complained, the retired employee will miss not going to work. For one thing, he will miss the co-workers he complained to and who complained with him. For another, he will even miss the routine and sense of orderliness he derived from that dull, unchallenging job itself.

Poor Image for Little Girls

NEW YORK (AP) — Five little girls need liberation from 21 bullying boys, says a group of women from Suffolk County, Long Island.

The girls represent the vowels of the alphabet. The boys are the consonants. And all 26 are caricatured in a program called Alpha One used in schools throughout the U.S. to teach first graders their ABCs.

To the Suffolk women, the program is blatantly sexist, because the girl—vowels are shown as weak, weeping creatures who must ask the chauvinist consonants for protection and support.

"It represents a very poor image for little girls," said Mrs. Lois Rodriguez, a kindergarten teacher—she does not use the program—and a spokeswoman for Suffolk Women's Liberation.

The multimedia package, including books, filmstrips and posters, gives each letter a sex and a personality.

Many Cards Sent Despite High Tax

LONDON (CP) — More Valentines than ever before will be slipped into Britain's mailboxes for this leap-year Valentine's Day, despite a continuing tough sales tax on greeting cards which doesn't help the cost of loving.

Jim Scott, president of an association embracing 31 firms of card and calendar manufacturers, says sales this year will probably reach 22 million—a large proportion of them still the traditional hearts-and-flowers type, though the biggest demand now comes from the younger end of the market for humorous, boldly-designed cards.

One representative message this year, set in view of the present real-estate boom here, goes as follows: "I know your love is not for sale, but could I interest you in a long-term lease arrangement?"

Card manufacturers are still squealing about the swinging sales tax—originally 25 per cent—slapped on their products on the Labor government in 1966. It now has been cut to 45 per cent, but greeting cards still rank as luxury goods along with furs, perfume and jewelry, although Scott maintains "we are in the communications business."

The sales tax was the worst blow to the greeting card industry since Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook as wartime supply minister banned them shortly before Christmas, 1941. The outcry from manufacturers was so great that the ban was revoked two months later on the grounds that greeting cards were essential to the war effort.

In spite of the industry's current complaints, card sales generally are booming and are likely to exceed 200 million (225 million), representing nearly 20 billion assorted cards and calendars.

Valentines of one sort or another have a far longer history than any other cards. Among the earliest recorded in Britain, and still preserved in the British Museum, was one sent to his wife by a French nobleman captured at the battle of Agincourt and imprisoned in the Tower of London in 1415.

Henry VIII—he of the six wives—was, appropriately enough, the man who instituted the Feb. 14 holiday by royal charter in 1537.

St. Valentine himself is thought to have been a Christian martyr executed for his faith Feb. 14 in the year 270. One story is that he restored the sight of his jailer's blind daughter and on the night before his execution wrote her a farewell note signing it: From your Valentine.

But the modern exhibition of Feb. 14 with rituals of love probably originates in the Roman Lupercalia, a fertility festival held in mid-February.

Toronto Sex Shop A Sellout

By DENNIS BELL

TORONTO (CP) — Hot Item at Lovecraft Ltd., Toronto the Good's first European-style sex shop: Toronto City Old Paint-by-Numbers Kit, a bargain at $7.95 that comes with brushes, numerallized orgy scene on canvas and plenty of flesh-colored paint.

It's just like a regular paint-by-numbers kit of Roy Rogers' palomino Trigger, or a pirate ship, except that all the people in it are naked, most of the action is below the waist and about 30 per cent of the numbers on the canvas refer to Color No. 6—pinky-orange flesh.

"The kit is one of the very few gag items we stock, but we do sell a fair number of them," says Mary Sutherland, 36, who opened the sex shop in the Yorkville boutique district in Toronto in early January.

Incongruously, Mrs. Sutherland is a slim, serious-minded mother of three children happily married for 18 years. A former philosophy student interested in education, she is convinced that Lovecraft "is filling a very definite need in the community."

Is Toronto the Good becoming Toronto the Bad? "No, I would say that the community is becoming more mature and changing its definition of sexuality."

You bet. That would explain to some extent why in 1971 the Torontonians a day-have been thundering through Lovecraft in an unprecedented orgy of sexual consumerism that has left Mrs. Sutherland astounded, exhausted and shellshocked by the stampede of sexuality.

"It's like Grand Central Station here," she sighs. "And on Saturdays the customers line up down the steps and out onto the sidewalks waiting to get in to see what we're selling."

By the time Lovecraft was 10 days old, the pavement of a city with a formidable reputation for its bluenosed approach to sex had packed the shelves clean. Many products lines had been sold out completely and by the middle of January a casual browser could hear the steps and counting off the back wall of the store.

Just what's for sale in Lovecraft? Most of the products—with the exception of the paint-by-numbers kit and the Strip Tic-Tac-Toe game—are designed to deal with specific sexual problems or purposes. Where's there an astounding array of male contraceptives, all sizes, shapes and types. There are erotic posters, a smattering of erotic books and magazines, a few examples of pregnancy testing kits and a number of transistorized gadgets that do not lend themselves easily to practical, polite description.

What's a nice mother of three children doing in the sex shop business?

"Well, I was in Europe last spring looking at teaching aids for emotionally disturbed children" — Mrs. Sutherland explained from behind a desk cluttered with empty contraceptive cartons, French vibrators and a half-eaten chicken.

Everywhere she went she kept noticing sex shops. Then the idea came to her—Toronto is ready for one now.

"I did a lot of research on who the customers were and what the European stores were offering, and when I got back to Canada I started tracking down suppliers. Getting the suppliers lined up was the most difficult aspect of it in a business standpoint."

Mrs. Sutherland also took on a partner, Anne Amitay, a 25-year-old blonde who says clerking in the sex shop "is quite a change from my last job—I used to teach nursery school."

The two women spent several weeks scouting around for the right location. They finally picked a vacant cottage in Yorkville, the former Flower Power capital.

"Really, I just can't believe it," said Mrs. Sutherland. "We weren't cagy [sic] about anything like this. We've been so busy selling stuff that I have no idea of our financial position. We haven't had a chance to do an inventory of anything."

The fact that two women are dealing in an area of merchandising that has to do primarily with the supersensitive male ego—the men travelling through Lovecraft outnumber the women two-to-one—has yet to dampen the enthusiasm of the consuming public.

Both women have had experience in counselling and they combine counselling techniques with salesmanship in dealing with customers. They say they find themselves at ease in frank discussions with men about sexual matters and problems that male patrons might not even discuss with their wives.

"We've had people come in here and tell us about sexual problems that are of such a serious nature that they are literally in tears," said Mrs. Sutherland. "We do our best to help them but if we can't we refer them to the appropriate counselling agency or a psychiatrist.

Mrs. Sutherland defines Lovecraft as "a place where men and women can buy the things they need for love-making."

There is nothing covert about Lovecraft—the items are intended to help customers have greater mutual satisfaction and enjoyment in their sexual relations.

"If a few exciting titbits and tasty morsels in the shape of sex toys are introduced from time to time, a sharp edge may be restored to the sexual appetite. There use can be definitely advantageous to couples whose sex life has tended to become a little stale and routine."

However, the store will remain "straight," catering only to heterosexual and steering clear of fetishists, homosexuals and deviants.

"There is a fabulous amount of money to be made in catering to the needs of various sexual deviations. But we're not going to get into it, partly because of the social acceptance aspect, but mainly because we just don't want to get involved in it."

Mrs. Sutherland said most of Lovecraft's customers are middle-aged business executives, between 30 and 50, who thunder through the store in briefs at lunchtime to browse, then come back alone later in the day to buy.

Now, plans are afoot for a feasibility study on opening "a chain of Lovecraft stores right across the country"—Hamilton, Oshawa, Windsor, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Net Asset

Goaltender Steve Rexe has proven many times he can make up for a lot of other Belleville senior hockey deficiencies. He did it again Friday night, stopping 50 shots as the injury-plagued Quintes kept their playoff hopes alive with a 5-3 win in Woodstock. Belleville can force a tie for the eight-team OHA Senior A league's sixth and last playoff spot with a win over Woodstock tonight at the Memorial Arena.

White Christmas Just Dream

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Gord McGaughey was dreaming of a white Christmas. Unfortunately for the Oak Hills Ski Club owner, however, that's all it was — a dream.

"It's been disastrous in general," he ruefully recalled this year's mild early winter. "It was particularly bad during the Christmas holidays. We had the equipment to haul snow to the slopes but there wasn't any snow to haul."

The Stirling area club has only been able to operate 16 days so far this season as opposed to 43 last year. "We had as many days of skiing in by New Year's last season as we've had all this year," notes McGaughey. "We'll probably end up operating 25 days if we're lucky."

Weather conditions permitting, Oak Hills is open for public skiing Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and evenings, as well as Saturday and Sunday afternoons. The eight-year-old club has three rope tows servicing the seven trails available to its 400 members.

Oak Hills, under the direction of instructor Bill Bell, operates a team in the Nancy Greene Ski League for children 13 years and under. The team, which began the season with about 15 members, has competed in meets at Oshawa and Bethany so far this season.

One of the most popular programs available at Oak Hills is the "learn to ski program" which has an enrolment of 227. Residents of Madoc, Campbellford, Brighton, Frankford, Bellevile and Foxboro are taking part in the beginners' class, which requires 12 students and two full time instructors to operate.

Another successful venture has been special rates for high school physical education classes offering opportunities for students to learn or improve upon their skiing skills. So far Loyalist, Trenton, Moira and Quinte have taken advantage of the program.

The hills may be alive with the sound of music next Thursday when the Moira and East York bands will get a free evening of skiing and tobogganing. "We thought that maybe some of the kids from Toronto wouldn't have had the chance to get out that much" notes the owner while adding that the number of Toronto skiers in the area seems to be increasing as facilities in the western part of Ontario become more and more crowded.

Among the improvements made this year have been the addition of another trail and more snow grooming equipment. "We have the machinery to powder snow now, but there hasn't been any snow to powder," muses McGaughey.

"We'll definitely be expanding operations next year," advises the Oak Hills owner. Among the planned projects are the addition of another 20-30 acres of ski trails and public skiing five or six days of the week.

Picture Perfect?

Maybe the form isn't picture perfect, but Trenton High School student Nina Allmendinger is working hard to improve during special phys-ed classes at the Oak Hills Ski Club. The secondary school classes are one phase of the many programs offered by the privately-owned Stirling Club. All of them, however, have suffered to some degree by the lack of snow this winter.

Towers Trounce Napanee

While waiting for Sunday's second zone playoff encounter with Kingston, the Belleville senior all-stars warmed up Friday by trouncing Napanee 6-0.

Darrell Coltman scored twice for Towers, who fired 34 shots at the opposition net, while goalie Garth Scully had only nine to handle to earn his shutout.

Mark Crawford scored once and earned three assists for the winners, who also got goals from John Henry, David Plaue, and Tim Soule.

Steve Rexe One Money Player Who's Not Exactly Overpaid

Steve Rexe added to his reputation as a "money player" Friday at Belleville Quintes kept their playoff hopes alive with a 5-3 win in Woodstock.

Not that the goaltender is going to get rich playing for this year's sponsorless Belleville senior A hockey entry. He and his teammates have each taken home $100 on a co-operative basis for playing 18 games since they lost their sponsor the first week of December.

Rather Rexe again showed he can come up with his stingiest goaltending when his teammates need it the most.

Last night's game in Woodstock was a case in point. Going into the game, the Quintes were in last place, with all their four remaining regular-schedule contests "must" games in order to overhaul Woodstock, Oakville, or Owen Sound for one of the six league playoff berths.

In the first period, Rexe stopped 24 shots, and outgunned Dan Mahoney on a penalty shot to pave the way for a Belleville win that left the bottom four league teams three points apart. Woodstock has 28, Oakville, who obligingly lost 12-3 to Orillia, has 27, the Quintes have 26 and Owen Sound has 25.

In all, Rexe made 50 saves over the course of the game, but was not credited with stopping the penalty shot, awarded midway through the first period with the Quintes holding a 1-0 lead after Norther Mike gloved the puck in the Belleville crease.

Rexe stood his ground when Mahoney tried to shift him out of position, and the shot glanced off the far goalpost.

Team captain Ralph Plaue, who scored only three times in his first 30 games, gave the Quintes the lead at 2:56 with his third goal in as many games.

Don Jones tied the score just before the end of the period, but early in the second Mike Rexe gave the Quintes a lead they never relinquished, with Lloyd Baldy and Plaue drawing assists.

Perry Chittick, Lorne O'Donnell, and Ray Johnston, who like Plaue, picked up his third goal in the last three games, accounted for the other Belleville scoring.

Gerry Harrigan added second and third-period goals for Woodstock, who are in Belleville tonight for a game vital to both clubs' playoff hopes.

The Royals announced after last night's game that they will continue operations for the remainder of the season. Earlier in the week, they threatened to cease operations for financial reasons.

Friday's game was watched by a profitable crowd of 1,300 and the Royals have received some $300 in donations from Woodstock supporters.

Janitsch Three-timer

Janitsch, known primarily for his defensive abilities rather than for his scoring prowess, came up with three goals as the Bobcats closed out their 20-game Eastern Ontario Junior B schedule with a 9-1 trouncing of Picton's Canucks.

"No, he hasn't been that prolific," coach Murray "Moe" Hunter was saying of Janitsch, "but he was certainly Johnny-on-the-spot tonight."

The first fulfillment of Janitsch's hat trick came with the game barely two minutes old when he was helping kill Brian Cousins' tripping penalty, one of 29 assessed in the game.

Janitsch was put in the clear by Rod Palmer and broke in alone to beat Picton goalie Peter Pettingill.

Dave Smith, Dave Horwood, Brian Cousins, Bill Jackett, and Pete Ackerman got the other goals for the Bobcats, who finished third in the six-team league with an 18-3 record and open their playoffs Tuesday night in Oshawa.

Paul Lavender scored the Picton scoring silence at 12.46 of the second period but after Bill Cousins had come in to take over Belleville goaltending duties from starter Bob Harrison.

Outside of the two goalies, the Bobcats dressed only 11 players for their season-closing contest, missing high-scoring winger Jeff Howard, Toronto commuter Jim Cain, and team captain John Mulvihill, a weekend guest of Wisconsin University who are wooing him with a hockey scholarship offer.

The shortage was helped by moving forward Terry Meagher, who picked up three assists, and Tim Yohn back on defence, but hindered by Picton strong-arm tactics.

The losers drew 15 of the game's 29 penalties and had Belleville coach Hunter fuming about what he felt was an attempt to intimidate his players.

Defenseman Doug Perry lost a tooth and took four stitches in the lip as the result of one Picton infraction.

"I hope they don't let them in the league next year if they're going to try that stuff," Hunter snapped.

Picton and Gananoque, rated as C teams were newcomers to the Eastern Ontario B League this year and both finished out of the playoff picture.

Decision to Keep New York from CFL far from Unanimous

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Football League turned down a bid Friday to expand to New York, and the decision immediately raised the spectre that a new U.S. pro football league might be formed that could woo some CFL teams.

The nine-team CFL ended its annual meeting with a decision not to accept, for the time being anyway, an application from Robert E. Schenkel to establish a team in Yankee Stadium.

Then it set up a four-man committee to study matters of expansion and "fully examine the ramifications" of the decision both within and without Canada."

Officially the vote was 8 to 1 against the New York franchise. But in fact, outgoing president Sam Berger said later, the split was 5 to 4 in favor with the four Eastern Conference clubs and British Columbia, Lions on one side and Winnipeg, Saskatchewan, Edmonton and Calgary on the other.

The CFL constitution requires unanimous Eastern support and three of five Western Conference teams for expansion approval.

Commissioner Jake Gaudaur said that, realizing the hopelessness of getting the necessary seven-club support, the other teams voted against in the final count. That is, with the exception of Toronto Argonauts which backed Schenkel to the end.

Berger, owner of Montreal Alouettes and succeeded as league president by Bill Clarke of Saskatchewan Roughriders, said he wanted to continue discussions with New York.

"I hope New York doesn't give up on this. I sincerely hope they can wait a little longer."

Berger, Clarke, Lew Hayman of Toronto and Pat Mahoney of Calgary Stampeders make up the study committee on expansion.

In New York, Schenetz said he felt the CFL had "made an error in judgment." U.S. promoters would probably attempt to form their own league, locking some Canadian teams.

"I might be spearheading the campaign for a new league," he said.

The question of some team splitting away from the CFL was even mentioned after Friday's meeting.

Frank Clair, general manager of Ottawa Rough Riders, told reporters:

"I think that we could probably survive without a Montreal, or maybe without a Vancouver. We could probably put a team in London or some place and still balance out with an eight-team league.

"And if it came to a real fight I think we'd have a lot of backing here in Canada for Canadian football.

"But I don't think we could survive without Toronto. That would have to be the last split. If they left it would probably be the end."

Berger said the issue of expansion into the U.S. is not dead.

"I haven't changed my views. I think Toronto, Montreal, New York application, but I still want to maintain Canadian content in the game and study in depth what effect the acceptance of the New York application would have."

Had the league required only majority vote for expansion, New York would be in, Berger added. But there was no way the seven-team approval could be obtained "even if we sat there all day and all night and all weekend."

He suggested too many teams were "always just thinking of themselves."

That Regina team has about $500,000 in the bank for a cushion, so they tell me they are happy to sit there.

"But sometimes I think maybe we in Montreal might as well start thinking about ourselves too. . . . It really hurts when I think of some of the promotional things we might have been able to do with a New York team.

The Western Conference quartet that had opposed expansion stood firm as delegates packed to return home Friday night after their four-day meeting.

Earl London of Winnipeg Blue Bombers felt his club could not match the financial competition of an American team.

"So far we have found we can go after maybe 14, 15 or 16 Americans and sometimes meet, but if they ever threw out the Canadian rule requiring 17 Canadians on each 40-man team and we had to go down there and compete against a New York for 32 football players we just wouldn't be able to meet. It's tough enough right now."

Another westerner, who asked to remain anonymous, added:

"Sure we are eventually not be able to keep going. We could some day be murdered as a result of the decision not to making here.

"But I'd rather do that than commit suicide here this afternoon. And that's what I think my club would be guilty of if brought New York into the league."

Besides the election of Clarke as president, the league named David Loeb, owner of Ottawa Rough Riders, as vice-president with Greg Fulton of Toronto remaining as secretary-treasurer. Gaudaur will continue to call out regulations on player cuts and waivers.

Each of the nine clubs will be required to trim their rosters to 32 men by 3 p.m. July 27, four days before this season's opening game.

Previously the final cut-down date was the day before the first game of the season. This year's opener is July 31.

Gaudaur said the waiver period at the start of the season will be 24 hours, much shorter than the normal 72-hour waiver period.

Therefore any player not named to a team will be a free agent and get on another team in time to get ready for the opening game of that club.

The old roster cut-down made it impossible for a released player to prepare with another team for its opener.

Striding to Gold

Soviets Sow Early, Reap Medals Later

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Russia's six gold medals so far in the 11th Winter Olympic Games proved a point. The Russians sow early and reap late in the four intervening years between Olympics.

Grenoble in 1968 was a disaster for the Russians compared with Innsbruck four years earlier. In Sapporo, the Russian team ranked its record and may wind up going home with eight gold medals.

The unofficial team championship is in the Russian fold once more, mainly due to the efforts of women Nordic skiers who swept the gold board clean And the Russians are favored to win the hockey and men's cross-country skiing relay gold medals, the last two of the 11-day Games.

A Russian speed skater named Lidia Skoblikova tore home four gold medals from Innsbruck; the Austrian site of the 1964 Games, and the 11 gold altogether nailed down the team title for Russia with 195½ points, almost 100 points more than second-place Norway.

The Russians slipped badly at Grenoble, in the French Alpine countryside, especially without a new queen to take Lidia's place. Norway walked off with the team crown, scoring 127½ points and winning six gold. The Russians managed only four gold and 107 points for second place.

Now a new Soviet queen has arrived on the scene, a woman so strong she puts some men to shame.

Galina Koulakova, 29-year-old ski instructor, won her third gold medal in Nordic skiing when she anchored the winning Russian team in the 15-kilometre cross-country relay race.

The cross-country event was one of three finals staged today, on the four-day Ski Week drove Switzerland's No. 1 sled to victory in the four-man bobsled and Stein Bass Kaiser of the Netherlands won the women's 3,000-metre speed skating gold medal.

The Firth twins, Sharon and Shirley, and Roseanne Allen, all from Inuvik, N.W.T., were 10,2 in the cross-country relay and Hans Gehrig of Montreal piloted Canada's No. 2 sled into 12th place in the four-man competition.

The 30 points the Russians got for winning all three women's Nordic gold helped them clinch the team title at Sapporo with 123-points after completion of 32 events. East Germany was next 20½, is in second spot but can't catch the Russians. Scoring is based on the formula 10-5-4-3-2-1 point system for the first six placings in each final.

As the Games wind up Sunday, all eyes were turned to the hockey tournament, where Russia plays Czechoslovakia for the championship.

The NBC-televised game starts at 10:30 p.m. EST tonight.

Russia is certain of a medal in hockey and needs only a tie against the Czechs in the final fourth gold in five Olympics. The Russians entered the Games in 1956.

But the unbeaten Russian team's only barrier is a third straight Olympic hockey title—the once-beaten Czechs—are in a vengeful mood after losing their only loss 4-1, to little-regarded Sweden.

The Russians haven't been known to blow many key games over the last 28 years, and the feeling here is that they'll add the gold to their silver and bronzes including nine straight world championships.

Outside of the hockey program, the only golds left unclaimed are Ard Schenk, the slalom today and the men's 40-kilometre cross-country relay race Sunday.

In speed skating, Holland emerged as the big winner, taking four of the eight gold medals and two silvers. Ard Schenk, Dutch skating marvel, took three gold and Mrs. Bass Kaiser added the fourth today when she won the 3,000-metre race in Olympic record time of 4:52.14. It was the seventh record to fall here.

Dianne Holum of the United States, winner of the 1,500-metre gold, was second and Atje Keulen-Deelstra, another Dutch girl, third. Canada did not enter the race.

The 34-year-old Dutch winner, who holds the world 3,000-metre mark of 4:46.50 and won the world title for the event in 1967, said capturing the gold "equalled the thrill of that."

In the cross-country, Miss Koulakova and Lubov Moukhacheva won in 1 hr. 34 minutes 46.15 seconds. Finland was second and Norway, the defending champion, third. The Canadian team was more than five minutes behind the Russians.

The winning Swiss crew in the four-man bobsled led right from the first heat Friday. They had an aggregate time for four heats of 4:43.07. The silver sled, driven by Nevio De Zordo, took the silver and the West German sled, driven by Wolfgang Zimmerer, took the bronze. The Canadian No. 1 sled sled that won the two-man gold. The Canadian No. 2 sled, driving at the helm, clocked 4:42.06 over-all.

While left with Norway at six points each in the final standings, the West Germans earned the championship by virtue of an earlier victory over the Norwegians. Japan finished third with five points.

Harris Prefers Swedish Security

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Job offers from two franchises in the fledgling World Hockey Association are not as attractive as security in Sweden to Billy Harris.

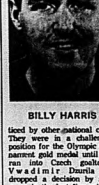
The one-time centre with Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit Red Wings and Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League is coming to the end of his one-year contract as coach of the Swedish nationals.

"They've offered me a two-year contract but there are some tax problems that have to be cleared up after we get back," Harris said in an interview at the Olympic Games Saturday. "I don't expect any problems."

The quiet-spoken 36-year-old from Toronto said he couldn't be happier and the opportunity to take the Swedes to a world or Olympic title presented more challenge than the unstable WHA.

"I heard from two operations, at San Francisco and Los Angeles," said Harris, "but there's no way I would move now . . . perhaps two or three years from now if it gets off the ground.

"There'll be lots of jobs then."



Harris said he and his family have adjusted well to the Scandinavian environment and the Harris children were not experiencing much of a language barrier because they were young enough to pick up the Swedish language quickly.

But the Swedish coach has a language problem since about four of his players don't speak English. Harris' only language, another five are only partly conversant and half the team is fluent in both Swedish and English.

"It is a problem," Harris admitted, "but my assistant coach acts as an interpreter.

"I only hope he's getting the right message across."

Harris' influence on the Swedish players has been no ticed by other national clubs. They were in a challenging position for the Olympic tournament gold medal until they ran into Czech goaltender Vwadimir Dzurila and dropped a decision by a 2-1 score in the last five minutes of the game.

BILLY HARRIS

Russian Hockey Taken Too Lightly

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Russia's defending Olympic hockey champions would be a commendable addition to the National Hockey League, Billy the North American fan who takes the Russians lightly.

They are dedicated athletes, matured in fundamental drills through years of unrestricted loyalty to their brusque coach, Anatoly Tarasov, and the desire to achieve perfection.

Now the way should be opened for the Soviet Union to meet the top professionals.

Today's Red machine would rank high as fifth in the hockey world, behind four established NHL clubs—Boston Bruins, New York Rangers Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks, and with a few adjustments in their attack patterns could rate even higher.

About the only element of their 1972 squad that is suspect would be in goal. But neither Vladislav Tretiak nor Alexandre Pachkov have come under serious fire.

The Swedes, under Canadian coach Billy Harris, also showed a flaw in the Russian style by frequently harassing the puck carrier. The Russians and Swedes tied 3-3 in the Olympic hockey tournament.

Persistent forechecking prevented the methodical Russians from setting in motion their free-skating passing game pattern of attack in which as many as four players dart through and around defenders looking for a clear shot.

A low defender usually patrols the blueline, watching for the fast break at a point shot or a move for his defence mate.

The Russians are an unselfish team on the ice.

The NHL checking is so close, however, that the 50-per-cent chance of scoring is often nothing and with boxcars like Bobby Orr, Espo, Ken Hodge, Frank Mahovlich and the Hull brothers, Bobby and Dennis, the possibilities of overpowering a goaltender are that much greater.

The Russians have some great shooters, clear, crisp and decisive, but none rank with the big guns in the NHL.

Where the Russians have an edge over their international colleagues as a team—such would not be the case in the NHL where an NHL all-star team—is in their strength, both skating and physical.

Across the bench the Russians are untouched in the physical durability developed over long years of tedious training. The Russians, unlike their North American counterparts, toil at their trade 11 months of the year, about three months longer than the average NHL player.

The Russians also are masters at feigning injury; a manoeuvre that has been adopted by all European nationals to draw to the attention of neutral officials the viciousness of their opponents.

Patterson Not Ready Yet

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson, elated with victory but disappointed at his performance, says he's not retiring but doesn't feel ready to fight world heavyweight champion Joe Frazier.

"I would like to fight Frazier when I'm ready but I don't think I'm ready yet," Patterson said Friday night after a two-fisted rally in the final two rounds earned him a unanimous 10-round decision over brawling Oscar Bonavena at Madison Sqare Garden.

"I'm happy that I won, but not with the way I looked," said Patterson, 37, 181¾ pounds, the forced Bonavena to clinch only man in twice his total career championship. "I'd like to get a little better before I go back to the head.

Frazier, who was stoned the 17,958 who attended the bout, said Patterson would earn a title shot if he defeated Bonavena.

The bout was marked by few sharp exchanges and neither fighter appeared in trouble, although Bonavena, 206, from Buenos Aires, Argentina, decked Patterson in the fourth round with a left hook to the top of the head.

Bonavena bullied Patterson in the eighth, landing a couple of shots to the face of his tiring opponent. Patterson appeared fresh at the start of the ninth, landing a body barrage and then scoring with a sharp left hook to the head and a flurry to the body in the 10th and consoling a hard Bonavena left with a right to the jaw.

Referee Johnny LoBlanco scored it 5-4-1 Patterson, Judge Tony Castellano tabbed it 5-4 Patterson and Judge Bill Recht tallied it 7-3-1 for the former champion.

Not Phased By WHA

BALTIMORE (AP) — President Jack Butterfield of the American Hockey League predicts a bright future for his loop despite the emergence of the World Hockey Association.

"I've been told that the WHA is going to decimate our league by taking our players," Butterfield said Friday. "They'll have a helluva time trying to do it."

However, Butterfield acknowledged that the formation of a new league "will have an inflationary effect on hockey."

"But if WHA wishes to be successful," he said, "it will have to go after everybody on all levels—amateurs, juniors, the Western and Central leagues, and the National Hockey League."

Gamble Will Sit Out Remainder of Season

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A physician added testimony Friday in the case against choosing hockey goaltending as the cause and aftermath of fatally that Bruce Gamble is out of National Hockey League action for this season.

"He's definitely out this season," Dr. Charles Hudson, said in Oakland where Gamble is in hospital receiving from a heart attack.

Dr. Hudson said the 33-year-old Philadelphia Flyers goalie was not suffering pain and was "coming along fine."

"Hopefully then he'll be in shape to fly back to Philadelphia to convalesce with his family."

Gamble went into hospital Wednesday when the team arrived there from Vancouver where he had helped beat the Canucks 3-1. He didn't feel well after that game and when he arrived at the Oakland hospital he was reported suffering from exhaustion and high blood pressure.

The Port Arthur, Ont., native had played nine of the Flyers' last 10 games before the attack ended his 14th professional season.

The Flyers are the 11th pro club Gamble has toiled for. He started with Providence in the American Hockey League in 1957-58 and except for brief appearance with New York Rangers and Boston Bruins, played in the minors until 1964 when he quit hockey to get out from under Eddie Shore's heavy hand.

Shore was owner, manager and coach of the Springfield club in the AHL and his harsh training practices and fines were disliked by many players.

After staying out of the game for a year, Gamble was traded to the Toronto Maple Leaf organization where he lasted the longest, playing for NHL sessions from 1967-68 before moving to the Flyers last year in a trade for goalie Bernie Parent.

The Flyers, meanwhile, have called up 25-year-old Don McLeod from Providence to back up their other remaining veteran, Doug Favell.

The Flyers are one point behind fourth-place St. Louis Blues in the West Division but are facing two road games this weekend—against the North Stars in Minnesota tonight and against the Sabres in Buffalo Sunday. The Blues, meanwhile, have only one weekend game tonight at home against visiting Vancouver Canucks.

WHA Reverses Field, Drafts Big Names Like Hull

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The fledgling World Hockey Association, which had indicated it wouldn't try to draft big-name National Hockey League players, reversed its field today and named NHL superstars Bobby Hull and Ken Dryden on a predraft "reservation list."

Hull, the Chicago Black Hawks' left winger who has led the NHL in goals seven times, was the first pick of Winnipeg Jets. Dryden, the 24-year-old goalie and law student who was called up from the minors last year to lead Montreal Canadiens to the Stanley Cup, was the top choice of Los Angeles Sharks.

The players were part of a list of 48 agreed on by the 12 teams in November and approved by WHA trustees Friday. Each team chose four players, including one goaltender, and nearly all were from the NHL, notwithstanding an expected bidding war.

The league is scheduled to begin play this fall.

WHA officials said all the NHL players selected in the reclamation list and the draft list, which began today, had contracts that expired after this season. They said contact had been made with many of the players already.

However, Stan Mikita, the Black Hawks all-star centre picked by Chicago Cougars of the WHA, said in Chicago he had another year to go in his present contract "and I always try to live up to my contract." He said he hadn't heard from the new league.

Other NHL all-stars picked were centre Gil Perreault of Buffalo Sabres, last year's top rookie, by Los Angeles; centre Derek Sanderson of Boston Bruins and defenceman Bill White of the Black Hawks by Miami Screaming Eagles.

Also, right winger Bill Goldsworthy of Minnesota North Stars by Minnesota Fighting Saints; defenceman Brad Park of New York Rangers by the nameless Ontario team, and goalie Gilles Villemure of New York and right winger John McKenzie of Boston by Quebec City, which was awarded a franchise Friday.

The Minnesota entry also chose Mike Curran, the sensational goalie on the U.S. Olympic hockey team.

Among the big names not on the negotiation list were Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito of Boston, Rod Gilbert and Vic Hadfield of New York, Tony Esposito of Chicago and Frank Mahovlich of Montreal. Mahovlich's brother Pete was picked by Minnesota.

Hull, probably the most glamorous name in pro hockey, wasn't available for comment. But in December he said reports that Winnipeg had offered him a million dollars to sign were a "pipe dream."

Dennis Murphy, an official of the Los Angeles Sharks and also the WHA's executive vice president, said he talked with Dryden in December and "he indicated to us that he'd listen."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Government Extends $1.7 Million to Beleaguered Book Industry

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's struggling book industry will receive a $1.7 million boost from the federal government this year, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier announced Friday.

He outlined a six-point aid program to the annual meeting of federal cultural agencies which include the CBC, Canada Council and Canadian Radio-Television Commission, and said the total money to be handed out — about one-third of Canadian book publishing's yearly turnover — excluding textbooks.

Mr. Pelletier said the program is "only a beginning" but necessary "because of the urgent nature of the difficulties being faced by the Canadian publishers."

It would double production Canadian books, not counting school textbooks, in five years.

The program includes:

—$500,000 increase in $1 million a year in direct grants from the Canada Council to publishers to permit publication of more quality Canadian works;

—$500,000 for the purchase of Canadian books for free distribution in Canada and abroad;

—$500,000 to aid the export of Canadian books, with $400,000 earmarked for establishing distribution centres in the United States, Britain and Europe and $100,000 for Canadian participation at book fairs and exhibitions;

—$315,000 in Canada Council grants, up from $115,000 in 1971-72, for translation of Canadian works "to encourage exchanges between the two main linguistic communities of Canada";

—Publication by private companies of "unofficial works on the government's behalf" for sale on the regular book market.

—Creation of a standing committee on publishing to work out an over-all policy of co-ordination.

Reaction from book publishers was warm.

"The government has taken an important step in recognizing the role a publishing plays as a major role in our cultural survival," said Peter Martin, head of Peter Martin Associates of Toronto.

W. H. Clarke of Clarke-Irwin Ltd., Toronto, said he is very pleased with the aid.

"I don't see this as the start of a perpetual subsidy. These measures, with those of the province of Ontario, make it possible to stimulate and create a Canadian body of literature," it appears," said Montreal president of Les Editions du Jour, said the program outlined by Mr. Pelletier is a start in elaborating a policy about publishing.

"These measures are just the beginning of a deeper concern about publishing — a concern that it is not just a business but an instrument of culture."

Mr. Pelletier said in an interview after his speech that his department had received requests from 600-500 libraries so far this year, causing delays.

"Now we will be able to do something about that," he said.

In his address, he said the measures were necessary "because Canadian publishing and business are finding it difficult to survive."

"It took a series of events and transactions totalling $1.5 million to bring houses before public opinion was aroused and before the government. Canada's publishing industry's inability to play its proper role in the cultural development of Canada was taken to heart."

At an earlier news conference, he referred to the 1970 takeover of Ryerson Press, a Toronto firm by an American-based firm, McGraw-Hill Ltd., and the recent purchase of 80 per cent of the shares of Quebec's Education and Cultural Centres by the French publishing house Hachette.

Both events sparked bitter objections from those concerned with preserving the all-Canadian aspect of Canadian publishing.

"One of the purposes of the government's moves was to help Canadian publishing houses resist the encroachments of international publishers like Hachette if they wanted to," Mr. Pelletier said Friday.

He said that while the government would promote any book published by a Canadian, Canadian publishers would be eligible for grants under the new program. Books published by foreign publishers in Canada would not be promoted abroad because foreign-owned companies already have ready outlets for non-Canadian promotion.

Still to be arrived at is a definition of a Canadian book and a Canadian publisher.

Heath Considers Quebec 'Model'

LONDON (CP) — The role of Quebec in Canada's political structure is being considered by British Prime Minister Heath as a possible model for a proposed political revision of Northern Ireland, a British official said Friday.

"That is exactly the sort of consideration the prime minister has in mind," the official said. "But the difficulty is that too rigid an application can perpetuate distinctions. You may solve one problem only to create another."

Heath may be ready to decide on a political initiative within a week or two, the official said.

It was learned government experts are trying to adapt to the Irish situation some of these principles which for generations have broadly preserved peace and co-operation between English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians.

Under the British North America Act, the people of Quebec were guaranteed security of their religion and language, customs and civil laws. Another act provided Quebec should have a minimum fixed representation of 65 seats in Canada's Parliament. At present, Quebec has 74 representatives in the 264-member Parliament.

However, Quebec is a geographic entity. While the Roman Catholics of Northern Ireland are concentrated in some counties they are spread among others. Heath has no plan of encouraging them to draw into one specific region.

Heath is reported to feel that replacing the Protestant monopoly over executive power in Northern Ireland parliament by "communal" government might have unforeseen appeal among the minority Roman Catholics.

At the same time he might be prepared to switch authority over Northern Ireland police and security to the British Parliament to ease Roman Catholic discontent and to promise big reforms.

The question is whether the Roman Catholics will be willing to settle for such an arrangement in view of demands by their leaders that they want a united Ireland. There is some suggestion that Heath is secretly exploring how much appeal his ideas will have and is in close touch with William Cardinal Conway, Roman Catholic primate of all Ireland.

London Economist

'Confederation Will Survive'

LONDON (CP) — The Economist, taking a long look at Canada, concludes that Confederation will survive though most Canadians don't seem anxious to take big cuts in living standards to preserve their nationhood.

It suggests also that Prime Minister Trudeau's political fortunes may be slipping slightly and that Conservative opposition leader Robert Stanfield may be going up and figures the outcome of the next general election may be a minority government.

The 50-page survey, published in the current edition, advises British readers that Canadians suffer from recurring bouts of introspection and suggests Canadians suffer more than they need from this periodic urge to define themselves as one country and their national life.

"Canadian style and self-confidence sometimes seem so inadequate that even thoughtful Canadians are to be heard counting the remaining years of survival and independence."

Guest editor was Ronald Bird who wrote the survey after a Canadian visit.

He found that Canada no longer is simply the 3,000-mile-long main street it was 30 years ago. Jets, oil and gas, good highways and radio and telecommunications have reduced the length and increased the width of the North though the country still lies under the shadow of the United States cultural magnet.

One Meal Daily Can Be Safe But System Not Advisable

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband refuses to eat anything for breakfast and often goes without eating lunch, but will eat a well-balanced meal at dinner.

I say this is unnaturally unsound and could contribute to malnutrition. This is an unending disagreement in our home. What do you say?—B. A. R.

I'll have to answer with two or three ifs.

If he gets a balanced meal for dinner, and gets enough calories to supply his body's need for energy, then getting along on one meal a day (or sometimes two) will not contribute to malnutrition.

But whether a person who often eats only dinner will have a truly balanced diet is another question. It's possible—or it takes some doing.

For one thing, perhaps the main question, what about his intake of vitamin C? A daily supply of that vitamin is wise, and prolonged deprivation of it leads to trouble—as was found out a long time ago when sailors on long voyages, deprived of vitamin C, developed scurvy.

The custom has grown up generally of having citrus or tomato juice for breakfast. Juice is to make certain of getting vitamin C, although other vegetables contain it.

Second reason I'm suspicious of one-a-day regimens is because that a person often is not as efficient as he could be unless he has some nourishment in the morning.

Third reason: Eating one meal a day, instead of three, has been tried by many folks as a means of reducing weight. Studies show it doesn't work, and that actually a person is more likely to gain weight, probably because such people, being eaters by nature, are too often develop such an appetite by evening that they eat too much—often not necessarily the foods they need for good health.

For those reasons I call a jaundiced eye at trying to get along on one meal a day, even though, if a person is careful, he can get along safely that way. The trouble is people aren't always as careful as they need to be.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How effective is ile diaphragm for contraceptive purposes? Can a person get pregnant with one? Is it placed by the doctor or can I put it in? Can it be inserted wrong? Can one ever be defective?—B. T.

Quite effective when properly used—somewhere in the upper 90s in percentage of reliability.

It must be fitted, in the first place, by a physician, but after that you can do it yourself. With reasonable care there is scant chance of inserting it wrong. It is usually coated on both sides with a spermicidial cream each time.

If'sare say a diaphragm, like anything else, could be defective—that is, get a hole in it—but you should easily spot that.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I breathe through my mouth. I can breathe through my nose but it is very uncomfortable for me. Should I have my adenoids removed? I am 13.—A. H.

Before trying to decide whether to have your adenoids out, you'd better have a nose-throat specialist (or maybe your regular doctor, if you have one) take a look and see whether your trouble is adenoids, polyps, deviated septum or some other obstruction in the nose. If it's one of these other troubles, it certainly would not have the adenoids out.

What the Stars Say

Sunday, February 13th
By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Action taken today is productive of permanent results, including side effects. Think what you're doing, go about it systematically.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Bring others with you as you serve worthwhile causes. The arts and music should figure strongly in your planning.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): More people are ready to join forces with you than you can cope with at the moment. Offbeat travels bring excitement, interesting results.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Do not permit your rituals to dignity; pursue the beautiful side of your daily living. Handling the best tends to inspire positive changes in those you care about.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Following a course of moderation brings comfort and a broader base for successful contact with people from all walks of life.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Gather people around you. Create family and group co-operation, conclude these of differing opinions. Your ideas can do come out clearly for all to hear.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Put your best foot forward: a thorough personal triumph may be yours in accord with your serenity, how you aspire.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Seek a stable, normal path this calm Sunday. There are quite a lot of good habits to practise, a bed custom to abandon, people needing a word from you.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A minor setback or unsettled news are headed your way. Be alert and active in the affairs of your relationships.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): So many ideas and bits of information occur to you today that defy description or can't be expressed without seeming to be misunderstood. Talk about things you can share.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Energy and confidence come to you now. As you make the rounds, ideas for future ventures come to mind. Begin planning.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Social activity turns out pretty enough, including emotional echoes from the long-ago past. Sentimental get the most and best from all phases of daily living.

Monday, February 14th
By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Personal attractions lie in action gifts and other expressions—it's your turn to respond to the warmth and generosity of portunities include a good buy or investment.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Encourage younger people to help you concentrate on the creative aspects of daily living. Career questions are open to some answers.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You can sell almost any bright idea today—just be sure you have a good one, not too real-istic.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Do your strongest sales pitch, sell off whatever is no longer useful.

A minor setback or unsettled about the latter, though, when you know almost all you need to know about Week's head. In order to learn the little more you don't know, you cash the check at the West following suit, and lead a low diamond to the ace, West again following suit as everything falls exactly into place.

You now know that West started with exactly precisely six spades, two hearts, four clubs and a singleton diamond. It is then virtually automatic to lead the ten of diamonds from dummy, planning to finesse if East follows low.

If East covers with the jack, you are still in fine shape. You win with the queen, return to dummy with a club, and play another diamond. Your K-8 sit greedily poised over East's 9-7, and the upshot is that you make three tricks as a result of counting out the band.

CHANGE DIRECTION

GRANBY Que. (CP) — Quebec's 760 Farm Women's Clubs are trumpeting their direction away from glorified knitting groups toward forums for dealing with problems of increasingly urbanized populations, blasting the royal commission on the status of women, consumer protection laws, the evolution of agriculture in the province and organizing sales of handicrafts.

Opening lead — five of spades.

You don't actually see the adverse hands when you're declarer, but in some deals the defenders might just as well expose their cards to your gaze, for you can figure out exactly what they have.

Let's say West leads a spade. East cashing the Q-K and shifting to the jack of hearts. You don't have to be a genius to deduce that East has no more spades and that West started with six of them.

Prospects of making the hand are exceedingly good at this point — for all you have to do to score a fourth trick is either clubs or diamonds. But, when you lead the K-Q of clubs, East unexpectedly shows out and you are reduced to making four diamond tricks to bring home the contract.

Actually, this is not a difficult task if you stop to think about the matter, since you know almost all you need to know about West's hand. In order to learn the little more you don't know, you cash the ace of clubs, West following suit, and lead a low diamond to the ace, West again following suit as everything falls exactly into place.

No Infection Increase Dropping Hexachlorophene

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian hospitals that heeded a warning from the federal food and drug directorate and discontinued the use of the disinfectant hexachlorophene in baby nurseries have not experienced an increase in infection.

The directorate issued the warning last December that the germ-killer has been found to cause brain scarrings in experimental animals. However, use of hexachlorophene has not been made illegal and the directorate only cautioned doctors to use it carefully.

Some Canadian hospitals report they have stopped using hexachlorophene and now rely on soap or other disinfectants. Others say they will wait for more solid information from the directorate before taking action.

In the United States, the National Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., said Friday that reports of infection outbreaks have more than doubled within the last week in hospital nurseries that stopped using hexachlorophene.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration warned doctors last Dec. 8 not to use the disinfectant solution for total body bathing of infants and adults.

In Montreal, a spokesman for the Royal Victoria Hospital said hexachlorophene has not been used in the hospital since mid-December because it is not effective against some bacteria.

At Lakeshore General Hospital in Montreal, Dr. S. H. Katz said hexachlorophene is the best disinfectant he has ever encountered: He said that in more than 20 years the hospital has found no definite proof that it is harmful. He said until the directorate makes a definite statement, it will be used in all departments at the hospital.

A spokesman for St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver said he is "very concerned" about the warning not to use the disinfectant. The spokesman said hospital staff have quit using it to bathe patients, but still use it to wash their hands before handling babies.

The Riverside Hospital in Ottawa stopped using hexachlorophene two years ago, and a spokesman said there has been no problem with infection during that period.

At the Civic Hospital in Ottawa, a spokesman said soap has been substituted for hexachlorophene for the last month with no increases in infection.

Dr. Paul Swyer, chief of newborn unit, at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, said hexachlorophene no longer is used routinely to bathe infants but staff uses it for hand washing.

Dr. Swyer said the Canadian Pediatric Society will issue a statement on hexachlorophene within a month.

Britain in Power Crisis

LONDON (CP) — Trafalgar Square is in darkness, theatres are without heat, most of the trains are late and Britons are drawing cold comfort from gloomy predictions that their current power crisis is going to get worse.

An electricity shortage brought on by a five-week coal miners' strike has forced the government to declare a state of emergency with drastic restrictions on power usage.

A cold war is being waged between the 280,000 miners and the nationalized collieries and Industry Minister John Davies told the Commons Friday much of Britain's major industry will be placed on half-time operation next week.

Electrical heating has been banned in offices, stores and other public premises.

Davies said the effect on employment will be "exceedingly severe and many people—perhaps millions—may be laid off." Prime Minister Edward Heath, heaping scorn on the miners, Friday night urged an immediate return to work.

Starting Monday, all major industries will have to cut power consumption by half. They will not be able to use electricity on Sunday or three other days a week.

Arrangements have already been made to assure supplies of coal get through to hospitals and homes of the aged—with the miners' co-operation.

Coal miners are among the lowest paid workers in the country. Their current take-home earnings after taxes and deductions amount to about $50 a week. They are asking for a $15 increase. The publicly-owned coal board has offered about $7.50.

Their strike means some automobile companies, as a result of the power crisis, will have to close temporarily.

Arabs Bid For Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egyptian diplomats here indicated their government might not insist that Egyptian troops cross the Suez canal if Israel made a firm commitment to withdraw to the pre-war borders within six months.

The diplomats, who cannot be identified, also said that "it would not be impossible" to have face-to-face negotiations with the Israelis if a "clear commitment" to withdraw were received.

The two points appeared to be concessions to the Israelis. Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel has repeatedly said in unmistakable terms that no Egyptian soldiers could cross the canal if Israel withdrew from the prime defence line in accordance with the United States proposal to reopen the waterway. Israel also maintains that only direct negotiations with the Arabs would produce real peace in the area.

Metro May Cut 2,000 Teachers

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto school trustees put forward a total budget Friday that might, if approved, result in the reduction of nearly 2,000 teaching positions next September.

The budget was the trustees' initial response to an Ontario government edict that Metro trim $17.3 million from its 1972 school budget. They voted to check out the effect of reducing instruction costs by $8.5 million. This would apply in September through December, and would affect both special education and regular day programs.

The six Metro area boards will figure out what this would do to their programs, and then report back to the Metro board. Metro must make a final decision by April 11.

In their effort to cut the $17.3 million, the trustees also propound five-per-cent reductions in educational services, pupil welfare, and administration and plant operations. These cutbacks will also be tested by the area boards before being made final.

James Forster, president of the Toronto district of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, said in an interview Friday that if 800 high school teachers were dismissed, there would be a sharp reduction in the number of course options, affecting the quality of education. A reduction of 1,000 would mean the loss of one in every 10 teachers.

Fraud Plan Outlined

CHICAGO (AP) — A convict has told Illinois officials investigating credit card frauds his scheme was so successful that four companies once offered to pay him to stop cheating.

"They asked me to stop defrauding them and each company would pay me $159 a week," said Edmund Bryson in videotape testimony before the Illinois legislative commission Thursday.

"I knew their operation so well that they knew they couldn't stop me, and guess they figured the $159 a week would be less than I would steal from them."

Bryson, 30, now serving a seven-year sentence in the Missouri State Penitentiary for narcotics use, said he and lived very well for seven years exclusively through the use of fraudulent credit cards.

Inventor Gets Chance

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Eddie once a whiz kid in Canada's aircraft industry, has been given another chance to get off the ground.

Mr. Jack turned 57 a week ago facing eviction from his brick bungalow in Toronto. He has not worked in two years and is practically penniless, despite his many inventions and role as a prime mover in production of the famed Canadian Mosquito fighter-bomber during the Second World War.

His plight was made known in a Canadian Press story this week and came to the attention Friday of Peter Cheeseman, executive vice-president of Mid Air Canada Ltd. of Norwich, Ont.

"If he hasn't lost any of his old inventiveness, we'll be interested in talking to him," Mr. Cheeseman said Friday.

When told of Mid Air's interest, Mr. Jack said:

"Sure I'd be interested in talking to them. What's their number, I would like to get out of Toronto."

Mr. Jack, in an interview in Toronto, said he had spent all day Friday trying to get a stay of execution of his home. His mortgage is in arrears after 16 years.

He said the publicity has brought him five other job offers so far and he will check them out. They are in and around Toronto.

The shape of things to come.

Prediction:
The Volkswagen Beetle will be around for years to come.

Prediction:
Someone else somewhere will introduce a new economy car and there will be lots of excitement.

Prediction:
The excitement will die down.

Prediction:
As in the past, people who own old Volkswagens will trade them in for new Volkswagens because (we guess) they like Volkswagens.

Prediction:
Our engineers will continue to improve the way the Volkswagen works and our stylists will continue to be frustrated.

Prediction:
Sometime in 1972, the Beetle will become the most popular single model automobile ever made, bypassing the Model T Ford with production of over 15 million vehicles.

Prediction:
We won't let that last prediction go to our heads.

Strike, Clouds Ground Planes

By The Canadian Press

Hundreds of passengers faced major delays in flights today as Canada's two largest airports reduced service because of a strike by airport technicians and overcast weather that limited visibility.

Toronto International Airport imposed a limitation of inbound traffic to six aircraft an hour compared with the normal 30. And a spokesman said passengers could expect delays of at least 45 minutes for departing flights.

Three flights were cancelled this morning at Montreal International Airport.

Complicating the picture was a heavy overcast over both airports. Airlines were unable to land and take off under visual flight rules and needed help from the sophisticated electronic equipment maintained by the technicians.

The 2,200 workers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, were voting today across the country on a new government settlement offer, but early indications were that the proposal would be turned down.

Technicians in British Columbia and Edmonton both rejected the offer as results were announced Sunday and a local spokesman in Gander said strikers in his region would also likely turn it down.

However, union officials said it would probably be late Thursday before the results could be totalled for the 1,200 union members in 400 working locations.

The principal issue is pay. The average salary of the technicians is about $10,000 and they want a 15.5-per-cent increase.

In Montreal Sunday, an Air Canada spokesman said operations had "slipped below the minimum safety at which we feel we can continue to operate."

He said about 30 flights had to be cancelled, 15 of them Toronto bound.

The public weather office said a combination of rain and snow was falling and five inches of snow was expected during the night.

"Normally we have about 220 flight movements on a Sunday night, but it looks like only about 50 tonight," said the Air Canada spokesman.

In Toronto, a supervisor in the airport control tower said a shortage of operating electronic equipment and a total failure of radar aided the slow-down.

He said planes, during one time in the afternoon, were stacked 1,000-feet apart in elevation and that some planes had to circle above the airport for two hours without radar.

He stressed however that there "was absolutely no safety risk" in stacking in this manner.

"It is just an extremely tiring procedure for the pilots and a strain on the controllers," he said. "It is slower than ordinary procedures, but not more dangerous."

Nixon Explains

Robert Nixon holds an impromptu news conference Saturday to tell newsmen he is resigning as Ontario Liberal party leader because the last two provincial elections have shown that "my particular qualities do not precisely fill the bill." Arabs Hack Holes In Wailing Wall

JERUSALEM (AP) — Four small holes hacked into the Wailing Wall—the world's most revered shrine for Jews—ignited angry religious protests Sunday in Jerusalem.

The holes, six inches deep, were cut into the ancient stones by Arab workmen trying to prop up two tottering houses built atop the wall. The workmen were reported following plans for the Israeli municipal engineer of Jerusalem.

Israeli rabbis were furious at what they called desecration and profaning of the wall, which stands over the remains of the Temple of King Solomon. Leaflets called for a prayer protest.

The Supreme Religious Council filed a protest and Prime Minister Golda Meir formed a special investigative committee.

The holes were not meant as a profaning and no religious disrespect was intended, engineers in charge protested.

The slots, measuring four inches by one foot each on the outside, were cut Friday into the north end of the wall, about 120 yards from the open plaza where Jews from around the world flock to pray.

Merchant Navy Seen Big Asset

OTTAWA (CP) — The government should act immediately to set up a Canadian-flag merchant marine, the Canadian Labor Congress maritime committee said today in a brief to the federal cabinet.

The brief did not rule out private ownership of a new merchant fleet but said operation should be through a Crown corporation.

"A Canadian merchant fleet would add to the net benefits of Canada," the committee, representing maritime unions affiliated with the CLC, said in the brief to a cabinet delegation headed by Transport Minister Don Jamieson.

"It would alleviate the heavy burden of unemployment. There is no justification for further delay. We should establish a Canadian-flag fleet now."

The committee suggested a publicly-owned merchantman fleet would require fewer financial incentives than a privately-owned one and could be competitive even on routes which would be only marginally attractive to private firms.

Government assistance to shipbuilding has helped improve the situation in Canadian yards in the last couple of years, the committee brief said. The yards had become more aggressive in seeking new business.

Canadian coastal trade should be reserved for Canadian-flag vessels with use of non-Canadian ships allowed only where suitable Canadian vessels are unavailable.

This policy should be combined with one aimed at replacing such foreign ships with Canadian vessels and requiring foreign ships to pay Canadian wages while engaged in Canadian coastal trade.

Doctors Reject Heroin Ration

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Medical Association has sharply rejected the LeDain commission's proposal that heroin be used legally to treat addicts because the chances of abuse are too great.

The association, in formal reaction today to the Jan. 29 LeDain report, rejected as unfair the commission's contention that the medical profession has not freed the drug problem squarely.

Doctors and hospitals are making rapid strides in meeting problems that had spurred suddenly upon not only the medical profession but the whole of society, the association said.

It said Part I of the LeDain report includes a fair start on a detoxification guide. The commission under Dean Gerald LeDain of Osgoode Hall Law School, Toronto, was established by the federal government.

The association recommended that the LeDain report, with correction of some errors, "be distributed to all members of the medical profession, hospital emergency departments, street clinics and other facilities and health-care personnel."

The statement by Dr. H. D. Roberts of St. John's, Nfld., CMA president was accompanied by a formal policy statement on non-medical use of drugs.

The policy statement noted an "alarming rise" in the last year of drug related hepatitis and venereal disease cases; said heroin and methadone are poor substitutes, especially in border cities; and expressed concern at "apparent permissive and excessive prescribing of methadone by some private doctors."

The CMA recommended "a voluntary professional restriction of prescribing of methadone," in which doctors would refer heroin addicts only to specialists for methadone treatment.

It endorsed the LeDain proposal that stringent Food and Drug Act regulations on methadone be enacted and said the government should move fast to do this.

Methadone is an artificial opium that is effective but blocks heroin craving and has less serious side effects. It has been used extensively to treat some heroin addicts with success.

U.S. Probe May Ease 'Pot' Laws

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times reports the national commission on marijuana and drug abuse will recommend March 22 that all criminal penalties for possession of marijuana be eliminated.

The commission chairman, Governor Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania, declined to comment.

"I have said before that I would not comment until the report is officially released," he said. "I think it's rather unfair to have all this speculation."

The same attitude was taken by others of the 13-member commission, nine of whom were appointed by President Nixon.

The Times says the commission has decided one of the drug should be virtually "decriminalized" except for growing it. Penalties would be left in public or giving it to friends.

The report, however, said it found no beneficial effects and will recommend against its use.

Drugs Seized In Joyceville

KINGSTON (CP — RCMP were conferring with Joyceville institution officials today to determine what charges should be laid following the seizure of drugs from the cells of prisoners last week.

Peaceful March Held By Ulster Catholics

BELFAST (AP) — Four thousand Roman Catholics staged another illegal but peaceful march in Northern Ireland Sunday to demand immediate withdrawal of British troops from Ulster, abolition of the Stormont parliament and a halt to the jailing of suspected guerrilla suspects without trial.

Troops and police did not interfere with the march in Enniskillen, a lakeside resort town 65 miles southwest of Belfast, and the Catholics made it a short one.

Then they held a rally at which speakers rejected a committee that reports from London say the British government is considering. It would include a Cath-lic as deputy prime minister of Northern Ireland and a quota of Catholics in the Ulster cabinet.

Kevin Agnew, vice-president of the Catholic-based Civil Rights Association, said prominent Catholic politicians would shun e position in the Ulster cabinet.

The rally ostensibly was scheduled for the centre of Enniskillen, but the marchers moved back to a housing project in another part of town after encountering barricades thrown up by British troops.

It was the second peaceful demonstration in as many Sundays after the Jan 30 "Bloody Sunday" march in Londonderry in which British paratroops killed 13 civilians.

In Dublin, capital of the Irish Republic, 10 000 persons flocked to a rally featuring Irish Republican Army leaders Joe Cahill and Sean MacStiofan. That rally also was peaceful.

Luna Launched From Satellite

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government launched another unmanned spaceship — Luna 20 — toward the moon today, Tass announced.

The official Soviet news agency said it was sent up for further exploration of the moon and near-lunar space.

Luna 20 was shot toward the moon from an artificial satellite orbiting the earth, Tass said.

There was no indication of when it was shot would try a soft landing.

Two previous moon missions — Luna 16 and Luna 17 — made successful soft landings in 1970.

Luna 16 was the first unmanned craft to land on the moon and return to earth with lunar samples. Luna 17 landed the Lunokhod 1 moon rover, and the eight-wheel vehicle carried out reconnaissance missions.

It's alright. It's one of ours.

Thousands of Britons Made Jobless by Coal Miners' Strike

LONDON (AP) — Electric power cuts brought on by Britain's coal strike threw thousands out of work today.

St. Valentine's Day became "Misery Monday" across the country. The stock market plummeted and the value of the pound sterling dropped.

The Opposition Labor party prepared a motion of censure in the House of Commons against the Conservative government.

The government warned of a possible total shutdown in two weeks if the strike of mineworkers doesn't end.

Violent clashes between picketing mineworkers and police broke out in a number of points in England Scotland.

Rail services around London and other industrial centres were disrupted. Thousands arrived at their offices to be told to go home because of power cuts in sector after sector.

The picture in industry was confused but it was clear that thousands were laid off as factories went on a government-decreed half-time operation.

Hardest hit was the state-owned British Steel giant, which laid off 5,000 workers, and the motor firms, Britain's biggest export industry. Jaguar motors halted all production at its Coventry plant and sent 2,500 home. Triumph motors laid off 2,400. Rovers halted all car production. The company said all of its 14,000 workers will be affected some time during the week.

Nine plants of Joseph Lucas, makers of car batteries and other parts, closed, throwing 13,000 production workers out of jobs. A spokesman said the rest of the firm's 21,000 employees will be hit progressively.

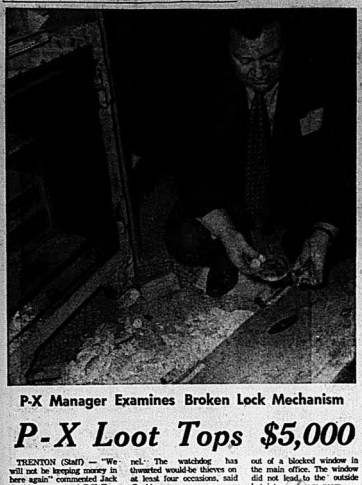
More than 70,000 schoolchildren were sent home in South Wales because of the lack of power to heat and light the schools.

Picketing mineworkers battled 120 policemen at Bridgewater, a southwest England port, when a German vessel landed 800 tons of coal for industrial plants in the Midlands. Police succeeded in escorting a convoy of trucks through the angry crowds of pickets to get the coal away from the wharf.

And at Longannet in Scotland more than a dozen pickets were arrested and three policemen injured in a battle to force the closure of a power station at the Fifeshire town.

Up to one-third of the country's 24 million workers were threatened with losing their jobs, at least temporarily. For all it was a day of dark, cold homes, coal canals and delays or cancellations of electric commuter trains as the power was cut off in rotation for varying periods around the nation.

Trade and Industry Minister John Davies said that the miners were "holding the country to ransom" and warned that the country could come to a standstill.



"Within two weeks or so, at the present rate of run-down, virtually all domestic and industrial supplies will be cut off more or less the whole time," he said. "We would be moving into a situation here we could not be sure of maintaining the essential services."

However, Britain has 44 oil, nuclear, natural gas and hydroelectric power stations that can meet approximately 25 per cent of the country's demand and keep most essential services operating. The government could also order the army to move available coal supplies into generating plants.

With the strike in its sixth week, a committee headed by Lord Wilberforce starts hearings on the strike issues Thursday. It says it hopes to have recommendations for a settlement ready by Friday.

Leaders of the 280,000 strikers said the recommendations could be put to a vote in 48 hours. This means the strike could be over next week if the recommendations were acceptable. But union leader Lawrence Daly warned: "The miners are determined to continue their strike action until the government and the coal board see reason."

If handwriting is truly a key to character, Doris Campbell has a treasure of clues to chapters of modern history.

Mrs. Campbell is possessor of a singular collection of handwriting specimens — autographs of the great and near-great whose personalities were celebrated at one time or another over three decades.

A veritable grab-bag of famed identities, the signatures include such history - making contributors as Montgomery of Alamein, Lord Mountbatten, Wilfred Grenfell of Labrador missionary fame.

Then there are the celebrities — ranging all the way from famed conductor Thomas Beecham to Mae West; sports greats — from Jack Dempsey to Joe Louis to Maurice Richard.

Mrs. Campbell, a widow and apartment dweller at 44 Benjamin Street, believes the collection is unique. There's only one problem: She isn't quite sure what to do with it.

She would, she believes sell it — if certain the purchaser would treasure it as much as she does.

There's a hint of sentiment in her statement — and with good reason.

The collection, which includes masses of signed photographs along with autograph books and contemporary news clippings on the personalities involved, was the painstaking work of her father-in-law, a project that preoccupied him for nearly three decades.

John Campbell, a Scotsman who settled in the Montreal area — apparently started the collection back in the late 1930s as a diversion for his wife, unexpectedly invalided in a fall.

From what Mrs. Campbell says, and the collection seems to support, her father-in-law must have been one of the most intrepid autograph hunters of all time.

He contacted and personally approached hundreds of personalities in his hunt for signatures.

"He was persistent in getting autographs — even when first refused," recalled Mrs. Campbell.

From revolutionaries like Tito to royalty, including Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands; from George Bernard Shaw, Rachmaninoff, Eleanor Roosevelt — the names kept coming in a steady trickle over the years.

The collection didn't discriminate to the famous. One specimen is signed Mrs. Ellen Carroll, a Newfoundlander who penned it at 114 years of age as the oldest woman in the British Empire. Another signature was that of W. P. Hitler, whose uncle turned out to be the monstrous Adolf.

There's a photograph of the Dionne quintuplets, signed by the doctor who delivered them Allan Dafoe. There are photographs from U.S. ace Eddie Rickenbacker, from John Barrymore, even Christine Jorgensen — the most widely-publicized sex transformation in history.

Just before he ceased collecting on his wife's death, John Campbell had the satisfaction of seeing the results of his work go on public exhibition in Montreal. He himself died 10 years ago, and the collection passed onto his son, Gilbert, husband of Mrs. Campbell.

When her husband died Mrs. Campbell two years ago moved to Belleville — where she had spent much of her childhood.

With her came the suitcase, containing much of her father-in-law's collection. (Part of it she gave to a nephew in Montreal.)

She kept a token stock of it until recently. Then she decided to sort the books, the signatures, the clippings, the photographs.

"Isn't it such a good collection!" she says looking up from the personality-on-paper mound piled on her living room table, "If only I knew what to do with it. . .

New Stamps to Be Costly

For the first time since the Queen Victoria Jubilee Issue of 1897, the post office will be releasing $2 regular issue stamps, as well as a new $1 definite issue. The theme of these designs is the urbanization of Canada, illustrated by modern and historic city skylines.

The new multi-colored horizontal stamps will be larger than current high value definitives released as a series in 1967. They will measure 48 mm. by 30 mm.

To be released March 17, they will replace the present high value $1 issue.

For philatelists who specialize in collecting plate block corners, this announcement is an expensive one. Retained only from the philatelic branch of the post office, these special stamp sheet corners bearing printers' inscriptions, were available at regular post offices until 1956, when they were discontinued. Postal clerks were often harrassed by collectors who made continuous demands for quantities of the special corners. Most collectors purchase four stamp blocks for each corner . . . a total of 16 stamps. Under the pre-1956 system, not all corners were available at one post office and philatelists would travel around town in an attempt to obtain complete sets.

At $3 and $1-each, a set of the new definitives will face collectors with an expense of $48.

Cottage Building Permits Halted

AMELIASBURG (Special) — Township building inspector Harry Bleaker has been advised to stop issuing permits for the cottage subdivision, designated registered plan 24, west of Gerrieville until further notice.

Council agreed Wednesday the ban would be lifted when the subdividers improved roads in the development in accordance with the agreement with the municipality.

The subdivision, comprising 55 lots along the northern shore of Wellers Bay, is property belonging to the Hancock Lumber company previous to incorporation into a real estate enterprise.

Council was told that the neighboring township of Sophiasburg expects to have its own fire protection by March 15. The decision to continue to extend protection to Sophiasburg in the meantime received unanimous agreement.

The new man to act as supervisor of the disposal area (dump) is Ed Cannons of RR 1 Consecon. He starts on the job February 15. He's being paid an hourly rate for 20 hours a week.

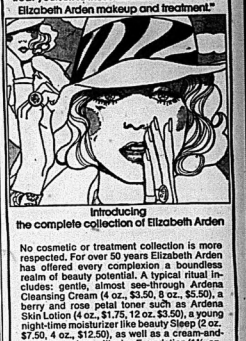
After the middle of the month, the facility will be open to the public three days a week as follows: Tuesdays and Thursdays — 12 noon to 6 p.m., Saturdays 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The proposal to provide a building for township machinery prompted considerable discussion and as a result, clerk William Nightingale was instructed to contact an architect in connection with drawing up plans.

Nursing School Opening Set

A spokesman for the Belleville General Hospital has given assurances that the new $1.4 million Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing residence and school addition will be completed by the end of this month.

John Kunetsky, hospital administrator, said the ultra-modern facility was to have opened its doors originally in September of last year. However, "the usual type of 'delays" have prevented this. The completion date was set further and further ahead, as each week went by.



By the end of the year, hospital officials were naming January 1 as the completion date. However, this too, was postponed.

Mr. Kunetsky says there is "little work to be done now." The residence and school will be open by the "end of this month for sure."

Part of the problem rests with delay in the contractor and sub-contractors receiving materials. There is neither a penalty nor a bonus clause in the contract.

Medical Needs

A coming inquiry into the operation of Brockville general hospital represents one more piece in the jigsaw that is the health service in Ontario and which Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter hopes to piece together into a more efficient whole.

The inquiry has been scheduled following indications of dissatisfaction with the administration of the hospital among doctors and nursing staff. One charge is that the hospital board is composed largely of executives from business and industry, and consequently is insufficiently representative of the population. The attitude of the hospital operation itself is being questioned.

Brockville incidentally, has two hospitals, although it has little more than half the population of Belleville. The other is the Mount St. Paul located not far distant from the General and this duplication of services is one of the problems which Dr. Potter feels must be tackled in Ontario.

In a recent interview in Toronto, the Belleville physician (he has given up full-time medical practice for politics) said: "We have got to find more efficient and economical ways of caring for hospital patients," noting that one method might be to centralize hospitals to avoid duplication of services. He said more than one hospital in Toronto performs heart transplants when one might suffice. And in Sault Ste. Marie, for example, there are two hospitals 100 yards apart which for the most part provide duplicate services.

The potential then for improvement of hospital and health services generally is enormous. In contemplating centralization there may be the same danger as that which stems from regional government and centralization of school services: a loss for example of local autonomy, sometimes too the closing down of this or that facility and longer distances to travel by those deprived of local services. With this reservation, there is indeed ample room for improvement of the service generally. Certainly we do not envisage hospitals being closed, only a streamlining of facilities; and where there are two hospitals, one complementing the other. Members of the public can play their part by seeking medical advice or treatment only if they are in real need of it.

That Autobiography

The saga of Howard Hughes and his "autobiography," ghost-written, computerized or however it got into print, and inexorably bound with the mysterious capers of author Clifford Irving, his wife Edith, and friend Nina van Pallandt, a Dane with a cultured English accent, is beginning to lose its appeal.

Indeed it is becoming a bore, in much the same way as the Munsinger spy affair in Canada nearly a decade ago. It has built up to the same sort of fever pitch — and on a wider international stage at that — only to suffer the same damp squib decline in public interest.

The whole truth likely will never be known. Like those UFOs it is always just out of reach. What is already known of the affair does little to titillate the imagination and because it is impossible to know what to believe it is all just so much chaffade, and consequently suspect.

The principals moreover in this jet-set affair are becoming as tiresome as the story — or should we say fairy tale — they are acting out.

About the only thing that might arouse our continued interest at this stage would be evidence of Howard Hughes in the flesh — alive and with his version of his "autobiography."

Now we have Life magazine saying the autobiography is a fake and washing its hands of plans to serialize it. We may be certain though that before long some journal or other will come up with something like this: "Now it can be told — the real story behind the Howard Hughes autobiography."

In A Stew

Today's cartoon of Prime Minister Heath In an "Irish stew" reminds us of a cartoon in Punch some years ago. It depicted the legendary Eamonn de Valera, at 89 still President of the Irish republic, and the caption was: "Spanish onion in the Irish stew." Mr. de Valera was born in New York of a Spanish father and Irish mother. He was active in Irish revolutionary activities during the Easter rising in Dublin in 1916 and was once under sentence of death by the British. In more recent times he was a bombastic figure for many years as Prime Minister of the republic.

On Being Power-hungry in Ottawa

How an Aspiring Politician Greases the Wheel

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It is pathetic the way they stand around, hoping against hope.

The lean and hungry ambitious Liberal backbenchers, so ravenous for cabinet recognition they can taste it.

Happens every time rumors start floating out of the East Block — usually and cunningly inspired by the Prime Minister — that a cabinet shuffle is in the Commons air.

It is always the same with any prime minister. Mackenzie King, Louis St. Laurent, John Diefenbaker, Lester Pearson and now Pierre Trudeau.

They have all been plagued by their backbenchers.

Plagued by some because lacking ambition and the will to work, they have only to ask for nothing, and do nothing.

Dead losses these.

But if a backbencher is ambitious, he can't help but work, make speeches in and out of the House, attend Commons Committees, get into the caucus action, jump on the government during the Daily Question Period and, backbenchers is ambitious.

He wants something.

Usually appointment first as a parliamentary secretary to a minister and then, if he can properly polish the prime ministerial apples, to the cabinet itself.

These are the men to watch.

They are the entertaining ones in their plots and schemes, plans and conspiracies and their various ingenious, inventive and even devious ways to make it to one of those 30 chairs around the immense oval table in the East Block's Privy Council Chamber.

The standard practice, when it is cabinet shuffling time on Parliament Hill, is to appear not merely willing but just anxiously available, but confidently expectant.

The backbencher eaten by ambition often thinks he can talk himself into the inner circle.

He lobbies parliamentary crities, pressures a friendly member of the cabinet, plants newspaper and radio-TV "news" rumors that he is in line. This is the "inside track" strategy.

That strategy fails, so he becomes carefully critical of the government, picking his spots, watching his timing in the hope that to shut him up the Prime Minister may give him the appointment. This is the "greasy wheel" technique.

It does not work, so next time he lets it be known, usually loud and clear on the front pages, that he has just about had it, and if he does not get that appointment then he is going home. This is the "pick up your marbles" theory.

And sometimes it works.

Like with former Liberal Fisheries Minister James Sinclair, now the Prime Minister's father-in-law.

When he first came to Ottawa after the 1949 election, as a bright young man and a promising Liberal freshman, he got to lead off the Throne Speech Debate.

He wound it up laying it on the government with the warning that if it continued to give the back-batter, uncaring ways it could lose the war.

Mackenzie King never forgave him for that.

But prime ministers change, if you wait long enough, and along came Louis St. Laurent. After a decent display of patience, Jimmy Sinclair announced that since he was not going to make the cabinet, then that was it. And he left for Vancouver. The pressure worked, and presto, he returned to Ottawa as a cabinet minister.

Then there was the Commons Speaker who wanted out of the House and into the Senate and literally camped on St. Laurent's office doorstep in supplication, even resorting to the sneeze to soften the Prime Minister's heart.

More recently there was the ambition of Hamilton MP Lincoln Alexander, who successfully sulked in front of the cabinet bopes and emerged in triumph as Manpower Minister. Munro after three impatient years in the wings as a parliamentary secretary, Now Health and Welfare Minister, and at a young 40, still going places in the Power Elite.

But in the first place, the anti did the cabinet trick.

Wondrous are the ways of the politician on the make.

Canada's "Barbaric" Treatment of Alcoholics

Ottawa Journal

How many alcoholics there are in Canada is anyone's guess certainly a great deal more than the 21,000 members of Alcoholics Anonymous. The Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario has estimated that 617,000 Canadians — about 5.45 per cent of the drinking population — consume a "hazardous" amount (3½ ounces, about five social drinks) of absolute alcohol per day.

In 1969 there were 905 Canadian deaths attributed to alcoholism; between 1950 and 1968 the deaths in Canada due to alcoholism increased by 74.8 per cent for males and 101.4 per cent for females. The life expectancy of an alcoholic is 10 to 12 years less than average.

Canada's treatment of alcoholism, save for AA and a few scattered clinics, is appallingly barbaric. Though we have in recent years come to see it more as the sickness it is, there are close to 100,000 jail sentences served in this country every year for public intoxication — still considered an "offence" under the law. The Canadian Corrections Association estimates that the cost of detaining public inebriates is $150 million so much the public alcoholics who appear in the daily lineups in our courts as it is those on higher social and economic scales — the people who neither seem to be nor admit to being alcoholics, yet are a burden on their daily doses of alcohol as is the worst "wino."

It may be that nothing can be done to help those over-indulging "social" drinkers until our society breaks its pattern of social values; the 80 per cent of the population over 15 that drinks liquor tends to have a closed mind about its hazards. Perhaps the major need is for society as a whole to regard the heavy drinker as much a danger to himself as is the narcotics user.

Some steps are being taken: Ontario's program of replacing "drunk tanks" with detoxification centres, the scattered halfway houses and clinics spread across the country are beginning. Yet more and better methods of identifying and treating alcoholics is needed. One of the great disappointments of the first volume of the Le Dain report was its lack of new ideas for dealing with alcoholism. The country will have to look elsewhere for guidance on how best to deal with its number one drug problem.

Parliamentary Program Their Responsibility

Commons Chaos Likely Without House Leaders

By FARMER TISSINGTON

OTTAWA — Many who follow the affairs of the House of Commons are probably unaware of the importance and influence that a group of four men has on its operations.

I am referring to the four house leaders of our political parties. These men have taken on an increasingly active role, but it is a role which is not fully understood.

In recent years the Commons has been finding it increasingly difficult to cope with all the business that is placed before it. Barely does the government manage to get through all the planned legislation within the time limit of a parliamentary session. The opposition parties are accused of deliberately holding up the business for political purposes. They, in turn, accuse the government party of being incapable of properly managing the business affairs.

Without the gradual development of the house leader system in the Commons, the situation would be much worse than it is and utter chaos would probably result. The formal and informal meetings of these four men have saved the Commons untold hours of debate and have resulted in agreements on the passage of a great deal of legislation.

The house leader system got its start in England when Canada has expanded and improved on the tradition. Years ago the British prime minister was not always a member of the Commons, but sat in the Lords. This meant he needed someone to speak for him and the government in the Commons.

In Canada, only the government party appointed a house leader at the start and the idea of each of the opposition parties also appointing someone to such a post is a comparatively recent innovation.

Gerald Baldwin, the present Conservative house leader, explains that the idea of such appointments rose because of the need to have a representative from each party who could get together for casual, unofficial and suddenly arranged discussions. These discussions cover such matters as the government's intentions on bringing in legislation, how to expedite the planning and handling of the Commons' work and, sometimes, agreeing on limitation on the length of debates.

"Sometimes we can get together for a two-minute meeting behind the Speaker's chair in the Commons and iron out a problem which otherwise would tie-up the Commons in debate for hours," Mr. Baldwin says.

The present government house leader is Allan MacEachen, who is president of the Privy Council. He tries to hold regular meetings of house leaders during the session to alert the other parts of the government's plans for bringing in legislation. Sometimes, if a particular cabinet minister or a spokesman for another party is away for a few days, arrangements will be made to postpone debate on certain bills until these people return to the house.

House leaders are in an unusual position. While wanting to reach agreements with the government in order to speed up parliamentary business, they must always be conscious of their own party's desires and not come to any decisions which will hurt their party politically.

A house leader has to keep his party to a course of action unless he has been given authority or instructions otherwise from his caucus. But a good house leader can, by explaining what his party's position is likely to be in a given situation.

The New Democrats have had only one house leader since such appointments started 10 or 12 years ago. He is Stanley Knowles, who also doubles as the party whip.

"The house leader system has grown like Topsy," Mr. Baldwin recalls. "There is nothing in our rules that mentions house leaders as such. The closest is a reference to representatives of the parties."

He believes the importance of the role of house leaders is growing steadily but admits their success depends largely on the personalities of the men who hold the appointments. In the past, some house leaders on both the government and opposition sides have tended to be abrasive and few agreements were reached. At present, things work much more smoothly and the four, including Andre Fortin of the Social Credit party, seem to get along as well as it is possible members of competing political parties could be expected to.

"We don't have any minutes of our meetings and there are no formal votes. Sometimes a series of phone calls between us will do the trick. It's a loose, casual system, but it seems to function well and the Commons and the country are better off because of house development," Mr. Knowles says.

Farm Holiday Program Had A Very Poor Year

Hamilton Spectator

Ontario's 1971 farm holiday program was generally an unmitigated disaster but the idea is nevertheless too valuable to drop. Only three of the more than 50,000 eligible Ontario farmers took advantage of grants to develop tourist accommodations and relatively few people spent their vacations on farms.

It would be well worth the provincial government's time to find out what went wrong because farm vacations offer enormous economic and social potential for rural and urban Ontario.

We maintain that something is wrong because farm vacations are big and highly successful enterprises in other countries — the United States, United Kingdom and Eire, for example. In Denmark, with some of the most scenic and interesting farmlands in the world, only some 7% farms are harvesting the tourist crop.

The holiday trade isn't just a matter of farmers cultivating extra income and exploiting a relatively untapped resource for the tourist industry.

The couple of weeks of farm living offer city families total escape from the pressure, hurry, dirt, noise and crowding that are the prices men pay for the amenities of urban existence. For children of the city, farm life can be the happiest of adventures as well as an education.

In other words, farms can give Ontario's people the same kind of relaxation, relief and intimate relationship with nature as a park or summer cottage, perhaps more than many of the teeming, noisy resorts can give.

The government should not be thinking in terms merely of agricultural and tourism promotion machinery to convey to farm and city folk the immense potential of a farm holiday program.

78 Performers in Lil Abner

By THOM REYNOLDS
Special Correspondent

There's going to be a big race next week in Dogpatch, USA, as Daisy Mae tries to catch Abner in a two-act comedy-musical. Lil Abner to be presented at Centennial Secondary School.

Lil Abner will feature 78 performing students from the school as it goes on stage Wednesday night and runs through to Saturday night. The program will list over 200 names of people who helped to put the play together.

The play, written by Norman Panama and Melvin Frank and based on the characters of Al Capp, is a two-act musical comedy which will last 2½ hours.

The dialogue and musical portions of the play are divided quite evenly. In the play there are 17 musical selections being played by the 20 piece band of the school and directed by Monty Zimmerman.

Choreographer of Dogpatchers, which makes up a large portion of the play is directed by Murray Irwin, vice-principal of the school. One problem that was encountered but was fun was that most of the performers had no or little singing practice and many of them had to sing in the chorus or duets or solos.

The chorus started rehearsals during the first month of the year. The limited quantity of stores and music and the expense of renting them from Francis and Whitman's Music House in New York made another problem that the play has been faced with.

The lyrics for Li'l Abner were written by Johnny Mercer while the music was composed by Gene dePaul.

Lighting, sound, special effects, and curtains will be handled by the technical service club headed by Vince Prever of the school. Lighting and sound utilizes equipment from the school and the Hastings County Board of Education. Sound effects such as ducks and geese were obtained from the Ontario Humane Society Shelter.

The building of props for the play has been carried out by the boys from the technical department of the school. The props requires very few props, so little construction was needed. Construction was handled by Jim Bowes. The painting was supervised by Fred Riemersma, both teachers at the school. Three main props are required for the play, the Mammy and Pappy Yokum cabin, a computer, and a statue of a man on a horse.

Many incidental props are needed in the play. These are hard to collect as the pieces needed for the hillbilly times are old. Students from the play have been bringing items in during the past week.

"Many people are used in the play but many have small roles but they are a very important part in the play," said Miss Arndt. It is important that the people who are not saying any parts but are on stage look natural. The play contains scenes where the stage is filled with many performers known as the Dogpatchers. The play has many roles in the play and one problem is that each person has only the written part they are going to perform.

The costume for the players are being donated by students and some will be made in the Home Economics Department of the school. Miss Arndt noted that "the way clothes are today, we don't have to do too much." Work shirts and jeans with patches are the main pieces of clothing needed.

Directors of the play are Miss L. Arndt and Gordon Taylor, English teachers at the school.

The main principles of the play are Abner and Daisy Mae. Abner is played by Ron Hall, while Daisy Mae by Linda Walker. Mammy Yokum, the little old hillbilly woman with the pigeon toes and pipe is played by Meredith Rowe and Pappy Yokum by Stanley Weeks. Two other principle actors in the play are Marryme Sam, played by Dan King and Earthquake McGoon, played by Bevin Clarke.

The whole story about the Sadie Hawkins Day Race with Daisy Mae trying to catch Abner and the evacuation of Dogpatch, USA, by government men in hillbilly times will all be brought into full view on the stage of Centennial's auditorium on Wednesday night and will run through to Saturday evening. Tickets for the play are $1.

Emotion Runs Deep in Dogpatch

Crooked Teeth Benefit From Early Correction

Children with crooked teeth often find it difficult to cope with the juvenile teasing their peculiarity invites. Like those with protruding ears or glasses, they respond to the embarrassment in a variety of ways, usually ranging from resentment or hostility to outright withdrawal.

But for some, a disfiguring mouth can have more serious consequences. The odd child may be using it as a handy excuse to conceal deep-rooted personality problems, problems which could result in psychological crises later in life.

The possibility of underlying conflicts is just one of many important reasons why Dr. Barton Pickering, a Picton orthodontist, stresses prompt action when the dentist recommends serious dental counselling. He maintains that children needing braces or other oral hardware should visit an orthodontist before they reach the age of 10. Beyond then, a whole new set of problems could easily arise.

Dr. Pickering was voicing opinions held by the majority of orthodontists across Canada. He is one of many dental authorities who played an active role in Dental Health Week.

The psychological implications of crooked teeth are usually taken for granted by parents. "Johnny will get over it" is the common reaction, whether or not they decide to proceed with treatment.

But what of the child who is losing his teeth as a result?

"They're obviously not the problem, if, two or three years after the completion of treatment, the child is still rejected or shy or not making friends. Then the child needs psychological counselling — and the parents could be just about anything."

He discussed the situation from the patient's point of view.

"We have taken away the child's excuse for not getting along. Now he has to face up to the problem, and that can be harder than anything before."

Orthodontists receive a smattering of psychology during training but problem children usually must be referred to as qualified consultant.

"Ideally," says Dr. Pickering, "all children would have corrective therapy before they come to the orthodontist, but that would be impractical. Fortunately there aren't many problem kids."

There are other reasons for early treatment. Time, for instance, becomes a liability among high school patients who do not wish to forego precious after-school hours every three or four weeks for the period of years that treatment often requires.

Then, too, children become more aware of their appearance as they grow older, flaring a mouth cluttered with braces would be disastrous to some self-conscious teens.

Another, less obvious factor is the success ratio among pre-18-year-olds. Results will likely prove more successful in this age group than if treatment is delayed.

Dr. Pickering also advises that there are a number of different philosophies of treatment among orthodontists.

"Some," he says, "require an earlier start than others."

What frightens many otherwise concerned parents is the high cost involved in straightening teeth. They wonder whether doctors are justified in charging so much.

"A fair sense of values must be applied," says Dr. Pickering. "Many people will spend as much or more on snowmobiles, color TVs or second cars without a murmur of protest. What do you consider the most important?"

"The correction of a disfiguring malocclusion (over or underbite) could be a comparatively small investment in a patient's future."

The lengthy treatment period tends to exaggerate cost. Parents should also realize that the orthodontist is a specialist, having studied his craft for a minimum of eight years at the university level. Most problems require the ultimate in precision engineering, and anyone capable of prescribing a responsible treatment plan must be highly trained and experienced.

A point often misunderstood is the variety of courses available for rehabilitation.

"Not all problems require the most expensive program of treatment," comments Dr. [illegible] "There are a number of different ways to treat any one given problem, with a corresponding variety of fee levels. The parent and doctor should agree on one."

He also cautions against believing everything one hears from friends and acquaintances.

"It is quite human to try to justify not proceeding with treatment by claiming an exaggerated cost factor."

That age-old problem of thumbsucking children is also witnessed regularly by orthodontists. Most advocate rubber pacifiers as good substitutes for the thumb.

It is important to realize that not all thumb suckers are destined to have protruding front teeth.

"Duration of the habit and the presence or absence of many other predisposing factors are involved," says the doctor. "Many protrusions are blamed on thumb sucking when the truth may be that the problem would develop whether or not there was a sucking habit."

A good safeguard against crooked teeth is extra special care of the first set of baby teeth. If lost prematurely from the back of the mouth, space maintainers should be inserted until the new teeth are ready to come in.

There are many benefits to orthodontal treatment, all of which should be considered by pondering parents. Appearance would seem to be the most obvious, since we all know the desirability of an attractive countenance.

A youngster will also receive the assurance of healthier teeth and gums. Better chewing ability will make mealtimes more rewarding experiences.

There's a great deal involved when deciding whether or not to proceed with oral treatment. But all parents should remember that it is they who decide the shape their child's mouth will take, a responsibility not to be taken lightly.

Thomasburg Youth Hurt in Collision

TWEED (Special) — A 19-year-old Thomasburg youth is in Belleville General Hospital with head injuries following a one - car accident on Martin's Hill Saturday night.

Chinese-style Fashions Are Prominent for Spring

NEW YORK (CP) — The great interest in China has naturally spilled over into fashion. It started last fall with a few flickers. Now, as the fashion showings have several, commentators noted that the spring slogan is not Go West, for cowboy adaptations, but Look East, for new influences.

The oriental look is one of the two dominant spring themes. The other is the nautical.

Not all designers have succumbed to the Eastern affair, of course, but most have included at least a Mao collar or Chinese peasant smock. And the slim pants and narrow tunic of the Chinese women are just a fashion step away from our modern pant suit. Colors have oriental names too, as lacquer red, Jade, Ming blue and so on.

Oscar de la Renta is particularly fond of this oriental look, but "not folkloric," he says. He went on to say what the oriental influence really should be: "The Chinese effect of loose sleeves, Manchu and Mandarin shapes, side fastenings, Mandarin embroideries and borders and Ming colors is meant to highlight a wardrobe the way beautiful oriental objects blend into a contemporary setting."

In other words, don't overdo it. Add just one touch. De la Renta liked a bamboo shade and used quite a lot of silks imported from China.

Donald Brooks said he was vaguely influenced by the China furore. This showed up in his Mao collars, a slim Mandarin dress and a crop jacketed Mandarin suit. His chinese sleeves are also slightly oriental but mostly his oriental interest appeared in prints. A wool coat was in a kite pattern, taken from the actual Chinese patterns from which kites are cut.

One of his most beautiful prints in a cotton dress was based on mother-of-pearl inlay on a teak screen. In his sports collection, he included a floor-length dress, side slit, with kimona sleeves. Mao neckline and side fastenings. It is in a blue dragon print.

The oriental look isn't new. In this century the biggest oriental splurge occurred about 1909 when the rising Parisian couturier Paul Poiret went onboard for Arabian Nights splendor. It coincided with the appearance in Paris of the Russian ballet in a splendid Scheherazade. The oriental influence reached such a frenzy that women even wore Poiret turbans and peacock-feathered kimonos to the races.

Then in spring, 1955, the fashion theme was East of Suez, with importance given to straight knee-length jackets inspired by those worn by Hindu men. Sari silks and Siamese stripes were popular.

The last oriental influence was seven years ago. Again it was a major silhouette theme. But the influence ran more to a wrapped look such as the drawn-tight-around-hips of the temple dancer's costume. This influence widened in spring, 1967, to include sailor costumes as the burnoose, caftan and djellabah. In 1968 there was considerable interest in the standup Nehru or Mao collar.

Now the oriental look is back again and obviously tied to the emergence of China from seclusion.

MANDARIN LOOK — Spring fashions showings in New York are featuring the mandarin look as in this Donald Brooks design in sheer black wool crepe with corded white trapunto work accenting the neckline, cuffs and running down the side. Although not all designers have succumbed to the Eastern allure, most have included at least a Mao collar or Chinese peasant smock. (CP Photo)

NEW STYLES — Big for spring is the appliqued look (right) with bright colored and bordered motifs stitched on cotton print by Gino Charles. Another major spring theme is the nautical look in red and white gingham checked taffeta with white sailor collar and tie.

CATSUIT — This belted catsuit has flared white trousers and a button-through top in red, white and blue. A long matching jacket edged with white designs completes this easy to wear outfit. (CP Photo)

Party Head Will Run For Liberal

TORONTO (CP) — Jan Steele is running for the presidency of the Liberal party of Ontario at the party's convention in Ottawa this weekend.

She is a woman, and because of this, many other women concerned with their role in Canadian politics will watch with interest to see how she does.

One who will watch is Moira Armour, who a week ago founded a group called Women's Movement for Political Action. She formed the group because "the parties have made it pretty clear they're not going to do anything about this until they're pressured into it."

"Both the federal and provincial governments have repeatedly indicated they have little if any interest in women."

She points to Premier William Davis's recent shuffle of the Ontario cabinet, in which the only two women on the government side—Margaret Scrivener and Margaret Birch, were passed over.

Premier Davis had promised to appoint a women to the cabinet, but he didn't say when.

Neither woman seems offended.

Mrs. Birch said cabinet appointments "should be based on experience."

"The fact that I'm a woman should have nothing to do with it." The reaction of Esther Greenglass, a sociologist at York University, was a little more blunt.

"What kind of garbage is this?" she asked. "Davis knew damn well how much experience his women candidates and he made the promise. And he knew damn well he wasn't going to follow through."

A male candidate can go out and finance his campaign with a second mortgage. But what would be say if his wife came home and told him, 'Dear, I need $10,000 to run in the next election?'

"He'd say, 'I think you better get yourself a less expensive hobby,' that's what."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Joy are pictured following their recent marriage in St. Basil's Church, Ottawa. The bride is the former Mary A. Donoghue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Donoghue of Belleville, while the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. M. Joy of Windsor and the late Mr. J. C. Joy. Rev. Father William Coughlin of Toronto officiated at the ceremony. The couple are residing in Ottawa.

Women's Institutes Celebrate Anniversary

TORONTO (CP) — In some countries, Women's Institutes are still teaching basic nutrition to farm women. In others they are showing townspeople where their milk comes from.

Olive Farquharson, president of their international organization, the Associated Country Women of the World, is in Canada to help celebrate the 75th anniversary of the founding of WI in Stoney Creek, Ont. It now has seven million members in 285 affiliated organizations around the world.

Mrs. Farquharson says:

"The most important part of what we're doing varies with the country. In very rural areas, in Ghana, for instance, they are busy setting up institutes to do what it was founded to do 75 years ago.

"In England we have a town and country project. Institutes are trying to develop an exchange with people in new towns, in housing developments, even factories to come out and meet the people in the villages and see that milk comes out of a cow, not a bottle.

Mrs. Farquharson is from Farnham in Essex, and is still president of her local institute, which has 30 members.

"It keeps my feet on the ground."

She says ACWW groups are also working on pollution and environmental problems. In England they have charged a ruling so that politics may be discussed at a WI meeting.

U. C. W. Meetings

BRIDGE STREET CHURCH UNITED CHURCH WOMEN

All units of Bridge Street Church United Church Women met in the Sunday School auditorium for the February joint meeting.

Mrs Myrtle Reid conducted the business session and budgets for the coming year were voted upon.

As a delegate to the recent UCW Presbyterial in Trenton Miss Reid outlined some of the highlights stating that the outstanding speakers and the fellowship make a day such as this well worth while.

Mrs. Grace Anderson conducted the worship service based on the theme of stewardship.

The stewardship and recruitment convener, Mrs. F. Burrows was the speaker for the afternoon. In her talk she stressed the stewardship of money through giving to missions and of time through local volunteer organizations.

Personal relationship with people needing help and encouragement is the most important role of the volunteer. The best way to prevent charity is to help prevent the need for it by special help and training programs starting with the young right up to adult groups.

Volunteers should be flexible and try various jobs if was felt and if more volunteer women would volunteer even for a short period of time the volunteer program in this city could be greatly enlarged.

Miss Reid thanked the speaker and invited the group to stay for tea.

Women Win Battle

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of women won a battle of the beer Friday after invading a men-only beverage room of a hotel in suburban Vanier.

About 30 placard-waving women, claiming to represent many more in a 12-storey office building nearby, invaded the pub with a demand for equality in pricing.

They said men could drink beer and eat lunch in the beverage room of the hotel while women had to pay more for the same thing because they were restricted to the lounge.

Still Happy Future Following Mastectomy

Dear Ann Landers: I was in my 40s, recently divorced, and positive that no man could possibly want a woman who had had one breast removed.

Buying new clothes was torture. The saleswomen tried to pretend they didn't notice, but I knew better. Sharing a room with another woman on a trip was always embarrassing. But the most difficult thing to face was the fear that a man might fall in love with me and then be horrified to discover the mutilation.

There seemed to be only one solution. Whenever I met a man I thought I might care for, I told him on the second or third date about my surgery. It was agony but I forced myself to come right out with it. I was direct—and handled the subject with a touch of humor.

That was seven men ago. Believe it or not, not a single man dropped me. It simply didn't matter. I married No. 7. We have a great relationship—fun, mutual interests, and a lively sex live. I couldn't be happier. —Austin Wife

Dear A.W.: Thank you for writing. Thousands of women who have experienced a mastectomy have had the same expectations. A man to whom this surgery would make a difference is not worth having.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I broke up after 18 years of marriage. It's our teen-age daughter I need help with. Linda's grades have slipped badly. My wife says it's the trauma of our divorce. I say the girl's grades would improve if my wife took her car away and limited her dates until she snapped up. I want Linda to go on to college but at the rate she's progressing she'll never get out of high school.

Do you think the divorce is to blame? If I thought so, I'd go back to my wife. Please hurry your answer. If Linda fails I feel farther behind I'm afraid she'll drop out.—Worried

Dear Worried: I get the impression you and your wife are better off apart. And as my kids say, keeping a lousy marriage together "for the children" is birdseed. Everybody loses.

I suggest counselling for Linda. She needs someone to talk to. Let the counselor determine whether taking the car away and restricting her dating privileges would be good or bad. This is too complicated a decision to be made through the mails by a third party—an embattled parent.

Dear Ann Landers: What is a Methodist handshake? —Two Swedes and a Norwegian

Dear Friends: A Methodist handshake is a churchy, stiff-business, "I'm getting grace." And please don't accuse me of being anti-Methodist. I married the expression from the Methodists at Morningside College.

Women's Institutes

UNIONDALE WI

Historical research was the theme of the program at the recent meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute which was held at the home of Mrs. George Striker, Queen's section of Sidney. Mrs. Robert Burkitt presided over the meeting in the absence of Mrs. Pat Treacy.

During the business period the new head table were distributed to the members. Letters were read from the editor of Home and Country, Maryn Pardy. It was also noted that the public relations officers are expected to send clippings and interesting events to her, which in turn would be printed in the magazine.

The Guelph WI conference is slated for March 3 - 4 with one of the members to attend. On February 14 a banquet will be held to mark the 75th anniversary of the Institute. Each member is asked to bring her own cutlery and dishes; also a potluck dish to help with the menu.

A sewing course will be conducted at Pinhorn on dofing & tailored jacket on April 4 - 7 and April 11 - 14.

A report on home economics was given by Mrs. Lorena McCaw and on history by Mrs. Kenneth Paul who gave a paper on Murray Township Concessions 8 - 9 and 10 which was interesting to all.

Mrs. George Burkitt gave a history of the Women's Institute starting back to the time of Erland Lee and Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless and outlined how and why the WI was started. Mrs. Maurice Mallory also gave a reading on the 50th anniversary celebration and pageant.

Mrs. Morley Sine gave the history of the Uniondale Women's Institute from its origin in 1919 and first known as Scott's WI. She also listed the various presidents down through the past 53 years.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Joe Hanna, 5th Concession of Sidney.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. John Burns and the chairman of the sick committee reported on the recent illness of Mrs. Emma Kennedy.

A statement was sent to the meeting from E. J. "Ted" Courneyea, wherein he said that the St. Carthage's Hall, Tweed would be at the disposal of the Senior Citizens' Club on Friday evenings, for card parties, at no charge to the club.

Door prizes were awarded to Mrs. Jennie Moffat and Mr. Alfred Sherman.

After the conclusion of the business meeting members enjoyed a number of games.

Halter Look In Fashion For Summer

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether a woman has a nice figure or great back or terrific set of ribs, she'll have a chance to show it off this summer.

Since long evening skirts threaten to obscure tanned legs, designers are busy drumming up interest elsewhere.

The halter look continues to blossom in summer fashions. The bare midriff has made a move. And cut-out dresses are on the way.

At the Givenchy Nouvelle Boutique spring-summer collection shown Monday, the midriff turned up in a simple brown pants outfit. A bra was slit in the waist. A dress back was chopped in a circle.

Several couture designers have gone to the halter, but rejected the bare middle as too much: James Galanos, Bill Blass and Geoffrey Beene.

Galanas likes halters for day and night. They're cripped up with neat piping.

"It's a new expression, since I've worked with a lot of bra clothes for so long," said Galanos, who includes a good portion of his easy-to-wear looks in his spring-summer line.

Blass has gotten barer for summer. He's showing his halter without the matching wraps he used for spring.

"I don't think the bare midriff is right for couture, it may be just a come on, with tongue in cheek," said Geoffrey Beene, who's adopted the halter for his summer line, priced $175 to $400.

Donald Brooks disagrees. He's always liked bare midriffs. For the couture customer in a smaller size." His halters are draped, Grecian-boy style, an outgrowth of the large-ruffled tops he did for spring.

When women aren't trailing around in bare-looking evening dresses, they may wear Galanos's cocktail dresses with pleated skirts or Bill Blass's jersey evening pajamas.

Veal Provides A Change in Meals

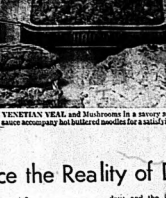
By ALICE DENHOFF

There is good veal in the meat market now, a signal to try a good and different recipe.

VENETIAN VEAL

1½ pounds veal steak, ½-inch-thick
1 tablespoons butter
⅔ cup ½-inch celery slices
½ cup canned onion
1-3 cup chopped onion
1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms
1 can (6 ounces) tomato sauce
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon leaf thyme
¼ teaspoon basil
¼ teaspoon marjoram
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup dairy sour cream

Cut veal into six servings. In large skillet, melt butter; brown veal on both sides. Add all ingredients except flour and sour cream. Cover and simmer 45 minutes or until veal is tender. Remove meat to warm serving dish.



Add flour to sour cream; stir into liquid in skillet. Heat to serving temperature. Pour over meat. Serve with buttered noodles.

CHEESE AND EGG PUFFS ESPANA

6 tablespoons (¾ stick) butter
½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
¾ cup chopped onion
2 teaspoons flour
1¼ cups (15 ounce can) tomato sauce
2 cans (4 ounces each) sliced mushrooms, drained
2 teaspoons sugar
6 eggs
¾ cup sifted regular all-purpose flour
1¼ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon onion salt
1½ cups (6 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

In a saucepan, melt butter; saute pepper and onion until tender. Blend in flour. Stir in next three ingredients. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Cook two more minutes. Set aside. That's the Spanish sauce.

For the puffs, beat eggs at high speed until thick using an electric mixer. Takes about 10 minutes. Sift together next four ingredients; gradually add to eggs, beating only until blended. Fold in cheese. Bake immediately after mixing, dropping batter or lightly buttered griddle, using about a quarter cup for each puff. When brown, turn and finish cooking. Serve three puffs for each serving, topped with a quarter cup sauce. Serves six.

VENETIAN VEAL and Mushrooms in a savory sour cream sauce accompany hot buttered noodles for a satisfying dinner.

TOASTED ANGEL DESSERT

1 angel food loaf cake (11¼ ounces)
½ cup butter (1 stick)
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon cinnamon Nutmeg
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup fresh sweetened strawberries

Cut cake in six slices. In a small mixing bowl, beat together next four ingredients. Spread cake on all sides with butter mixture. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Toast on both sides under broiler. Serve warm, topped with sour cream and strawberries.

Successful Living

One Must Face the Reality of Death

By DORIS CLARK

When someone dies, we Anglo-Saxons have an idea that it keeps a stiff upper lip is the only way to act. Then when the chief mourner has a nervous breakdown two years later we wonder why.

One of our favorite ways of looking at the loss is to say, "I just can't believe it." Often we have set out of our discussions any reference to the loved one, especially in the presence of children.

It's all wrong. The first step forward is our adjustment to a new and devastating situation is to face the reality of the death. We have a need to grieve.

And our children have a right to know the news and to share it, if they wish, with family.

One counsellor describes a minister who said that even the mention of death would make him break out in a cold sweat. The counsellor found that the minister had died and when he was two years of age — a subject which his mother never discussed with him.

He was sent home to ask his mother about it. For the tragic pall that fell over his mother broke down all the barriers of restraint built up through the years. Only then when she had tried to protect him from suffering.

Result? His anxiety about death and funerals gradually faded away.

Dear Doris: I am writing for two copies of the poem I read to comfort a friend that haunts the little fellow.

My mother had this same poem "music" when she used to sing this song to me, as I always put my crusts under the plates and still hate crusts.

Can you know where I could get a copy of the sheet music? — Country Girl

Dear Crusty: The poem, which is entitled "The Crust of Bread" is on its way to you. Anybody else have a request? Write to Doris and could supply Crusty with the music?

Confidential to Not Satisfied: Married love is a two - way street, and until both you and your husband find satisfaction your marriage will be something less than it should be. This mutual satisfaction is something that carries over into every phase of your life together, making it more pleasant to sit across the table at breakfast, to talk and go places together.

When you are disappointed each time, your feeling of letdown carries over to the next day; and the joy you would have in complete sex rapport one would carry over, too. Your husband may not annoy or because he feels inadequate to arouse you.

Talk to your doctor and get him to give your loving but impatient mate a few pointers. And read some of the books on the list I am sending you.

Plans 2,000 Mile Swim

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — A pretty blonde schoolgirl has set off on a 2,000-mile swim ground which she hopes will bring her a collection of gold medals at the Olympic Games in Munich this year.

She is 15-year-old Shane Gould, Australia's latest superwoman who could prove to be the greatest woman swimmer of them all.

Shane has broken all the records—this year she is after Olympic gold medals.

Although she would be happy to win one gold medal, she has set herself the target "more" and some swimming experts have predicted that she could collect an unprecedented tally of six.

Between now and the Games in August Shane will log more than 1,000 hours and 2,000 miles in training. Her present daily training schedule calls for her to be up at 4 a.m. and within 20 minutes to be stroking up and down a local swimming pool.

She will train for 4½ and four-and-a-half miles later she is home for a quick breakfast before catching the bus to school. After school its another two-hour pool session, homework and bed by 8:30 p.m.

Shane arrived like a bombshell on the world swimming scene last April when she smashed the Australian 100-metre freestyle record held by fellow-Australian Dawn Fraser by a full second.

By the end of the year Shane had set world records over 200 metres, 400 metres, 800 metres and 1,500 metres.

With her magnificent 1,500-metre swim here Dec. 12, which included a staggering 15 seconds off the old record set by Kathy Calhoun of the United States, Shane became the first woman in swimming history to hold all three metric freestyle world records.

The feat is comparable to a track athlete holding world records at distances ranging from the 100-metre sprint to the grueling 10,000 metres.

All the fuss has left Shane the same, unaffected schoolgirl she was a year ago when the world knew nothing of her. In fact, the most self-satisfying event of 1971 for the sun-tanned, hazel-eyed teen-ager was the removal of braces on her teeth at the end of the year.

Sports writers are talking of six gold medals for Shane and even her coach, Forbes Carlile, says she is odds-on to win four gold medals in the 100, 200, 400 and 800-metre freestyle events.

If she does she will become the first swimmer—male or female—to win four gold medals in individual events at any Olympics meeting.

Does frustration 'breed' frustration?

X-36

NO, although it seems that way. Try, for instance, to reach someone in a hurry. You know he has two phones; so when one has a busy signal, you call on the other. That one doesn't answer, and you are ready to climb the wall. Then you realize that the first call may have been made while another person was ringing that number. In any event, you are so frustrated by this time that you don't much care whether you reach your party or not.

Is mink warm if a girl buys it?

CERTAINLY, mink is for sure and can keep out the chilliest breezes in the coolest fashion. Then there is the little bit of extra warmth it will feels when she sees the envious glares that are tossed her way when she slings her mink casually over her shoulders. On top of that, the grooviest warmth is provided by the looks she gets from those who wonder if the girl paid for it herself—something that only her furrier knows for sure.

Can a gifted child feel neglected?

YES, perhaps more so than any other child, if he is deprived of love and attention. Sometimes even the child's exceptional mental ability can lead him to further neglect. At school, for instance, other children might shun him because he is brighter than they are. His classmates, too, could regard the gifted child as a threat to their control of the classroom and could make the youngster more keenly aware of being neglected.

Strikes No Longer Make Sense Says Meany

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Strikes no longer make sense and ought to be eliminated, labor leader George Meany suggested Sunday.

The head of the 16-million-member AFL-CIO said in a magazine interview he favors binding arbitration, voluntarily agreed on, as a substitute for strikes.

Meany acknowledged that not a single major labor contract in recent years had gone to voluntary arbitration, while there had been strikes in many big and vital industries.

But he said his organization had appointed a committee "to see if we can find some way to evolve a formula where that (binding arbitration) will become more or less the accepted practice."

The 77-year-old labor leader, interviewed by the magazine U.S. News and World Report, also said President Nixon's domestic record was bad and that "it's my belief that he is not nearly in as good shape as some of his people think."

But former Teamster boss James Hoffa, released from prison on parole by Nixon two months ago, said in a television interview Sunday Nixon is "the best qualified man at the present moment for the presidency."

Hoffa, 59, served nearly five years in federal prison of a 13-year term for misusing union funds and seeking to influence a jury.

Hoffa rejected suggestions he was freed to strengthen Nixon's support among the Teamsters Union, which Hoffa formerly headed.

New Drug Able To Ease Stress

TORONTO (CP) — People prone to heart attacks may soon be given a drug to protect them from the effects of stress, says Dr. Hans Selye.

The famed doctor, a world authority on the effects of stress on the body, told the Royal Canadian Institute Saturday about the drug that will protect laboratory animals from otherwise-lethal doses of poisons, heart attacks and artificially-induced aging.

He said the drug's application to human aging is fair in the future because scientists first must learn whether natural aging is the same as premature senility induced in the laboratory, as well as determine whether people react in the same way as experimental animals.

However, the application to the prevention of coronary heart attacks is much nearer and more feasible, Dr. Selye said. "That could be applied very soon."

He said the drug is being tried out on human patients in Yugoslavia, but is being used only in experimental animals in North America.

Dr. Selye said individual people react differently to stress because each breaks at the weakest link in the chain of his physical makeup; some have a heart attack, others a stroke or an ulcer.

Dr. Selye said the drug, pregnenolone-carbonitril, causes the body to make enzymes that destroy many poisons, including substances created by the body itself that can harm it.

It neutralizes inorganic poisons, such as mercury, by adding something to it to make a larger molecule that is harmless.

Rats made coronary-prone by diet and certain drugs, then stressed, had heart attacks and died. But other rats treated similarly, except that they were also treated with the drug, shrugged off the stress and stayed healthy.

B. C. Doctor Says Heroin Use Jumps

VANCOUVER (CP) — There has been a jump in heroin use throughout the province, says the head of a British Columbia Medical Association committee studying the problem.

And doctors, police and others working in the drug rehabilitation field say that within the last four years the illegal importation and sale of the highly addictive narcotic has developed into one of the largest industries in the province and is raising the threat of a massive increase in crime within the next two years.

Dr. Conrad Schwarz of the University of B.C., chairman of the drug rehabilitation committee of the B.C. Medical Association, said in a recent interview it is impossible to provide precise figures.

"All we know is that growth in the use of heroin has been explosive in the past four years."

Two years ago, the sale of heroin in B.C. was largely confined to a small section of the skid-road area of Vancouver's east end. The addict who wanted to break the habit could get away from other users by leaving the city.

Police say these days are over. Heroin now can be bought anywhere in the province.

Four Die As Plane Crashes

GORE BAY, Ont. (CP) — Four persons were killed when a twin-engine Piper Aztec aircraft with six persons aboard crashed Saturday night shortly after takeoff from the airport at this Manitoulin Island community 80 miles southwest of Sudbury.

Provincial police withheld names of the dead but said all were men and included the pilot.

The aircraft had been chartered in Toronto and was headed there when the crash occurred. The other two passengers, both women, were in satisfactory condition in hospital at Little Current, 25 miles east of here.

Police said one woman crawled from the wreckage of the aircraft and made her way back to the airport to call police.

Girl Wounded

TORONTO (CP) — Cathy Scanlon, 13, sang as she walked home with three other teen-agers from a bowling alley Friday night.

From the balcony of a 12th-floor apartment in a building they were passing came a call from a man to stop singing. But the group sang on.

The next thing they knew, they told police, was a loud blast. Cathy wound up in hospital where a shotgun pellet was removed from her right leg.

Model Gets Her Wish, Playboy Scraps Photo

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Debbie Hanlon says she prayed she wouldn't appear as Playboy magazine's centrefold beauty. And now her prayers have been answered.

After pictures of her lying nude on a green-and-white polka-dotted sheet had been taken and the contract for the April appearance signed, Debbie decided her religious convictions and family's feelings were worth more than $5,000 she would have earned.

So, she talked publisher Hugh Hefner into scrapping them.

"I'm proud of myself, really, that I was able to do it," the 19-year-old model said.

Debbie has already been seen by Playboy readers, but not to the extent the centrefold would have allowed. She peeks out at you from beneath a multi-colored quilt on the cover of the November issue.

Her mother June Criner, a Jehovah's Witness, said: "We felt it was morally wrong and against her religious conscience . . . We all talked her out of it."

Debbie, who is studying to be a Witness, said she prayed before asking Playboy to cancel the picture.

"The first time I told them, everyone laughed. Everyone thought I was kidding . . . The next morning I got up and prayed like mad, and I told them I really was serious."

In Chicago Sunday, Marilyn Grabowski, Playboy's assistant picture editor, confirmed that Debbie had won her appeal.

by
Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Keeping secrets is never easy, especially when they're words about three million dollars.

Belleville's Yardmen's Benefit Fund executives have, for four their hopes do not materialize, tried to keep their multi-million dollar surprise under wraps, but it's turned out to be the worst - kept secret around.

It was nine months ago the Yardmen decided their monthly lottery could be put to more substantial community use than sponsoring a number of unrelated, if valuable, projects.

What they had in mind is a sports complex that would include a 5,000 - seat hockey arena, olympic swimming pool, a track, tennis courts, and facilities for a wide range of other athletic activities.

Lack of secrecy somehow has kept the Yardmen from revealing their plans to the public, a provoked guarantee that their lottery will enjoy the longevity required to help fund the extensive projects and federal financial assistance from the departments of health and welfare.

Yardmen spokesmen are also reluctant to make any public announcements because, in effect, they don't want to get local hopes set on something until it's well on the way to becoming a reality.

But the Yardmen have already been backed by their banker, city council is helping them locate a suitable site, and we think the public deserves to be let in on the merit of the proposal.

One unfortunate, but unavoidable by-product of the attempt at secrecy has been a rash of rumors, including those that have set the cost at $15 million and had a Jubilee A hockey franchise moving into Belleville on a silver platter.

Not that the latter would be impossible in the event the sports complex becomes an accomplished fact, but such premature conjectures don't pay any bills.

Besides the complex, which will require about 30 acres and parking space for 7,000 cars, is intended to be far more than just a hockey rink.

Yardmen executives have discussed with provincial government representatives the possibility of their project becoming a training centre for Canadian Olympic teams.

To this end, members of the Belleville and District Apollo Barbell Club have been contacted to see what 'facilities would accommodate weightlifting in the new centre.

It's been nearly two years since the Lynbrook hexagon sailing their $1 tickets. The monthly prizes for lottery winners has continually risen, and a number of community groups — some athletic, some not — otherwise — have shared the benefits.

But the greatest benefit is the greatest number of Bellevillians may be yet to come.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1972

This marks the first — and easiest — part of lifting 390 pounds. But Apollo Barbell Club heavyweight Price Morris completed all aspects successfully in hoisting this clean-and-jerk during a city weightlifting competition Saturday. In a "warm-up" for the upcoming Ontario and Canadian championships, Morris compiled a three-lift total of 1,030 pounds, only 39 below his personal best despite a training layoff since November.

Morris 'Only' Totals 1,030 In Weightlifting Warmup

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

One of the aspects of weightlifting that never ceases to amaze unschooled observers of the sport is the deceptively indifferent pace assumed by some competitors.

For example, when the Apollo Barbell Club's Price Morris recorded a three-lift total of 1,030 pounds at the "Big 25" contest, Saturday at Quinte Secondary School, the defending Canadian champion was virtually blase about the fact.

Despite the fact Morris won bronze medals at the 1970 Commonwealth and 1971 Pan-American Games with plus-1,000 totals, and the fact that only three other Canadians have ever accomplished the fact, the Frankford strongman was subdued after Saturday's competition.

The weights were light," Morris described his performance, the first competition for him since establishing a personal best total of 1,069 pounds at a Toronto meet in November.

"I was just going for 10 pounds under my best lifts today," he said of his showing in the contest that was open to the top 25 lifters in the province.

Morris, who, by his own estimate has turned the 1,000-pound total trick "about five or six times", conceded his press - best press, 293 - pound snatch, and 390 - pound clean-and-jerk were just warm-ups for April's Ontario senior championships in Sarnia, or May's Canadian seniors in Newfoundland, where he must total 1,047 pounds to qualify for Canada's team to this summer's Munich Olympic Games.

Morris has already exceeded the Olympic qualifying standard twice, but must repeat at either of the two upcoming contests to qualify for the Canadian team.

As satisfied as he was with his own performance Saturday after a long training layoff, Morris was disappointed that training mate Gary Walt didn't come up with a more successful afternoon.

Walt, the eldest of four weightlifting brothers in Belleville's Apollo Club, pressed 320 and snatched 290, although he appeared capable of much more, then failed to record a total when he missed three clean and jerk tries at 370.

Morris, the six - time Canadian heavyweight champion who has been devoting much of his training time to coaching his teammates, explained that Walt tore off callouses on his left hand while warming up for his final lifts, and the result was a loss in his ability to grip the bar, as well as in confidence.

"I think Gary can make standard, if he puts his mind to it," he said.

Official winner of the 242 pound heavyweight class, since Morris weighed in four pounds over limit, was Elliott Lake teenager Dan Tirul, who totalled 876 pounds.

Hamilton's Earl Jack won middle - heavyweight, (198-pound) class honors with a three-lift total of 900 pounds, 10 more than Belleville's Bob Walt who hoisted a personal best 890 pounds clean - and - jerk, the only lifter besides Morris to manage that much.

Another Hamilton entry, former Canadian champion Craig Bowman, was the only lightheavyweight lifter to record a total, finishing at 850.

Dan Robitaille of Elliott Lake topped lightweight entries with a 790-pound total while the Apollo Club's Ron Hayes was the best of three featherweights (132 - pound) competitors with a 365-pound total.

Kinsmen Succeed On Second Try

The Belleville Kinsmen bantams eliminated Trenton from the OMHA "AA" playdowns for the second time this season by recording a 3-1 win Sunday.

The Kinsmen who had won three straight games only to face a successful Trenton protest of the third, finally managed to take the series three games to one.

Paul Hayman and John Murphy were the big guns Sunday scoring two goals apiece with Peter McBride picking up the other.

Trenton Junior Ranks juveniles grabbed a 2-1 lead in their best-of-five OMHA series with Western Tire on the strength of a 6-2 victory.

In novice playoffs Kingston Church Athletic League event their series with Tweed's Food City by edging the Belleville all-stars 6-5. Kent Pierce and Barry Shaw scored three goals each for the winners while Brad Crawford and Tim Soule had two apiece for the losers. The fifth Tweed goal was scored by Steve Mofina.

The Rollins Construction peewees advanced to the second round of playdowns with a convincing 12-0 shutout over Trenton. It was the second straight win for Belleville in the best-of-three series.

Bobby Crawford fired three goals and two assists in the back the shutout netminding of Bruce Hamilton and Terry Thompson. Randy Hutchinson and Dave McBride added two goals each for the winners with Mike Bennett drawing a goal and four helpers and Ricky Sprague picking up a goal and three assists. Other Rollins scorers were Peter Hall, Jeff Gow and John Jiannopoulos.

Point Anne's bantam E entry dropped the first game of their playdown series with Colbourne by a 6-4 margin. Even the strong netminding of Farley Vader wasn't enough to hold a 4-2 lead for Point Anne as the winners roared games here two years ago when I won the MVP, but never four."

Since he joined Belleville's senior hockey entry from the Eastern League's junior Devils four seasons ago, O'Donnell has done just about everything but score four times in a game.

An expert penalty-killer, usually paired with injury-sidelined centre George Godson in that role, O'Donnell has also been an integral part of Belleville's power-play alignment and the left-wing portion of the most productive team forward combination.

The club's bread-and-butter line had been Godson, O'Donnell, and right winger Al Fortunoso before a knee injury sidelined Godson for the remainder of this year.

Saturday night, veteran Dave Jones culminated his role as the line's new pivot by accounting for the other O'Donnell drawing assists on all three.

His four goals gave O'Donnell an even 20 for the 31 games he has played this year while commuting from Peterborough. And his seven-point night helped make him the team's leading "plus" player. Excluding powerplay goals, O'Donnell has been on ice for 18 more Belleville goals than opposition tallies.

O'Donnell's third goal Saturday was the key after the teams had skated through a 2-2 opening 20 minutes and were playing cautious second-period hockey.

In the 12th minute of play, Woodstock goalie Art Fraser dropped Lionel Bolly's point shot and O'Donnell promptly batted in the rebound to give the Quintes the lead for good.

LORNE O'DONNELL

He had opened the game's scoring by steering in Mike Rexe's point shot at 4.58 of the opening period, before Gerry Harrigan tied it up, then O'Donnell gave the Quintes a 2-1 lead on a power-play goal at 14.58.

Woodstock's Bob Graham tied the game on a four-on-four power-play shot from the point with less than three minutes remaining in the opening period.

With the exception of stopping Gene McLaren's breakaway after O'Donnell had made it 3-2, Quinte's goalie Steve Rexe had a comparatively easy time of it in the game's latter stages, a far cry from Friday's 30-stop performance he came up with in the Quintes' 8-3 win in Woodstock.

The four-point weekend left Belleville tied with Woodstock in fifth place in the eight-team senior league with 2 points, one more than Oakville and Owen Sound, tied out of the six-team playoff picture with 27.

The Quintes' playoff fate boils down to a Friday road trip to Oakville and a scheduled-to-be-closing home game with Kingston Saturday.

IN BRIEF: Lorne O'Donnell's four goals Saturday made him the third Quinte to hit the 30-goal mark this season: Wayne McConnell has 33 and Al Ferguson 25. . . Ferguson was credited with five assists Saturday, bringing his team-leading point total to 44 . . . Carl Boomhower played several shifts in both Woodstock games for the injury-depleted Quintes . . . The Senators are giving away hundreds of free tickets for home games in an attempt to arouse local interest, which it why publicized attendance figures look small to those who attend the games.

Dukes on Carpet

The Hornets rolled out the red carpet for the Dukes by handing them a 5-1 win in the opening game of their two-game, total-goals Northern Electric semi-final series.

The Hornets on one treated like royalty in the other series opener as the No Stars and the Good Guys battled to a 1-1 draw.

Rick Boesbush scored three times to lead the Dukes to their series win with Terry Casselman picking up as many helpers. Bill Carson and Bruce Lloyd tallied the other goals while Jim Haggerty had the lone marker for the Hornets.

Suited to T

TWEED — The Tweed Winter Carnival suited Murray Johnson's Quinte curling rink to a T, as they captured the Clark T. Rollins Trophy as district bonspiel champions this weekend.

The Quinte foursome downed Bev Corke's rink from the same club to emerge as champions of the event held in conjunction with the annual winter carnival. A total of 24 rinks from Toronto, Clinton, Ottawa, Napanee, CFB Trenton, Quinte, Tweed, Stirling and Madoc had been vying for top honors.

The winning entry consisted of lead Jane Broad, second Bob Alexander, vice Anne Alexander, and skip Murray Johnson.

Because of un-economy-looking good looks. And enough power to keep up with the big guys and still get 30 plus miles to the gallon.

And lots of other good things we could go on with. But we'd rather you see and feel and drive a Corolla for yourself. So you can discover how very big a line of little cars can be.

Batawa Wants Skiers in Air, Prices at Reasonable Level

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

The Batawa Ski Club hopes to continue their trend of lifting skiers rather than ski prices during the upcoming year.

Executive member Tom Hudson of the publicly-owned club which has been operating since 1959 says, "we hope to make improvements, but more than that we hope to continue to bring inexpensive skiing to the public. We plan to keep within range of the youngsters."

The Batawa club is governed by a 12-man executive who serve as directors for the 13-year old enterprise. A lot of people think that we're directly owned by Bata Shoe Company, but we're not," informs Hudson, "we have directors from the military, the shoe company, private business — practically every occupation."

Batawa, like most other clubs in the southern part of Ontario, has faced a major problem this winter — no snow. "We're open for skiing practically whenever there's snow on the hill," notes Hudson, "but this winter there hasn't been snow that often. They plan to operate every night of the week, except Fridays, that weather permits for the remainder of the season in order to make up for some lost skiing time.

The newest venture at Batawa is a "learn to ski" program organized this year in connection with the Belleville Recreation Department. A total of 30 beginners have enrolled in the twice-weekly classes under the guidance of eight qualified instructors.

Another regular program is the Nancy Green racing team for youngsters under 13 years of age. There are about 30 members taking part in the program under racing chairman Harvey Ackerman who is assisted by former Canadian National Ski team member Peter Wellstead.

The Batawa club members are currently engaged in raising a T-Bar fund to install that type of lift for next season.

Certainly if a family plan were initiated for use of the new T-Bar the Shonikers would probably be first in line. Three sisters from the Batawa family recorded two wins and a second in the annual club races held Saturday, while their cousin managed a third in the men's senior event.

Colleen Shoniker took the racing division championship in the girls' over-13 category, while sister Lynne managed a second-place finish in the non-racers section of the same age group. The third member of the family, five-year-old Paula, won the tiny tots event.

In the men's open competition, Jack Duncan emerged as the winner to rank as 1972 club champion over Tom Hurst and Jim Shoniker who placed second and third in the event.

Skiers Kept Smiling

In spite of wet weather on Sunday the spirit of the lower-petitors in the Batawa Ski Club's annual championships was not dampened. Still smiling is Paula Shoniker, the youngest of three sisters to place well in races. She is being given a helping hand with her equipment by club relations representative Tom Hudson after she won the event for five-year-olds. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Shoniker of Batawa.

Trojans Retain Their Grip

Moira Secondary School Trojans successfully defended their Bay of Quinte COSSA wrestling championship Saturday in a meet at Centennial.

The Trojans captured seven of the 14 individual championships up for grabs to defeat Quinte in the battle for team honors. Moira collected 103½ team points to 91½ for the second place Saints.

Other schools entered in the meet included Napanee (66), Trenton (40), Centennial (38), Picton (22), Centre Hastings (22) and Bayside (9½).

Moira dominated the lower weight classes taking five of seven titles in the under-135 pound groups. Bill Hinchey ran his unbeaten Bay of Quinte record to 13-0 in winning the 119-pound title.

Other Trojan champions included Jack Green (98 lbs.); Paul Hart (106-lbs.); John Hinchey (123-lbs.); Brian Spencer (135-lbs.); Stan Reston (168-lbs.) and Audrie Brant (unlimited). Reston was the only other Moira grappler with an unbeaten record for the year, compiling a 15-0-1 mark.

Quinte recorded four individual champions with 90-pounder John Brant and Duane Carmichael (141-lbs.) completing undefeated seasons. Bill Cooke (194-lbs.) and Mike Mayo (178-lbs.) were the other Quinte champs.

John Dworznik of Centennial gave his school the 130-lb. title by finishing a perfect 18-0 season.

The top four finishers in each weight class will now advance to the COSSA championships to be held at Danbarton High School in Pickering this Saturday.

Umps Perform Duty

Rain can be an umpire's enemy, but Sunday it didn't keep members of the city's diamond officiating fraternity from their appointed duty.

Members of the Belleville Umpires' Association braved the elements to honor their choice as umpire of the year, Jack McBride, the 12th arbiter so honored, was presented with the Colling Memorial Trophy at a get-together at the home of city sportsman Cleo Colling.

McBride, who officiated at some 80 softball and baseball games last summer, has been officiating on the diamond for 12 years.

"I'm especially privileged to accept this honor because it's from my peers," McBride said in accepting the award. "You never hear from the ball players when you do a good job, but you always hear from them when you make a mistake."

Umpires are never really safe, but Jack McBride came as close as they ever do Sunday when he received the Colling Memorial Trophy voted on by members of the Belleville Umpires' Association. McBride worked some 80 softball and baseball contests during the 1971 season.

Olympic Champions Don't Have Much Time to Rest on Laurels

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Olympic champions carried their hoard of gold home today for a brief display before going on the road in their bid for a defence of world titles.

The 13th Winter Olympic Games are history now, and the next one will be in Denver, Colo., in 1976. But world championships go on year to year. Between now and mid-April, skiers, skaters and hockey players will be shooting for or defending world crowns.

The elite of the skiing world, fresh from Olympic victories, travel to Banff, Alta., for the next leg of the World Cup competition starting Friday.

All the champion figure skaters and their main challengers will be at Calgary for the world championships March 6-12.

The world speed-skating championships are scheduled in three European centres—the men's distance races at Oslo Feb. 19-20, both men's and women's sprint championships at Eskilstuna, Sweden, Feb. 26-27, and the women's distance races at Heerenveen, the Netherlands, March 4-5.

Finally, Russia will defend its world hockey title at Prague in early April. The United States, silver winner in the Olympics, won't be competing and neither will Canada. The Americans were relegated to the B Group in last year's tournament. The Canadians refuse to play in world and Olympic tournaments—unless they can use their best players, meaning professionals.

The 1972 Games ended with Russia at the top in medals, and in the unofficial team standings.

Russia won its third straight Olympic hockey gold medal Sunday, defeating Czechoslovakia 5-3 in the last game of the tournament. Finland upset Sweden 4-3, paving the way for the U.S. to win the silver.

The bronze went to Czechoslovakia. Sweden wound up fourth.

In Prague, the Russians will be defending for the 10th straight time.

It's crazy," said Hal Trumble, manager of the Olympic squad which won the first hockey gold for the U.S. since the 1960 Games.

"A world championship without Canada or the United States is not a world championship at all. It's just a European tournament."

In addition to Russia, the other countries entered are Czechoslovakia, Sweden, West Germany, Finland and Switzerland.

The Americans play in the B Pool, starting in Bucharest, Rumania, March 25. They must win that pool to get back into A Pool of the 1973 world championships.

James Worrall, Canadian member of the International Olympic Committee, said he had done everything he could to bring Canada into the Olympic hockey tournament.

"The ball is in Canada's court," Worrall said. "It is up to the CAHA to make the next move.

"We tried, but we always came up against protocol. We were told the CAHA must go through the international federation to the IOC."

Canada withdrew from international hockey in January, 1970, after the other five top teams in the world championships reneged on a commitment to allow Canada to play nine professionals. The reason given at the time was that this would topple the amateur status of her opponents. Czechoslovakia was Olympics hosting on the horizon.

Since then, Canada has returned on all levels below that of senior—world championships and Olympics.

Worrall—commented: "Naturally Canadians, with their hockey traditions, are not content to enter a team that does not truly represent Canada.

"We have several hundred Canadian pro hockey players, and that means any strictly amateur team is a long way from the Canadian top bracket."

Canada won a silver figure skating medal in the Games which ended 11 days of competition Sunday, the worst showing since 1956.

Canada placed only three athletes in the top five of any event, Karen Magnussen of Vancouver winning the silver in women's figures and Laurie Krahenbuhl of Timmins, Ont., and Judy Crawford of Toronto each placing fourth in skiing.

Canada was 16th in the unofficial 35-country team standings and last on the medals list.

The Games ended with one big surprise—the first medal ever won by Spain in any Winter Olympics, Francisco Fernandez Ochoa, 21, winning the men's slalom by a margin of one full second.

In Sunday's only other event, Vyacheslav Vedenin made up a 20-second deficit over the 15 kilometres as Russia won the 40-kilometre cross-country skiing relay by a 28-second margin over Norway.

That gave Russia a total of eight gold, five silver and three bronze medals and a wide victory margin in the medals race.

The Russians' victory in the relay was their fifth gold medal in cross-country skiing, in contrast to the gold handing they took from the Scandinavians in the Grenoble Olympics in 1968.

In hockey, the Russians beat four victories and a tie, and the Finns, sixth and the No. 1 seeded Czechs each had 3-2 records. But because the Americans beat the Finns 5-1, their head-to-head clash, the Americans took the silver.

Even the fourth-place Swedes had some satisfaction. They had tied the Russians 3-3 and beaten the Americans 5-1 enroute to a 3-2-1 record. What really hurt them was a 2-1 loss to Czechoslovakia.

Bill Harris, Canadian coach of the Swedish team, said it was hard to nab a team to bounce back after a last-minute loss like that one.

Anyway, the gold medal—out of Sweden's reach by Sunday's games—was the only prize worth shooting for, he said.

Harris said he considers Russia and Czechoslovakia the most professional teams in the world today, in the amount of time spent playing hockey.

Schlep is short.

Top male performance: Ard Schenk, Netherlands, of the 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 metres speed skating scored the first sweep since Eddie Rickenbacker of Norway did it in 1952.

Top female performance: Galina Koulakova, winner of the gold medal in the Nordic skiing—five-kilometre, 10-kilometre and relay.

Greatest single thrill: The victory of Japan's Yukio Kasaya leading in the 1-2-3 sweep by Japan in the 70-metre ski jump. It was Japan's first gold in the Winter Games.

Biggest controversy: Karl Schranz's ejection from the Games for permitting himself to be photographed for commercial purposes. The Austrian emerged as an international hero.

Biggest upset: Marie Theres Nadig of Switzerland over Annie Famose of France, Olga Pall-ies's Pravda, in women's downhill and giant slalom ski races.

Greatest team improvement: East Germany, a country of 17 million, 3-1-1 in the Pan Am Union, the giant of 220 million by medal hoards. The 11 Germans won 14 medals.

Finn Foresees European Pro League

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — A European professional hockey league could be a reality within three years, a Finland hockey official said Saturday.

The official, active in promoting the sport at all levels, asked not to be identified.

He said someone in Europe has to take the step that will eventually bring teams from Europe and North America's National Hockey League together to decide a true world champion.

At the present time, the NHL is the top professional league in the world while Europeans compete on an amateur basis.

The official speculated the European professional league would initially draw two teams from Sweden, one each from Finland, West Germany and Britain, the latter stocked with Canadian personnel.

None of the Iron Curtain countries, Russia and Czechoslovakia, would be invited into the proposed league since neither of the two Communist nations believe in professionalism.

The Finnish officials statement was later confirmed by Thorvald Olsson of the Swedish team—that the European circuit would begin operating for the 1974-75 season.

"Expect an announcement by next month," Olsson said in an interview.

"There are 49 companies involved in the talks, a lot of money.

"We want to compete with the NHL, we want the best hockey."

He said Sweden was the best amateur hockey team in the world and referred to both Russia and Czechoslovakia as professionals under any other guise than that accepted by the International Ice Hockey Federation which runs both the world hockey championship and the Winter Olympic Games tournaments.

"Give us four years and we will compete with the best of your NHL players," Olsson said. He said that at least 12 members of the current Swedish team could be regulars in the expanded professional league.

The Finnish spokesman, however, said he did not believe negotiations had reached the stage that would enable the European league to begin operating by 1974.

"People are very much interested to start a pro league in Europe. It is the only way there can be proper international competition.

"There are so many professional soccer leagues in Europe, why not hockey?" he asked.

"That's why we're so stupid. In hockey we talk about amateurs and professionals. In soccer they talk about soccer players."

He said much of the European hockey talk today centres on comparisons of the Russian national team, and how it would fare in games with NHL clubs.

"This can never be realized until we change the rules."

Hunter May Get Medal

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Jungle Jim Hunter of Calgary did not win a medal in the Winter Olympic Games although his combined efforts in the three Alpine men's events were the best ever by a Canadian.

But he may still get a medal, but not right away. The International Ski Federation—FIS—placed Jungle Jim third in the Alpine world combined championship based on the three Olympic races—a showing worth a bronze medal.

The FIS makes the award because there is no combined gold medal in Olympic competition.

The FIS awarded the combined championship to Gustavo Thoeni of Italy, who won gold in the giant slalom, silver in the slalom and was 13th in the downhill. Thoeni, 22 next week, won with the low total of 21.11 penalty points in the combined standing. Runner-up was Walter Tresch of Switzerland with 46.36 points.

Hunter, 26-year-old member of the Skimeisters racing team of Calgary, had 86.41 penalty points. He was 11th in the giant slalom, 31st in the slalom and 30th in the downhill.

The second Canadian to make the FIS top 10 was Ryo Batrington, 18-year-old member of the Calgary Ski Club, who was fourth. Barrington was 20th in the giant slalom, 36th in the slalom and 30th in the downhill. He was given 132.86 penalty points.

In the FIS women's rankings announced at the end of the women's events last week, Lucie Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., was placed fifth in the world combined and Judy Crawford of Toronto was seventh. Annemarie Proell of Austria, second in both the giant slalom and downhill and fifth in the slalom, was the winner.

FIS President Marc Hodler said last week that the federation has not yet decided if the Olympic Games also will count as world championships and if FIS medals will be awarded. Hodler added this would depend on the development in the case of Karl Schranz of Austria, banned from Olympic skiing.

Canada Missed Gold

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 1972 Winter Olympics at Sapporo, Japan, marked the third time in 11 Winter Games that Canada failed to win a gold medal. The first was in 1936 at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany; the second at Cortina, Italy in 1956.

Canada finished 16th among 35 countries in the 1972 Games with 11 points—five in figure skating and six in skiing.

Following are Canada's points since 1924, reckoned on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 basis for first six places in each of the Olympic competitions:

1924 (Chamonix), 11
1928 (St. Moritz), 13
1932 (Lake Placid), 47
1936 (Garmisch), 9
1948 (St. Moritz), 34½
1952 (Oslo), 18½
1956 (Cortina), 16

Rosburg Ends Drought

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — It had been 11 years since Bob Rosburg was a winner and the 45-year-old greyhound of the pro golf tour wasn't sure he could stand the pressure.

"I was nervous and shaking but it never happened." Rosburg said Sunday after collecting $25,000 as winner of the $145,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Lanny Wadkins, 22, of Winston Salem, N.C., was one stroke back at the par 24-year-old Californians, Jerry Heard of Visalia and Johnny Miller of Napa, finished two off Rosburg's 90-hole total of 344, under par by 68.

Rosburg had rounds of 66-63-70-67, the first and last at the 7,050-yard Indian Wells Country Club course.

"I went 90 holes without three-putting a green, which around here is wonderful — I'm sure that won me the tourney," he said. "I thought I could get by 90 holes without hitting a ball out of bounds, and I did," said Rosburg.

Heard and Miller, who shot a 67, won $8,555, and Wadkins who had 67, pocketed $16,530.

George Knudson of Toronto finished with a 70 for a 354 total and won $1,607.

Sport Briefs

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Betty Duguid of Wilmette, Ill., Sunday became the first woman in history to skip rinks to the women's curling championship of Canada and the United States.

Mrs. Duguid, sister-in-law of Don Duguid, retired skip of the 1970 and 1971 world curling championship rink from Winnipeg, defeated Jone Krumholz of North Shore, Ill., 13-8 to win the U.S. Women's Curling Association championship.

Mrs. Duguid won the Canadian women's championship in 1970, skipping a rink from Winnipeg to the title.

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's Peter Burwash was named Canada's top male tennis player in the official rankings released Sunday following the annual meeting of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association here. Jim Bowes, also of Toronto, was ranked in 1970, was second.

In the women's division, Vickie Berner of Toronto was rated ahead of Andree Martin of Montreal and Janice Tindle of Vancouver.

A number of top players among the men were missing from the rankings because of insufficient tournament play in Canada. For that reason. Mike Belkin, John Sharpe, Harry Fauquier and Keith Carpenter, all members of last year's Davis Cup team, were not established in the national rankings.

BRANTFORD (CP) — Tom Cushing of Toronto defeated Howie Brill of Ottawa 7-6 Saturday to win the Ontario Curling Association mixed championship.

Cushing, with his wife Susan, Dave Phillips and Deedee Moses, finished with a record of five wins and two losses. Brill finished second with a 6-3 record, tied with Murray Ballerts of Belleville and George Parks of St. Thomas.

QUEBEC (CP) — Toronto Dorset Park Bruins won the grand championship of the Quebec international peewee hockey tournament Saturday with victories over Drummondville, Que., and Oshawa, Ont.

Bruins downed the class B champions, from Dorval 5-2 in the semi-final and blanked Oshawa 4-0 in the final.

Oshawa gained the final with a 4-0 whitewash of Buckingham, Que., Class C champions.

LONDON (CP) — Manchester City maintained its two-point lead atop English soccer's First Division despite being held to a 3-3 draw by Sheffield United Saturday.

It was an eventful match, with United's Welsh international Trevor Hockey being carried off five minutes before halftime with a suspected broken leg, three players being booked, and both sides scoring crucial penalty goals.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rod Laver gained a small measure of revenge Sunday as he defeated fellow Australian Ken Rosewall 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3 in his second straight world championship tournament and bowed his over-all lead in the pro court tour.

The 33-year-old Laver set a record for tennis money winnings last year of $250,001 but still lost the World Cup title to Rosewall in Dallas in November.

Laver earned $10,000 for his victory over Rosewall and added 10 points to his WOT total on this 18th step of the 20-tour tournament tour to boost his lead over runner-up Rosewall to 20 points.

MONTREAL (CP) — Two of the original Montreal Expos have signed 1972 contracts with the baseball club, general manager Jim Fanning announced Saturday. Lefthanded pitcher Jim McGlothlin and infielder Gary Sutherland were among the original 30 players picked by the Expos in the 1968 National League expansion draft.

WHA Completes 'Draft' Involving Over 1,000

ANAHEIM, Calif. (CP-AP) — The 12 founding clubs of the World Hockey Association at the weekend building dream teams around the National Hockey League's established stars.

Their next problem will be to generate the cash and persuasive power to entice the dreams to reality although there were indications one team at least has made some steps in that direction.

The Toronto Globe and Mail reported that several WHA executives, while declining to list their names be used, said Toronto Maple Leaf's goalie Bernie Parent had already signed with the WHA's Miami Screaming Eagles.

Parent was selected by the Eagles as one of the four players on their pre-draft negotiation list. Each of the 12 clubs had similar four-man lists approved last Friday. Then they got down to the business which went for more than 21 rounds Saturday and Sunday and more than 1,000 players picked from the NHL, from minor pro ranks, junior and amateur ranks and from Europe.

Some of the biggest names in the NHL ranks were drafted almost as an afterthought.

Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito, Vic Hadfield, Jean Ratelle, Ken Hodge, Ed Giacomin and Tony Esposito are among the NHL stars picked up after the 70th round.

The Dayton, Ohio, franchise appeared the most determined to get as many of the stars go out in the NHL as they could, as unnoticed. After Winnipeg Jets had passed on Ted Green, Dayton selected another 41 players including Gerry, Phil Esposito, Hadfield and Giacomin.

The Dayton club, however, had steered clear of the established stars in the early rounds. Their first selection on the first-team negotiation list was four-man Winnipeg Jets' left winger Guy Trottier of Toronto and not until after the 20th round did they get around to picking established players from Frank Mahovlich from Montreal Canadiens and Ron Ellis of the Leafs.

The new league didn't confine its draft to active players either as the New York franchise grabbed on recently-retired Punch Imlach. Buffalo Sabres and Winnipeg Jets picked Dick Duff, also a recent dropout from the Sabres roster.

Even veteran all-star Gordie Howe received last year after 25 seasons with Detroit Red Wings, was picked by Los Angeles Sharks.

The Canadian clubs, Calgary Broncos, Edmonton Oil Kings, Winnipeg, Ontario and Quebec, appeared trying for more established players well-known in their own areas.

The Quebec club hit Montreal Canadiens for Guy Lapointe, Marc Tardif, Real Lemaire, Pierre Bouchard, rookie Guy Lafleur and Rejean Houle. Their top junior draft pick was Jacques Richard of the hometown Remparts.

Ontario hit the Leafs early for captain Dave Keon and defencemen Bob Baun and Jim Dorey. They also picked Detroit Red Wing Marcel Dionne, Tim Ecclestone, Nick Libett and Mickey Redmond.

Winnipeg got Manitoba natives in Ted Harris of Minnedosa and Norm Ullman and Ted Green of Boston Bruins. The Jets grabbed Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks as their first pick and not until after the 20th round did they go back to troll for more big names with Montreal defencemen Jacques Laperriere and Minnesota goalie Gump Worsley.

Centre Norm Ullman of the Leafs, an Edmonton Oil Kings junior grad, was the first pick of the Edmonton club which also grabbed centre Bobby Clarke and New York's Bruce MacGregor in their pre-draft list.

Edmonton also went for a retired star in goalie Glenn Hall who quit St. Louis Blues at the end of last season and retired to his farm near Edmonton.

The WHA's Chicago Cougars appeared ready for a war with NHL neighbor Chicago Black Hawks after picking Hawks' Stan Mikita, Jerry Korab, Gary Smith, Pit Martin, Jim Pappin, Bryan Campbell and Darryl Maggs.

Strangely, the Chicago club passed up Hawks Dennis Hull in their pre-draft list, following up with the three Marlie players.

The New York club appeared to be careful not to pick any established players from the NHL Rangers. New England Whalers, however, made early inroads into the neighboring Boston Bruins roster, picking goalies Gerry Cheevers and Eddie Johnston and following up with Eddy Westfall and Johnny Bucyk. The Whalers also picked wingers Rod Gilbert from New York Rangers.

Rookie goalie Ken Dryden of Montreal Canadiens, picked by Los Angeles Sharks, was one of the few players who were first selections. The others were Parent of Miami, Desjardins of New York, Doug Favell of Philadelphia Flyers in Ontario and Gilles Villemure of New York Rangers to Quebec.

Evans Caught Short

VANCOUVER (CP) — Penny Werthner of Ottawa was overjoyed and Lee Evans of Los Angeles was angry at the Canadian Athletics Games Saturday night.

Miss Werthner, Canada's premier middle distance runner, beat a strong field to the tape to set a world record in the 1,000 metres. Evans thought he had won the men's 500 metres but record-beating time only to be disappointed.

Evans, who has been pursuing the world record held jointly by Martin McGrady and Mal Whitfield of the United States, thought he had clipped more than four seconds off the old record mark with an unofficial clocking of less than 30 seconds. However, meet officials had made an incorrect measurement of the track and Evans ran only 470 metres.

In the women's 1,000 metres, Miss Werthner was never pressed as she set her world mark of 2:45.9. The old standard was 2:46.5 set in 1970 by Margaret Gresham of Britain.

Jean Dyke of Richmond, B.C., was second and Brenda Batchelor, also of Richmond, was third.

In the women's pentathlon, Karen Mack of West Germany edged Toronto's Debbie Van Kickebelt, gold medal winner in the five-event test at the Pan-Am games in Cali, Columbia.

Miss Mack won in the final event, the 200 metres. She ended 4,621 points to Miss Van Kickebelt's 4,237.

Miss Van Kickebelt salvaged something from the evening however, setting a new Canadian native record in one of the events in the pentathlon, the women's long jump.

Miss Van Kickebelt set a native record of 19 feet, 8½ inches, finishing fourth behind Martha Watson of Los Angeles, who leaped 20 feet, one inch.

Communication Troubles Sports

By DAN GALLAGHER

"You are always going to have a communication problem," said guest speaker, Peter Hopkins at the intramural sports conference attended by 60 delegates at Loyalist College Saturday.

Mr. Hopkins is the director of men's intramural sports at the University of Waterloo. The other guest speaker was Kent Smith, intramural athletics director at Ottawa's Laurentian High School.

Mr. Hopkins spoke on communication techniques of understanding and developing student interest in intramural sports.

"Communications continually repeats itself as the number one problem," he said. He stated that there were two principles involved in promoting high school and college intramurals: (1) publicity used to create and instil interest and (3) public relations — trying to establish a good relationship with students.

He felt that despite bombardment of announcements, flyers, posters, etc., most people don't pay any attention. He offered that there be a meaningful and worthwhile program based on student needs with the product being backed by the student body. He went on to say that salesmen of intramural sports should believe in what they are selling.

Kent Smith spoke on an effective intramural program and the method of publicization. He felt that in intramural sports, "the emphasis is on participation." He suggested that newsletters be written every week as well as posters, flyers and announcements and other effective means of communication.

Discussion groups felt that for the most part students would become involved if there was a good intramural program. Most delegates felt that an intramural program should be at a level where people would participate. It was felt intramurals should be placed ahead of interscholastic sports because without an intramural sports program, most people would not become involved in school sport. But it was felt that a good reputation in varsity sports would likely carry over into intramurals.

Lancers Win One That Counts

The St. Lawrence, Brockville college hockey team pressured the Loyalist Lancers Saturday but the Lancers managed a 9-7 win for their fifth win in Ontario College Athletic Association action this season.

Husky centre Eugene Berndt paced the Loyalist attack with two goals. Scoring the other goals for Mike Dollack's crew were Ted Johnson, Gary Cowan, Bob Remington, Gary Thompson, John McDonald, Brian McQuaid and Denny Tompkins. The latter also assisted on three Lancer goals.

Scoring for Brockville were Jeff Hunter with three while singles went to Gary Warrier, Tom Jacobs, John Ashfield, Dave Storen and Larry Edgly.

The penalty charts saw St. Lawrence take seven penalties to six for the Lancers.

Since St. Lawrence has no basketball team, Loyalist basketballers play only two exhibitions game against Brighton Tuesday, dropping a 77-46 decision. Ed Goody scored 22 points in a losing cause for Loyalist.

Boston Bruins goalie Gerry Cheevers makes a save off the stick of Montreal Canadiens' Larry Pleau as he tried for a goal in their National Hockey League game Sunday afternoon at Boston Garden. The game ended in a 2-2 tie.

Some of Best NHL Play Came During Deadlocks

Fans often object to tie games in the National Hockey League but one of the big highlights and some of the best action came in deadlocked games during the weekend.

One of the highlights was Rick Martin's 38th goal, scored in a 64 deadlock between Buffalo Sabres and Philadelphia Flyers Sunday. The goal tied the season record for a rookie, set last season by Buffalo team-mate Gil Perreault.

Some of the best action was seen Sunday at Boston where Montreal Canadiens, despite being outshot 41-18 by the Bruins, earned a 2-2 tie with the spectacular goaltending of rookie Ken Dryden.

In another tie game, Mickey Redmond, Detroit's new scoring leader, got his 34th goal of the season in Chicago Saturday to give the Red Wings a 3-3 saw-off with the Black Hawks.

In other games Sunday, New York Rangers downed Los Angeles Kings 4-2, Pittsburgh Penguins beat Vancouver Canucks 6-4, and Chicago defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1.

Saturday, Boston whipped Buffalo 5-2, Montreal edged Los Angeles 6-5, New York trounced Pittsburgh 8-3, Toronto beat California Golden Seals 3-0, St. Louis Blues edged Vancouver 5-4 and Minnesota North Stars defeated Philadelphia 5-1.

Martin and Dryden, the top contenders for the Calder Trophy as the season's outstanding rookies, each gave the league selectors food for thought Sunday.

Martin put himself on the brink of becoming the highest-scoring rookie ever with the goal at 2:44 of the first period which tied the game at that point 1-1.

Martin also is just 10 points behind Perreault's record last season of most points by a rookie—72. Martin has 34 assists to go with his 38 goals for 72 points. The rookie record for assists is a season in 53 set last season by Jude Drouin of Minnesota.

The Buffalo game saw a continuation of Philadelphia's goal-tending problem which started last week when Bruce Gamble was sidelined by a heart attack.

Flyers starter Bernie Parent was thrown out of the game with a misconduct sentence in the final minute of the second period after he argued with referee John Ashley about a Buffalo goal. His replacement, Don McLeod, suffered a knee scraping during the third period when he was knocked down by a team-mate and finished the game in obvious pain.

At Boston, Dryden was spectacular in stopping the Bruins with numerous saves on shots from close range. He was at his best in the last minute of play when he faced the heavy-scoring line of Phil Esposito, Wayne Cashman and Mike Walton.

Esposito's frustration was obvious in the last minute of the second period as well when Dryden smothered his flip shot at the goal mouth and Esposito went to the backboard and pound his head against the glass as the referee sounded to end the period.

At New York, Rod Gilbert scored on the first shot of the game and the Rangers went on to hand the Kings their fourth straight loss.

The victory moved New York to within eight points of the leading Bruins in the East Division while Montreal, undefeated in their last eight games, stayed within six points of the leaders.

At Pittsburgh, Penguins defenseman Duane Rupp and winger Joan Pronovost scored two goals each to hand the Canucks their fifth loss in 51 season games.

Vancouver's Poul Popiel earned a game misconduct penalty for shoving both linesmen during a third-period fight.

At Chicago, rookie Nick Ecken opened the scoring for Toronto with his seventh goal of the season, in the first period but the Hawks tied it up in the second and third-period goals by Cliff Koroll and Chico Maki gave Chicago the victory. Toronto's loss left them tied with Detroit for fourth in the East while the Hawks widened their lead over Minnesota in the West to 11 points.

Dryden's wasn't nearly as sharp in Montreal Saturday when the Kings tested him with 33 shots as compared to Most. Real's 48 shots at Los Angeles goalie Billy Smith.

Rookie Guy Lafleur's 22nd goal of the season with two assists remaining in the game gave Montreal the victory.

At Detroit, Red Wing Nick Libbett got two goals, both on long shots from the left wing and both while the Wings were short-handed. Chicago went ahead 3-2 but the second period but Redmond's goal late in the third against goalie Tony Esposito tied it up.

The Leafs broke out of their slump long enough to gain their third victory in 14 games with two early first-period goals, some bodychecking and the shutout netminding of 42-year-old Jacques Plante.

Robert Nixon's Resignation Stirs Ontario Liberal Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Nixon upstaged Prime Minister Trudeau at the weekend convention of the Ontario Liberal Party by announcing his intention to resign as provincial leader.

Mr. Trudeau delivered a rambling, low-key speech that packed ballroom Saturday a few hours after Mr. Nixon announced he would not be a candidate for office at the next leadership convention, expected within a year.

The theme of Mr. Trudeau's speech, interrupted twice by a heckler, was a plea for Canadians to understand what the government has done, but whether or not "our list of achievements demonstrates our ability to face the challenges of today and tomorrow."

But it was Mr. Nixon's decision to resign because "my particular qualities do not precisely fill the bill" that stirred the 1,100 registered delegates.

The Liberal party convention ended Sunday with the election of Joe Crosbie, 40, as Toronto public relations manager, as provincial party president, replacing retired John Richard of Ottawa.

Mr. Nixon, 43, who became party leader in December, 1968, received a standing ovation as he announced his resignation in a calm, unemotional voice.

His successor will be selected at a leadership convention, the date of which is to be determined by the new party executive.

Mr. Cruden said both he and Mr. Nixon favor holding the convention after the federal election, expected this spring.

Mr. Nixon told delegates he intends to remain in the legislature, representing Brant riding, after relinquishing the leadership. He told reporters later he would not rule out the possibility of his seeking a federal seat in the forthcoming election if the timing is right. But he left the distinct impression that he wants to remain in provincial politics and spend his spare time with his sons working his 200-acre farm near Brantford.

A high school teacher before entering the legislature in 1963, Mr. Nixon succeeded his father, the late Harry Nixon, one-time Ontario Liberal premier.

Mr. Nixon said his decision to resign was based on the party's election defeats under his leadership in 1967 and last October, when the Liberals dropped to 20 from 27 seats, retaining their role of official opposition by a one-seat margin.

"The people have shown in 1967 and 1971 that my particular qualities do not precisely fill the bill.

Mr. Trudeau, speaking off the cuff, declared that the mid-term issue that "it's of no avail now or later to go through a long list of bills that we've passed — but it is of great value to do that in the changing circumstances of our country in the past year, we have demonstrated our competence of leadership and determination."

He made short work of a heckler who shouted in English when Mr. Trudeau began his remarks in French.

"I was only going to say a few words in English," he said, "now I feel obliged to say more."

When the heckler later complained about the red tape necessary to claim benefits under the new unemployment insurance act, Mr. Trudeau agreed there had been delays.

"But you can't easily destroy bureaucracy if you want to have the kind of consultation we require. You don't have to point out the failures of this government."

Mr. Trudeau also promised relief with a record rocking chair for his son Justin.

He said it was a good gift, because it was sturdy, and cocked a little but maintained "its balance in the middle."

Nixon Nice Guy Without Vote-getting Touch

(OTTAWA) (CP) — Robert Nixon never did click with the voting public as leader of the Ontario Liberal party.

It was a case of a nice guy who had everything—stature, a good mind, the right political background, and a pleasing eloquence. But he lacked one thing —vote-getting appeal.

When he told the party's annual convention he was stepping down as leader after five years, many women delegates openly wept. A lot of the men had lumps in their throats.

But Robert Fletcher Nixon, tall, gangly, his impish country boy grin flashing everywhere, walked from the convention hall looking emotionally relieved.

It had never really been Robert Nixon's burning ambition to emulate his father, Harry Nixon, premier of Ontario for six months in 1943.

As he admitted to reporters away from the din of the convention Saturday, he lacked that "certain something" that a leader has to have to excite the public.

"I don't know what these particular qualities are. Personally, I've always been well received, but the votes didn't reflect any sort of trend that I was prepared to allow to continue."

"I have no regrets," he told delegates.

He had fought the good fight but the party's crushing election defeats in 1967 and last Oct. 21 under his leadership showed that "my particular qualities do not precisely fill the bill."

Mr. Nixon will stay on until a new leader is chosen, probably this fall, and continues to represent Brant riding in the legislature, as his dad did for 25 years after quitting the leadership.

But he also says he won't rule out the possibility of trying for a federal seat, although at the moment he intends to remain in provincial politics.

Mr. Nixon, his wife Dorothy and their children, John, Jane, Sarah and Harry, live in the Nixon family homestead in St. George, 15 miles northeast of Brantford.

Mr. Nixon was born at the family home and attended a one-room log house almost as much as school.

After attending public school in St. George, and high school in Brantford, he graduated from Victoria McMaster University in Hamilton with an honors degree in chemistry and biology.

He taught high school for two years at Sault Ste. Marie, and another year at Hamberside Collegiate in Hamilton before returning to Brantford to head the science department of North Park Collegiate.

He was elected to the legislature Jan. 25, 1963, a month and late father in a byelection.

He became party leader, almost by default, by vote of caucus in December, 1968, when Andrew Thompson, now Mr. Justice Thompson, left health and legal difficulties involving an automobile accident.

Toronto Broker D. Deacon To Seek Liberal Leadership

OTTAWA (CP) — Donald Deacon, a 51-year-old Toronto stock broker, says he is "almost certain" to be a candidate for the Ontario Liberal Party leadership.

Mr. Deacon appears to be an early favorite among the four members of the provincial legislature considered likely challengers for the leadership at a convention expected within a year.

Robert Nixon's decision to remain as leader only until a leadership convention is held was announced at the party's annual convention here Saturday. He said he did not "consider it proper" that he should remain as leader after five years and two election defeats.

Phillip Givens, who made a successful debut in provincial politics by winning York-Forest Hills riding in last fall's election, said in an interview he wants to survey his strength with party riding associations before deciding to run for the leadership.

James Bullbrook, outspoken Liberal frontbencher from Essex, said he is anxious to leave his options open but "as the noise dies down, no desire for the job."

Vernon Singer, deputy party leader, and Patrick Reid, popular legislature member from Rainy River, have also been mentioned as possible contenders. Neither attended the convention.

Tradeau Describes Bennett as Bigot

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau Saturday called British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett a "bigot" who thinks there are too many French people in Ottawa.

Mr. Trudeau made the off-the-cuff remark during the close of a lengthy speech to delegates attending the annual convention of the Ontario Liberal Party.

It came while he was making general remarks about the role of opposition parties in Parliament, saying he welcomed constructive criticism such as that frequently made by Social Credit Leader Real Caouette about the lack of French translations for some federal documents.

"But why doesn't he go to British Columbia where there's a Social Credit government and make a speech about the bigot who happens to run the government there?"

"This great Canadian thinks there are too many French people in Ottawa," the prime minister added. When French Canadians decide to remain in Quebec to be themselves, Mr. Bennett "thinks they're awful," but when they go to Ottawa to work hard for the whole of Canada," Mr. Bennett calls them the Quebec Mafia.

In Vancouver Sunday, B.C. Rehabilitation Minister P. A. Gaglardi said the prime minister's statement was the most ludicrous" he had ever heard.

Liberals Financed By 95 Big Companies

OTTAWA (CP) — A prominent Ontario Liberal spilled the beans on the weekend, $5 of them.

The Liberal party has traditionally resisted two things: Being branded as the party tied to big-business interests and giving in to demands that sources of election-campaign funds be made public.

R. G. Reskin of London, provincial chairman of the party's Red Carnation Fund campaign to raise money for the upcoming federal election, decided to abandon tradition from nickels and dimes to $500-cheques.

"We're trying to broaden the party base," Mr. Reskin told the caucus.

"The Liberal party has operated for many years on the support of 95 major Canadian corporations."

Fibroid Tumors Not Unusual; If No Trouble, Let Them Be

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dr. Thosteson: I am 33 with a child a year and a half old. My last checkup with my OB doctor revealed a fibroid tumor.

He did not tell me the size but did say surgery was not needed. He would not prescribe birth control pills for me.

Now that I know it is there I can feel it on my left side. When is surgery necessary? Will I be in danger three years ago?—Mrs. J.A.M.

First of all, fibroid tumors of the uterus are not at all uncommon. They can be large or small, single or multiple.

Your doctor said "no" to birth control pills as a precaution. Ice may be in order, the chance that the hormones in the pills might speed up growth of the fibroid.

In the majority of cases, these fibroids cause little or no trouble, and it is accepted practice to leave them alone and keep track of whether they are growing or remaining static. It is quite possible that you may have had yours for some time.

If a fibroid becomes large enough to cause trouble—bleeding, discomfort, fear of cancer that is time enough to remove it. It isn't causing any trouble, she leave it alone. Indeed, fibroids quite often shrink after menopause, and in that case surgery never need be done about them.

If surgical removal is necessary, occasionally a fibroid can be taken out without removing the whole uterus (hysterectomy) but not often. More generally, the uterus has to be sacrificed, and that is a good reason for not resorting to surgery in a woman your age.

Whether the fibroid had anything to do with your miscarriage is problematical. Maybe, maybe not. The presence of fibroids, in some cases, interfere with pregnancy or prevent it. However, the fact that you have since had a healthy baby is proof that you can have children, fibroids or not.

You didn't ask, but I dare say you are wondering whether a fibroid means cancer. In general fibroids are not cancerous.

Dr. Thosteson: My husband will be an alcoholic if he is not stopped in time. Can a doctor give pills so you won't want so much alcohol?—Mrs. M.K.

Yes, there are such medications. Antabuse being the best known. These medications have to be given under a physician's supervision. The principle is that when a person is taking them, he becomes violently ill if he drinks any alcohol. The catch is that the person has to WANT to give up alcohol and be willing to take the medication. Not all do. But in the right case this can be effective and helpful.

Opening lead — four of spades.

Here is a gem of pure ray serene. The deal occurre in the U.S. Italy match i 1968. It features exceptional good defense by the Italian stars. Forquet and Garozzo.

Jordan, playing with Robi side, opened the lead d dummy and first had to d side whether to establish dur my's hearts or his own club Very prosperly, he decided th hearts offered a better chanc and accordingly he played heart from dummy at the trick two.

Had Forquet followed low as any other civilized human being would have done, Jo dan's nine would have forc the ace and he would sure have made the slam.

But Forquet put up t queen, acting very much li a man who has A-Q and turned a club.

Jordan won with the ac played the A-K of trumps, ti cashed the king of clubs, le ing to gather still more formation about the adver hands before committing himself on the next play.

But all he got was mo information. For Garozzo pl ed the queen of clubs on t king, acting as though he h started with the doubleton queen.

It is difficult to fault J dan for concluding, under t circumstances, that he ha better chance of finding th queen of clubs than of findi the clubs divi 3-3.

Backing his judgment, J dan played a third round clubs, ruffed Garozzo's ki ing of hearts, and discar a club. Garozzo took the ace and the ace and the st went down one as a reward the superb defense.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Your good cheer tips the general balance in favor of achievement as your turn to be heard comes around. A short cat between yourself and the boss you want is temporarily wide open.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Continue defining terms and striving for understanding among friends, relatives and associates. Patience wins out.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Money deals include details you hadn't planned; look before signing. People want your opinion on many things but may not offer much in immediate return.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Set up an important interview for what you have to offer. Creative builds toward a burst of energy late in the day along with an urge to do something special.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Concentrate on career building. Important dealings, exchanges. Friends are off in another direction, not to be drafted to do your bidding for you at the moment.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Self-sufficiency is your goal as local arrangements are completed. Beware of co-ordination. See that temperament doesn't upset anything.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Dig, create, formality and strength-protective approaches. You are apt to get in over your head with high stakes on what should be innocent games.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take a broken promise in stride; not much is really lost. Discuss career questions, but not in public. Important decisions are not due yet.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New enterprises are favored, should be vigorously promoted. Fresh faces, local travel provide stimulus.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cautious management may cover your welfare and that of others as well. Do not be needed unselfishly. Your advice comes into good use if you're not guarding it.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Usually you can get people to do things that get your enterprises off a dead spot, but only by doing so most of it yourself.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Early hours show positive influences, family and home arrangements not well synchronized, but getting there slowly.

Exports to U.S. Up 22 Pct. in January

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian exports to the United States were 22.2 per cent higher last month than in January, 1971, Statistics Canada has reported.

But exports to all other markets declined, with sharp declines in exports of metals and metal ores, wood pulp and communications equipment.

Exports last month were $1.36 billion, up from $1.29 billion for the same month a year earlier.

The U.S. bought $695.3 million in goods in the first month of this year, compared with $814.8 million for January, 1971.

But exports to Britain fell by $3.7 per cent to $83.8 million from $137.3 million. Other declines included the European Economic Community, down to $41 million from $48.7 million, $94.3 million from $102.2 million and Japan, down slightly to $55.4 million from $55.8 million.

'Golden Opportunity' In Tax Policy Lost

OTTAWA (CP) — The new chairman of the Economic Council of Canada says Canada had "a golden opportunity" to increase domestic control of business and industry through new tax laws.

Dr. Andre R a y n a u d, 41, ECOC chairman since Jan. 1, said the government "chose not" to adopt recommendations in the Carter royal commission report on taxation that would have increased economic independence.

"I'm referring to the integration of corporation and individual taxes," Dr. Raynaud said on the CTV public affairs show Question Period Sunday.

Complete integration would have provided incentives for Canadians to invest in Canada's industry rather than in foreign firms. And non-residents would have had less incentive to invest in Canada.

Excise Tax Talk Speculative - - Pepin

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin says reports that the United States may impose a seven-per-cent excise tax on cars imported from Canada are speculative.

"There are plenty of other tactics they could use to force revision of the auto pact," he said in an interview Saturday. Plenty of rumors about their use could be expected.

Canada-U.S. negotiations on the 1965 auto pact were "still developing." Mr. Pepin laughed off a report earlier this week quoting an official as saying that failure to reach agreement had put the situation "on the verge of catastrophe."

"An excise tax could cause a recession in the Canadian auto industry by driving up the price of cars shipped to the U.S.

Mr. Pepin said that the tax would certainly hurt Canada if it was imposed, but it would also hurt the U.S.

"We think that we can reach an agreement" he said. "I think the best thing now is to stay cool."

Britain Faces Failure Of Power in Two Weeks

LONDON (Reuter) — With just two weeks of electricity left for home and industry, Britain suffered more blackouts and more job layoffs today as a result of crisis measures taken to cope with a lingering national coal miners strike.

More than 250,000 workers were laid off today in the west Midlands alone, the source of one-third of Britain's exports, and one of every five men in the region was idle.

An estimated 800,000 men were thrown out of work Monday, adding to the one million jobless figure that preceded the strike, now in its sixth week, as sweeping emergency moves reduced industry to a three-day week to conserve fuel supplies.

The widespread electricity demouts, now in their sixth day, began before dawn today. A spokesman for the state-owned central electricity generating board said: "We are suffering under a deteriorating situation."

After Prime Minister Edward Heath announced Monday night that he would meet today with union and management chiefs, his trade and industry minister, John Davies, told Parliament and the nation of the harsh reality of the situation.

"At present, with the stocks which are then available for use, the anticipated endurance of the electricity generating industry is approximately two weeks at the present rate of consumption."

At that time, he added, if there is no change in the situation, "the generating boards capacity would be down to about 26 or 25 per cent of normal load."

"If it were at this level it would be sufficient only to keep essential services going.

"The clear inference is there would be no electricity for industry and the home at all."

And the certainty of being able to provide for essential services —such as hospitals—"must be regarded as pretty precarious," he said.

Heath will meet today with Vic Feather, leader of Britain's Trades Union Congress, which groups 150 unions and 10 million workers. Later he will consult with officials of the Confederation of British Industry.

Observers believed Heath will ask Feather to use his influence to get the mineworkers to call off their walkout.

The national strike committee of the coal miners' union told pickets Monday they should ensure deliveries to hospitals, the old and the sick in accordance with its list of priorities.

The governing Conservative party survived two votes on the situation in the Commons.

The House approved the emergency powers announced last week by the government. The vote was 335 to 278. Then by a vote of 307 to 269 the House approved the order bringing the regulations into force.

Meanwhile, more workers are expected to join the 800,000 laid off from jobs Monday as a result of the emergency regulations, which have forced industry into a three-day week.

The layoffs hit all areas of the country, but worst-hit were the industrial Midlands.

Relatives of Dead Will Boycott Probe

LONDONDERRY (Reuter) — Relatives of the 13 persons who died in Northern Ireland's "Bloody Sunday" two weeks ago will boycott a British government inquiry into the incident because it is "neither independent nor impartial."

The relatives met Monday night and issued a statement afterwards saying they would not cooperate "in any way" with the inquiry by Britain's lord chief justice, Lord Widgery.

Widgery opened preliminary hearings Monday in Coleraine, 28 miles from Londonderry. He will begin formal hearings next week to determine exactly what happened when the 13 died after shooting broke out during a civil rights protest march in Londonderry Jan. 30.

"We want an inquiry—an international one," the relatives said through their spokesman, James Wray, father of one of the dead, said:

"No one can convince me that a brigadier of the British Army is a suitable person to investigate the conduct of the British Army," he said.

Widgery served in the army during the Second World War. The British Army has been blamed by people in Northern Ireland with starting the shooting in which the 13 were killed. But the army maintains the soldiers were fired on first.

Laird Says Red Power Grows Fast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird of the United States said today that Soviet nuclear power is growing faster than he had forecast. He said a United States speedup in submarine-missile development signals the U.S. will to keep a strong retaliatory punch.

Other defence officials said the recent decision to push the undersea long-range missile system, or ULMS, also indicates to Russia it should not stall on agreeing to limit nuclear weapons, including submarine-launched missiles.

An initial U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms-limitation agreement is expected by May, but the Russians are reported opposed to including submarine-launched weapons until they overtake an American lead in this department.

Airway Strike Is Not Ended

By The Canadian Press

Amid conditions that have seriously affected Canadian air travel by causing delays of as much as four hours in flights, electrical technicians have rejected by an overwhelming margin a proposal that would have ended a 10-day strike.

Airlines were reported either cancelling flights or "consolidating"—holding passengers back from one flight and filling a later flight—as radar and other navigational aids were affected by lack of maintenance. One airport reported handling bounty a quarter the usual number of flights.

Bill Andreff of Edmonton, president of Local 2228 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said Monday his 2,200 members voted 73.4 per cent against a mediation proposal on wage demands. He said he did not know when mediation might resume.

"We'll have to talk with the public service staff relations board tomorrow and see what our alternatives are," he said. But one thing sure, the boys are still on strike."

Mediator Gordon Simmons, a Queen's University professor, said at Kingston he already had made up his mind about a resumption of mediation but would go no farther until discussing it with the boar!

A Government spokesman said Monday: "We are prepared to negotiate on reasonable terms. We would like to see a collective agreement signed, despite the rejection."

The employees seek a 23.7 per cent increase over 24 months based on the average "working classification" annual salary of $18,000. The government board suggested 15.5 per cent over 28 months and Prof. Cameron's proposal averaged out at 16 per cent over 28 months.

But Patrick Carstens of the IBEW dismissed the Simmons proposal as "simply laid a joke."

"In the United States, technicians get $18,000 a year," he said. "We're not expecting parity, but there isn't such a difference in other fields."

Although union headquarters gave no breakdown on the vote, spokesmen in Toronto and Montreal did.

The Toronto official gave this breakdown of the 73 per cent: Vancouver 84 per cent; Gander and St. John's in Newfoundland 89; Moncton 82, Winnipeg 68, and Toronto, which collated the vote for most of Ontario, 84.

Andre Chaine at Montreal said it was 78 per cent against in the province of Quebec, including a Montreal vote of 171 for rejection and 67 for the proposal. Halifax was 73 per cent no.

Nixon Opens Door For Chinese Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — After opening wider the door for United States trade with China, President Nixon has received a two-stage briefing from a French intellectual who knows the Chinese leaders Nixon will meet next week.

An 80-minute meeting with Andre Malraux and a private White House dinner for him Monday night came as spokesmen sketched the rough itinerary for Nixon's week-long China visit.

Included are a series of meetings with Communist leaders, a round of four banquets in three cities and sightseeing trips in the Great Wall and other Chinese shrines.

Nixon leaves Thursday on the first leg of his journey.

A few hours before greeting Malraux, the White House announced Nixon was taking steps to place China on the same trade footing as the Soviet Union and most other Eastern European Communist countries.

While, rejecting suggestions that timing of the announcement was linked to Nixon's fast-approaching departure for China, Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said: "We hope the People's Republic of China will be receptive to this step. . . . We hope they would welcome this additional step forward in opening up trade."

Basically, Nixon's actions allow the export to China of such U.S. products as locomotives, construction equipment, industrial chemicals, internal combustion engines and machine tools.

Nixon will fly to Shanghai, arriving Monday, Feb. 21, and on to Peking, arriving at 11:30 a.m. Monday (10:30 p.m. EST Sunday).

Nixon will have a series of meetings with Premier En-lai, Chou and possibly Mao Tse-tung. Ziegler said these will dominate the five days Nixon is in Peking.

On Feb. 28, the American delegation will fly to the resort city of Hangchow, flying Feb. 29 to Shanghai for an industrial exhibition. They leave Feb. 28 on the return trip to Washington, stopping at Anchorage, Alaska, for refuelling.

Lake Pipe Plan Costly

By Roy Peacock
Staff Reporter

Belleville city council is prepared to continue with the Bay of Quinte as the source of the city's future water supply rather than pipe its requirements from Lake Ontario.

This was the decision yesterday following a joint meeting of council with the Belleville Public Utilities Commission at which a consultant's report on cost comparisons was considered.

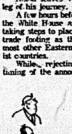
The report showed that piping Lake Ontario water would be considerably more expensive, but regardless of the method by which future water needs of the Belleville area are met, significant increases in costs are unavoidable, mainly because of the capital works that are necessary.

Capital costs for piping water from the lake are estimated at more than $15 million, while if the pipeline from the lake is not built, expansion of the Belleville filtration plant to a daily capacity of 16 million gallons from the present 12 million would cost an estimated $2,283,000.

Calculations showed that the 1976 cost of drawing water from an expanded filtration plant would be 61 cents per 1,000 gallons, compared to 85.1 cents if water was piped from Lake Ontario.

By 1986, however, cost of Bay of Quinte water would be reduced to 61.8 cents as compared with 89.4 cents for lake water, and by 1995 would be 59.1 cents as compared with 92.7 for lake waters.

These estimated Belleville rates could be reduced by about 8 cents per 1,000 gallons with the subtraction of capital costs involved in providing distribution facilities to serve Thurlow township which Mayor J. Russell Scott of the commission says city residents should not be required to pay.



When it was shown that Lake Ontario water would be considerably more expensive,

Allies Tire Of U.S. Complaints

BRUSSELS (AP) — European defence experts say they are tired of United States complaints that they are not doing enough. They are convinced they are pulling their weight and more—in the joint defence effort.

One European government has prepared figures to show that the U.S. military outlay this year will be 20 per cent less than two years ago in real terms—that is, adjusted for inflation. The same figures show expenditures by the West European allies rising 6% per cent in that period.

Lord Carrington, Britain's defence secretary, recently pointed out that according to U.S. defence department figures, European members of the Atlantic alliance provide 90 per cent of the ground troops

Ready to Testify

Blonde folk singer Nina van Pallandt turns to view cameramen as she enters Federal Court in Manhattan to testify before a grand jury probing her friend Clifford Irving's "autobiography" of Howard Hughes. (AP Photo)

Warrant Likely For Wife of Author Irving

NEW YORK (AP) — Danish Singer Nina van Pallandt, an acquaintance of author Clifford Irving, was to testify before a federal grand jury today amid reports that a warrant would be sworn out for the arrest of Irving's wife.

The reports indicated that the Swiss envoy in Washington would dispatch an official here today to swear out a complaint against Edith Irving, 36, as the first step toward extraditing her to face charges of fraud and forgery.

Irving, author of the "autobiography" of billionaire Howard Hughes, has stated that his wife, using a passport in the name of "Helga R. Hughes", deposited in a Swiss bank $650,000 in royalty cheques intended for Hughes.

Swiss authorities said she later withdrew the money and deposited some of it in another Swiss bank under another pseudonym.

The latest issue of Time magazine said Irving has admitted his work is a hoax and is willing to plead guilty to fraud and perjury in return for leniency by the Swiss government toward his wife, a Swiss citizen.

Swiss officials denied reports, however, they had entered an agreement to drop bank fraud and passport forgery charges against Mrs. Irving if her husband went to jail.

Irving has said he met and taped conversations with Hughes on more than 100 occasions, but a voice said to be that of Hughes denied ever knowing Irving or authorizing the auto biography.

Mrs. Pallandt, who was to be joined in federal court today by Ann Baxter, a scuba instructor from Florida, appeared Monday, but did not testify, due to a clerical mixup in which grand jurors were not notified of the session.

Mrs. Pallandt is expected to talk about a step in Mexico with Irving during which the author has sworn he met with Hughes. She has said Irving was not away from her long enough for such meetings.

Storm Sewer's Course Rough Through Council

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

City council yesterday gave third and final reading to a bylaw authorizing construction of the $700,000 Pahey Street storm sewer but not before two previous motions seeking to delay the project had been defeated.

Discussion on the storm sewer project, which has already been approved by the Ontario Municipal Board, took up more than an hour at the marathon 6½ hour council session.

Third reading of the storm sewer bylaw was on the council agenda two weeks ago but was tabled at the request of Aldermen Jack Ireland, who said he had received enquiries as to the owners of the undeveloped lands which the storm sewer would drain.

Yesterday a report from City Manager J. R. Reynolds showed that Sanctuary Developments Ltd. of which Mayor J. Russell Scott is a part owner, and Ivan May were the major owners of undeveloped land in the area.

Sanctuary Developments owns 36.73 acres and Ivan May 21.38 acres.

When the sewer project came up for discussion, Mayor Scott immediately made known his interest and withdrew from the council chambers.

The report by Mr. Reynolds showed that the city in 1968, under an agreement with Sanctuary Developments, undertook to build the storm sewer within five years in return for an easement and the right to split storm water on Sanctuary property.

The agreement ran out in June, 1971.

Mr. Reynolds said the proposed storm sewer would provide trunk storm sewer outlets for the Park Dale area, Coleman Flats, the College Street area, North Front Street between Tracey and Donald Streets and the Valleyview Crescent area.

Ald. Ireland said he had not thought but that everything was "clear and above board" but moved that the bylaw be rescinded and that the agreement with Sanctuary Developments be terminated forthwith. The motion was seconded by Ald. Donald Soutter.

Ald. Ireland stated that a decision on the Pahey Street sewer be delayed until the east-west storm sewer to drain the area north of Tracey Street and west of North Front Street is completed. He suggested the Pahey Street sewer be included in the 1973 capital works budget.

Ald. Arthur Keegan, however, said he could not agree to the rescinding motion.

"We could be subject to a damage suit from Sanctuary Developments," he warned.

Ald. Soutter questioned the high priority for the storm sewer, noting that it had not been on the five-year capital works program but was included for 1971.

"Why the change in priority," he asked, noting there had been no formal request from Sanctuary for the sewer.

He maintained that council had an obligation to renegotiate its agreement with Sanctuary.

But Ald. Ben Corke said other owners as well as Sanctuary were involved.

He said he couldn't fault Mayor Scott for buying the north Belleville property years ago "when no one else wanted it."

Noting that this was one of the few occasions when he supported the mayor, he said he could not see how council could now go back and renegotiate.

The motion to rescind the bylaw was defeated on a 7-2 recorded vote with Ald. Ireland and Soutter casting affirmative votes.

This immediately touched off a move by Ald. Robin Jeffrey who asked that a one-foot reserve be placed on each side of the sewer, to be lifted only at the discretion of council.

Her thought as chairman of the city recreation committee was to try to retain open land developed ravine land in the area for parks purposes.

"It is the only undeveloped ravine land with a watercourse left in the city," she said.

However, when it was pointed out that a one-foot reserve would serve no useful purpose, Mrs. Jeffrey brought in a motion calling for the bylaw to be tabled; that the agreement with Sanctuary be renegotiated and that the parks board bring in a secondary plan for the area.

The motion to renegotiate was ruled out of order by acting chairman Ald. Paul Rushton and the bylaw had already been turned down in a previous motion.

Council questioned his ruling but the chairman's decision stood when the objection failed to get the necessary two-thirds majority vote.

Ald. Keegan charged that the motion was merely a delaying action.

Ald. Jeffrey admitted this could be true, but said she was prepared to take any avenue to save parkland for future citizens.

This brought a tabledthumping reply from Ald. Keegan, who said that in all his 26 years of public life he had always fought for the people.

The motion to table the bylaw was turned down on another recorded vote but the delay-seeking procedure did not pick up an additional vote.

Voting yes to the tabling motion were Aldermen Ireland, Jeffrey and Soutter. Negative votes were cast by Aldermen Corke, David Keegan, Orr, Campbell and Smith.

The vote on the original bylaw recommendation was carried by a similar 6-3 margin with voting positions on the previous motion being merely reversed.

Developer Gets Council's OK To Negotiate

The possibility of an east and Belleville site, owned by Loyalist Developments, being considered for construction of a senior citizens' high rise apartment complex was made known to city council yesterday.

Belleville lawyer Douglas Boyle, acting for principals of the local development firm, said his clients wished to make a presentation for their site to Evelarie Housing Corporation but were prevented from doing so by the terms of a subdivision agreement with the city.

Under the terms of the agreement, all servicing requirements must be carried out by the owners before the property can be offered for sale.

Mr. Boyle told his clients—former mayor Jack Ellis, William Wills and Lee Grills — were fully prepared to carry out requirements under the agreement but were unable to do so because certain needed approvals had not yet been received.

He asked that council give its consent to allow negotiations with OHC before servicing details were completed. The submission to OHC had to be in by today (Tuesday) it was stated.

After considerable discussion, council went along with the request to allow negotiations.

Ontario Housing Corporation is inviting submissions for the construction of 160 additional senior citizens' apartment units in the city.

Another site for which a submission is being made to OHC is the vacant Albert College Manor property now being used as a city playground.

Don't Be Alarmed !

Green Water Is Leak Detector

TRENTON (Staff) — If you turn on a tap and the water comes out green, "it will not be because of impurities in the town water supply," says public utilities manager Doug Manlow.

The coloration will be caused by dense green dyes, pellets of which are now being dropped into an isolated river water main which officials say is leaking.

The commission has hired a team of underwater experts who have sealed off one of the two principal links in Trenton's east - west water grid for the coloring process.

"Some coloring has to be used," says PUC commissioner Charles Hilton. "You cannot see water flowing into water unless it is colored."

He says the dye is non-toxic and household consumers have nothing to fear. "It is strictly a kind of vegetable dye like that used in butter or icing . . . It has no ill effects, I'm sure . . . It is like the coloring used in jams or ketchup — this is the kind of dye we'll be using."

Manlow adds: "It is a very concentrated dye — it has to be."

Commission officials explain they will flush the main before water is allowed to flow through it again but they advise that the possibility exists the color of the green dye may reach water faucets of Trenton homes.

The commission manager says he is "reasonably sure" the water line is leaking. It has not been used for several weeks and all water consumers the river through an identical 16-inch main further on in the south.

As a rule, only one main is used at a time with the other kept as an auxiliary. The main now being examined crosses the Trent River behind Wesse Motors on Front Street and is still usable in its present state, says Manlow, but much water would seep from it if it was pressed into service.

In its operation the three-man team from the Toronto firm Young and Forbes has cut several large air holes in the river ice and from the commission advises snowmobilers to avoid them. The company estimates it will cost about $1,000 for its divers to find the leaks and seal them.

Frankford School Contract Shifted

Construction of a $450,000 addition to Frankford public school has been switched from a Trenton to a Brighton-area contractor — the original lowest bidder.

Hastings County Board of Education made the change last night after being advised provincial authorities did not consider as valid the board's reasons for awarding the contract to a local firm.

The trustees rescinded a Feb. 1 decision granting the project to Miron-Wiggers Construction Ltd., whose bid of $457,200 was fractionally above that of Division Construction Ltd., of Downview — whose bid of $454,400 now wins the contract.

The board's desire to award the contract to a local firm, brought department of education intervention when formal provincial government approval of the project was sought. The re-department ruled the board had not listed valid reasons for not accepting the lowest bidder, among them: (1) Tendering procedure had not included preferential treatment of local contractors; (2) The board could not claim the lowest bidder had a history of incompetence — in fact, "quite the contrary".

The debate preceding the decision evoked contrasting worries among board members.

Trustee Ralph Weaver pondered the possibilities of on-the-job delays — costly in terms of dollars and deadlines — before effect by having a local contractor on whom it might be easier to exercise control than a builder "from some distance".

A community economic factor also was mentioned: How much local labor might be involved.

In contrast, there was concern over the cost of delaying a decision on the contract award.

The trustees had before them information forwarded from their building committee warning that a "delay in this project could result in added costs through re-tendering — at a bad time of year. Also, the contract size handled by the private contractor was estimated between five and 15 per cent.

There is the frequent investment of sub-contractors and the committee's statement noted: "in nearly all cases, contractors utilize local labor for Hastings County projects for obvious efficiency reasons."

Board chairman Donald Williams agreed that deferring a decision would "certainly" delay the project — "How long, of course, is questionable."

Trustee Macdonald Smith said the board had two courses — either approve the new contract or explore the situation through a local MPP.

This drew a cautionary summation from Administrator Eric Roracres.

The recommendation to reinvestigate centred on the department's advice, he said, was "ethically sound" and correct "as a matter of principle."

Thus, the only appeal procedure could be through "political avenues".

"In the long-term view, the board has not moved in such avenues up to now," he said. "To move to a political avenue seems to me an unfortunate step at this time."

Mrs. Gertrude Lindenberg, 71, of 201 Victoria Avenue, Apartment 5, was wearing dark clothing at the time of the 8.31 p.m. accident.

A passing taxi driver, dispatched the emergency call to his central office, who informed police.

She was rushed to Belleville General Hospital, but later transferred to Kingston General, where she was pronounced dead on arrival by Coroner Dr. W. S. Patterson of Kingston.

City police report there have been no charges laid against driver Vincenas Mancuso, 32, of 631 Bridge Street East.

Billy Jack, A Sleeper, Sets Record

The biggest movie hit of the year in Canada records in Belleville.

Billy Jack, the saga of a half breed's fight to save a communal ranch, now is in its eighth week at the Quinte Cinema. Previous record holder was Summer of '42 which ran for six weeks.

By comparison, The Sound of Music played at the Belle Theatre for three years and for five weeks.

Why is it such a smash?

"Because anyone can identify with it," says Quinte manager Mrs. Cecilia Colhane. "And that's particular to this movie."

She says that during the show's downtown run, she has yet to hear of a viewer not enjoying himself. Youngsters of all ages are returning three and four times to see Billy Jack fight off self-seeking red-necks who threaten to close his desert commune.

People come from as far away as Trenton, Peterborough and Kingston to see Billy Jack, notes Mrs. Colhane.

"I know that because we had a power interruption during the film last week and we had to issue a lot of tickets. Many of the people had come from quite distant points and had to be given refunds."

In Toronto, the show is currently in its eighth month and in the United States, weekly gross is $250,000. Mrs. Colhane said it opened in seven two weeks ago with Billy Jack Reborn in the smaller Theatre 1, but spectators are still being turned away for the sixth and seventh nights, on weekends.

The stars of Billy Jack, Tom Laughlin and his wife Delores Taylor, made the film for a modest $650,000. Since then, they have encountered nothing but trouble in studio after studio ignored them and the eventual releasing company, Warner Brothers, tried to kill the picture.

But the public has the final say and the response has been overwhelming. Already, it's reported titled The Trial of Billy Jack, has been prepared and shooting commences this spring.

Long runs inevitably hold up other movies. In a city the size of Belleville, with only four theatre outlets during the winter, a constant turnover is the only means of surviving.

Billy Jack is tentatively scheduled to leave town next Thursday — the stay began December 24 — but Mrs. Colhane says nothing is definite.

"We had higher receipts last week than we had the week before. If results are the same this week, Billy Jack could be here for some time yet."

Centennial's Microfiche Is Information Storer

The problem of finding space to store old editions of periodicals, magazines and newspaper articles in school libraries has been solved at Centennial Secondary School with the purchase of a microfiche.

Centennial purchased the microfiche through the Hastings County Board of Education in September but it hadn't been used in the library until the beginning of this year.

The microfiche, which is closely related to microfilm, has been in use since 1968. Both microfiche and microfilm are part of a largely unexplored area called micro-imagery.

The main use of microfiche is to reproduce whole editions of periodicals onto a 4-by-6-in. negative which is inserted into a micro-fiche reader. The negative is made by a printer which photographs separately each page of the magazine. The negative card is called a fiche from the French word for index card. Using a 105-mm. film, and a step and repeat camera recording a number of rows of images on one 4-by-6-in. piece of film, a single document is produced. One fiche may contain up to 60 or 90 pages.

Centennial presently has the microfiche reader and fiches of the 1970 editions of Newsweek magazine. The equipment was purchased through Bell and Howell, an American firm. The fiches at the 1971 editions of Newsweek.

Two types of fiches can be purchased, a negative and a positive with both having advantages and disadvantages.

At the present time, a good quality library reader sells for $300 or so, with reader-printers beginning around $1,200. Some readers may be used as projectors or small group viewing for viewing on the screen. With the screen, only two or three people can use the machine.

The microfiche at Centennial is going to greatly help out with the shortage of space. With the microfiche you always have a copy of the magazine, noted Mrs. Philip Boyko, head librarian at the school. "It is an authoritative reference source, in other words, it's always there."

Mrs. Boyko called the microfiche a research tool. It has many advantages in the new field of student research with students able to easily find articles in magazines through the Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature and then find the correct fiche and focus it on the reader screen.

Magazines are easily lost by students taking them from the library and also can be destroyed by the handling they receive.

Mrs. Boyko hopes that the board will be able to purchase a camera and duplicator in the future. The fiches are now being made in the United States. If the board was to do this entire equipment then fiches could be made right in the county of magazines, newspaper articles, documents or any other research material. The equipment would be handled by the board's structural media centre in Trenton.

The introduction of the microfiche brings the school system closer to the realm of computers. A small beginning.

Trenton Family Burned Out

TRENTON (Staff) — An early Sunday morning fire left a family of nine homeless and caused considerable damage to their dwelling before Trenton firemen brought the flames under control.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Ellis and seven children, who resided at 25 Frederick Street were forced out of the burning building in clothing they managed to put on while the father tried to extinguish the flames with kettles of water. They were taken in by Mr. Ellis' brother and sister who live at 4 John Street.

When firemen arrived, they found the outbreak spreading from a side porch into the upstairs part of the two-storey brick home. Fire chief Cecil Ellis, who blamed faulty wiring as the cause, reported the major portion of the damage resulted from water from hoses used to douse the stubborn flames.

The father, still shaken by the experience, saved the family pet, a mongrel dog named Charlie Brown, a stroke of good luck in spite of the loss.

The Ellises carried insurance to cover the loss.

Big Question Is 'How ?'

Culture in Schools Desirable

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Culture is an integral factor in educational development in Hastings County, school trustees seemed unanimous about in their meeting last night.

The big problem is how to make it blossom equitably in the climate of a country with diverse interests.

Board of education member Ken Agnew, trustee Harrison Graham when she declared: "This cultural development will be an important asset to outdoors development or physical development."

"We have a responsibility here . . ." said trustee Miss Muriel Smith.

"It is an integral part of learning," added Administrator Eric Runacres.

The responses were prompted by a brief submitted to the board by the Quinte Arts Council.

The council's promotion of artistic enterprises in record seems has been ignored youth. It has played a significant role in encouraging cultural events for Hastings County students. Even so, it feels its achievements have been "minimal and spasmodic" considering the potential.

Its brief was a product of such participants. Prepared by council president Murray Irwin — a high school vice-principal — the document basically recommended the board affirm "leadership responsibility" in developing "effective cultural programming" for all students in the county.

Appended requests were for "adequate funding for development of a vital arts program" and appointment of a co-ordinator.

The trustees balked at an immediate resolution of such requests.

Too costly details needed pinning down, they indicated: The monetary commitment needed, the pattern of programming, its design for counselors — not just urban participation, and the post of co-ordinator.

The result was a decision, suggested by Mr. Smith, to table the brief until the board's administration could thoroughly investigate such areas.

The arts already are part of the board's curriculum — with classes in art, drama, pottery and such — all part of direct involvement in culture. The arts council, through, such spectator events as theatre productions, is attempting to broaden the spectrum.

Even so far, the idea has produced a relationship Mr. Runacres described as a "happy combination of people working together in co-operation. What I see coming out of this is the need for leadership.

He proposed one working solution: Appointment of one of the board's eight educational assistants as a co-ordinator, working with the council and other groups in program development, finances and other specifics.

Mrs. Graham agreed the suggestion seemed "logical."

"I think we have a responsibility in this area — and it is one of co-operation and working with the Quinte Arts Council," said Mr. Smith. But the question was who should assume leadership—the board or the council.

Mr. Irwin said the theory was that the board could provide the necessary leadership while the council and other groups would participate in the programming.

The question of finances remaining was repeatedly raised by trustees.

Mr. Irwin thought it "presumptuous" if the council were to tell the board how much to spend. Nor would it be desirable to suggest maximums or minimums at this stage.

"A large an estimate might kill the suggested undertakings, too little might seem curtailment.

"That's a good political answer, I would say," quipped chairman Donald Williams.

For some of its presentations, the council has found sponsors and contractors of goods and services to offset deficits.

These have included: an instrumental enrichment program that brought 200 students for a day's workout with an armed services band from Kingston; 700 students at Sedgley Rex by the National Shakespeare Company from New York; 300 students at a day-long workshop on vocal music; 800 at a production by the Neptune Theatre.

These and others cost $2,800, met by student contributions, the council, the board and department of education. In all, 2,600 students attended such programs.

The brief sums up: "The enthusiasm of the students involved and subsequent developments, attest to the value of these programs. What has been done, however, is minimal and spasmodic.

"Much, much more is available to our students than has been presented, and all the students of this county should be served by whatever programs are provided. Ontario itself has an enormous wealth of cultural resources which can be used for the benefits of all our students."

The board concludes: "Unfortunately what is needed is professional leadership at a level sufficiently high that the energies and talents of individuals and participating agencies may be welded together into an effective program thereof. The Hastings County Board of Education, because it's a county board, because it is a board of education can best provide the leadership . . . needed."

As a prologue, the board's agenda also contained a report from its county English curriculum committee, noting the offer from it's Toronto group of professional performances available in the schools.

The group — Prologues to the Performing Arts, includes in its programs a tenor-recitalist, a dance group, the National Ballet, theatre productions. Fees range from $235 to $375 and Provincial aid is partly supported by the Ontario Arts Council.

The committee suggests if an appropriate grant is made available board funds must be set aside for costs in the whole schedule approached in an "organized manner."

"Thoughtfully selected" events distributed throughout county schools in an "organized" manner would help, provide a consistent art program of good quality, summarized the committee's report.

Such programs would serve as curricula extension and illustration with "presentations of professional quality".

Educators To Retire

This is the year several well-known personalities in local education are retiring after long service.

The Hastings County Board of Education last night heard formal notices of retirement from several senior staff members.

They are: Donald C. Stirling, board superintendent, who came to Belleville College-iate in 1947 to head its mathematics department, was made vice-principal in 1953 and promoted principal in 1964. Three years later he received his staff appointment to the (then) county board.

Merritt M. Hackett, principal of Harry J. Clarke school in Belleville, has been in education for 40 years. He started teaching in 1929 and has been teaching in Belleville area for 30 years — 23 of them as a principal.

Ronald Wright, principal of King George senior public school, began his career in 1934. For the past 14 years he has been principal of Bayside and Holy Rosary elementary schools.

Florence B. McCoy, principal, Madoc public school, began teaching in 1939 and her career has centred in the Madoc - Tweed area. She has been 11 years as principal in Madoc township.

The retirements are effective next June when the school year ends.

Mrs. Katherine Pryce also is resigning as secretary to William R. Kirk school for retarded children.

Drunk Drivers

We are that in British Columbia the courts are clamping down on drinking drivers, even to the extent of suspending licences. Actually we are surprised there had been any leniency in this regard and that taking a man's licence away is, or should be, one of the main bulwarks against this offence which is such a hazard to the person concerned as well as to the public at large.

In the United States, where drunk drivers last year killed more than 28,000 people, caused some 800,000 accidents and resulted in economic losses totalling more than $8 billion, laws are being toughened, and in no more than a promising fashion than in Virginia. Penalties there range up to jail terms and licence suspension for life.

In other countries things can be even tougher for the drunk driver. In South Africa, according to a recent report, a jail term of 10 years and a $2,800 fine awaits the habitual offender. In Australia, as in Britain, the offender gets his name in the paper. In Scandinavia it is immediate imprisonment, usually three weeks to a month for a first offence, coupled with manual labor say in the forests of the interior. In Turkey the driver is taken 20 miles away and forced to walk home under escort.

The ultimate punishment however is that meted out by the authorities in San Salvador — execution by a firing squad. But isn't this the real measure of an offence which has caused the death of thousands around the world?

Tax Time

Always ingratiating and ready with some cute camouflage to disguise the fact that tax return time for the average citizen is a pain in the neck, the federal revenue people in Ottawa have done it again.

This word is that they are capitalizing on a recent wave of nostalgia, and in the process are delving into Hollywood history to tell taxpayers to make out their tax returns in the same manner as last year.

Thus we are going to be regaled with an old Humphrey Bogart theme: "Play it again, Sam . . . the old way," as the great man said to his piano-playing friend in Casablanca.

Ugh. . . ! And all because as the smoke-screen clears over tax reform, or rather does not clear, Ottawa must indulge itself in these explanatory flights as the wretched taxpayer can see some light at the end of the tunnel.

Another thing, we are wondering if the tax form paraphenalia this year contains the picture of the benign looking husband doing his return while his equally composed wife brings him refreshments.

Insight

Loyalist College photography students have afforded Bellevillians a whole new dimension for their future contemplation of the city.

Familiarity is many of us is breeding day by familiarity. Yet there is beauty here, even in the midst of the most sullen winter aspect; the students know this and with their exhibition at the library they have shown us that where to look. They have sharpened the insight of many who perhaps have stopped looking with any degree of interest.

And just as we see familiar Belleville scenes in a new light there is a wealth of other subject matter in portraits and in urban and rural prospects in other communities.

Young Smokers

We were talking a while ago about young people who smoke cigarets which are now regarded as a health hazard. Now another day seems to confirm increasing addiction among the young. It is particularly disturbing to see girls lighting up in such places as the outer hallway of a church after morning service, or last night at the front door of the Corby library. Perhaps it is time steps were taken to acquaint young people with the dangers of smoking, as well as discouraging them from smoking in such places as the precincts of a church and the library.

Following The Sun

Watching the current feast of professional golf from such sunny United States climes as Arizona, California and Hawaii one is impressed by the astonishing number of new young golfers challenging for top money: competitors like Grier Jones, Larry Hinson, and John Miller. However it is good to see the old guard hanging on — and winning too. Paul Harney, 43, won at San Diego recently, and Bob Rosburg, 45, has just won the Bob Hope desert classic; the latter was a marathon 90-hole grind in the sun, which made Rosburg's win all the more notable.

Pre-election Scene

PCs Will Need Gains in Both Ontario and Quebec

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Between now and the next federal election you will read a lot about how important Ontario is to the fortunes of the major political parties. Several major surveys have been published describing the most populated province as the chief battleground in the next campaign and how necessary it is for the Conservatives to gain heavily there if they have any hope of forming the next government.

For a number of reasons there is a good deal of truth in these assessments. But there is also a tendency to exaggerate the situation, particularly as it applies to the Tory fortunes. Figures can often be misleading and boring, but I think a glance at the following will be of some interest.

It's true the Conservatives have nowhere to go but up in Ontario. They are presently at their lowest ebb in history in 18 seats. But there is a belief that Ontario has almost always been the preserve of the party in federal elections and this is not a fact.

A look at the last 10 elections, 1925-1968, shows the Conservatives have elected a total of 356 members, compared with 446 elected by the Liberals. These figures, which do not take into account subsequent byelections, give an average of about 44% Liberals chosen in each election to 36% Conservatives. The New Democrats and the CCF before them, trail badly with an average of 3% MPs elected each time.

Take the last six elections, starting with 1957, the Conservative year when they elected 112 members. They gained 207 MPs against 181 for the Liberals and 25 for the New Democrats, for an average of about 39 Conservatives, 34% Liberals and 5% New Democrats.

But those improved Conservative figures during the last six elections are greatly influenced by the two elections in 1957 and 1958 when John Diefenbaker led the party out of the political wilderness.

To suggest that the Conservatives can win the next election by scoring heavily in Ontario also suggests that Robert Stanfield, party leader, can pull off a Diefenbaker equivalent to Mr. Diefenbaker's. Frankly, I doubt that he can, regarding the circumstances, the personalities and other conditions.

Conservative strength in Ontario in the last 10 elections has been as low as 29 members, 18 members and as high as 67 in 1958. But in five of those 10 elections the party elected 33 or fewer MPs. In another, it elected only 37 and in another, 35.

Liberal strength in the province has ranged from a low of 14 in 1958 to the present high of 62. But in six of the 10 elections, the Liberals won in more than 50 ridings.

Rather surprisingly, the CCF and NDP have never had much federal impact in Ontario, despite the fact the province is highly industrialized and urbanized. Only since 1957 has the party cut any ice and, even then, its best effort was nine members in 1965.

It seems clear from these figures that Ontario may not fall like a ripe plum into the Tory lap and, even if it did, it might not be enough. If the party held every seat it now holds outside Ontario and if it matched its 1958 performance of 67 Ontario seats, it would still be 10 seats short of a clear majority, although probably in a position to form a minority government.

But the 1958 performance is not likely to be repeated this time, which means the party must find a way to make significant gains in Quebec. That is clearly the task before Mr. Stanfield and the party brass and, at this point, it is doubtful if any system of Quebec leadership-by-committee is going to turn the trick.

A strong, popular Quebec lieutenant is still a number one requirement for victory.

The Legislature's Strength and Weakness

By DON O'HEARN
From The Queen's Park Bureau of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — In certain areas the new Ontario cabinet obviously is stronger. In others it will not necessarily but likely be weaker.

The strong improvement that immediately strikes one is moving John White into the new ministry of trade and development.

Much of the province's future health can centre on this department.

Its primary job is to try and expand the Ontario economy.

Into promotion through foreign offices, trade missions and other developments of foreign markets comes within its ambit. And along with these, development programs at home.

The treasury department through tax manipulation can encourage development, but trade and industry is the branch of government with the direct job of promoting it.

It needs an aggressive, independent thinking and imaginative man to head it.

Mr. White has shown he has the first two qualities. Whether he has imagination he still has to demonstrate. But from the start he is stronger than Allan Grossman, who was over his head.

A second key area affected by the changes is the department of the environment.

It would be wrong to George Kerr to say the province's justification that James Auld is an improvement.

Kerr has been a good minister, in a strong sense an exceptional one.

He really made pollution control realistic in the province. But to his taking over it had been an incidental to which essentially government gave as much service as it needed to keep a strong lip.

Kerr gave it guts. But he has built it to the extent where now pollution problem is public acceptability.

And Auld, a man who has been consistently under-rated can sell—he can get acceptability.

On the possible weak side there is the naming of Fernand Guindon as minister of labor

It is pointed out that Mr. Guindon has no real experience with major labor problems, from either the worker or management side.

However, he has much more ability than generally has been appreciated. And time can be his ally too.

Then there is the appointment of Tom Wells as minister of education.

At first he was very young and naive politically and much of this criticism was merited. Latterly, however, he has apparently been doing a much better job.

If the education department had the major stature it once had his appointment would have been an unquestionable coup-grading.

However, now education, despite its large spending, as a policy department of government ranks as secondary, and Wells now getting to the old pro stage, though still young, quite well might be able to handle it ably.

The Canadian Dogfood Co. Ltd., Dufferin Ave., Trenton has entered for the purpose of drying eggs for shipment to Great Britain. This is a new plant secured by Trenton some four years ago, and is the only plant in Canada making the ingredients for the manufacture of dogfood as well as for the machines for the same purpose. In the past, the company has been drying only the yolks of the eggs and shipping the whites in 60 pound tins, frozen, to various bakeries all over the country for the purpose of making icing. The powdered yolks have been used in the manufacture of the doughnut mixture.

Historic Buildings Here Should Be Preserved

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I was extremely interested in the article in The Intelligencer a few nights ago about the "Historical Building Survey" underway in P.E. County.

I have been told that the Lakeshore Lodge is one of the oldest buildings in Prince Ed. County, and a favorite spot during the summer for tourists and divers.

There have been too many buildings of great historic interest — which would add color and invaluable interest to the surroundings — which have been razed to make parking lots etc — such as Clarke Hall — the only one example in Belleville. Also, if Mrs. Simpson's Tavern had been in any other community, say in the United States, it would have been applauded on. years ago.

That corner could be made into a very attractive tourist-century, and the talk of the town.

The best of luck to the recording and survey team working here. I hope it isn't too late.

INTERESTED CITIZEN.

In Defence Of Snowmobiles

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In tonight's paper I noticed three pieces all running down snowmobiles. I am a snowmobiler myself, and am one of the first in this city.

It is a great sport, and a lot of fun. It seems every time any one complains about them the first thing they come up with is noise and danger of the machine. I think these people had better take a good look at their cars, and listen to some of the so-called hot rods. Also it would be a good idea for them to look at the number of people killed in cars and on motorcycles. I think they will find out percentage wise they are as bad or worse than the snowmobile.

The snowmobile is like any other machine. It is not the machine that is dangerous, it is the nut driving it. As for Mr. Longhurst's statement I wonder where he was looking. I was also at the Island on the date mentioned. He said no police were there. This is not true. I saw several at different times walking around the area. I wonder if he looked at the pedestrians that looked at a snowmobile running at close range and then stepped out in front and walked on. This I saw a number of times.

If he had taken the time to look he would have seen that the machines circling in front of the band stand were giving free rides to children. There also was mention of no machine on the bay area. Again I can only say, where was he looking? Anyone that was there knows there were machines as far as you could see west of Zwicks Island. I also saw that run down the snowmobile should remember it was a machine and getting more every year. The drivers also must learn that no pedestrian is here to stay too. And both are going to have to get together on this.

One other thing. That is, if people don't want to see them, get terrified animals. That is nonsense, I have seen fox, rabbits, birds and deer and they don't look up and go about their business with no fear at all. Animals that lived with chainsaws logging trucks, loaders and so on don't run from a little snowmobile unless the driver is a nut and a fighter is forced to chase animals, but don't believe these machines bother them.

Singapore surrendered to Japanese troops 30 years ago today — in 1942 — and 60,000 British, Indian and Australian troops went into captivity, many of them to die in jungle work camps in the succeeding 3½ years. The Japanese captured Malaya and Singapore by having in the north and marching overland. The British planners earlier thought impossible. An important result of the surrender was that the natives realized Asians could beat Europeans in battle.

Lake Water Too Costly

council unanimously passed a recommendation from Alderman Ben Corke that, based on present information, it is opposed to lake water.

The idea of bringing in Lake Ontario water to supply the needs of Quinte area communities goes back more than five years, when it was first proposed by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Since then several cost studies have been carried out on the two alternatives, the latest being the recent Gore and Storrie report showing how Belleville rates would compare under the different systems.

The present domestic water rate in Belleville is 43 cents per 1,000 gallons.

During yesterday's discussion, Mayor J. Russell Scott said that water costs in the city are boosted by the fact that there is an unaccounted for loss of about 25 per cent of the total water pumped as result of leaks in the distribution system.

He said this loss was something which apparently could not be prevented.

Utilities Manager E. L. Burnham told council that if the decision was to pipe water from Lake Ontario, the OWRC would buy the Belleville plant and distribution mains.

On the other hand, if the decision was not in favor of lake water, the city would continue to own its plant but a costly expansion program would have to be carried out.

Plant additions would include a new intake, a new low-lift pumping station and microstrainer building; odor treatment equipment and modifications to existing buildings at a cost of about $2.25 million.

Added to this cost would be the expense of new distribution mains.

In opting for local plant expansion rather than piping water from Lake Ontario, city council and the public utilities commission are looking for an improvement in the quality of water from the Bay of Quinte.

Mayor Scott said sewage works either planned or under way in municipalities along the Trent River watercourse would not help but improve the quality of bay water.

Mr. Burnham said pilot tests had been carried out at the Belleville plant in order to remove odors.

He said an activated carbon process appeared to do the best job of odor reduction.

The Lake Ontario pipeline proposed by the OWRC would be designed to service 12 Quinte area municipalities, including Belleville and Trenton.

Trenton has consistently been opposed to the Lake Ontario pipeline, while Sidney and Thurlow Townships are reported also to be against the idea.

While the OWRC is recommending construction of the pipeline, it has told area municipalities that it would not force the issue.

It is expected that a public hearing into the pipeline question will be held at which time the municipalities will be given the opportunity of sub-

Ribbon Cutting Ceremony

On Saturday No. 2 firehall in Ameliasburg Township was officially opened at Carrying Place with Reeve Russell Thompson officiating. Cindy Taylor, daughter of MPP Jim Taylor, took part in the ceremony and municipal councillor Don Southern watched the reeve apply his technique. Visiting fire chief Leonard Tripp praised the Ameliasburg volunteers as first class contributors to mutual aid.

Death Raises Question

In the wake of the recent death of a Toronto woman who froze after hydro was cut off from her home, at least one Belleville alderman has expressed concern that similar incidents could occur here.

Enos David last night queried PUC chairman Dr. J. Russell Scott on this subject.

At the utilities commission meeting Tuesday, Mayor Scott recommended there "should be a policy that no power be cut off without the approval and concurrence of the manager.

PUC manager E. L. Burnham admitted that power has been shut off from homes in the past, where because the electricity debts had not been paid. However, he added, "if the people can make any arrangements for paying debts, we co-operate . . . we try everything."

The commission accounting department presented the appointed officials with a $1,967.07 bad and doubtful accounts ledger to be written off. This figure, down by approximately $700 over the previous year's report, represents a total of water and electrical bills unpaid by customers, many of whom have moved away and left no forwarding address.

One of the most unusual is the case of a man who apparently has moved to England, leaving a $140 debt. No address for him has been found.

Neil Britton, assistant manager of the PUC, said every attempt is made to contact customers with long overdue accounts. "Our people have gone on many cases where they've knocked on doors and received no answer, even though they knew the people were home," he said.

Commissioner Gerald O'Connor agreed with the chairman's proposal: "it's a real scary thing, that Toronto deal" he said.

Closing of Area Stations Could Be Delayed A Year

Canadian National Railways is applying to the Canadian Transport Commission for applications at eight centres in the Central Ontario district but it will be up to a year before any of the stations are actually closed.

This was indicated today by A CN spokesman in Belleville, who said that information meetings in the eight centres where station closings is planned had now been held. The last meeting was Monday night at Picton.

Other stations which CN hopes will apply to close are at Picton, Brighton, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Bancroft, Odessa and Collins Bay.

The CN spokesman in Belleville said the railway will next make application to the CTC to close the stations. However, the board usually takes from six to 12 months to decide on the applications and in the meantime the stations at the respective centres will remain open. Some of these stations would be torn down, but others including Port Hope would remain, as a passenger service convenience.

The planned closing of the railway stations is part of CN's continuing centralization of services which will mean new Servicentre opened in Belleville during the latter part of March.

Customers in centres where stations are closed will be connected with Belleville by a toll-free Zenith number.

Frankford Bridge Expected Soon

Tenders for the new Highway 33 bridge over the Trent River and the canal at Frankford are expected to be called this year, according to village reeve William Rose.

Mr. Rose quoted Hon. Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP for Quinte, as saying last week that tenders for the bridge would be called this year by the Ontario Department of Transportation and Communications as originally planned and that there would be no delay in construction.

The Frankford reeve said that much of the preliminary work has been completed and that arrangements have been made for water and sewage pipes to be carried across the river under the new structure.

Hydro wires will also cross the river via the bridge.

The proposed new Highway 33 bridge through the village will replace the present outdated single-lane truss span over the river and the swing structure over the Trent Canal.

Appointees Approved

Hastings County Board of Education at last night approved its appointees to three-year terms on public library boards in Belleville and Trenton.

They are Mrs. Daphne Clarke, appointed to the Belleville Library Board, and Thorne Speer, named to the Trenton Memorial Public Library board.

Schools Vandalized

Vandals were hard at work at two city schools over the weekend. City police have described one break in as a "big case of wilful damage."

Some time before 2.30 p.m. Sunday, Park Dale School on Shannock Road was entered after removal of a window screen.

Display pots were found running loose in the hallway and classrooms 6 jars of stirred paper, greasy pain which was poured throughout the halls in a rainbow assortment of colors. Some kind of liquid was also poured on the tops of several typewriters, etc.

Also, St. Michael's Academy on Church Street was entered sometime between 6 p.m. and 8 a.m. when a fire extinguisher sprayed the contents of the canister over the floors, and contents of a fire extinguisher sprayed in several classrooms.

Police Chief Douglas Ormsby said this morning "apparently someone has a master key to all classroom doors." Investigations continue.

A Welcome Benefactor

Variety Village, Toronto, an organization to aid crippled children will benefit from the sale of this winter scene painting by H. Victor Wendling of Belleville, who made the presentation to Mrs. Stella Culhane, manager of the Cinemas at the Quinte Mall. A number of other paintings by Mr. Wendling are also displayed in the theatre lobby.

Painting Donated by Local Artist

Variety Village, an organization most entertainers are aware of, will be the recipient of the proceeds from the painting to be donated by H. Victor Wendling, Belleville. The estimated value of this particular sketch is $125. It is being displayed at Cinema Theatre, Quinte Mall to be sold in the near future.

Variety Village, which has locations all over North America, including Scarborough, aids in the re-habilitation of crippled children of all ages and originated back in Vaudeville Days.

Mrs. Stella Culhane, manager of the duo-theatre allows any artist a month's exhibition of their work. She feels there is good talent locally and in this manner assists them by displaying their works. All other paintings of Mr. Wendlings are for sale. A portion of the proceeds will also go towards Variety Village. Entertainers from disc jockeys to singers contribute to this organization which is in aid of crippled children.

On display, Mr. Wedling has paintings which range from a Belleisnte sketch made from a wallet-size photo, winter scenes, a nude sketch, ocean shore sunset to clowns. He believes an artist should remain versatile to changing times for if he gets bored, he's in a rut.

He mixes his own paints, uses brushes and sometimes a palette. He is also qualified to teach art and may do so at a future date.

Gospel Singing Enjoyed

MARMORA — The "Swiners" well-known gospel singers returned to Marmora on Friday evening and made it to a capacity audience at the Marmora Senior School.

The six young men, who have just completed a tour of Western Canada, presented gospel songs in a modern manner that appealed to everyone but especially the young people in the audience.

Dressed alike in modern styled gold colored suits, hot pink shirts and white ties, the four Swiner brothers gave an outstanding performance. They were accompanied by Ken Johnson on the bass guitar and Jerry Andrews at the piano.

The show was emceed by Bob Switzer, 20, who soon had the audience feeling a part of the show. Everyone, from three-year-old children standing on chairs to grandmothers and grandfathers, joined with enthusiasm.

A solo by the youngest member of the group — 15 year old Dale Switzer — was one of the highlights of the evening.

This gospel group has been much in demand at high schools for they get their message across without preaching. They have made a new record "Rise and Shine".

The Switzers travel almost continually now but they've arrangements that take them across Canada.

They depend entirely on free will offerings to cover their expenses.

Is World Government A Possibility?

". . . the war-drum throbb'd no longer, and the battle-flags were furl'd in the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world." — Tennyson, in World Federation.

Is it too daring altogether to dream of a world in which there is a governing body in which real things get done? Organized, say, along the lines of our present governments? A prime minister, or president maybe, assisted by a cabinet, and representatives from various constituencies (just as we have cities represented in a province and provinces in a country)?

In the case of a world government the representatives would come from all of the countries that make up our world; and the over-all supreme effort would be to cooperate rather than compete, to love rather than hate.

This is the surprising audacious objective in the organization called World Association of World Federalists.

Well-scoffing that ever happened! Wars will go on, and some of the best ideas that have ever been thought of, little goal to work towards.

Time For Decision.

Dear Ann: If it is any comfort, I specialized in sciences in high school and university because my two sisters were home economists, and it seemed like a good career for a girl.

Then I discovered that glorious subject called psychology and changed horses in midstream. I was a people-person and so, it seems, are you.

Eventually I became a vocational counsellor, later a graduate social worker. Then for many jobs for people interested in what makes people tick: Psychology, psychiatry, social work, teaching, law, medicine. Not overnight, but with high qualifications, and wonderfully satisfying to you might be a career in communications as taught at a community college. Even a course for radio, television or newspaper work. Sales work or advertising are in this class, too.

Confidential to Lonely: Distant fields look greener, but at a closer view they sometimes turn out to be a nauseating shade of grey. Seek former boy friend, now engaged to your sister, and gently asking out. You don't love him, you threw him out before. Why encourage his love-making now.

Take some initiative yourself in filling your life with new activities. You'll find help, once you give it, when you start something. And make it something clean, cheerful, self-expressive.

(Have you asked Doris about your dilemma? Perhaps she can suggest a Canadian resource that will help.)

However, there was one minor handicap which the men came during the campaign by switching her party activities from Progressive Conservative to Liberal. Love, of course, is a Republican.

Mrs. Austin, who modelled professionally in Portland, Ore., is no stranger to college, and maintains her home and society life, although at a somewhat different pace than in Portland.

"I'm very proud of her," commented husband Gregory, 35.

Mrs. Austin really sees that being a press secretary normally is not a lifetime career and Love has indicated he will not seek re-election in 1974.

"A lot can happen between now and then," she said "While I might decide on a family by then, I'd probably be willing to give my salary for a nurse just to keep active in my career. Maybe I could go on to government-related work dealing with people."

Female Press Secretary to Governor

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — In the still sometimes Wild West, a pretty, young brunette rides herd in the Colorado Capitol on the news media—and even an occasional horse.

Just how wild it can be, 24-year-old Deanna Austin found out on her second day as the country's only female press secretary to a governor.

Someone with the National Western Stock Show called to ask if a rodeo performer and his bronc-broker could ride into Governor John Love's office for a proclamation signing.

"I thought it was something ordinarily done," she recalled. "So I agreed."

After the horse had clopped in and out to the joy of photographers, the governor asked, "Who let that horse in here?"

"I admitted I had," she said, "and I thought for a second I would be the only two-day press secretary in history."

That episode was a year ago, however, and the petite former newspaper woman and fashion model has settled into her job as middle man to acclaim of both governor and the news media.

"At first," she said, "there was a question in a lot of people's minds how seriously to take me and whether I had any authority or responsibility. Now there is a better understanding of my function as press secretary."

Mrs. Austin, whose husband is a local lawyer, landed her job following Love's successful 1970 campaign for a third term, during which she handled news media relations on a part-time basis.

A University of Oregon journalism graduate who worked for Seventeen magazine in New York and The Associated Press here, Mrs. Austin had the professional qualifications.

Day-care Co-Ordinator Appointed

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government is considering starting an experimental program this year to test theories aimed at answering an obvious need for integrated planning in early childhood services.

Elaine McLeod, a 26-year-old Winnipeg native and a graduate from the University of Manitoba with a degree in home economics and a major in child development, was appointed a "day-care co-ordinator" with the Manitoba department of education, health and social development last August.

In an interview Mrs. McLeod said her job was to provide liaison, formulate policy and give a general direction to the provincial philosophy and funding guidelines for the establishment of pre-school care. She reports directly to the newly-created cabinet committee on health, education and social policy.

Mrs. McLeod said she would like to see day—care facilities for the children, not as a convenience for working parents. "Pre-school experience" is valuable whether or not the parents are working.

She said that because children learn by experiences, the types of persons he is inter-reacting with are important.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Can a husband outgrow marriage?

No, not the way a child goes from phase to phase. Sometimes, though, a man will believe he is having his wife behind by his accelerated pace in career or social matters. Perhaps he has met new people and feels that his wife "just doesn't fit in," either because she doesn't like his new friends or because she has other interests. Such a husband is not outgrowing his marriage—he is growing away from her.

Does coaxing help children learn?

IT'S NOT the best way, that's for sure. Patience combined with the ability to induce in children a desire to learn is the one method that pays off for all concerned. Coaxing and cajoling a child to learn can slow up the process. Once a youngster senses that someone is hooked for him to learn, he will become tense, too, and that could interfere with his efforts to master whatever he is being urged to learn.

Is a quick temper a sign of "nerves"?

NO; fine at the hustle doesn't mean that a person is jumpy or on the verge of becoming a "nervous wreck." Nor does a quick temper indicate that a person is more "involved with relevant" matters and is swiftly reacting to injustices. More than likely, a quick temper is a sign that a person is really angry at himself. But rather than admit that and lose self-esteem, he is quick to "blow his stack" on the least provocation.

Gift Shop Planned For Historical House

NAPANEE — The store committee of the Allan MacPherson House in Napanee has decided to initiate a gift shop in the historical house when it reopens for the season in May, this year.

Mrs. Peter MacKinnon of Bath, chairman of the committee states that the basement of the Napanee landmark is an ideal location for the gift shop. Other locations within the rambling, century-old house are also being considered she added.

"We hope to sell various things — mostly handicraft items that may be suitable for the old house," she said. "We operated on a slim margin so we have to be careful with prices."

Mrs. MacKinnon said the gift shop will likely promote local artists by displaying their work.She added that a number of the items for sale in the shop will depict the history of "The House of the Laird".

Successful Living

Situation Baffles Clergyman

Dear Ann Landers: I am a recent graduate of a New England theological seminary who has had training in marital counselling but I am at a loss to know how to proceed in this particular situation.

Two couples in my parish, both married for nearly 15 years, always came to services and coffee hour social affairs together. They were very close friends, took vacations together which always included their children. Many cookouts, family outings, holidays and I never considered it unusual.

Last week the two couples asked for an appointment to discuss a highly personal matter. I guessed a romantic involvement between Mrs. A and Mr. B.

When I learned that the romance was between Mrs. A and Mrs. B. I was at a loss for words. The husbands seemed resigned to the fact that their wives want divorces so they can live together. The husbands also agreed that the children should stay with their mothers.

The couples did not come to me seeking condonation. They came to ask if I thought this living arrangement would have an adverse effect on their children when I know what to tell them. Can you counsel me on how to counsel them?—Confidential File

Dear C.: Before I could give an intelligent answer I would need more information. For example, the ages of the children and their sex would be important. The living arrangement would have less effect on an eight-year-old girl than a three-year-old boy. It would matter also what these women decide to tell their children about their relationship. I would hope they didn't get too explicit. They should continue to get frequent counselling, which I'm sure you have already recommended.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a widow, age 66. I own my own home, have a new car, a good pension, some bonds and money in the bank. I raised four children. They own their own homes and are getting along well.

I want to make a will and am wondering if it would be wrong to leave what I have to charity. My children do not need any thing and I have always wanted to help worthwhile causes, especially handicapped children. Would it be wrong or unfair?—Three-Score and More

Dear Three-Score: A will should reflect the wishes of the person who wrote it. If you want to leave your estate to handicapped children, by all means do so. The official name of a fine organization which can recommend is The Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Retires After Service To Seven Prime Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — After working under seven prime ministers, from Arthur Meighen to Pierre Trudeau, Maude Masters is retiring from the Canada Immigration centre of the department of manpower and immigration.

"I was always fascinated with the world leaders I met — Meighen, Lon Mackenzie King . . . and Mr. (Louis) St. Laurent stands out although I didn't get to know him," she recalls. "But John Diefenbaker is the one for me. I love to see him get up and point the finger at them. Mr. Trudeau isn't bad either."

Miss Masters has many memories over her 45-year career.

"When I first went in, the railways were having a lot to do with immigration. They . . . were grabbing the people and settling them into the wide-open spaces.

"I was one of the fortunate ones to still have my job," she said, recalling the depression. "We had a great time. Why you're young you can get through these things. We changed the curchoord in immigration centre of the department of manpower and immigration.

In those early days, the staff welcomed soldiers from the First World War to resettle and such responsibilities as Dr. Barnardo's boys.

"Those were the boys we were brought over here from the Barnardo homes (orphanages) in England and put on farms in Ontario," she recalled, while our investigators would out to see if they were getting along, going to church and living a little spending money.

In retirement, there'll plenty to do including keeping even or eight months of year. That began during Second World War and has been raising ever since."

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids scientifically. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues. One hemorrhoidal case after another reported very striking improvement. Pain was promptly and gently relieved as actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing. In most instances of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) which relieves pain and helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form under the name Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Hallelujah - - The Coffee House Opens

Rev. Jim Church of Wooler Holiness Church leads a group of choristers at the opening of the Coffee House in Belleville last weekend. More than 75 people, including Mayor J. Russell Scott, were on hand for Friday night's dedication ceremony at the 11 Victoria Ave. centre. Theme is decidedly religious, with brochures and entertainment spreading evangelical messages of Christ's life and purpose. Most visitors were between 16 and 20 and spent their time singing songs, drinking coffee, eating apples and discussing Christ. The Coffee House is open after 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday evenings.

Canadian Play's Debut Is Hailed in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — George Ryga's play, Captives of the Faceless Drummer, received its first full staging Monday night and became, in part, a propaganda piece for the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

At the conclusion of the play, which focuses on captive and captor in a situation reminiscent of the Quebec political kidnappings of 1970 but set in some future, undefined, Canadian revolutionary period, members of the cast distributed to the audience copies of the FLQ manifesto.

A spokesman for the St. Lawrence Centre, where the play opened a two-week run before a near-capacity audience, said the handing out of the manifesto was not the conception of the playwright but part of the staging of the play by director Martin Kinch.

Mr. Ryga, a native of Alberta who lives and writes in British Columbia, had been invited to attend the opening, the spokesman said, but had to decline when his wife entered hospital.

The playwright, an outspoken critic of Canadian professional theatre for what he calls their "tokenism" in staging only one or two Canadian plays a season, has been trying for more than a year to get the play produced in a professional theatre.

It was rejected last season by the Vancouver Playhouse, but later received a studio performance at the Vancouver Art Gallery.

Urjo Kareda, drama critic for the Toronto Star, wrote prior to Monday night's opening that the Toronto production represented "not so much a victory for Canadian drama as the continuing struggle against tokenism and fear." The Ryga play is one of two Canadian works included in the centre's 1971-72 season.

Mr. Kareda said that "in its printed form ... the play shows an original striking power in its presentation of an FLQ-style political confrontation" and "certainly deserves a bigger audience" than it received in Vancouver."

Herbert Whittaker, wrote in The Globe and Mail following the production that the play did not offer a "satisfactory look at the FLQ outbreaks which inspired it.

"Indeed, it is hardly a political work, despite director Martin Kinch's attempts to make it so. It is a gentle, poetic work, a very personal expression for all its confrontation, occasional rough words and gunfire.

Mr. Ryga, whose literary work includes short stories, radio and television plays, film scripts, poetry, and stage plays and novels, is probably best known for his play, The Ecstasy of Rita Joe, which has been adapted even more successfully as an original Canadian ballet with participation by Indian actor Chief Dan George.

In Captives of the Faceless Drummer, the playwright explores the human relationship between a captive diplomat and his captor, the commissar of a revolutionary army.

The roles of captive and captor in the Toronto production are played by Alan Blevins and Peter John respectively.

An unusual feature of the production is the at intermission when other actors, who form a chorus to the main action, wander among the audience in the foyer.

The production was originally scheduled for one week, but was extended, and the theatre spokesman said advance sales stood at about 50 per cent.

Archie's Black 'Niece' Old Friend of Family

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Carroll O'Connor, the actor who plays bigoted Archie Bunker on the All in the Family comedy television series, is introducing a 19-year-old black girl these days as "my niece."

"I have many black friends all over the world," O'Connor said in an interview Monday

But when he introduces Betty Richelle Williams as his niece, he says with his Irish blue eyes atwinkle, "most people think there must be somebody black in my family."

Since she was about three, Richelle, whom O'Connor 41, his wife and other friends call Rickey, has called him "Uncle Carroll." He has known her father, a New Jersey obstetrician and gynecologist—"one of my oldest and dearest friends" —and her mother since before she was born.

For several weeks last summer and fall Ricky and her mother lived at the O'Connors' home while considering his suggestion that she quit Howard University and try her wings as a Hollywood actress.

Richelle now has her own apartment but does her laundry once a week in the O'Connors' washing machine.

O'Connor introduced her to the talent agency that represents him—and now her. She's working as a stand-in and bit player in Blacula, a black movie version of Dracula.

"All I can do, as much as I love her," said O'Connor, "is to give her a start, and when she's out there she's got to do it all for herself." But he added, "She has everything it takes to be successful."

Entertainment Roundup

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Richard Burton, who recently completed films in which he portrays Trotsky and Hitler, has signed to play Benito Mussolini in The Last Days of Mussolini, a spokesman for the actor said Monday.

Burton's wife, Elizabeth Taylor, will play the role of Mussolini's mistress Clara Petacci, in the movie which will be filmed in Italian and English in Rome starting in the fall.

Carlo Gotti will direct the film, which will be co-produced by Leo Pescarolo and Italo Zingarelli.

MARIANNA, Ark. (AP) — Folk singer Joan Baez performed Monday in a shack housing two families in the Hickory Scratch community in Southwest Lee County.

She said she sang Swing Low to the families because a 10-year-old woman living there was sick and could not attend a benefit concert she is planning to do for the Lee County Co-operative Clinic.

Miss Baez told reporters that at first the children in the shack began to dance shyly about her as she sang, but soon they all joined in the singing.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — The rock group Steppenwolf announced Monday it is disbanding so its members can pursue independent musical careers.

John Kay, 28, the East German-born lead singer of Steppenwolf, made the announcement on behalf of the group which has recorded nine gold albums and the hit song Born to be Wild from the film Easy Rider.

Kay told a news conference: "We were locked into an image and style of music which simply gave us nothing to look forward to."

Other members of the group were Jerry Edmonton and Goldy McJohn, members when it was founded in 1968, and George Biondo and Kent Henry.

Rough U.S. College Basketball Giving Coaches Chills

NEW YORK (AP) — Mixed on college basketball courts this season is giving chills to coaches.

Illinois's Bill Musselman is "afraid to freeze."

And Jim Padgett of California teaches his kids to be doves, not hawks.

"My life has been disjointed and severely interfered with by vicious m-l . . . I'm heartsick," says Musselman, referring to his team's brawl with Ohio State on Jan. 25.

Musselman's afraid of a recurrence of the brutal fight that sent two Buckeye players to the hospital. Mears also is walking on egg shells.

He has eliminated the tradition of tossing an orange quarter to keep fans down at games. It had been traditional for Mears to appear at the halo stages of the preliminary game, wearing his blazer and walking from one end of the court to the other.

"All coaches need. I think, most fans are concerned with is the job of winning games in basketball across the country and we want to stop those who are hurting basketball."

Padgett says his players are subjected by opposing fans to "every ethnic slur."

"Somebody throws a punch, it's automatic—it comes out and site next to me on the bench," says Padgett. "There is no place for fights in college basketball, or any other sport."

"I've never seen coaches and players get as much personal abuse from fans as they have this year," said Southern Cal coach Bob Boyd.

"Fights used to be two-man affairs. You didn't find fans leaping onto the court. You didn't find them going after players. Now it's getting a little rough with crowd control. You go to an arena where there are 10,000 people and it's unbelievable."

Hull Admits Offer

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Star says Chicago Black Hawk star Bobby Hull has confirmed that he has been offered a five-year, $1 million contract by Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association.

In an interview with Sports Editor Jack Dolmage in Detroit Saturday night, the National Hockey League veteran said Ben Hatskin, owner of the Jets, offered him the contract during a meeting in Vancouver.

Dolmage quotes Hull as saying he didn't comment when Hatskin first made public the offer "because I didn't want my name to be used to cause a lot of fuss."

"My contract with Chicago runs out this season," Hull said. "If they're good to me, I expect to stay. I think they will be."

"They (the Jets) came to me at Vancouver," Hull told Dolmage.

Hull said the WHA should have little trouble getting players from the NHL.

"There will be some surprises, you watch."

Mets Baseball's Earliest Birds

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — New York Mets launch baseball's spring training season today with 17 pitchers and four catchers due to report to manager Gil Hodges and his coaching staff.

The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates will open their camp Wednesday at Bradenton, Fla., with new manager Bill Virdon greeting his advance contingent.

The first American League team to report to camp is the Boston Red Sox, who begin their training operations at Winter Haven, Fla., Thursday.

Park's Pair of 'Hats' Rarity for Defenceman

MONTREAL (CP) — Neither defenceman Brad Park of New York Rangers nor rookie right winger Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens is pressing centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

But both are making impressions on opposition goaltenders.

Park last week became the first defenceman in at least 30 years to register two three-goal games in a single season, while Lafleur established a modern-era record of his own by counting his third three-goal game of the season.

Goalie Jim Rutherford of Pittsburgh Penguins was the victim on both of Park's three goal efforts—during a 6-1 Rangers' victory at New York, Dec. 11, and last Saturday at Pittsburgh when the Rangers posted an 8-3 victory.

Park, a 25-year-old Toronto native, currently enjoying his finest season since coming into the NHL in 1968-69, now has 16 goals and 56 points—both New York club records for a defenceman. Park shares 11th place in the over-all scoring list.

Lafleur, the No. 1 choice at last June's draft, counted his third three-goal game here last Thursday in Montreal's 7-1 romp against Chicago Black Hawks. No first-year player has recorded more than two such games in a season since at least 1946-47.

Lafleur has counted 22 goals and assisted on 34 more for 46 points.

The Montreal rookie leads the league in three-goal games with his three, but this is four short of Esposito's record seven.

BRAD PARK

which he chalked up last season.

The efforts of Park and Lafleur brought this season's total three-goal games to 37, compared to 28 one year ago.

Esposito picked up six points last week for a total of 94 to maintain a narrow margin atop the scoring parade over Rangers' Jean Ratelle, whose 91 points broke the New York club record of 88 established by Andy Bathgate in 1951-52.

Defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston is third with 83 points including a league-leading 56 assists, four points ahead of Ron Gilbert and five more than Whitefield, both of New York.

Arnie Scrambling Again

Arnold Palmer, noted for blowing a hole and then coming right back to shoot sub-par golf, did his thing again at La Quinta Country Club in the third round of the Bob Hope Desert Classic. Palmer, tied for third at this point, blasts out of the trap on the 13th hole here on his fifth shot after knocking his second shot out of bounds. He was on the green in five and three putted for a triple bogie eight on the long par five hole. (AP Wirephoto)

NHL Under Scrutiny

NEW YORK (CP) — The anti-trust division of the United States attorney-general's office demanded Monday that the National Brian O'Neill, executive director of the NHL, received a civil investigative demand, which in effect is a civil subpoena requiring the league to answer all questions and turn over any documents bearing on the anti-trust investigation.

The development Monday is part of a far-reaching investigation into organized hockey by the U.S. attorney-general's office.

A civil investigative demand was served last week on the Eastern Hockey League and it is believed that other minor leagues doing business in the United States also received such orders.

Te demand asked the NHL to answer questions regarding ownership of arenas, the relationship of pro leagues to one another, how players are allocated, their types of contracts and how territory is maintained.

An investigation has been going on since at least last fall. In recent months there have been several anti-trust suits against various hockey leagues.

The most significant was a $33-million suit filed by Neil Shayne, owner of the Long Island Franchise in the new World Hockey Association, against the NHL. Shayne claimed the NHL conspired to keep him out of the new Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, Long Island, by granting an NHL franchise to Long Island.

Golf Pros Keep Up With Jones

NEW YORK (AP) — Grier Jones, who won a little more than $30,000 in 1970, has taken over the top spot on pro golf's money-winning list with $52,572 in 1972, the PGA Tournament Players Division announced Monday.

Jones, winner of the Hawaiian Open Feb. 6, earned $4,278 for a seventh-place tie in the Bob Hope Desert Classic last weekend and replaced George Archer as the top money winner, Archer, who skipped the Hope, has earned $50,877.

Bob Murphy is third with $43,948 and Bob Rosburg, the Hope winner, jumped from 18th to fourth with $41,146. The Hope first prize was $29,000.

Rounding out the top 10 were Miller Barber $37,041, Jack Nicklaus $33,793, Paul Harney $33,676, Johnny Miller $30,356, Hale Irwin $26,611, and Lee Trevino $22,033.

Duguid One Missing Face at Brier

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Don Duguid won't be back to defend his Canadian curling championship this year, although his old rink will, but other veteran skips are still in the running for the title.

The Canadian men's championship is set for St. John's, NFld., March 6-10 and already five contenders have been decided while other provincial playoffs continue this week and next.

Duguid, the Manitoba, Canadian and world champion the last two years, announced last year he was retiring from competition and his rink of lead Bryan Wood, second Jim Pettapiece and third Rod Hunter recruited Dan Flok of Winnipeg as their new skip.

The old Duguid rink is one of 32 which go into a modified double-knockout competition starting Wednesday to determine the Manitoba champion. Competition continues through Sunday.

Still in the running for the Alberta title is one of the biggest names in the sport, Hec Gervais of St. Albert, who won the northern Alberta crown Saturday.

Gervais, 1961 Canadian and world champion, goes against three other rinks at Edmonton starting Friday in a double-knockout provincial championship.

Gervais meets Ray Talbot of Red Deer, the southern Alberta champ; Melvin Watchorn of High Prairie, the Peace River Curling Association representative, and Lloyd Wood of Pine Point representing the Northwest Territories.

Other familiar names still in contention for a national berth are defending Saskatchewan champion Bob Pickering of Avonlea, Sam Richardson of Regina and Kevin Smale of Prince George, B.C.

Pickering has been in the national playoff six times and he and the Richardson rink represent southern Saskatchewan in the provincial finals at Melfort Friday and Saturday. The northern rinks are skipped by Herb Sobell and Doug Wyatt, both of Saskatoon.

Smale, the interior B.C. champ for the third time in four years, awaits the winner of the B.C. coastal playoff Friday and Saturday at West Vancouver. Smale opens play in on Monday and Tuesday in a best-of-three competition for the provincial title.

Eleven rinks started the six-day, round-robin Quebec playoff Monday. The skips are Joe Saad, Bill Kent and Dave Moon of Montreal; Carlo Desjardins, Val d'Or; Guy Germain, Quebec City; Gary Appleby, Sept-Iles; William Fuller, Lennoxville; Carl Rodger, Chelsea; Jean-Claude Turcotte, Cap de la Madeleine; Andre Leroux, Richmond, and Gaetan Dupuis, Lenoxgami.

For the first time in the history of the national championship, Ontario will be represented by an Ottawa rink.

Ottawa's Eldon Coombs, with lead Barry Provost, second Jim Patrick and third Keith Forguet, won the Ontario title a week ago after two playoff rounds in the provincial playoff at Ottawa.

Pizza Gang Has 1 To Go

While The Intelligencer was tying knots, Jim's Pizza all but sewed things up in the Gas Bitone Hockey League Monday night.

The hotel was forced to battle the leaders to gain a 1-1 split with Wilson Concrete which dropped them into a first-place tie with Jim's who disposed of Cassidy Electric 5-2.

The plum makers collect now the league pennant tonight with a win over ninth - place Wannamakers Esso in their final league game.

Town if the Pointers were to win their final bout next Tuesday. Jim's would gain the pennant on the basis of a better goals for-and-against average.

Cassidy put up a surprisingly strong battle against Jim's for the first half of their contest, playing them to a 1-1 deadlock at the mid - point. Then unanswered goals salted the win away for the league co-leaders however.

Wayne Peppin Jr. and Barry Marshall paced the winners scoring with a goal and assist each, while Jim McGuire, Don Fish and Alan Ray managed the other markers. For Cassidy it was Paul Knight and Tom Bishop lasting three the scoring. The losers drew four of the game's seven penalties.

A breakaway goal by Peter Knight gave third place Wilson Concrete a 1-0 lead which they managed to protect up for most of their bout with the Intell. Dennis Baragar finally equalized for the Cyclo Printers on a similar scoring effort. Wilson's drew three penalties, one less than The Intell.

Takeout Order

Bill Dunn of Cassidy Electric stirred up the Jim's Pizza forward Carl Boonhower out of the play in Gas House Hockey league action Monday. Boonhower and his teammates refused to give speedy service in that department however, downing Cassidy 5-2 to move within a whisker of clinching the league pennant.

Bobcats Will Step Lightly

The key man for the Brockville Bobcats tonight could be the one wearing the same shirt when the Fairways open their Eastern Ontario Junior B league semi-final series in Oshawa against the second-place Generals.

"It won't be a hitting series as far as we're concerned because we have a pretty light team," explained Moe Hunter who guided the club to a third place finish in his first season of coaching. "Oshawa are tough. We just hope that if they do a lot of hitting that they run into a lot of penalties," he added.

The Belleville B's will be in better shape player-wise in Woodward who landed a pair of playoff hockey. Centre Mark Woodward, who had his ice time extremely limited the last few weeks of the season by strained knee ligaments should be back at full strength and ready to resume a regular shift with linemates Jeff Howard and Terry Meagher.

Another welcome addition will be rearguard Jim Cain, who will add some muscle to the Belleville blueliners in addition to boosting the Bobcat power play. Cain's appearance will free Tim Yohe for full time duty on the "checking line" with Rod Palmer and either Bill Jackett or Cliff Jarnick.

Hunter doesn't feel that the 10-2 pounding absorbed by his team in their last regular season meeting with Oshawa will provide any telling effects. "We know they're going to be tough and we also know that we weren't up for that last game. Let's hope we are for the playoffs."

Oshawa held a 4-1 edge in the regular season series between the two clubs.

The Belleville coach has also tabbed goaltending as a key to the series and has indicated that Bill Carnine will start in the nets for tonight's game. Carnine shares the net duties with Bob Harrison.

Tonight's opening game in the best-of-seven series gets under way at 8 p.m. with the second game slated for 9 p.m. Friday at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Jesse Rink Forces' Champions, Defend Legion Title This Week

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

TRENTON — Earl Jesse's Canadian Armed Forces champion curling rink got a one-game handicap — and they're going to need it.

The CFB Trenton foursome returned home Monday night from a winning appearance at the Armed Forces championships at Canada's NATO base in Lahr, West Germany, but hits the ice tomorrow night in defence of their provincial Royal Canadian Legion crown.

"We didn't have to play our last game in Europe," Jesse's vice - skip, Hector McIntosh, skipped a rink to the 1971 Forces championship at Chilliwack, B.C.

Second Wayne MacDonald and Wayne McCreadie-are the other members of Jesse's foursome, which will be out to win an unprecedented third straight provincial Legion title at the Trenton Country Club "rink Wednesday through Sunday.

"We blamed heavy ice at Lahr's Rhine Valley Club for his rink's loss in the Armed Forces championships, a 13-12 opening game setback by the Pacific Region.

"The way the ice was, you had to get a rock in there counting and force the opposition to hit you out — it was very heavy. We were two up coming home but they stole three on us," he said.

From that point, it was relatively clear sailing, although the Trenton club representing the Forces' Ontario Region had one-point victories over Atlantic, Quebec and the host European - based Canadian representatives.

Washers Split

Exco Car Wash went halves with Mariners Monday night as the two teams battled to a 4-4 OMHA exhibition tie.

Andy Plane scored two goals for the Belleville pro; wee miners with singles going to Tim Coates and Gery McInroy. For Marmors it was Craig Killion and Wayne Lajoie with a goal each.

Old and New Habs On Kinsmen Junket

Fans in the Belleville area will get a chance to see the old and the new of the Montreal Canadiens by taking advantage of the Kinsmen's annual junket to the Quebec metropolis.

In addition to such recent Hab stars as Ken Dryden and Guy Lafleur, visiting Montreal fans will get a chance to see familiar faces such as Lorne Worsley, Ted Harris, Jude Drouin and Ceasre Maxaga, all former members of the Montreal organization. The former Canadiens are now members of the Minnesota North Stars who will provide the opposition for the March 19th match.

A total of 16 tickets are still available for the excursion at a price of $30 per person. Cost of the ticket includes train fare, ticket to the game and a room at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel. The group leaves at 1:30 a.m. Saturday, March 18 and will be returning to Belleville Sunday, March 19th.

Ticket inquiries may be made to Jim Muir at 961-2705.

Ski Story Straight

The Intelligencer should be biting its tongue, so to speak, for failure to give full credit to the Ba's Shoe Company in a Monday feature on the Ratews Ski Club.

It was stated that the club is not directly owned by Bata Industries. This is correct. The facilities were built and financed by individual members. However the land itself was donated by the footwear company, which still maintains ownership of the property.

As club official Tom Hudson points out, "the Bata Ski Club exists through the generosity of Bata. Footwear Division of Bata Industries, who provided land for the purpose of advancing winter sport in the Quinte area."

Stamp Honors Figure Skating

By IAN ROBERTSON

Figure skating has been described as one of the most scientific and artistic of sports, with a natural ability on ice coupled with a high degree of body control and long hours of gruelling practice.

Skating originated in the eighth century as a practical means of moving quickly and easily over icy surfaces. The early foolgear consisted of bone runners laced to the feet with thongs.

Skates with steel blades fitted in wooden soles appear to have originated in Holland around 1250. This was the forerunner of skating as it exists today. Early references in 12th century English literature described bow young boys moved across ice on bone skates and pointed staffs used as shoving rods.

Early works, such as a 1448 woodcut of a skating accident by Pieter Brueghel the Elder, also illustrate this early means of transportation.

It wasn't until 1864 that a dancing master, Jackson Haines broke away from the rigid and precise form of skating to the style and grace of ballet on ice. Figure skating was born.

A Canadian, Louis Robertshaw, set the first world record in St. Petersburg, Russia, in 1890, when he emerged overall champion of the first international skating competition. He became the first president of the Amateur Skating Association of Canada, later known as the Canadian Figure Skating Association, which was elected to the International Skating Union in 1947.

The first Canadian National Championships were held in 1905 and in 1924, Canada was represented for the first time in World and Olympic championships. Although the skaters maintained a high degree of skill, Canada did not emerge in first place until a young Ottawa skater, Barbara Ann Scott entered the picture at the world championships at Stockholm, Sweden, in 1947.

The following year, she chalked up three championships — European, Olympic, and World — at events in Davos, Switzerland, and at St. Moritz, Switzerland, the site of the 1948 Winter Olympics.

Her record performance set a precedent in world figure skating championships. This was the first time the top honors had been awarded to a skater from outside of Europe.

Other Canadians who have achieved equal success are Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden, Barbara Wagner and Robert Paul, and Maria and Otto Jelinek in the pairs competition; Donald Jackson, Donald McPherson and Petra Burka have all been world champions in singles events.

At the 1972 Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, Canada's Karen Magnussen emerged with a silver medal in the women's figure skating class. Under the agreements of the International Skating Union, Canada was eligible to enter three skaters in this class, one in the men's singles, two pairs and one dance couple.

To mark the artistic qualities and significance of figure skating, plus the 1972 World Championships to be held in Calgary, Alberta, from March 6 to 12, the Canada Post Office will release a special commemorative issue on March 1.

Designed by Design Workshop in Toronto, the purple stamp captures a double-exposed image of a skating pair in classic pose.

Arctic Communications Issue

CRTC Expected to Announce Policy on Native Broadcasting

OTTAWA (CP) — The government of the Northwest Territories is expected to make a statement on native broadcasting within a few weeks.

The state secretary's department was to complete a study of native communications in Canada which may provide a springboard for action taken by them or by the communications department.

This activity follows a series of conferences on native communications.

But some northern Indians are worried at the length of time it is taking to establish policy on native communications.

James Wah-shee, president of the Northwest Territories Indian Brotherhood, recently said events are moving quickly in the North "so we can't wait for a national policy."

He said the Anik I communications satellite, to be launched in November 1973, is scheduled to transmit CBC network programming to the North.

He said he is proposal for a radio-telephone network serving Indian communities in the Northwest Territories should be approved now. The native residents who make up three-quarters of the population in the Northwest Territories should get first priority.

He supports a special northern communications study that last week said the Anik program should be changed to take account of the communications needs of the northern residents.

The group, sponsored by the Arctic Institute of North America, called on the CRTC to establish guides to ensure that broadcasting is developed according to the needs of the people in the North, including establishment of local stations to carry locally-produced radio programs.

Native newspapers and radio operations have blossomed in a variety of ways in different parts of Canada.

Twelve residents of Tuktoyaktuk, about 1,365 miles north Edmonton on the arctic coast, have a radio station which carries about four hours of English and Eskimo programming daily.

CHUM, radio of Toronto provides stereo technical and financial help and has agreed to exchange programs with the northern station.

In British Columbia, the Haven Society has 39 radio-telephone outlets in Indian communities.

In a method similar to the telephone conference call, Indian communities can exchange information. The society has submitted applications for 16 new stations to the communications department.

One of the most active operations is the Alberta Native Communications Society which is heavily funded as a pilot project by the state secretary's department.

Operating separately from the provincial broadcasting corporation, ANCS publishes a newspaper and distributes five half-hour radio programs a week, a weekly to five private radio stations in central Alberta and Edmonton.

The society, which wants a radio station in the Peace River area, 300 miles north of Edmonton, also is developing a television department.

Kenmoretsky Inc., an Indian development group supported by the Company of Young Canadians, has a travelling radio station which moves through the Yukon region in northwestern Ontario broadcasting to Ojibway Indians.

Radio Arctic in Rankin Inlet, N.W.T., have a combination radio and phone system which allows four-way conferences that can be heard by the entire population at special events.

The CBC also provides some programs in native languages and some programs aimed at Indians. Some observers suggest that some of the needs of northern Indians could be met by increasing the use of native programming on the CBC northern service.

Others suggest there is a growing considerable interest in video-tape films and that it is not just in television systems. But they need money to get started. The state secretary's department is weighing all these requests. It has been a member of the party which formed the government.

Provincial finances were the major topic during the campaign.

PCs Win First Byelection Since Alberta Victory

GASTON, Alta. (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives retained Stettler constituency Monday in a Valentine's Day provincial byelection which indicated the voter is still sweet on Premier Peter Lougheed's government.

Graham L. Harle, a 40-year-old lawyer from Stettler, became the 49th Conservative in the 75-seat Legislature by winning a two-way fight with Galen Norris, 56, his Social Credit opponent.

The complete count gave Mr. Harle 3,004 votes to Mr. Norris 2,302.

The margin was more than double that turned in by Conservative Jack Robertson in last August's general election when Albertans ousted the Social Credit party, which had ruled for 36 years, and swept the province's first Conservative government.

Mr. Robertson, who died Dec. 7, received 2,625 votes to finish 294 ahead of Mr. Norris, who had held the seat from a 1956 byelection until last year. Mr. Norris, a former livestock dealer who now lives in Calgary, collected 2,631 votes in 1970.

The defeat left Social Credit strength in the legislature at 25 Party has one.

It was the first test of government popularity since the Conservatives swept Social Credit from power and came in what is considered a key riding. The winning candidate in Stettler has been a member of the party which formed the government.

Provincial finances were the major topic during the campaign.

Canada Recognizes Bangladesh

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has joined the growing group of countries to recognize Bangladesh, the former eastern wing of Pakistan.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told a news conference Monday that Canada has granted diplomatic recognition because the new country's government has shown itself in effective control.

Pakistan's high commissioner to Canada, M. S. Shaikh, expressed "very great regret" at Canada's decision.

He said in an interview the Canadian announcement was "premature, hasty" and does not accord with a United Nations resolution or with the principles of diplomatic recognition.

Canada is the 25th country to acknowledge the new state.

Mr. Sharp said he hopes both Pakistan and Bangladesh will participate in the Commonwealth, and that Canadian relations with both countries will remain friendly.

Mr. Shaikh said he too hoped for continued good relations with Canada. But Pakistan's decision several weeks ago to quit the Commonwealth—prompted by increasing recognition of the secessionist state—was "irrevocable."

Mr. Sharp said that to begin with, Canada would be represented in Bangladesh's capital, Dacca, by a diplomat now posted in a nearby country.

Tradeau Sent Aide To Rhodesian Region

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau, concerned about the effects of the proposed Rhodesian settlement, sent his special assistant, Ivan Head, to three neighboring countries last month to study the situation.

Sources in Mr. Trudeau's office said Monday that Mr. Head, a self-confessed hawk, also carried personal requests from Mr. Trudeau that none of the three — Botswana, Zambia-Tanzania and Zambia—would walk out of the Commonwealth over a Rhodesian settlement.

Like the three countries, the Canadian government favors majority rule for Rhodesia. But should the proposed British Rhodesian agreement be implemented, Mr. Trudeau is assured that the Commonwealth not be further splintered and rendered ineffective in the area.

The agreement reached by Britain and Rhodesia provides for majority rule in the indefinite future, but no dates are mentioned. Britain has appointed a commission to study attitudes of Rhodesians to the agreement.

Foreign Ownership Stand Is Feared

OTTAWA (CP) — Edmonton publisher Mel Hurtig, member of the Committee for an Independent Canada, predicted Monday that the government's forthcoming policy on foreign ownership will do little to "repatriate" the Canadian economy.

"Many of us believe that it could be a very, very disastrous turning point in Canadian history," he told a news conference.

Unless something meaningful is done soon to start regaining control of Canadian industry, Mr. Hurtig said, foreign ownership will have progressed to the point where it can not be stopped or reversed.

Keratoconus Is Eye Defect In Which Cornea Protrudes

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dr. Thosteson will answer letters to cicate information about an eye condition called keratoconus. Our daughter, 17, has it.—Mrs. C. I.

Let's start with the corneas—that's the covering of the centre portion of the eyeball.

Keratoconus is a protrusion of part of the cornea, due to a weakness of the tissue. Because this changes the smooth, exact curve of the eyeball, obviously it causes visual disturbances.

Ordinary glasses do not readily correct vision in a case like this, so contact lenses have been used. Often the hard contact lenses are not well tolerated, but it has recently been reported that soft contact lenses are tolerated quite satisfactorily. The soft lenses may require spectacles in addition to get best results.

Dr. Thosteson: I had a checkup recently and have been told high blood fats—it sounds like "triglyceride." They gave me a diet for it.—Mrs. H.

It's triglycerides. They are fatty materials somewhat allied to cholesterol although not exactly the same, and not from the same type of diet. Carbohydrates should be reduced in the diet to lower triglycerides.

Dr. Thosteson: Several years ago I had several male hormone shots for a medical condition. As a result I now have to cope with an alarming amount of hair on my chin and above my lips, which is embarrassing. Can female hormone shots reverse this, or should I resort to electrolysis?—Mrs. Y.E.

After use of male hormones has ceased, the hairiness gradually disappears, so after several years I would be of the opinion that that no longer is influencing the situation.

Remember, however, that hair growth is not unusual in women past menopause, the amount varying from one individual to another. Giving female hormones will not necessarily reverse this growth.

Therefore if I were you I'd consider shaving, or the bleaching, if that will work for you.

Dr. Thosteson: My daughter-in-law and three-year-old grandson between them drink half a gallon of orange juice daily, substituting it for water, milk, etc.

She says her doctor has told her that her bones are brittle and I'm wondering whether this amount of orange juice, over a period of years, might contribute to this.—Mrs. P.F.

Orange juice wouldn't cause the brittleness—but if she has been drinking it to the exclusion of milk, she may have become deficient in calcium—and we all need calcium for strong bones.

The same thought makes me wonder whether the little grandson may be lacking calcium. That's not good.

Grys Won't Resign

TORONTO (CP) — Alderman Ben Grys violated the Municipal Act by not declaring an indirect financial interest in a redevelopment project he voted for last year, Mr. Justice Patrick Galligan ruled Monday.

In an 800-word written judgment, the Ontario Supreme Court jurist said aldermen John Sewell and Karl Jaffary could use Ald. Grys, a fellow member of city council, for damages if they felt he had subjected them to slander proceedings during the eight-month legal battle.

Ald. Grys publicly admitted Nov. 22 that he had had an indirect interest.

Ald. Grys said in an interview Monday he will not resign from council despite the decision.

Opening lead — king of spades.

Whenever declarer is missing Q-x-x-x of a suit, he is faced with the question of whether to cash the A-K, hoping that he'll fell the queen, or whether to cash the ace and then finesse the jack, hoping that the queen is the damsel.

The problem comes up with disturbing frequency, and the general rule is that declarer should cash the A-K rather than finesse.

However, this is a mathematical concept only, and it should not be allowed to override pertinent tactical considerations that may arise in a particular case. The fact is that the odds favoring the drop are only slight to begin with, and declarer should feel perfectly free to depart from the mathematical odds when the circumstances indicate that this is the right thing to do.

Take this deal where West leads the A-K and another spade. Declarer ruffs, cashes the ace of trumps, enters dummy with a club, and leads the jack of trumps. East follows with the three.

South's correct play is to finesse the jack. If it holds, he has won the contract; if he doesn't he goes down.

Declarer should reason that if he puts up the king and the queen does not fall, the odds in his mission until he finds the clubs divided 3-3 are 2-1 in his favor. If he makes the contract not only when East has the queen, but also when West has the queen and the clubs are divided either 2-2 or 4-2. In the latter case, South can establish an extra club trick by ruffing one of dummy's low clubs, eventually using the nine of trumps as an entry to cash the fifth club.

Tomorrow: A gamble.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): You may talk a little faster than is prudent. Stick to your habits despite temptation for short cuts, subduing you do escapes critical notice.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): It's your turn to be showered with gifts. Avoid detours to please others. Older people tend to complicate matters briefly now.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Stretch yourself to the limit for extra achievement on the job. Concentrate on a single objective in personal matters. If romance is impulsed, make the most of a high tide of emotional expression.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): A determined attack on work at hand, anything that is left over from recent past, will produce results beyond usual. Gathering information on subjects of personal interest brings new rewards.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Try to escape and put back together what seemed hopelessly scattered yesterday and the day before.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pay a little extra heed to temporary moods, minor inconveniences. You can get to the bottom of a problem quickly by meditating on the essential qualities of the problem.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your keenest judgment is needed. Start early enough to get on top of the situation and stay there. Equipment, home necessities, tools and the like, repair and maintenance promise to be subjects of concern and discussion.

Scorpio (Nov. 23-Nov. 21): Stick to what you are sure of, from past experience, as casual callers involve other ideas. Your knack for selling is at peak; use it.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): People are just fine, co-operative, mechanical things just require adjustment.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The extra effort you need is at hand, from some unlikely people. Be a good listener, even where you are not sure what the sense of the details adds to.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Some people don't like to talk about some things; today you'll run into this elementary fact of social existence. Let your credentially simmer and soon you'll figure out the puzzles.

Convertible Helicopter

A helicopter flies by as a tilt-wing CL-84, developed and produced in Canada, is demonstrated for U.S. Navy observers Monday at the Pentagon in Washington. The plane is a vertical and short takeoff and landing (V/STOL) aircraft which flies like an airplane when its wings are horizontal and like a helicopter when the wings are tilted upward. It was produced by General Dynamics at its Canadair subsidiary in Montreal. (AP Photo)

Canadian STOL Plane Shown To U.S. Navy at Washington

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada put on a demonstration Monday of its CL-84, the tilt-wing vertical short takeoff and landing aircraft, for the benefit of United States Navy and defence department officials.

The Americans had requested the display of the craft, which is capable of conventional flight but, with wings vertical, has a helicopter capability of hovering and performing vertical takeoffs and landings.

Although U.S. officials were non-committal, it is considered the CL-84 could have a role in the navy's "sea control ships concept" aimed at putting aircraft aboard ships other than the large and expensive aircraft carrier types.

In 1963, after seven years of research and development by Canadair, Ltd., a wholly owned subsidiary of General Dynamics, the Canadian department of defence production joined with General Dynamics in funding a program for the design, manufacture and testing of a prototype.

It first flew in May, 1965. Since then, three aircraft have been produced, basically the same as the prototype although more powerful.

Panel Surprises Washington By Urging Pot Be Permitted

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Administration was taken by surprise Monday by a government panel's view that criminal penalties should be abolished for private use of marijuana.

President Nixon's national commission on marijuana and drug abuse has concluded that the cost to society of heavy penalties for marijuana smoking outweighs the risks of more liberal laws, reliable sources said.

The panel stopped well short of recommending legalizing marijuana completely, but believes a person should be permitted to smoke it in the privacy of his home.

"It's an amazing about face," a source close to the panel said. The finishing touches are being put on the recommendations before they are submitted to Nixon.

The commission's view on the use of marijuana was unexpected because its make-up is mainly conservative. Nine of its 13 members were chosen by Nixon, who has adopted a firm position against more liberal marijuana laws. The four other members were appointed by Congress.

Shortly after appointing the panel last year, Nixon told a news conference: "Even if the commission does recommend that it be legalized, I will not follow that recommendation."

The panel, while opposed to making marijuana smoking fully legal, suggests that use of the drug should no longer make a person a criminal.

An estimated 24 million Americans, or one in the entire population, have smoked marijuana, commission surveys found.

The commission was divided in how far it should go in recommending an easing of the marijuana laws. The majority feel it should continue to be a crime to grow it, sell it, transport it or even give it to a friend, sources said.

OMA Plans to Discuss Billings During First Meet with Potter

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Medical Association officials will discuss new government health plan billing procedures during their first meeting with Ontario's new health minister, Dr. Richard Potter, a spokesman for the organization said Monday.

The spokesman said association officers are to meet later this week with Dr. Potter, appointed to the portfolio Feb. 2.

A notice from the province last week told doctors that after April 1 when the new Ontario Health Insurance Plan is introduced, all doctors will use a standardized card for claiming patients' fees from the plan.

Until now, doctors who billed patients directly instead of through the health plan could use any form they wished.

Under the new plan, which will combine hospital and medical insurance premiums, claims will be sent to eight district offices in Windsor, Hamilton, London, Toronto, Kingston, Ottawa, Sudbury and Thunder Bay.

The doctors also were informed by the notice that claims must be submitted within three months of the date of the service.

G. E. Fotherston, executive director of operations for the provincial medical plan, said the three-month deadline was instituted to speed up claims payment. He said there is no intention of penalizing doctors and that where problems arise, the time will be extended.

Many doctors have written and called to him about the new procedures, he said, but where "we talk it over, they don't seem to be too unhappy."

Kierans Says Canada May Be Just Puppet

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Canada's future role in world economics may be limited to supplying energy and natural resources to one of three major super groups, Eric Kierans, former communications minister, said Monday.

By 1980, he said, Japan, United States and the European Common Market will be able to supply the world with all necessary commercial products.

These three groups will not set out to destroy each other but will perhaps want to come to some sort of agreement, he said in a speech at Trent University.

Canada, he said, will figure nowhere at all in this "inevitable thrust." While Canada is an industrial country, others have been responsible for building that industry.

"We have a country in into "that kind of fix" where more than half the economy is controlled from abroad, the future direction and expansion of the country is also controlled from abroad, he said.

Among the measures he advocated is a restructuring of Canada's technical priorities.

"We have to begin to check our priorities and say what our policy is going to be in respect to science development.

"Everybody thinks we're rich because we're digging it out of the ground and giving it away."

Hoffa Says Only Kennedy Has Chance to Oust Nixon

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Former Teamsters Union President James P. Hoffa said Monday that only Senator Edward M. Kennedy would have a chance to defeat President Nixon from the White House in November.

"Bear rumors that Kennedy will be drafted by the Democrats and if that happens, Nixon is in trouble," Hoffa said in an interview.

The Massachusetts senator's two brothers, the late John Kennedy and the late former attorney-general Robert Kennedy, launched the prosecution that sent Hoffa to prison for jury tampering and mail fraud. He served four years and nine months before Nixon commuted his sentence last December.

"I don't think any of these guys gets a chance," Hoffa said of the field of Democratic and Republican presidential candidates.

"Robert Humphrey is a nice guy," Hoffa said without finishing the sentence. "Muskie?—grrrr."

Ex-RCMP Head Says Law Weak

HAMILTON (CP) — Every day Canadian courts acquit hundreds of defendants that even defence lawyers know to be guilty, says W. H. Kelly, retired RCMP deputy commissioner.

The reason, he told the Women's Canadian Club Monday, is that Canada's legal system is plagued by antiquated rules that favor criminals over law-abiding citizens.

Mr. Kelly, who for two years served as Canada's representative with Interpol and was for 18 considers are three examples where Canadian law is weighted too much in favor of the criminal.

First there was the so-called rule of silence, the rule against self-incrimination. He said the rule, established in English law 200 years ago, prevents the court from obtaining all the facts surrounding a crime with which an accused person is charged. It compels judges to make decisions on flimsy evidence.

Canada's new bail bill also suits the criminal, he said. This law, which went into effect Jan. 2, requires police to release persons accused of even relatively serious crimes until they have been convicted. The principle behind it is commendable, but it appears to have the effect of obstructing police.

His third criticism was levelled at Canada's jury system. Mr. Kelly suggests it might be wise to change the rule requiring total unanimity on decisions to verdict by a majority of 10. The would make it necessary to tamper with at least three jurymen if 10 could bring in a verdict.

Divorce Sought

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Entertainer Dean Martin filed suit for divorce Monday from former model Jeanne Biegler, his wife for 22 years.

CBC Producer Watched Police Beat Demonstrator

TORONTO (CP) — A CBC producer said Monday that he could hear a demonstrator groan as pain as a group of eight Metropolitan Toronto police officers surrounded and beat the man at an anti-Soviet rally Oct. 25 at the Ontario Science Centre.

Martin Burke said at an inquiry conducted by Mr. Justice Anthony Vannini that he saw only one blow connect, but could hear the thud of other punches.

Mr. Burke said the demonstrator pleaded with police not to hit him because he was not struggling.

The investigation is into charges of police brutality made by the Ukrainian-Canadian Committee following a clash between demonstrators and police while Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was addressing a banquet at the centre. Twenty persons were arrested during the demonstration in which six policemen were injured.

Mr. Burke said that police on horseback who rode into the crowd of demonstrators tried to keep people away from the horses. They were striking out with clubs, although he did not see anyone actually struck.

"I did not see a horse actually step on anybody," he added.

Mr. Burke said the CBC has a five-minute film taken at the time police on horseback moved into the crowd, but CBC officials have not decided whether to allow the inquiry to view the film.

Commission counsel W. J. Smith said, however, he would subpoena Knowlton Nash, director of information programs, and Eugene Hallman, CBC vice-president, to ensure the film is produced.

UN Worker Arrested For Spying

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — A Soviet employee at the United Nations was arrested Monday in New York on charges of espionage.

The FBI said Valeriy Markelov, 32, was arrested at a restaurant in suburban Long Island after a supposed contact handed him classified documents dealing with the F14 fighter being built for the U.S. Navy.

The FBI said the case had been under investigation since autumn, 1970, when Markelov—a translator at the UN—made the acquaintance of an engineer employed at the Grumman Aerospace Corp., which is building the plane for the navy at a Long Island plant.

"From the inception of the case, Grumman officials and the engineer directly involved co-operated fully with the FBI," the agency said.

It said Markelov gave the Grumman contact a portable copying machine and a 35-millimetre camera with which to reproduce the classified material.

"Markelov had 11 separate meetings with the engineer at various restaurants in the New York area and persistently requested confidential data concerning the new plane," the FBI said.

The FBI said agents witnessed all the meetings and arrested Markelov after he took possession of the classified material.

Markelov lives with his wife and daughter in New York.

Munro Will Announce Methadone, Speed Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro will announce new programs involving methadone and amphetamine use before this week, his office confirmed Monday.

The announcement is expected to be based on proposals in the Jan. 28 report of the Le Dain Commission on non-medical use of drugs.

The Commission's report recommended establishment of a methadone maintenance program for heroin addicts—a proposal that drew support Monday from the Canadian Medical Association.

The Ledain proposals would involve more stringent regulations of methadone, an addictive drug that has been used experimentally to wean addicts from heroin.

Methadone blocks the craving but also has severe side effects and is administered less frequently.

Speleologist Starts Six Months in Cave

DEL RIO, Tex. (Reuter) — Frenchman Michel Siffre descended into a limestone cave in western Texas Monday and began six months of loneliness in the interest of science.

The 23-year-old speleologist hopes to prove that after a period beyond time"—divorced from watches, clocks, daylight and all other clues to the passage of time—man adapts naturally to a 48-hour life cycle.

A pattern of 12 hours of sleep and 36 hours wakefulness, Siffre believes, could benefit astronauts and the crews of nuclear submarines on long-range aircraft.

Siffre will live out his lone exile, planned to last about 20 days, inside Midnight Cave, a warm, dry cavern some 50 miles from the Rio Grande border with Mexico.

Measuring 70 feet by 50 feet and with 15-foot ceilings, the cave has a constant temperature of between 68 and 72 degrees, "comparatively comfortable," he calls it, remembering the two months he spent in an icy cave in the Franco-Italian Maritime Alps 18 years ago.

Siffre will be linked with the surface by telephone but it will only be used for the exchange of technical information. The cave is stocked with canned food, but fresh food and water will be sent down by trolley. The scientist also has music tapes and plenty of reading material, mostly scientific.

Deadly Pesticide Missing in Colombia

BOGOTA (AP) — The Colombian government sounded a country-wide alert Monday over 5,500 pounds of missing parathion poison, one of the most deadly pesticides.

"If it gets in the water supply or is thrown away carelessly, it could cause the death of three million persons," the government announcement said.

Security officers discovered that 10 barrels of a 40-barrel shipment of the poison had been drained and filled with water. The parathion was imported from West Germany 12 days ago by the Schering laboratory. Government experts said the parathion causes death through swallowing, inhalation or contact with the skin.

B.C. Plans to Challenge Equalization Payments

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia government struck back at Prime Minister Trudeau's "logical" remark about Premier Bennett Monday by declaring that the province will challenge the federal government's equalization payments program in court.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson told the B.C. legislature the legal action is being taken to demonstrate that the province is "fed up" with the treatment accorded to B.C. by Ottawa and to convince the federal government. That was common knowledge.

The equalization grants "violate the provisions of the British North America Act—namely, that all provinces being to be treated equally after their entry into Confederation," Mr. Peterson said.

"It is impossible to rationalize the 'equal-opportunity' principle with equalization grants to some governments. This is one of the reasons why British Columbia considers that equalization payments as we know them today are not constitutionally valid," he said.

The grants are intended to level out economic disparities between provinces.

Outside the house Mr. Peterson said the legal action proposal was accelerated by Prime Minister Trudeau's remark about Premier W. A. C. Bennett during the weekend.

Mr. Trudeau told an Ontario Liberal convention Saturday that Mr. Bennett is a bigot who thinks there are too many French people in Ottawa, and "this great-Canadian even takes the name Canada off the Trans-Canada Highway in his province. He doesn't want Canada to be present there."

The announcement of the court action was protested by a Peterson said, "British Columbia has had enough."

He said Mr. Trudeau's remark was "the most malicious, deceitful and unwarranted attack on a provincial premier by the prime minister of this country since Confederation."

In his speech before the house, Mr. Peterson said the present system of equalization payments as a form of social welfare, supported by the "have" provinces of Ontario, Alberta and B.C. to benefit the remaining seven "have-not" provinces, including Quebec, "cause unrest in the public trough."

The attorney-general said B.C. does not object to helping less fortunate areas of Canada but equalization payments to governments had failed to correct existing disparities. Only a comprehensive program of direct assistance to individuals would suffice.

This should consist of a guaranteed-annual-income program for all Canadians, the creation of new single provinces on the Prairies and in the Maritimes to give Canada five economic regions, and free trade with the U.S. over 10 years.

Davis on Federal-provincial Issues

Ontario Won't See Quebec Stand Alone In Dealings With Federal Government

MONTREAL (CP) — Ontario will not see Quebec "stand alone, without friend or ally" in dealings with the federal government, Premier William Davis said Monday.

Mr. Davis told the Canadian Club the two central provinces agree on several key issues in continuing federal-provincial discussions.

They speak "in two languages . . . but with one voice."

Ontario and Quebec agree, he said, that shared-cost programs damage provincial priorities by "needlessly complicating" budgetary planning and blunt the effectiveness and efficiency of our own policy.

He said the two provinces also agree "to our mutual sorrow" that the provincial interest is too often neglected or forgotten in federal planning which involves the provinces—more precisely in the fields of taxation and social policy.

"I think we also agree that educational television ought to be a provincial responsibility," Mr. Davis said the English-language press had predicted at Thursday's Ontario-Quebec meeting "going to" in Ottawa, implying that Ottawa "must be right."

But events have shown the opposite, he said. When Ontario and Quebec disagree with federal policy, "then federal policy is very likely to be wrong."

He added that relations with the federal government are improving and bolstered he thinks by the "mutually constructive" meeting of provincial premiers with Prime Minister Trudeau in January.

"As matters are proceeding these days in the federal capital, it would appear that a new and refreshing willingness to accept our position on certain matters of recurrent controversy between us . . . ."

This "might indicate an event of some national importance in the not too distant future," he said, drawing laughter.

U.S. Cannot Afford Canada's Trade Edge

Egypt To Get Soviet Arms

CAIRO (AP) — President Anwar Sadat gave a broad hint today that the Soviet Union will supply advanced weapons enabling Egypt to make deep penetration raids against Israeli cities.

The Egyptian leader told a special session of the national congress of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only political organization, that concentrated efforts lie ahead "to master the new and advanced weapons."

These efforts became imperative, he said, as a result of the U.S. decision to supply Israel with more Phantom fighter-bombers.

Sadat also told the congress his Feb. 1 trip to the Soviet Union "brought great successes in the way of mutual understanding and analysis of developments."

He indicated the Soviets have promised to supply Egypt with more weapons when he said: "we carry arms and we shall carry more arms," and again when he said: "We have to add to our forces to insure the enemy pays much more than we have to pay in the event of battle."

"We must be prepared for great losses, but we will inflict greater losses on the enemy, whose precarious losses would our country be hit in this way," he said.

U.S. Plans Continued Air Raids

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. military sources have indicated that American air forces will keep up their heavy strikes across Indochina during President Nixon's visit to China next week.

They said that Feb. 21, the day Nixon arrives in China, had been mentioned in captured North Vietnamese and Viet Cong documents so many times as the starting date for an offensive against South Vietnam that it couldn't be discounted.

U.S. intelligence sources said projections indicate 66,000 fresh North Vietnamese troops would move into South Vietnam by the end of May, compared with 58,000 for the same period a year ago.

Seabed Ban For Nuclear Arms Approved

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Senate voted unanimously Tuesday to ratify a treaty to ban nuclear weapons on the ocean seabed, which supporters hope will help another potential arms race.

The seabed arms control treaty, originally proposed by Malta during an August, 1967, United Nations meeting, and signed in February, 1971, by 62 nations, bans placement of nuclear weapons on the ocean floor beyond the 12-mile territorial limit claimed by most nations.

East-end Plaza Will Go Indoors

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville's east-end shopping plaza, built as an open mall about 10 years ago, is to go indoors.

Plans to enclose The Belleville Plaza were officially announced Tuesday during a dinner party at the Four Seasons Hotel, sponsored by the plaza owners to mark a change in the mall management.

As of Feb. 1, the east end mall was no longer under the management of Metropolitan Trust, this function now having been taken over exclusively by D. J. Whalen Real Estate of Belleville.

Previously the plaza management has been handled from Toronto with Whalen Real Estate acting as the local agent.

Acting as chairman for the evening, D. J. Whalen told attending plaza tenants that he considered it a great honor to be chosen by the owners as the exclusive management agent.

He said the Swiss owners of the plaza considered it advisable to have local management and noted that the dinner party gave the new management personnel the opportunity to meet the tenants.

Referring to the owner's decision to enclose the plaza, Mr. Whalen said his firm's representative, Jack Diamond, would start meeting plaza tenants this week to discuss plans for enclosing the mall and heating the entire premises.

There was no indication as to when the project would get under way or when work might be completed.

The east end plaza, the first shopping centre to be built in Belleville, was constructed by Principal Investments Ltd., which later sold the centre to Swiss interests. Rolfe Frey, a representative of the Swiss owner, attended last night's dinner and met plaza tenants.

U.S. Official Presents View

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States can no longer afford a multi-billion-dollar trade deficit with Canada, a commerce department trade official said today.

Edward L. Allen, a deputy assistant secretary for international economic research and analysis, said the actual trade deficit with Canada in 1971 ranged from $1.2 billion, the Canadian estimate, to $2.4 billion, the American estimate.

"By any reckoning, it is very large, and represents a major balance-of-payments drain to the United States," Allen said in remarks prepared for a conference of business executives on U.S.-Canadian relations.

Allen said the U.S. efforts to correct balance-of-payments problems have been "of very real economic benefit to Canada."

He said Canada's international competitive position has been improved because of currency revaluation, and Canada's automobile exports to the United States have been stimulated because of the repeal of the seven-per-cent excise tax on automobiles, and extension of trade concessions won from Japan and the Common Market.

Allen said more than half the companies in Canada with assets greater than $25 million are foreign-owned, primarily by American companies. While information is not yet complete, he said, it appears that more than half of American imports from Canada are from U.S.-manufacturing and mining affiliates.

Allan said the hopeful area for reducing the trade deficit with Canada as a result of currency revaluation "lies in prospects for increased imports of U.S.-manufactured goods by Canada.

Auto Pact Deficit For U.S. $195 Million

WASHINGTON (CP) — A report to Congress on the Canada-U.S. auto pact says the U.S. had a $195-million deficit in automotive-products trade with Canada in 1971, and Canadian-built snowmobiles were a major contributing factor.

The deficit for the U.S. was the first since the controversial agreement began in 1965, says the annual report to Congress by President Nixon.

Total U.S.-Canada auto trade in 1970 was $6.1 billion—$100-million less than in 1969 and a little less than twice the U.S. auto trade with the rest of the world.

U.S. imports of auto products from Canada were $3.1 billion, an increase of 2.3-per-cent over 1969; corresponding exports to Canada were $2.9 billion, a decline of seven-per-cent compared with 1969.

In 1969, the U.S. net surplus was $83 million and in 1965, first year of the pact, it was $658 million.

The report, demanded annually under terms of the agreement, says "snowmobile production and sales have increased rapidly and by 1970 the U.S. deficit with Canada in snowmobile trade was about $129 million out of the total $195.1 million auto trade deficit for that year."

Union Body Won't Halt Coal Strike

LONDON (AP) — Britain's coal strike and the resulting power famine nest the unemployment total above 2.5 million today, the highest since the depression years of 1933, but the Trades Union Congress rejected a back-to-work appeal by Prime Minister Edward Heath.

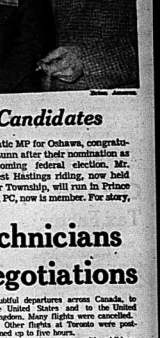
With industry reduced to a three-day week because electric power stations can't get coal to fuel their generators, the unemployment department said 1.2 million men and women or five per cent of the working population, had been laid off since Monday.

Before that the unemployed total was 1,023,000, and 280,000 miners are on strike.

It's A Hard Life For British Miner

LONDON (AP) — "Coal miners have the toughest job in the country," said Dai Jones. "We should be paid a decent wage for it."

Jones was one of hundreds of miners who came to London from their Welsh valleys in march on Parliament Tuesday in support of their demand for higher wages.



"I make £22 ($57.20) a week before deductions like national health insurance," said the 27-year-old father of three. "With overtime I can bring home more."

Now that he's out of work because of the strike, his wife Betty collects welfare benefits in addition to the family allowance she gets regularly for the three kids. All told, said Jones, this comes to nearly $50 a week.

"It's a hard life down that hole," he said. "Unless you're brought up to it, it can kill you off quick. The pale face I inherited in the rain as he jabbed a stubby finger to bring home his point.

"You spend your life running around in grit. You've got to walk maybe two miles through galleries too low to stand to before you get to the coal face.

"Then you do your eight hours crawling shoveling coal in a space the size of an automobile trunk, and afterwards you have two miles to walk again to get back to the mine shaft."

Airport Technicians Resume Negotiations

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Delays to thousands of air travellers across Canada continued today as striking navigation technicians prepared to meet at Ottawa with treasury board officials and mediator Gordon Simmons of Queen's University.

The mediator, who spoke to both sides by telephone Tuesday, said meetings were to begin about 10 a.m. EST but declined further comment.

Prof. Simmons returned to Ottawa Tuesday from Kingston to resume the talks despite rejection by members of local 2278 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of a settlement he proposed Sunday.

Conditions at major airports across the country were hectic Tuesday, 10th day of the strike for higher wages, as air controllers reverted to visual procedures for ceremonial takeoffs and landings after delicate radar equipment broke down without maintenance.

Illustrative of conditions was the situation early today at Toronto International Airport where about 700 sleepy, bored and angry customers awaited doubtful departures across Canada, to the United States and to the United Kingdom. Many flights were cancelled.

Other flights at Toronto were postponed up to five hours.

Passengers, many with children, tried to sleep on seats.

Nancy Burns, 20, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., said she had been waiting for a flight home for five hours and had two more hours to wait.

Air Canada cancelled many regional flights Tuesday.

"We've had to cancel because there's a priority on trans-continental, transatlantic and southern flights," a spokesman said. CP Air reported long delays on the ground.

Montreal International Airport reported volume of commercial traffic cut by 50 per cent Tuesday. Air Canada announced cancellation of 13 flights, including five to Toronto, seven in Ottawa, three to Quebec City and two to New York.

CP Air reported cancellation of a Montreal-Vancouver flight and delays of up to 4½ hours on domestic and international flights.

IRA Wounds Blindfold Men

BELFAST (AP) — Three blindfolded men were shot in the knees in a Roman Catholic district of Belfast Tuesday night and police said they probably were victims of punishment squads sent out by the Irish Republican Army.

Two other men were wounded, one seriously, by bullets fired from passing cars in apparently similar but separate incidents. Outside the capital a youth was found tarred and feathered on the road to Lurgan.

British troops found the wounded, blindfolded trio after Belfast newspapers received a midnight telephone call reporting that the IRA's military Provisional wing had shot three men in the leg "for committing a robbery with violence."

One of the victims was dragged away by a crowd before the soldiers could call an ambulance.

"It looks as though the IRA has held a mass kangaroo court somewhere in the city," a police spokesman said.

Swiss Seek Extradition of Wife of Author of Hughes Book

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Edith Irving, wife of writer Clifford Irving, was scheduled to appear in court today to face extradition proceedings brought by the Swiss government.

U.S. Attorney John Tigue said Mrs. Irving had promised through her lawyer Maurice Nessen to show up voluntarily in court.

The announcement came Friday night as two grand juries in New York were investigating whether fraud was involved in Irving's dealings over his purported autobiography of millionaire Howard Hughes.

Irving says his wife, a German-born Swiss citizen, used the name "H. R. Hughes" to deposit $650,000 from the McGraw-Hill publishing company in a Swiss bank. McGraw-Hill believed the money was being paid to the recluse millionaire for his autobiography.

The arrest warrrut for Mrs. Irving was issued Friday night by a magistrate at the request of the Swiss vice-consul in New York.

The U.S. government must approve an extradition and there are persistent rumors that Irving is attempting to arrange a deal in which he tells all if the federal government refuses to approve the extradition and drops charges against his wife.

The warrant for Mrs. Irving was obtained after Tigue finished questioning the two other blondes in the case—Danish singer Nina van Pallandt and Australian teacher Elaine Dexter—before a federal grand jury. The two also appeared before a New York county grand jury.

Both women were reported to have been with Irving—Mrs. van Pallandt in Mexico, Miss Baxter on St. Croix, Virgin Islands—at times he said he was meeting Hughes.

Irving, who also faces an arrest warrant in Switzerland but who cannot be extradited because he is a U.S. citizen, continues to insist the book is authentic.

But Time magazine—whose sister publication Life planned to buy McGraw-Hill $250,000 serial rights—has denounced Irving as "con man of the year" on its cover.

5-year-old Seriously Injured

A five - year - old Thurlow township boy is in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Belleville General Hospital as the result of being run over by a school bus.

Provincial Police said that Ralph Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Robinson, of RR4, Belleville, shortly before noon Tuesday had alighted from the bus in front of his home at the corner of Elmhurst Drive and Highway 2.

A ballcap the boy had been holding apparently escaped his grasp and crossing under the bus to retrieve it, he was run over by the rear wheels of the vehicle.

The boy suffered lower abdominal injury, fractured right ribs and fractured left shoulder.

John Bancroft, transportation officer with the Hastings County Board of Education, said the Robinson boy was one of a number of half-day kindergarten pupils being taken home from the Point Anne school.

The children had been given an Informal party for a Valentine Day program.

The Elmhurst 11am bus driver, William Doran, of Belleville had let off several children on the road toward Belleville and was shortly to turn ahead for the return trip when the accident happened.

There were no witnesses, but it is assumed the boy either slipped under the bus or crawled under to retrieve his ballloon.

Council Requests Help In Reducing Vandalism

Belleville city council Monday passed a motion which, if acted on by the provincial government could help reduce the growing incidence of vandalism and theft in the city.

The motion calls for the imposition of stiffer penalties in cases of vandalism, property damage and theft, including repayment for property damaged.

Also called for is the provision of additional police patrols; a speed-up in the disposition of court actions arising from such incidents and faster return of property used as evidence in court actions to respective owners.

The original notice of motion was presented by Ald. Jack Ireland several weeks ago when he said the amount of vandalism, property damage and theft were a matter of grave concern to local residents.

His motion said penalties imposed by the courts were too lenient to be a serious deterrent.

The alderman recommended that the resolution be forwarded to top provincial authorities for their consideration.

"The only way we can get anything done is to get right to the top," he said.

Although agreeing in principal with the motion, Ald. Paul Russell said he didn't go along with all the reasons given.

As a practising lawyer, Ald. Russell said judges, in fixing sentences had to keep in mind appeal courts and the possibility of parole.

"An offender can be sentenced to six years and get out in a matter of six months," he said. "There is no point in saying he didn't get a stiff sentence."

One reason for congested courts, the alderman went on, was that with stiffer fines for many offences, more cases were being contested and more people were getting plugged up.

To get around this problem, the alderman suggested that maybe council should be asking for more tribunals.

Ald. Jean Smith said the growing problem of vandalism was more than a police problem.

"It's bigger than that," she said. "It is a community problem."

Rotary Music Festival To Add Band Concert

Belleville Rotary Club's fourth annual music festival, Feb. 29 and March 1 and 2, will offer a bonus for the public this year — an evening of band music at Centennial Secondary School.

The Feb. 29 event will be in addition to the traditional Festival of the Stars, slated for March 3 this year.

The band competition night will see nine bands performing for adjudicator Capt. Kenneth R. Moore, director of music for the Canadian Forces Air Transport Command Band. They will compete in five categories: elementary bands, cadet bands, concert bands and both senior and junior secondary schools.

Admission to the band concert has been set at a low 50 cents to encourage as many of the public as possible to attend. Members of the audiences are asked to be in their seats before the first competition at 7 p.m.

Robert Graham, executive director of the festival, said he has announced the adjudicators for the vocal and instrumental sections of the festival.

John Simons, from the staff of Trinity College of Music in London, England, will judge the instrumental competitions.

A concert pianist, he studied with Wenda Lawrence and Robert Casadesus.

Melville Cook, organist and choirmaster of Metropolitan United Church, Toronto, will judge the vocal and choral classes. This is the first year that organ competitions have been held at the music festival.

On March 3, the two adjudicators will conduct a workshop on teaching techniques for teachers and advanced students. This is the second year that such workshops have been conducted and this year's will be a participating session with all expected to take part.

Capt. Moore will also adjudicate the wind and brass instrument section of the competitions on the afternoon of Feb. 29.

About 1,200 people are expected to compete this year, 600 more than last year. Awards and scholarships are expected to amount to $1,600.

As usual, the public is invited to listen to the performances during the three-day festival. Competitions will be held simultaneously at St. Andrew's Church and BCI, with the organ competitions at St. Andrew's. The brass and wind instrument adjudication will take place in Centennial.

Dr. J. G. Demeza will be master of ceremonies for the festival of stars.

HOME Bylaw Passed by Council

Belleville's proposed HOME (Home Ownership Made Easy) plan gained another step toward realization Monday as an amending bylaw to regulate the use of land for the purpose was approved by city council.

The proposal is to make low-cost serviced lots on Trudeau Drive available to low income families, thus enabling them to build their own homes.

Alderman Enos David, chairman of the special council HOME committee, said the plan provided a "fantastic" opportunity for low income people.

Fully serviced lots would be provided at a cost of $1,500, he said, and if the plan were successful, open the way for other such projects in the city.

But Alderman Ben Corke and Paul Russell had a few misgivings about the wording of the amending bylaw.

They said they were concerned about provisions for garbage collection and snowplowing as well as the moving of heavy furniture into the houses.

One of the features of the plan, designed by assistant planner Jack Hindle, includes calls for the individual houses to be serviced by 16-foot-wide paved laneways which conceivably could limit the movement of heavy trucks.

But Ald. David assured there would be no garbage collection or snow removal problems. He said plans had been approved by police and fire departments.

Alderman E. A. Orr agreed that the plan was experimental but said the same time wanted controls on the type of transportation to be permitted to be clearly spelled out.

"We don't want a shack town," he stressed.

Alderman Orr felt certain, however, that everything could be worked out.

City Appeals Tax Factor

The city of Belleville could stand to save one-half million dollars or more in tax money if the city's appeal from its assessment equalization factor is approved by the Ontario Municipal Board.

City Treasurer Frank J. Morrell said that all parties were in agreement with the revised assessment factor of 93.3 but that an OMB hearing was necessary to formalize the agreement. The present factor is 80.52.

Use of the revised factor would reduce the city's share of the 1971 Hastings County Board of Education levy by $80,758 and would be reduced by a similar or larger amount for the years 1972 to 1975.

There would be a corresponding reduction in contributions to other bodies such as the Moira River Conservation Authority and the Separate School of Belleville.

The over-all potential saving to the city would be approximately one-half million dollars, he said.

Mayor Scott noted the saving could mean one-half mill on the city tax rate.

Public Utilities Commission employees were digging up the surface of North Front Street again yesterday. This particular spot has presented PUC workers with a recurring problem. The pipes, inherited from Thurlow Township when the city annexed the northern part of town, were laid on a hard surface bed. When water temperatures change and sometimes when frost sets in, the underground materials grate against the pipes, causing breaks. This is the third time since December that workers have had to dig up the road surface and repair the line. Yesterday's break, reported at 2 p.m., was repaired by 4.55 p.m. Fred Clarke, of the PUC water department, when asked if the roadbed might be rebuilt, said they are "thinking seriously about doing something there."

Federal Grant to Aid Scout Camp Renovation

Camp Sagonaska, the Boy Scouts' outdoor playground located in Colonel Vandervoort Park, is about to receive its first major overhaul since bunkhouses were installed five years ago.

A federal Winter Works grant in excess of $10,000 will enable scout officials to perform much-needed renovations to their long house and clean out brush and rocks from around the 34-acre site. Capada Manpower will supply five laborers and a carpenter, with work scheduled to begin at the end of the month.

Camp chairman Bruce Thompson of Belleville announced approval of the grant at a scout district council meeting Monday. The exact amount will not be known until final agreement is signed, probably later this week.

The scouts hope to add 20 feet to their long house, one of only three buildings at the camp and the centre for such necessities as cooking and storage. More outhouses will be provided and the service road into the camp will be rerouted to avoid recreation and camping areas.

Only problem at the moment, said Mr. Thompson, is to find a one-site supervisor.

"The plan now is for a few of us to do patrol duty periodically. We'll have to try to co-ordinate our instructions."

A diagram showing the proposed camp layout, with trails clearly marked, will be prepared to aid supervisors.

Between September of 1970 and 1971, scouts put in 2,153 camping days at the park. Scouts also made excellent use of the facilities, with students from as far away as Ohio and Fort Erie staying overnight last summer.

Built on land leased from the Moira Conservation Authority, Camp Sagonaska edged bunkhouses in 1967, thereby allowing cubs between the ages of seven and 10 to spend a night away from home. Older boys pitch tents on one of several specially designated camping areas.

District commissioner Arnold Welch of Belleville says the camp is already fully booked for this summer.

Engineers to Investigate All-season Ventilation

Provision of summer ventilation for the Dick Ellis Rink as well as for the winter season is to be considered by city council before any installation is made.

This was decided Monday after council heard a report from the firm of Totten, Sims and Hubicki Associates, who were hired to prepare plans for rink ventilation.

Fumes earlier this season caused a problem on the part of persons attending the rink.

The engineers recommended installation of a ventilation system for the ice area at a cost of approximately $1,800 and another for the change-rooms and canteen area at a cost of about $4,500.

When the possibility of summer ventilation was raised by council, the consultant said this had not been considered in the study.

For the appreciable effect an "extremely good" fan system would be required for summer ventilation, it was stated.

Council, however, felt summer ventilation should be investigated and referred the matter to the consultants for another look.

Dundas Reconstruction Will Cost $679,500

Reconstruction of 6,100 feet of West Dundas Street from Holden Street to the western city limits will cost an estimated $679,500, members of city council were told Monday.

The city's share of the overall cost after highway subsidy grants is estimated to be $185,625. Administration costs will boost the total city share to over $200,000.

Cost estimates for the West Dundas Street road rebuilding project were presented by council by consulting engineers Greer, Galloway and Associates Ltd., who are preparing plans for both the east and west Dundas street widening.

Conceptual plans for the west end project were presented earlier to council.

The only major change in plans will be the provision of traffic signals at the corner of Palmer Road and Dundas Street.

The engineers didn't feel present traffic conditions warrant lights, but council differed and ruled that the installation should be provided at the time of road widening.

Council adopted the engineer's report and directed that detailed engineering plans be prepared with.

But before tenders are called, separate public meetings will be called for both the east and west Dundas street projects.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said it would only be "good public relations" to acquaint property owners of plans and investigated and referred the to whether any part of their holdings would be necessary for road widening.

matter to the consultants for another look.

REACH OUT FOR LIFE

We've always heard that "in the beginning God created heaven and earth . . ."

For most of us that was too long ago to be of immediate concern, but all of us are concerned about the end.

Will everything we've lived for, what happens then?

. . . And what about between now and then? Is there any meaning to life? Is there a God? If there is, why does He allow war, sickness, death, poverty, pollution?

If your knowledge of the Bible is limited to the three wise men and Moses in the bulrushes, maybe it's time to dig a little deeper — perhaps we can help.

That's why, starting March 4th, the doors of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Tyrone Road, Oshawa, will open to the public for a series of community Bible study sessions with the theme, "Reach Out For Life".

Sponsored by your Seventh-day Adventist neighbors. Co-sponsored by "The Voice of Prophecy", "Faith for Today", "It is Written".

Check your telephone directory for the nearest Seventh day Adventist church.

African Life Described

Originally, the United Church Women's association at College Hill United Church, had planned to invite James and Doris Green for an evening with their club.

However, the Canadian Girls in Training (CGIT) at the church offered their assistance and the missionary couple from Africa were invited to address a full assembly.

Last night, the lower basement hall at the North Park Street Church was jammed to capacity to hear from the African Inland Mission Canadian Deputations Secretary and his wife.

Mr. Green, at present a resident of Napanee, returned to Canada from his missionary work in east coast African countries in July of last year. Previous to this, he and his wife had spent many years with the natives of Tanzania and Kenya, before coming home.

Although working with the Africa Inland Mission, the Greens are his missionaries in the absolute sense. Mr. Green is a mechanic, Mrs. Green is a nurse.

However, they both teach and instruct in the Gospel messages, at the same time working, building and healing.

With aid of a large collection of slides, plus items such as wearing apparel, python, zebra and antelope skins, knives, ornaments and carvals, the couple illustrated much of the life they will return to in the near future.

They spoke of crossing rivers in torrent, barren desert wastes, with temperatures as high as 120 degrees, and cool nights of 85 degrees, to spread their messages and bring some of their training to the people on the eastern regions of Africa.

Many of the natives had never gone to school, and this became part of their mission work. Where schools and clinics didn't exist, they were built . . . often with second-hand materials scrounged in the large cities.

The Africa Inland Mission, originally formed in 1895 by Peter Cameron Scott of Scotland, began with five missionaries, financed in Philadelphia in 1897, the mission has grown to 700, with 99 Canadians representing part of this total.

The great cry in the world today is involvement," the Napanee resident told the more than 200 people in the assembly.

Following the 1½-hour talk, the Greens discussed their work, needs and future hopes.

Refreshments prepared by the UCW, were distributed by girls of the CGIT.

From Python Skins to Breechcloths

Africa Inland Mission workers Jim and Doris Green left, followed up their talk to an assembly of more than 200 gathered at College Hill United Church last night, with a display of some of their artifacts from the east coast of Africa. The missionary couple, at present living in Napanee, showed a colorful display of items, which included a 10-foot python skin from a snake Mr. Green shot, head supports for native men with mud-pack hairdos, brilliant colored cloth used for dresses, beads, vicious knives, native dolls, and beaded breechcloth . . . the only apparel worn by native girls in parts of Africa where temperatures of 95 degrees at night are considered cool, and the daily average is 120 degrees.

Yellow Police Cars Ordered

Belleville city police will be entering a golden age at the end of March, Chief Douglas Crosbie revealed to The Intelligencer today.

Each year, at about this time, their squad of four cruisers is replaced. However, instead of the traditional blue and white colors, the new cars will sport bright canary yellow finishes similar to those now in use in Toronto and other Ontario cities.

Chief Crosbie said the color change was inspired by a study, which indicates yellow cruisers have the greatest visibility impact.

The four cars will be delivered in mid-March. Other vehicles, including a paddy wagon and safety vehicle, will be repainted when it becomes necessary.

$50,000 Job

Office Addition Revealed by Board

TRENTON (Staff) — The Hastings Prince Edward Separate School Board last night received its decision taken last Thursday to build an addition to its Bellecliffe board offices.

The board determined at last week's committee of the whole session that it should expand its George St. facilities because of incentives provided by the provincial-municipal grant system.

Ed Paquet, the board's administrator, indicated last night at the regular board meeting held here that footings are already being laid for the $26,000 structure. The addition that will rise behind the existing building will house eight offices and an expanded board room.

Through the winter works program, the board will receive a grant equal to 100 per-cent of the labor cost and an amount equal to 25 percent of that total to be applied to the cost of building materials.

The board has the additional funds on hand and no money will have to be levied in the future toward the office construction price tag. Mr. Paquet says the "cost to the taxpayer will be practically non-existent."

The board itself is acting as contractor for the project that will provide 4,000 sq. ft. of office space when it is finished in late spring.

Belleville PCs To Elect Officers

Belleville Progressive Conservatives take their first organizational step toward readying for the forthcoming federal with the election of officers at their annual meeting next Monday.

The meeting, which will take the form of a potluck supper at St. Thomas' Parish Hall, will be addressed by A. D. "Alf" Hales, the PC member for Wellington.

Mr. Hales has been a member of the House of Commons since his election July 15, 1957 and has been chairman of the standing committee on public accounts since 1958. The appointment of an opposition member as chairman of the accounts committee was initiated by John Diefenbaker when he was prime minister.

Mr. Hales, a sharp and shrewd questioner of public spending, survived one effort by government members to unseat him as chairman.

Mr. Hales is a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph and a former alderman of that city prior to his 1957 election to the House of Commons.

As a veteran of seven federal elections, six of them successful, Mr. Hales is expected to call upon his campaign techniques, coupled with his six-year tenure as chairman of the public accounts committee, to brief party workers on possible strategies for the next federal election.

Stepping down as president of the PC Association of Belleville is Roy Jeffrey.

Liberal Leader Resigns

We always thought of Robert Nixon as a man of charm, erudition, and intelligence. He also had the drive and determination to carry on the fearsome grind that is an election campaign in Canada, when he took his Liberals into battle in Ontario a while back.

The Liberals put out a comprehensive blueprint for government and it was put before voters with skill by the same Mr. Nixon. But what is this thing charisma or lack of it, that there was a nagging doubt — after the election at any rate — about the Liberal leadership?

It was said before the party's annual convention in Ottawa at the weekend that there was no thought of questioning Mr. Nixon's role as leader — yet he had doubts himself, to the extent that he announced his resignation. Two provincial elections, he said, had shown that "my particular qualities do not precisely fill the bill."

Perhaps in those words lie the key to his failure. Self-doubt is no road to success in politics. His namesake in the United States, in that television debate a decade ago, agreed on some point or other made by his opponent, John Kennedy, and the latter was later quoted as saying, "you should never give your opponent an advantage to which he is not entitled." On such matters a man may indeed win or lose. Robert Nixon moreover is known as a "nice guy," and they say that nice guys never win.

Aiding The Radicals

The Globe and Mail's penchant for espousing the cause of radicalism and even anarchy betrayed itself once again in an attack with the following editorial tirade: "If anything further were needed to show that the existing political structure in Northern Ireland is an obstacle to peace, it was provided in the bloody-minded speech by Prime Minister Brian Faulkner this week. Mr. Faulkner spoke with brutal frankness as the leader of the intransigent Protestant faction in Ulster. Moreover, his intention was patently to start Protestant opinion moving on compromise proposals rumored in London. . ."

The fact is, no such compromise proposals have been put forth officially as yet, although The Globe stokes its propagandist knife in still further with this ploy: 'The possible union of Northern and Southern Ireland he (Mr. Faulkner) pronounced an absurdity ,though this is more and more accepted in moderate British opinion as the ultimate settlement. . ."

In other words Canada's "national newspaper" would have one million Protestants, constituting the majority in Northern Ireland, agree to a united Ireland ruled by a Catholic-dominated government in Dublin; and not forgetting that the IRA is aiming for an all-Ireland socialist state. To this end Protestants call the sort of one-sided harangue quoted above, while at the same time giving prominence (as does television news media) to dissidents (for example, by praising the illegal civil rights march in Derry as "dignified") and the gunmen who are the real "bloody minds" in this contemporary Irish tragedy. Meanwhile scarcely any publicity is given to the peaceful majority of all faiths in Ulster, let alone to the government and its very real accomplishments in housing and industry in recent years.

But then The Globe has been pretty inconsistent about Ireland. A year ago, at the height of the riots of that time, it branded the country as "an abomination to the civilized world." More recently it was exhorting Prime Minister of the Republic to move more strongly against the IRA.

Where The Globe does show a kind of sinister consistency is in its capacity for lending aid and comfort to activist elements around the world. Thus we had it attacking the War Measures Act during the Quebec crisis, while today it is berating the beleagured government of Northern Ireland. It was editorial in its applaud of South Africa and the Portuguese hold on Angola and Mozambique, not to mention the continued American presence in Vietnam. No one can pretend things are perfect in any of these places, but this is an imperfect world and improvement for all peoples meanwhile is best sought by democratic means and peaceful evolution."

We noted recently that many of the early grievances of the Ulster civil rights movement had been corrected. Prime Minister Faulkner made that clear in a recent speech in which he said that the new guarantee of government being evolved the keynote would be "absolute fairness" with regard to elections and electoral boundaries, control of local authorities, area boards and so on.

Unfortunately, the revolutionary atmosphere among the dissidents in Ulster is such that democratic government is finding it difficult to function. First, however, order must be restored. This is accomplished there can be little hope of progress toward an improved political atmosphere.

The Awesome Grind of Parliamentary Life in Canada

By RICHARD JACKSON
Of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — So there is an election coming on sooner or later this year and you have a hankering for a nomination as a party candidate, and, hopefully for the life of member of Parliament.

All that money, an annual $20,000 with $8,000 tax free. That pension, as good as the best and better than most.

Those fringe benefits like weekly air travel passes, free phone service, junkets to faraway Places the whole lucky lot.

And the prestige, the status in make it big, with political luck in the cabinet, and then at the end of the parliamentary road perhaps a membership in the Senate, set for life with directorships, consulting fees and the whole rewarding bag.

Sounds great, eh?

Like you should be so lucky.

But hold it, man.

First there have to work like you would not believe.

Before the election, but especially after it, you have to hit the ballot jackpot and find yourself Mr. MP, the Honorable Member as well, What's-Your-Riding.

You doubt it could be all that tough?

You wonder why some MPs feel compelled to work a long, hard, seven-day week, sometimes logging close to 100 grueling hours?

Take a peek into the West Block office of Jack Marshall, four-year freshman Conservative MP from Newfoundland's Humber - St. George's - St. Barbe.

There he is up to his shirt-sleeves in mail with five secretaries strategically placed to keep him from going under in the flood.

Two of the secretaries are his own, hired and paid by Parliament, one working days, the other nights. A third is "borrowed" from neighboring MPs down the hall who might spare her for a day or two. The fourth is his daughter. The fifth, like his daughter, he pays out of his pocket to come in daily and transcribe his tape-dictated letters.

Of course, much of the workload he piled on his own back.

He put out 18,000 letters to his constituents offering to fight for, individually for each one of them, their benefits under the new Family Allowance schedule coming into force April 1.

Five thousand so far have accepted his invitation, and there's working out each equation — most by formula — to answer the information in the red tape file of National Health and Welfare.

Then there are those hundreds and hundreds of letters of complaint about interminable delays in the payment of unemployment insurance benefits.

Then he saw Bryce Mackasey, just before he switched from Labor to Manpower, in the front pages of The Montreal Gazette, "playing Santa Claus" by handing out late insurance payments.

"The big phony," he storms, "showboating like that, trying to play the hero when he is the villain in the whole awful mess."

Jack Marshall was a successful businessman, and a hard worker before he made it to Parliament.

But it was here on The Hill, locked up in his office, the Commons, House Committees, and Air Canada planes to and from Newfie, he swears, that he learned what hard work really is.

"Go away for three days, the weekend back in the constituency," he says, "and there are 250 letters piling back here and phone calls that take all day and night to return."

He keeps his nose so close to the parliamentary grindstone he has not looked up long enough to know his way to his own Ottawa home. So he calls a cab and the cabbie finds it.

Same way with the airport, although he has been out and back maybe 130 times in the last four years, he does not know how to get there on his own. His daughter drives him.

Why, why, why does he live and work like this, you ask?

"My people" — members of Parliament get sort of possessive about the folks back home.

"I expect me to. They expect service, they send their problems solved here on all government levels local, provincial, answers. So what can I do?"

So he does what has to be done.

There have been constituencies in Parliament where the safe, snug havens where the sitting MP did not have to lift a finger, answer a letter, make a phone call, deliver a speech or even get out of bed to vote, pic. Yet, there were such sinecures like one in the Toronto area whose MP, "Silent Sam" they called him, sat mum and unmoving for 27 successive years through seven elections, three wars, circumnavigations and the electors lowered the boom.

But no more such sanctuaries. Plenty like Jack Marshall's.

When Will 'Super-Ministers' Have Their Say?

Queen's Park

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — An interesting situation is developing here which might be summarized as what is going to speak for whom on what.

This is an outgrowth of the reorganization of government which has seen the creation of provincial policy secretariats or super-ministers.

These men supposedly are without portfolio but they don't have any direct departmental responsibilities. And so, when they make their public appearances, what are they going to talk about, and more importantly, will they be upstaged by the regular ministers in their particular fields?

The problem was quick to show.

Some of the regular ministers just about knew where their new offices were before they were making public statements.

Health minister Dick Potter was quickest off the mark—at the tip. He gave an interview in which he proposed the government health plan should pay 70 per cent of doctors' fees.

Then Education Minister Tom Wells made quick ink with a statement that separate and public schools should work more closely together on facilities.

Even Jim Snow, minister of energy, works, a department which normally doesn't make much news, was able to announce that for the first time liquor would legally be served in the legislature Dining Room.

So where was Bob Welch, the secretary for social development policy, which covers both health and education? Sitting in his office with nothing to say.

For what could he say?

How complicated the situation may become was illustrated when Alan Lawrence, one of the super-ministers, gave a news conference.

Mr. Lawrence reportedly said that legislation would be introduced at the next session dealing with Sunday work laws. He was definite.

That same evening Premier William Davis had to issue a denial.

He said that as yet there was no positive government policy on Sunday laws. Then Mr. Law rence made a quick retraction.

In this case it appeared that Mr. Lawrence, a man who likes publicity, was taking an opening for some. Yet on Sunday laws the obvious man to speak would have been Dalton Bales, the new attorney general.

Is a man such as Mr. Lawrence going to be content to stay quiet? Will the under-ministers let the super-ministers make the announcements? Will there be continuing confusion and will Premier Davis be on a continuing rescue mission?

For those interested in "in" politics it promises to be a fascinating situation to watch.

Union Demands, Inflation And The Economy of the Country

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As a member of the so-called permissive society, a few questions, every once in a while, rise to the top of my mind. Right now the number one question is: who is running our country? I have been thinking up to now, that is, that the Liberal Government in Ottawa elected by the people for the people, was in power. I don't think that is right any more. I think it is organized labor which has the power and is using it ruthlessly to the detriment of the economy of this country. The most peculiar part of the whole deal is that the money collected by the unions, for the most part, finishes in foreign and defence fees, is sent to the United States.

I have read letters from various labor leaders in which they relate the idea that organized labor is responsible for spiraling costs to the consumer. This is how I read it: A union calls a strike;the men walk out; days, weeks and months are spent in arbitration which is a severe financial loss to most companies and to the strikers themselves. Finally a settlement is made. The men come back to work at a higher wage and the employer says, "I have to pay more wages so therefore the product which I manufacture will cost the consumer X more dollars. The whole of the spiel is then shopping and finds all the prices jacked up, so the extra money gained by the strike is spent on higher-priced consumer goods. Another point is that if the goods manufactured in Canada cost too much to buy, other countries who import Canadian goods are going to buy where they get the cheaper. It is a vicious circle which leads to unemployment and real hardship for those who are on fixed incomes. I think the unions are cutting the working man's throat.

I am not against unions. They have their place but I think they have long since forgotten where that place is.

Christian Outlook

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

One of the most interesting programs on CJBQ is the daily talk on the Christian ethic by consecrated and educated men. Many of us (lay people) greatly enjoy it. One speaker very aptly explained that Christianity should not be condemned before it is actually tried.

Perhaps the question of morals one can hardly improve on the rules laid down in the Bible. The argument that every person should have his own standard would simply not work. Without any law or social approval it would end in anarchy and chaos. The selfish ones would impose on others.

On the open line program recently a guest speaker invited the public to air their views on faith and morals. One lady called to contended that Christians are the happiest people on earth. She made a good point. Obviously she was talking about certain believers and individuals. The speaker did not agree with her, he claimed that all other people are just as happy. These are personal opinions unless one can substantiate such claims there is little use in speculating.

The lady could have encountered the following facts: People of other faiths, especially Moslems, are never truly happy, partly because their religion is based on fear rather than on love. And because they have no real hope for another life after this one, they are perplexed when overtaken by sickness or old age."

This is different with a Christian who believes the promises of Christ: "In my Father's house are many mansions, I go and prepare a place for you". John 14, 2,3. Such words in the Bible have a meaning for the believer. Paul would refer to the writings of Paul: "We know that if our earthly house is dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens" 2 cor. 5:1.

A believer with solid faith and morals is better equipped to meet any crises in this life and with confidence he can look forward to another.

Christ really knew His aim when He asked His followers to take the gospel to "all Nations."

Trucks Could Not Make It

Mailman Replies to Critic

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The Belleville letter carriers get one day off (the first day of since letter carrier service was inaugurated in Belleville) and we have Johnny Canuck on our backs. Do I detect a note of jealousy?

Many people think the postman does it all by the Post Office, pick up the mail for his route, and deliver it. This is not true. The letter carriers' job is to sort the mail for his route, tie it up, put it into bags, and have it sent out by truck to the town boxes you may have seven or on many corner's around Belleville, then deliver it. Friday morning the truck drivers could not make it in to work, maybe they are eligible to some but if the mail does not get out of

If Johnny Canuck is worried about his frozen lawn being ruined by salt, maybe he and the Post Office will keep his mailman off his lawn. I can guarantee that!

South African Girls Entertain Rotary

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

When it comes to the color of your skin in South Africa, it seems there is a certain amount of mutual envy among the country's varying racial groups.

For instance when Belleville Rotarians were shown a picture of a native group Monday, it was explained that a young woman with lighter skin than her companions used a cream which has this effect (a recent article on South Africa in the National Geographic, incidentally, showed an advertisement for the cream).

South African high school students Dale Lumley and Sonja Johnson mentioned the cosmetic and its purpose in a talk they illustrated with slides at Rotary and noted that the blacks are amused by whites who spend time acquiring a sun tan.

Miss Lumley, assured and articulate, was first to speak and she charmed the audience with her knowledgeable discourse and with her mellifluous, slightly sing-song accent. She is short and dark. Miss Johnson, a shade taller and blonde, is an ingenuous young woman with a whimsical air who also impressed Rotarians with her grasp of the affairs and customs of her country's multi-faceted society.

Presenting the 17-year-olds with red roses for St. Valentine's Day, Rotary president Bill McPherson said they had set a high standard for the two Belleville youths going to South Africa on the Rotary exchange in August, and who have yet to be chosen.

The girls showed pictures of their homes, families, schools and fellow students and also devoted a considerable portion of their presentation to the native people of South Africa. Semi-autonomous homelands for the various tribal groups are being developed, but while they make their own decisions Miss Johnson said they are subject to ratification by the white government.

When an African marries he needs to have a few cattle as evidence of means and the outdoor ceremony may go on for a couple of days.

At Christmas time Africans dress in their best western clothes to come to town; some may carry an umbrella, a necessary protection against the occasionally rainy elements, but also a status symbol, although in this regard the transistor radio is more the "in" thing now.

Students in South Africa wear uniforms. At the boarding school Miss Lumley attends they have a summer and a winter uniform, although she said "there is not much difference between the seasons". In the afternoon, casual clothes are permitted. The girls get together and chat in their dormitories before bedtime and lights out "there's quite a bit of discipline," said Miss Lumley.

Both girls said they thought snow, which they saw here for the first time, was "super," but Miss Johnson confessed she had never been so cold here as she was at home in Newcastle, in the Zululand region of Natal. The wind whips down in winter from the Drakensberg mountains and it can reach freezing point.

The girls showed pictures of Durban, which is some 70 miles south of where they live, including scenes of the famous Indian market. Byer. Miss Johnson pointed out that there is a lot of drug peddling, including hard drugs such as heroin.

There were scenes, too, of Capetown and Table Mountain and the city's Groote Schuur hospital, where Professor Christiaan Barnard performed the world's first heart transplant operation.

The country's exotic floral and plant life, as well as its varied wildlife, were also shown by the girls who are spending a year in Belleville as students of Belleville Collegiate.

Rotary's science fair and hobby show is being held this year on April 14-15. Four winners from the Belleville event will compete in the Canada-wide science fair in Sarnia May 9-13.

Local Realtors At Convention

TORONTO — A delegation of members of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board is attending the three-day convention of its parent body, The Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards, being held here at the Royal York Hotel.

The delegation, led by president Gerald Joyce and secretary Ken Burkett, has been participating in a variety of panel and group discussions which began on Monday and are slated to wind up tomorrow.

Cherry Cheesecake Pie A Favorite

By ALICE DENHOFF

CHERRY CHEESECAKE PIE

¾ pound cream cheese
½ cup sugar
3 eggs, separated
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
½ teaspoon pure almond extract
9-inch graham cracker pie shell
Cherry Topping (recipe follows)

Blend together cream cheese and sugar using a spoon or electric mixer. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored; stir into cheese mixture along with vanilla and almond extracts. Beat egg whites until they stand in soft, stiff peaks. Fold into the filling. Pour into a chilled graham cracker pie shell. Bake at 325 F. for 40 minutes or until firm over the top. Cool and spread with topping. Let stand at least one hour for glaze to set.

CHERRY TOPPING

1 can (1 pound 4 ounces) red sour pitted cherries.
¾ cup sugar
½ tsp. ground mace
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 berry basket
1½ teaspoons pure vanilla extract
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Drain cherries and reserve one cup of the juice. Mix sugar, mace and cornstarch in a saucepan. Heat egg whites until they stand in soft, stiff peaks. Bring to boiling point, reduce heat and stir and cook seven minutes over moderate heat. Add drained cherries, vanilla extract and lemon juice. Cool to room temperature; spread over pie.

OLD FASHIONED DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

1 cup sugar
1 cup water
4 squares unsweetened chocolate
2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
⅝ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
1 cup butter or margarine, softened
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
3 eggs, unbeaten
½ cup buttermilk or sour milk
Vanilla Butter Cream Frosting

In a medium saucepan, combine first three ingredients; cook over low heat until chocolate is thoroughly melted and the mixture is smooth, stirring frequently to prevent scorching. Cool. Mix next 5 ingredients; set aside. Cream butter with next 2 ingredients until fluffy. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Stir in ¼ cup flour mixture. Blend in cooled chocolate mixture. Add remaining flour alternately with milk. Beat batter one-half minute.

Turn into two well-greased, lightly floured, round nine-inch cake pans. Bake at 375 F. 30 minutes or until done. Cool in pans 10 minutes. Turn out onto wire racks to finish cooling.

VANILLA BUTTER CREAM FROSTING

2-3 cup milk
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup butter or margarine, softened
1-3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
Green food coloring, optional

In a small saucepan combine milk with flour; blend well. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Cool thoroughly. In a small mixing bowl, cream butter with sugar and vanilla extract until light and fluffy. Gradually add cooled milk mixture; beat until light and creamy. If desired, color with green food coloring. Makes about 1½ cups.

Strome opened the meeting, the secretarial report was given by Mrs. William Murray; monthly bulletin read by the president and the treasurer's report given by Mrs. Mary Parisek.

A business period followed. The evening message was delivered by Mrs. Knowlton Wright.

Following the meeting, the ladies gathered in the auditorium where refreshments were served.

Ann Landers

Wife Objects to Dancing Partners

Dear Ann Landers: Our fraternal organization has a dinner-dance every other month. We have a problem with four or five husbands who can't dance, won't dance, or are recovering from a prostate operation or a slipped disc and shouldn't dance.

The wives of these men seem to think it's perfectly all right to ask other men to dance with them—which of course means the man's wife is left sitting.

Last night I sat out five dances because women came over and asked my husband to dance. When I told Harry I didn't care for that kind of an evening, he said: "That's the way the cookie crumbles." Isn't it a husband's duty to see to it that his wife has a good time rather than some other female? —Hopping Mad

Dear Hopping: That train runs both ways, honey. Your husband apparently enjoys dancing with these dames so you might as well be gracious about it. Who knows when Harry will be the ruptured duck and you'll want to borrow a husband?

Dear Ann Landers: My son has had stomach trouble since he was nine years old. Roy is 16 now and it has gotten progressively worse. Maybe hypnotism is the answer. Medical doctors haven't done him one bit of good. The poor kid has been through every test imaginable and has tried all kinds of medicine and diets. It's a known fact that people who are sensitive and conscientious are susceptible to stomach trouble. If they could be made to relax, couldn't that be the key?

How do I find a hypnotist who is qualified for medical treatment? How much do they charge? —Andes

Dear Andes: I'm not about to guide you to a hypnotist for stomach trouble. Didn't one of those medical doctors suggest that perhaps the boy has an emotional problem? If not, I am suggesting it. Now you can take it from there.

Dear Ann Landers: You've said in your column repeatedly that a married couple should not live with their in-laws, nor should they live next door to them if they can help it. I al-

Club Activities

FRANKFORD — The Frankford Senior Citizens met to play cards at the Linn's Grotto on Wednesday afternoon with five tables in play. It was decided there would be a potluck supper Feb. 23 at 6 p.m., followed by a program. All senior citizens are welcome.

Winners in the card games were: Kathleen Macauley, Laura Burkitt, Charles Cook and Carman Frost. Mrs. Della Revoy won the door prize.

The next card game will be Feb. 16.

ways respected your advice but my husband and I decided that since his parents were so great we could be the exception to the rule. We bought a home next door to his folks.

The problem isn't the in-laws, it's my husband's spoiled-rotten teen-age sister. She is a screaming, loud-mouthed brat who runs in and out of our home whenever she feels like it. She borrows money from my husband and clothes from me. More than once I've bought for something I wanted to wear and then remembered that my sister-in-law took it.

Whenever we go anywhere she invites herself along. My husband doesn't like it any more than I do but he's afraid to say no to her. Frankly, so am I. This monster has us all intimidated by her big mouth. She is so vicious I am scared to death of being attacked by her. Don't tell us to sell the house. We can't for financial reasons. What else can you suggest?—Stymied

Dear Sty: Medical science has devised methods for transplanting corneas, kidneys, teeth and hair—but to date I have not heard of a backbone transplant. You and your husband must somehow free yourself from the girl's clutches and take command of the situation. I suggest you start by laying down some rules. No more borrowing. No more running in and out of your house. No more attaching herself to you without invitation. If she screams, ignore her. Together you two should be able to regain control of your own lives. If you can't, I feel sorry for you.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Must a wife avoid 'sore' topics?

ONLY when they are in the company of others, a wife might avoid certain topics of conversation that get under her husband's skin. The same goes for him with things that make her mad at their mere mention. When they are by themselves, though, a wife, if the occasion demands it, ought to be able to bring up any fact, even if it adgers her husband. They should be secure enough to discuss as adults any point of mutual interest.

Is an egotist overly self-confident?

NO. If he were just being too self-confident, even an egotist wouldn't get on everyone's nerves, since no one objects to someone else's being sure of himself. Usually, an out-and-out egotist, though, is so self-assertive and so aggressive that he makes it clear that he is trying to cover up a true assessment of himself; one that he is not only trying to keep hidden from everyone else, but also something he is trying to keep from himself.

Does TV distort time for a tot?

YES, although TV is not entirely to blame. Many parents will park their child in front of the tube for hours just to keep him amused. Stories that he watches, commercials, animated features that compress time for the child. So much is accomplished in even the brief net viewing time between commercials, that the young viewer seems to be impatient with the long interval between real events in his own day.

Council Secretary Addresses UCW Presbyterial

An air of celebration pervaded King Street United Church Women as members of Belleville Presbyterial met for the annual meeting.

Greetings and a welcome to everyone were given by Mrs. V. Lewis, president of King Street United Church Women and by Mrs. C. Thompson who is the Conference UCW in the absence of the president Mrs. Sedgel. Mrs. Thompson also announced several future events including the UCW Conference Annual on April 10, in Queen Street United Church, Lindsay with leader Dr. Parker of Queen's and the UCW school at Quin-Mo-Lac, Sept 8, 9 and 10 with guest speaker at that time Miss Harriett Christie.

Dealing with UCW literature, Mrs. Guy Hoyeke and Mrs. C. Kells gave a most comprehensive account of their many books for study.

Mrs. L. Hagerman led in a lively hymn sing using the hymns from the new hymn book.

The guest speaker Dr. E. E. Long who has spent many years in the ecumenical work of the World Council of Churches and has visited refugee camps in all parts of the world, was introduced by Mrs. Jeanne Williams.

In opening, the speaker said "We cannot be intelligent Christians unless we realize how utterly different our world is from much of the rest of the world. Today the lines of communication run north and south, from our northern land to Asia, Africa and Latin America. During the past 30 years there have been 53 wars in most of these countries where there is 80 per cent of the world's population.

Dr. Long told of he and his wife travelling along the border of Angola (which they were not permitted to enter) and having seen half a million refugees. The refugees keep in touch with the outside world by carrying transistor radios and find out the benefits of an affluent society which in turn makes them resentful and restless, thus the tendency to revolution. Dr. Long also predicted that these years will be the angry 70s as the revolution of expectation takes place.

In conclusion Dr. Long felt that as members of the church something should be done to alleviate some of the horrible conditions especially in Bangla Desh and Johannesburg.

As general council secretary Dr. Long answered a number of questions on such vital topics as the stabilization fund, the United Church investments abortion and the cost of administering relief.

Thomasburg UCW led in the worship service for the afternoon with stewardship as the theme and this was further emphasized by six members who took part by dedicating the following articles: A needle, a Bible, bread, a coin and flowers. Taking part were B. Savarns, M. J. Rollins, J. Morton, M. Emmons, A. Ketchenson and M. Foster.

Mrs. C. Smith, chairman of the finance committee brought a recommendation that $200. of the Presbyterial surplus be donated with $220 to the Journey fund and $250 to the Jay foundation. This recommendation was lost and a motion from the floor to split the amount three ways, among the lay foundation, bursary and M and S. fund was carried.

The afternoon feature which was prepared by Mrs. Fern Weaver and Joan Bush was entitled "Are You an Inner or an Outer." This consisted of a Dear Abby cast with Joan Bush as Abby and a large number submitting their problems. A skit of women packing a bale was enacted with mention m a d e of places to send used clothing when the overseas depot closes. These are: the Fred Victor Mission, community projects. Many valid points were emphasized in this presentation which ended with the thought "get involved, let's all be inners."

Rev. R. Bowering presided of the Belleville Presbytery brought greetings from Presbytery and installed the officers for the coming year.

Admiration for Leader

Members of the 7th Brownie Salvation Army Pack gather around Miss Mary Townsend their leader, to admire her recently received bar for 20 years of continuous service in Girl Guides.—This particular group meets every Tuesday afternoon at 4.30 at the Salvation Army Citadel. Division Commissioner T. R. Colden presented the bar to Miss Townsend at a special ceremony held Sunday.

The Experts Say

Local Utility Standards Necessary

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Almost anyone can make electrical things work, more or less.

That's where the trouble often starts, says John Van Tuack.

"Someone builds a receptacle room and strings lamp cord in a wooden mall, and it may work all right. Someone taking over the house will plug in a freezer, that takes 15 amperes, and the wiring gets hot. Eventually the insulation dries and burns off and you get a fire."

Mr. Van Tuack is an electrician who teaches high school students and night classes at Northern secondary school. He says there are some electrical chores a layman can do for himself if he knows enough about them, but that he has grown cynical about how much some do-it-yourself enthusiasts do know.

"Probably the most important rule is don't do wiring in your house unless you can do it to meet local utility standards.

"If you are changing a plug on an appliance, make sure none of the bare wires is touching anything it shouldn't, because the metal can get alive to ground. There is nothing in a two-prong plug to ground it or blow a fuse, and if you touched it with wet hands or a metal fork, that's the end."

Mr. Tuack says most modern appliances are next to impossible for an amateur to repair. Often special tools are necessary to take them apart and put them together. Part replacements must be exactly the same, and can be a problem to get.

"On motorized appliances such as vacuums and floor in a steam iron, it is to prevent buildup from the minerals in tap water that can clog steam holes.

If wires, plugs or motors polishers that only need new brushes, you probably can do it yourself.

"You probably can lubricate appliances yourself, but the common problem is overlubrication. People put too much oil on and it gets into the motor, may deteriorate the insulation, get into starting connections and act as a dust collector."

He says one way to avoid problems is to follow manufacturers' instructions on installation and use of appliances. For instance, in some cases a special lubricant is necessary, oil won't do.

Keep appliances clean. For example, if instructions tell you to use only distilled water feel hot to the touch, you may have a problem.

"We used to say if you can't hold your hand on a motor frame for more than 10 seconds then it's too hot. Insulation is improving, so that's not always true now, but it's a good rule of thumb."

You should not, of course, overload a circuit by plugging too many appliances or anything else into it. Mr. Tuack says many new houses have separate fuses for each appliance receptacle but old houses may not.

Successful Living

You Should Welcome Your Teen's Friends

By DORIS CLARK

Have you ever heard a mother say to her son or daughter, "It seems as though you'd rather be with your friends than stay home with us". This, of course, is in the tone of a complaint.

Yet it is a good sign. If your adolescent is turning from parental authority to an interest in his peer group, it is a sign of partial independence.

It is also the beginning of growing up and setting the stage for a far better kind of relationship with the parents—the kind which means that one adult — a very young one — still, before too long, establish another kind of relationship with his parents: The relationship of friend to friend.

Don't be jealous of your son's or daughter's friends. Welcome them to your home. Don't be shocked at their talk. Laugh with them.

Dear Doris: I am doing a project on dating etiquette for my health class. Any information you could give me would be greatly appreciated.

Could you please send me examples of questions people have asked you on etiquette and dating? —Not Hep.

Dear Not: You'd be surprised. One young lady said: "Please give me your definition of a perfect lady. And please hurry. I need the information by Saturday night."

But some of the things I get again and again are like this: "Is it all right for a girl to telephone a boy from whom she hasn't heard lately? "Is it proper for her to write to him if he goes away?" "Does the girl take the boy a corsage on a Sadie Hawkins date and if so, what type of corsage?"

Both parents and young people are concerned about setting and sticking to curfews. And so they ought to be. I'm sending you my list of recommended books on "Sex and Dating."

And teen-agers, if you have a burning comment on any one of the above questions, get it in the mail to me in care of this paper.

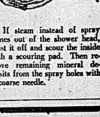
Dear Doris: I have a neighbor who is very lonely, a widow, and with children grown up and away. She would like to take a job; has held good secretarial posts in the past, but she is sure it would be hopeless for her to try to get a job at her age (50), and after having been so long out of the business world (10 years or more).



Is she wrong about this? She admires you and your work very much, but she would not write to you because she despairs about herself. I think. I could show her your reply — only if it were favorable, of course. —

* If you could give her any help and confidence you would be doing a wonderful thing. — How Are Chances?

Dear How: Then here it is: She has every right to confidence. Things change fast, but not that fast, and a woman 50 has many useful and satisfying years ahead. Employers like the steadiness of mature workers.

She needs to brush up: rent a typewriter, or better still, get to a business college or community college to learn about tape recorder dictation, electric typewriters and other ultra modern computer

Seven Men Sought After Fishing Boat Sinks

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — A combined ground, sea and air search of the shoreline along the southeastern tip of Cape Breton Island began at first light today for seven men missing and presumed dead after their fishing vessel went aground and broke up in heavy seas early Tuesday.

RCMP officers and volunteers began a ground search for the crew members of the 86-foot stern-trawler Gulf Gull.

The coast guard ship Narwhal was in the area and a helicopter left the Canadian Forces base at Shearwater, N.S., to join the search.

Police said only Captain Joseph Domdrés of Halifax and crew member Danny Burns, 19, of New Waterford, N.S., were picking up or delivering money, believed to have survived the wreck.

The two men swam about 30 feet to shore through freezing waire and then walked to the nearest community. They were fering from exposure.

Among the missing is Burns' brother, Ernie, 17. Names of the other crew members have not been released by police.

Fishermen from the nearby villages of Main-à-Dieu and Caribou used floodlights to aid police in a search of dense woods along the shoreline near the site of the grounding.

A Canadian Forces aircraft made a brief search of the area late Tuesday afternoon, but did not spot any other survivors.

Mr. Burns said he jumped overboard after watching five crew members washed over the side by waves. He said he had been asleep but came on deck with the other men after the vessel grounded in Main-a-Dieu Passage about 3 a.m.

"I jumped overboard and swam to shore," he said in an interview. "It was freezing. I was in the water five minutes and, when I got out I was numb ... I couldn't even see straight."

His 17-year-old brother, Ernie, was standing on deck next to him. "But I don't know what happened to him."

After reaching shore, he said he went for help but became lost in the woods. At 4 p.m. he finally reached the home of Alex Burke in Baleine, about two miles from Louisbourg. He and the captain then walked several miles to the nearest telephone and called police.

Bank Robbed of $25,000

SCOTLAND, Ont. (CP) — One person was being held for questioning and another was being sought by provincial police Tuesday night following a robbery of about $25,000 from a Royal Bank of Canada branch here.

Det.-Sgt. Donald Weston of the Burlington district headquarters, said the man being held for questioning was picked up "outside Hamilton on Highway 403 in a taxi cab."

"We have recovered a fairly large amount of money," he added.

The robbery occurred in this community, about 10 miles south of Brantford, where two men apparently carrying sawed-off shotguns entered the bank when three employees, three customers and child were present. No shots were fired.

Police said they were able to obtain good descriptions of the two men.

They also said that a Brinks truck had been at the bank shortly before the robbery, but it was not known whether it was picking up or delivering money.

What The Stars Say

Thursday, February 17
By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Useful, fairly confidential information should be put to use toward getting an edge on your career effort. Neglected correspondence may have something of considerable importance waiting attention.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Friends are full of impractical schemes. Use common sense, draw your own definite pattern, then stick to it.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Be willing to try new activities, a fresh environment. Make an effort to recover whatever you've lent, collect funds you're entitled to.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Dispose of any legal question. Your powers of persuasion are at a high, should be used diligently if you have something to sell.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Success today depends on your personal responsibilities, how will you carry them. Decide early on your program; schedule peak activity as late as feasible.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get everybody talking, listen for what is left out, ask questions. The earlier you request anything you want, the better. Introductions, sharing of hobbies are strongly favored.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Getting the sense of a deal quickly and settling for reasonable terms promptly makes all the difference. Make up your mind and go ahead.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A positive approach speeds career efforts. You can bypass some corners for the moment on today's deals.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec 21): Discretion is suddenly crucial where any intrigue is going on. Survey your home for safety conditions, protect cherished objects from visitors who have no idea of the worth you place on them.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): New business, creative endeavors are favored, even where you may suspend something that should be soon finished. Positive attitudes, asking others to participate helps resolve any inconveniences.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your expertise is in demand. Reconcile the many demands for your attention; give a fair share to all that serve your purpose, let the others wait.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep a tight discipline over spending as you go about making friends and doing social favors. Fresh business contacts, however, will require small investments for public relations.

Time's Toll

Sexual Drive Just Normal Among Most Young People

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am frantic with worry. My son is 13 and has always been a good boy, popular with others and intelligent.

Lately he has grown quieter and was caught masturbating. My husband talked to him and we thought it was stopped.

We now have been told that he was seen doing it again. The first time he admitted it, but the second time he denies it, saying he knows better.

Is something wrong with him? Should I take him to a psychiatrist? But even as I write this, I wonder, because he seems so normal in every other way. Do most boys go through this phase? — Mrs. R. L. S.

I've had other letters similar to yours, some almost as panicky as yours, and have tried to answer them quietly and circumspectly. But mothers, and grandmothers, and aunts, and even nosy neighbors keep on suggesting some "cure" for masturbation.

Take the boy to a psychiatrist? No. The people who needed a psychiatrist were the ones who, many years ago, started all the blather about masturbation being such a terrible thing.

Masturbation is the result of the sexual drive that is built into most young people, and I doubt that there's a normal boy who hasn't experienced it. Maybe a few—but mighty few.

For whatever reason, however, a folklore grew up around masturbation, and kids were bombarded with hair-raising threats that it would "cause insanity," "ruin your health," and all manner of such hokum.

No doubt there are some youngsters who become abnormally obsessed with sex, which is very bad, but the awful-awful things that are supposed to result from masturbation are a lot of hooey. Certainly societies and youngsters worry in their early teens. These awful-awful things don't happen to them—so why do masturbation cause any such things? The answer is that it doesn't.

However, the idea that masturbation is "sinful" and "bad for health" has been ingrained so often that quite a few people believe it.

The mental turmoil such warnings create in young people, and the feeling of guilt that are insulted are probably the biggest danger related to masturbation—not the act itself, but the mental misery.

Nearly every active youngster who is interested in sports, hobbies or any of the normal activities of youth isn't likely to indulge in masturbation to a degree that is going to harm him.

So, no, don't take this boy to a psychiatrist. Don't lecture him. Don't fret about him. You say he's a good boy and intelligent. So just let him be.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My baby is three months old and has had three DPT shots. The first was fine but with the two succeeding shots an external bump developed and then receded to an inner lump.

Her doctor says she may always have these internal lumps but they are harmless. Is he correct or do these lumps have anything to do with the leg nerves? Will she walk properly? — Mrs. M.S.C.

These lumps are not unusual, and can disappear with time. They do not involve any leg nerves and won't interfere with walking.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: We are motoring to Las Vegas, Nevada, and would like to know the prices of motels and meals while we are there and, also, a good route down.

ANSWER: Las Vegas is a spectacular, fantastic, incredible place and the most important, unexpected fact is that dollar for dollar Las Vegas is one of the best vacation buys in the United States. Neon turns the city into a glowing landscape and its lights sparkle against dark desert sky. Gambling is the name of the game there. The lavish hotels and motels are inexpensive and have superb entertainment, so you don't have to keep spending at tables. You can enjoy resort life in Las Vegas and not gamble, but the temptations are there. The lobby of your hotel, instead of having wall-to-wall carpeting and potted palms, will have roulette, blackjack and dice tables, surrounded by endless rows of slot machines meant to tempt the extra cash out of your pockets. The hotels will be lavish, the rooms large and the prices comparatively low. The average hotel room will cost about $20 double occupancy. But it is the entertainment that will really dazzle you. All the large hotels have cocktail lounges with their silent, almost illusionous shows that cost only the price of a drink.

Then there are the big rooms where you can see the super-stars like Dean Martin, Barbra Streisand, Elvis Presley, Glen Campbell and other notables for only the price of a dinner. This comes to about $12 a person and covers a drink, dinner, tips and the show.

Last year, Las Vegas had about 15-million visitors who did a bit of gambling, enjoyed the sun around the Olympic-sized pools, the saunas and good food. They liked the clean desert air and went sight seeing at Hoover Dam, and fished and boated on Lake Mead.

A good fast route down is to take 401 to Detroit, Interstate 75 to Dayton, Interstate 70 to St. Louis, Route 66 to Kingman, Ariz., and 93 from there.

QUESTION: I had my car damaged in a parking lot in Toronto but I didn't see who did it. Is there any way I can collect damages.

ANSWER: The second - worst thing in the whole world that can happen to a person is to have his car damaged on a parking lot. The worst thing in the world is proving who was responsible. All parking lots display those signs and issue tickets saying "We are not responsible for theft or damage to car and contents however caused", And that's exactly what they mean—parking lots are blameless. However, some of them will pay for damage caused through negligence of their own employees. The only thing you can do is check your car's condition when you park it and when you return. Look all valuables in the trunk. If you find something wrong file a notice of damage or theft with the lot attendant and telephone the owner's office.

In the downtown area of Toronto the parking lots are always crowded and expensive, usually about $1 an hour. The biggest bargain in Toronto is in the two-block area bounded by Bloor, Charles, Yonge and Church Streets. Parking there costs a modest 25 to 35 cents an hour. If you're just going to park for a few hours look for the big green P indicating a Toronto Parking Authority lot.. If you're downtown all day park at a private lot, they're cheaper in the long run.

Batteries, like tires, begin to wear from the moment they are put into service. Some batteries are still doing a fine job after several years, while others last less than a year.

Time, more than mileage is the battery's enemy: the life of a battery can be reduced considerably if the car is not driven enough to keep it fully charged. On cars which see regular highway driving with mileage climbing rapidly, the battery may well be strong at 100,0"

Zero degrees the battery drops to almost half its normal capacity. If the battery plates are half worn away, the reserve power is reduced to one quarter as the engine is started at zero temperature. If the engine then fails to start [illegible] with no reserve, the battery goes completely flat.

MRS. BERNICE MALLEY, 200 East College Street, Belleville, COMES MAXI DISCOUNTING AT LOBLAWS AND SHE COMES OUT AHEAD.

"I like the store . . . I like the people who work here, they're so friendly and pleasant—and I like those MAXI DISCOUNT prices", says Mrs. Malley. "Really, if you've shopped Loblaws for a long time like I have, you can't help but notice the difference these MAXI DISCOUNT prices make. I do my main shopping every ten days and I'm saving $6 or $7—sometimes more—compared to what I was paying for the same size orders before". Mrs. Malley, who shops for a family of seven, is also impressed with Loblaws food quality. As she says, "The meat here is especially good—it's really good quality—and the produce is always nice and fresh. Loblaws have dropped their prices—but their quality is still perfect as far as I'm concerned".

Man Who Says He Is Counterspy Faces English Fraud Charges

OTTAWA (CP) — Jonathan Wearn, who allegedly sold a Danish girl in the Middle East to raise air fare to Canada, will be deported to England Thursday to face charges of theft and passport fraud.

A refused immigration department Tuesday night said Wearn, who claimed to be Janet Seebag-Montifiore, a Russian-trained counterspy, has withdrawn his appeal against deportation.

It was to be heard in Montreal Friday.

Wearn, 28, has been held at Metro City since September, shortly after arrival in this country.

It took documents from three continents and a two-week visit to England by an immigration officer and a federal lawyer to establish that Wearn was Wearn and not Seebag Montifiore, a name similar to that of a wealthy London family.

In the meantime, Susan Wagner, a Danish blonde who said she had left her husband for Wearn, said in a newspaper interview that Wearn sold her to a Beirut restaurateur to raise the price of an airline ticket to Canada.

Wearn said here that Arab terrorists regarded him as an Israeli spy, raped Miss Wagner before his eyes, and forced him to flee.

He said a friend at the British embassy in Beirut gave him a passport under the name Jones than Wearn and helped him get to Canada.

He told an immigration officer that he was really Seebag-Montifiore, a Czech-born Jew trained in Russia for a career as a spy in the United States.

Wearn said the CIA in the U.S. arrested him after his arrival in Salt Lake City and turned him into a counterspy, sending him to a series of European and Middle East countries.

He alleged that Wearn was a dead British agent and that if he was reported by Canada in England as Wearn, he would be shuttled from country to country, a homeless man "caught in the crunch between two superpowers."

He asked for political asylum in Canada, claiming to be a doctor who could be of use here.

However, photographs, court records, passport records and affidavits from his mother, an aunt, a vicar and others have established his identity as Wearn, who has worked as a Mormon missionary and posed as a doctor.

As Wearn, he will be charged in England with falsifying a passport in 1969 by claiming to be a doctor. He also faces charges of theft of articles from a house he rented in 1969.

In Denmark, where he worked at two hospitals—one as a physician, the other as a psychiatrist—he was arrested in early 1970 and later found guilty of forgery, theft and violation of the law on the practice of medicine.

Wearn's records in England show he was raised in Bournemouth, where he passed high school, worked in shops, then spent two years in the army before being discharged as permanently medically unfit.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♣	1NT	Pass	2NT
Pass	3NT

Opening lead—six of hearts.

A gambit, in chess consists of deliberately sacrificing a piece in order to gain an overall advantage.

Bridge has its gambits also. Declarer will sometimes sacrifice a trick in order to improve his chances of making the contract. The opportunity seldom arises, of course, but, when it does, declarer must be alert enough to seize it.

South failed to meet the challenge in this case where West led a heart against three no-trump. Declarer played low from dummy and won East's king with the ace. When he led a diamond, East took the ace and returned a heart. West very smartly permitted dummy's ten to win, thus putting an end to declarer's chances.

In desperation South tried a club finesse that succeeded, but it gave him only his eighth trick. When he then led a spade, East took the ace, returned a heart, and West cashed three hearts to put the contract down one.

South could have made the hand had he ducked the king of hearts at trick one and played the jack on the continuation at trick two. This would have cost him' a heart trick — he would have scored only one heart trick instead of two — but the trick he deliberately sacrificed would have come back with interest. He would have lost two heart tricks and two aces, but no more.

It is not difficult for declarer to determine that East, for his opening bid, has the two missing aces, and that West's lead was likely to be based on a five-card suit.

It follows from this that the opportunity to make two heart tricks ranks second in importance to the opportunity to make the contract. Refusing to win the king of hearts may appear to be self-injurious, but it is clearly the play called for by the circumstances.

Tomorrow: Handsome dividend.

Select Committee Told Nickel Surplus Bargaining Weapon

SUDBURY (CP) — A New Democratic Party member of the legislature has told a provincial committee the Sudbury district's characteristic "boom and bust economy" is tied to the International Nickel Co. of Canada's seeking a better position at the bargaining table.

Bud Germa, member for Sudbury, addressing the Ontario legislature's select committee on economic and cultural nationalism, said:

"There is certain evidence to support opinions that Inco's recently-built up nickel surplus was deliberately accumulated to gain advantage at the bargaining table."

Inco announced two weeks ago that it was going to lay off 2,220 workers to avoid a further build-up of inventories.

Mr. Germa told the committee, here to investigate the announced layoffs, that the company's actions were similar to measures taken by the company before it sat down to negotiate in 1958 and 1963.

He said between March and May, 1958, Inco laid off 1,120 men and cut the work week to eight hours to 31 hours.

This show of strength resulted in a three-month strike," he said.

Mr. Germa requested that:

"The provincial labor department investigate to what degree the present layoffs were designed to gain a bargaining advantage."

—Legislation be introduced which would require Inco to negotiate such cutbacks with the employees concerned.

Later, John McCreedy, Inco vice-president in charge of the Ontario division, said there was no intention to stockpile a surplus to use it as a club during contract negotiations in 1972.

He said the currently large surplus now on hand and the fact that hiring was continued up until the end of September despite the surplus was the result of overestimating market demands.

Committee chairman Russell Rowe, Progressive Conservative member for Northumberland, said the committee was in Sudbury to determine if a multi-national corporation behaved any differently than a Canadian corporation might.

Mr. McCreedy said Canadians hold 38 per cent of the company shares, U.S. residents 49 per cent, and the rest is held in countries such as the United Kingdom and France.

He said that the cutback decision was made in Canada.

Other witnesses, some of them union members, said they did not think a Canadian company under the present regulations would act any differently than a multi-national or foreign-owned corporation.

In another brief, Mayor Michael Solski of nearby Coniston said the closing of Inco's Coniston smelter, part of the cutback, will place the town's last base in jeopardy.

He said the town, on the eastern outskirts of Sudbury, has a population of 3,000 and depends on Inco for 75 per cent of its assessment.

Coniston Alderman John Rodrigues said that "in one fell swoop the company has created a collective welfare case" of the municipality.

Quebec Labor Flexes Muscle

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Federation of Labor has told the Canadian Labor Congress to keep its hands off the provincial body with regard to policies formulated in the context of Quebec developments.

There were even reports Tuesday that the QFL might boycott the biennial convention of the CLC in Ottawa in May.

The federation's general council, at a meeting this week, resolved to support CLC representatives in Quebec "who will continue to support, promote and disseminate the policies of the QFL adopted democratically at its convention."

The resolution was an apparent reply to Donald MacDonald, CLC president, who said Feb. 5 provincial labor federations are subordinate to the CLC and its policies, which deny any form of totalitarianism such as Marxism, Trotskyism or Maoism.

At the same time Mr. MacDonald denied published reports quoting him as saying at a private union meeting in Toronto that paid CLC organizers in Quebec would be fired if they pursue Marxist policies advocated by the QFL.

Andre Leclerc, responsible for QFL political action, said in an interview Tuesday that five of eight Quebec CLC organizers attended the Toronto meeting but that Mr. MacDonald did not specify what QFL policies he opposed.

Jean Beaudry, CLC vice-president, was to meet here today with Philippe Vaillancourt, Jeuty national director of the CLC who attended the closed-door meeting Monday of the QFL general council.

Louis Laberge, QFL president, is reported to have told the general council:

"This is not a declaration of war (against the CLC). We simply want to affirm our determination to be masters of our orientation in Quebec."

The council, made up of between 50 and 60 delegates from various regions of QFL-affiliated Quebec unions, is responsible for carrying out policy for the 230,000-member federation between conventions held every two years.

Its resolution said:

"Therefore, be it resolved that the general council give its full and total support to Quebec representatives of the CLC who will continue to support, promote and disseminate the policies of the QFL adopted democratically at its convention."

Poachers Kill Forty Geese

WATERLOO (CP) — Poachers clubbed to death about 40 geese and ducks in a park area here, police said Tuesday.

The raid occurred early Monday by persons who used a dog to capture and finish off wounded birds. Police Chief Harold Basse said. The dead birds were taken away in a truck.

The raid took place along the banks of an island near a feeding station in the park where the birds sleep in the open.

Paper Runs Cigarette Advertising

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia's ban on tobacco advertising was broken for the second time in two days today, when The Colonist carried the same five-column cigarette advertisement that was published Tuesday by the Victoria Times.

The Colonist is Victoria's morning paper. Both The Colonist and The Times are produced by Victoria Press Ltd.

Provincial Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, questioned Tuesday about the ad in The Times, said he would recommend to the provincial cabinet that no further government advertising be given to the newspaper.

Provincial laws prohibiting tobacco or liquor advertising came into effect last Sept. 1. Since that time, Mr. Underhill said, B.C. newspapers had refrained from such advertising. "observing laws which were hastily pushed through the B.C. legislature."

Mr. Peterson told reporters The Times was "performing a great public disservice" by running the Belmont ad.

UIC Office Sit-in Ended

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — RCMP and city police cleared protesters from the Canada Manpower Unemployment Insurance Commission office here Tuesday night. Only minor scuffles were reported.

The 65 men and women in the building at the time were taken by chartered bus to the police station about three blocks away but it was not immediately decided if charges would be laid.

About 200 demonstrators began a sit-in at the office Monday to protest delays in receiving unemployment benefits.

More protesters arrived at the office Tuesday but many left before police cleared the office.

About 25 policemen locked the main entrances to the building from the outside and entered the office from the rear, apparently surprising the demonstrators.

Those taking part in the sit-in were ushered in the waiting bus and driven to the police station. The operation took about 10 minutes.

Except for a few scuffles, the protesters left peacefully.

A group of people gathered near the building as police cleared the office but there was no demonstration outside.

School Board Bans Newspaper

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver school board has banned a high school newspaper containing a lengthy article on birth control.

The article is in the February edition of the Okanagan Standard, a student newspaper published by the Inter-High Students' Society.

Fred Rowell, chairman of student services for the board, said Tuesday the main arguments against the article were that it contained questionable advice on birth control methods and blunt medical terminology to describe the male and female sexual organs.

Mr. Rowell said the newspaper normally is distributed to schools with students in Grades 8 to 12, and sometimes grade 7, so that students as young as 13 would have access to it.

A member of the Standard publishing group said students defied the ban by circulating the paper on and off school property and only about 2,000 copies of a press run of 10,000 were not distributed.

Prison-bound Duo Escape

PICKERING, Ont. (CP) — Two prisoners escaped custody Tuesday while being transported from Windsor, Ont., to penitentiary at Kingston where they were to serve 14-year sentences for armed robbery.

Detective James Brown of Pickering Township Police said the pair, travelling in the rear seat of a car behind two unarmed provincial jail guards, made their escape after one of the prisoners reached forward and held an unidentified weapon against the throat of the guard who was driving.

He said they forced the guards to stop the vehicle at a service theatre near this community just west of Toronto, freed themselves of key rings, robbed one guard of $200 and then locked both in the trunk of the vehicle.

The escapees, identified by Det. Brown as Jean Lamy, 22, and Donald William Charette, 23, both of Montreal, abandoned the car after driving it only about 1½ miles.

Probe Requests Regulatory Body

TORONTO (CP) — Pollution Probe recommended Tuesday that the Ontario government establish a regulatory agency to oversee all sectors of the energy industry in the province.

The recommendation by the University of Toronto group was contained in its brief to a government-appointed committee studying all aspects of Ontario Hydro.

The brief says the recommended agency should have authority to consider all proposed major actions by Ontario Hydro and the authority to approve or reject them.

The brief questions Hydro's "apparent autonomy and the isolation of its decision-making process" from public reaction. It suggests that the Hydro advisory council be reactivated. The council, it says, has not met for 15 years.

Judge Unseats Four Thunder Bay Aldermen

THUNDER BAY (CP) — At least one alderman is washing his hands of city politics now that he and three other council members have been unseated by a court order.

District Court Judge W. T. Hollinger ruled Tuesday that the four "are not entitled to sit or to vote in the council of the corporation of the City of Thunder Bay by reasons of contracts entered by their companies with the corporation."

He ordered new elections to fill their seats on the 13-member council.

The four aldermen are Edgar LaPrade, who operates a sporting goods store; Hubert Baldasaf Jr., an automobile dealer; George Lovelady, a camera shop proprietor, and Tom Jones, a contractor.

The judge said although the four contravened a section of the Ontario Municipal Act, they "acted openly, in good faith and, I believe, honestly in what each considered to be the best interests of the municipality."

The case, heard last month, was initiated by local businessman Lloyd George Hurdon, who asked the judge for a declaratory judgment on whether the men were eligible to sit on council.

It was touched off by council's granting of a $278,000 contract for a municipal storage building to a firm operated by Mr. Jones.

Mr. Lovelady, who along with Mr. Jones had argued he met the provisions of the act by refraining from discussing or voting on tender bids from his company that came before council, said he was "hurt and terribly disappointed" by the decision.

"As far as I am concerned, this ends my political involvement in the City of Thunder Bay."

Mr. LaPrade, a former National Hockey League player with New York Rangers, declined comment "until after I study the judge's decision."

"At the present time, I am too upset and disturbed to say anything."

Judge Hollinger rejected a request by counsel to expand the scope of the proceedings to include other aldermen in his decision, adding that aldermen who are minor shareholders in companies doing business with the city should not be disqualified, since "absurd results" could follow if the act were strictly interpreted.

Stole Wallets Of Policemen

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Louis Spiers, 18, of Windsor, was placed on probation for one year Tuesday when convicted of stealing five wallets from Windsor policemen.

Court was told Spiers stole the wallets from a dressing room at the Windsor arena not knowing they belonged to the Windsor police hockey team.

The officers were playing hockey at the time of the theft.

The wallets were recovered later at the youth's home in one of the officers who lost his wallet.

Throne Speech Expected to Give Encouraging View of Future

OTTAWA (CP) — In a pre-election atmosphere, a new session of Parliament begins Thursday with an expected state-of-the-nation-type throne speech that will give Canadians an encouraging view of the future of their country.

The speech will also outline some of the legislation scheduled to come before Parliament — some of it new, some of it in the form of left-overs—which the government feels will bring Canada closer toward a just society.

With the opposition scenting an election, it could be a stormy parliamentary period ahead. But the government is not expected to aggravate the situation by introducing unnecessarily contentious bills.

Some of the more controversial bills left over from last session, including Labor Code amendments and a measure to regulate business competition, are unlikely to return in their former state, and probably not before the expected election.

The throne speech, which traditionally outlines legislation to come before Parliament, is expected to concentrate more on the state of Canada and hopes for its future. Some cabinet ministers are known to be annoyed that some of their pet projects are not being included in the speech, to be read by Governor-General Roland Michener.

The speech has been prepared within Prime Minister Trudeau's office, and sources say there has been less cabinet participation than in previous years. Ministers were asked to submit legislative programs they had in mind.

Mr. Trudeau, following a tendency begun in 1958, favors using the speech as a vehicle for an over-all government view of Canada, its problems and its hopes. Bills which, in the government's view, will make Canada a better place will be outlined.

One of these bills is almost certain to be the family income security plan, which would overhaul the present family allowance scheme. It is a carry-over from the current session.

The bill to control electronic eavesdropping likely will be back, an amended version of the controversial grains stabilization bill is expected to come before the new session, and there likely will be proposed tightened regulations governing investment.

Depending on the long-expected study of foreign ownership in Canada, there may be legislation to establish an agency to supervise foreign capital.

There also is speculation about a new super agency to control both broadcasting and telecommunication common carriers.

Some officials hope the new session will bring settlement with the provinces on a jurisdictional dispute over educational television.

A new neighborhood improvement program is expected to be featured in the speech since some of the details were made public several weeks ago.

The program, among other things, will involve neighborhoods directly in urban redevelopment, make more public housing units available on a purchased basis, and involve the provinces in broad new urban redevelopment projects.

A great deal of federal money would be involved if the proposals agree, sources say.

The Yukon mineral act, which would require Canadian participation in future mineral developments in the territory, is due to be reintroduced after a controversial start last year. A proposal to spread the financial burden, or profits, of northern power companies over specified districts also is expected back.

Officials say legislation dealing with young offenders is unlikely to return after a House committee reconsidered it, it overhauled.

But there are expected to be a series of studies on capital punishment, after a public opinion poll indicated 63 per cent of Canadians favor the death penalty.

No action is expected on abortion or divorce.

Ontario Farmers Seek Subsidies

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario farmers are asking the provincial government for subsidies and loans to enable them to maintain their competitive position in the face of recent government assistance to their counterparts in Quebec.

The Ontario Federation of Agriculture said in its annual brief to the provincial cabinet Tuesday that Ontario should match recently-announced subsidy programs by which Quebec will aid its turkey egg and hog producers.

The federation also asked that the province establish a low-interest loan scheme as an incentive for farmers to raise beef cattle and to tide over egg producers who have marketing problems.

Federation president Gordon Hill told a news conference after the presentation that the provincial cabinet had told the organization during the private meeting it did not wish to get involved in provincial subsidies.

While the federation generally is opposed in principle to provinces entering into subsidies for farm production, Mr. Hill said, the subsidies announced by Quebec producers forced the federation to ask for matching amounts so that Ontario farmers would not be at a competitive disadvantage.

Police Official Says Riding Crops Used to Protect Horses

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto policeman said Tuesday mounted officers of the Metropolitan Toronto police force were ordered during a demonstration Oct. 25 at the Ontario Science Centre where Russian Premier Alexei Kosygin was a guest.

Insp. Edwin Johnson, in charge of the mounted unit, said:

"It's the first case we've had where the people seemed unafraid to run up to the horses, grab the bridles and grab the policemen by the legs and swing at them with placards."

The inspector was testifying before Judge Anthony Vannini at a provincial inquiry into the demonstrations.

Tuesday's testimony also resulted in Judge Vannini ordering two CBC executives to produce television news film shot by network cameramen but not shown to the Canadian public.

Insp. Johnson said members of the mounted unit were forced to use riding crops to protect themselves and their horses.

He denied previous testimony by demonstrators that the police on horseback galloped into the crowd. He said there was a "wall of signs and people" and no room to gallop.

Knowlton Nash, director of information programming for CBC and Eugene Hallman, vice-president and general manager of the public-owned network's English service division, refused earlier to give the inquiry the film on a voluntary basis.

However, when Judge Vannini changed his request to an order, they complied "with a great deal of reluctance" and the footage was shown in the darkened courtroom a few minutes later.

It showed a clash between police and demonstrators near the science centre.

The free-minute color film was composed of "outs"—footage shot during the demonstration but not used by the CBC on subsequent news broadcasts.

"To ask now for what is called the 'outs'—what film which was not used in what was broadcast—represents what we feel amounts to an invasion of privacy of the news media," said Mr. Nash.

"It endangers the basic freedom of the press. Our concern is not so much with the substance or character of this film but rather with the fundamental principle involved."

He said requests such as that made by Judge Vannini "could well lead to intolerable censorship" and the CBC felt that it should "take every possible step to protect the public's interest by keeping journalism from this kind of surveillance."

Judge Vannini said later that while the CBC claimed journalistic privilege in objecting to the film's viewing, in the final analysis "the privilege fundamentally lies with the people of Canada and not with the editors of the CBC."

"To recognize the privacy and confidentiality of the news media in this inquiry would be to deprive the people of Canada of their right to view and to know what is recorded

Ex-prostitute Tells of Meeting Montreal Police Chief

MONTREAL (CP) — A former prostitute told a Quebec police commission inquiry Tuesday she met Police Chief Jacques Saulnier while he was drinking in a Montreal nightclub in 1963 or 1964.

The 32-year-old woman said that Mr. Saulnier spent two hours drinking and talking with a policeman and the owner of the establishment. She said she had seen Mr. Saulnier at the club "fairly often," about once a week or every 10 days.

The inquiry is investigating the conduct of Mr. Saulnier while he was in charge of the Montreal morality squad from 1963 to 1967.

At the request of her lawyer, the name of the witness was forbidden to be published "in her own interest" or her security initials and addresses which might be mentioned in her testimony.

She identified a friend as the second person mentioned in a prostitution chart drawn up by a former member of the morality squad, Roch Pichet.

He will be the first witness to be called when the inquiry resumes Thursday. The chart was admitted as evidence earlier Tuesday but only for identification purposes.

Mr. Pichet first brought the report out in 1965 during an investigation into his conduct by the police disciplinary committee. He was subsequently fired.

Before an in camera session took place, she said she met Chief Saulnier in his office on Dec. 14, 1965, following a search of her apartment. It was the first time she met him alone in his office, she said.

Mr. Saulnier questioned her about a notebook found in her apartment which contained names and phone numbers. The names also appeared on the chart, she said.

Judge Roger Gosselin ruled that the rest of her testimony would be given behind closed doors when she was asked if she ever had occasion to give a policeman information on prostitution.

It's A Banner Year for Beaver in Hastings

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

LINGHAM LAKE — It's a long way from the wintry glisten of this Hastings County headwater to the chic fashion salons of Europe.

And the roughest stretch is the last 15 miles.

For it's in such areas as this isolated pocket of Quinte backcountry that the glamor of keeping the well-to-do fashionably furred gets down to harsher human realities: Scouting the trapliners.

For the trapper, it's a task of matching muscle, luck and skill against the vagaries of nature conspiring with climate at its most intimidating — a Canadian winter.

Nonetheless, they're busier than ever in the bush this winter, harvesting what promises to be the best beaver catch ever, at the highest market prices in years.

It's a rare combination of circumstances and a rewarding one for Canada's oldest profession — the fur trapper.

"It's probably the best year ever on record in this district," says a Dept. of Lands and Forests conservation officer, on his way back from touring the traplines here in the heart of Grimsthorpe township.

And it seems certain the pelts won't pile up unsought.

Back in Belleville, a city furrier says the reason for the active demand lies across the Atlantic. Europeans are prosperous, and are stimulating a trade that sees their buyers calling the prices on the Canadian market.

"Europe is buying everything," he says.

A veteran fur buyer sees last winter's poor fur harvest, due partly to heavy winter, as a contributor.

But he agrees, Europe seems the main destination for the pelts.

If so, it's a happy case of history repeating itself, evoking the days when Canada was only a business in the wilderness — the fur trade.

Now, snowmobiling between their ice-bored lines here, the trappers of this area may be far removed in time and method from their commercial ancestors.

But their activities, particularly this winter of 1972, prove the centuries-old craft is alive and well — a historic business in which the Quinte area has more of a modern share than is realized.

For the environs of this lake — a source of the Moira River — has the highest concentration of beaver anywhere, says lands and forests conservation officer Garry Wright.

Today, in winter, the nearest road into here ends just east of Highway 62. Then, it's a 15-mile jaunt in by snowmobile for trappers or travellers.

The flattish, poplar-studded topography of Grimsthorpe, its ponds and creeks, have made it one of the more desolate townships in the district — devoid of settlement after the last lumber operations halted years ago. Unwinding to human habitation, it is, by contrast, ideal for beaver colonization.

"It probably has the best concentration of beaver in the world — there, and in Gerrish-boring Elzevir township," believes the conservation officer.

It's a Quinte claim to fame bordered on national renown that hitherto hasn't attracted much attention.

Nonetheless, to prove its factuality, Gary Wright notes:

In most townships there are only two or three trappers registered to harvest fur on Crown lands. In Grimsthorpe there are 12.

"So you can see there are a lot more trapping areas — but the trappers take a lot more, however. Elzevir is just about the same."

And this season, the beavers are moving in even greater numbers — for various reasons. Besides natural increase, there's the fact that last year brought an unprecedented trapping season. The beaver were three — but two the snow, a singularly bitter winter left the bush so densely coated with snow, travel was sharply impeded and the number of beavers trapped drastically. The total take in the Tweed forestry district last year was 9,000 — compared to slightly more than 16,000 for each of the two preceding winters.

"We'll hit over 20,000 (pelts) this year the way things are going," estimates Gary Wright as he talks results over with trappers in a lakeside cabin here. "There's been excellent travelling — and of course high prices (to encourage the trappers)."

Prices are a key factor — and have held up well on the trade's index — the regular Ontario Trappers' Association fur sales at North Bay.

The January sale saw beaver at a high of $44 and an average of $19.

Normally, $25-$30 for big, top-quality pelts was "figured a pretty fair price," says Vernon Davis, Selby fur buyer who has been in the trade for years. The average price once was around $12.

Even "those little wee fellahs" once considered hardly worth the trouble of trapping or trading since they brought a price of "one or two dollars" now are fetching five dollars, says Mr. Davis.

Furriers have just returned from a swing through the Bancroft - Plevna region where he'd just collected a total of 600 beaver skins, says he will "take all I can get."

Mr. Davis, who ships his purchases to Montreal, agrees the world market was "good." Europe appeared a major destination.

But the harvest which is keeping trappers on the move here has more than commercial aspects as far as the department is concerned.

There could be a vital conservation feature at stake, indicates Gary Wright.

Nature seemingly abhors imbalance and moves to rectify the scales. Thus, the beaver busy in the myriad of ponds nestling in the bush hereabouts, could create a fatal situation if they overly multiplied.

One of nature's indiscriminating control mechanisms is the blood disease, tularemia. (It's also contagious to other mammals including humans.)

When it hits the beaver population "it just wipes out everything," says the conservation officer.

The department's fears are not unprecedented. Tularemia struck once before — in the 1920s — he recalls and "There wasn't a beaver left in the county at all."

Such was the decimation beaver had to be brought from northern Ontario to restore the population.

"Even in the 1940s you might find one beaver house every 15 miles," he recalls.

Trapping depends on a number of variables — possibility, weather, the way the beaver themselves are breeding.

Depending on such intangibles, a trapper might spend two days in the bush scouting his lines, bringing out only where from 10 to 30 beaver. Another might return with two.

But, whatever the individual breaks, lands and forests officials in the area look forward to viewing this as a record year.

"Conditions," sums up conservation officer Ed. Shea at Tweed ranger station, "are ideal."

NDP Target to Be Opposition

"Our real objective is to become the opposition." This statement was made by Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party MP for Oshawa, who predicts a federal election sometime after June.

Mr. Broadbent was addressing a nomination meeting for Hastings and Prince Edward-Hastings ridings at the Kiwanis Centre in Belleville Tuesday night. He termed the Liberal government's economic policies over the past four years a "colossal failure", while delivering a 40-minute speech to 50 local NDP supporters.

Mr. Broadbent said the NDP, if runner-up, would grant the party forming the government "conditional acceptance" and then "stick by it". "We don't care which party we oppose. I don't see any difference between the Conservatives and Liberals."

In the event of a minority government situation such as occurred while Lester Pearson's Liberals were in power, he said the NDP "should try to maintain the government for, say, a two-year period without calling a motion of non-confidence. We should not go for the cabinet or for a coalition government."

Most of Mr. Broadbent's talk centred on Liberal economic policy. A top NDP labor expert, the Oshawa MP specializes in Canada's auto-pact agreement with the United States.

He criticized the government for not encouraging research and development in Canada, saying many young people are deprived of the creative possibilities such endeavors afford. "We all know where research in the auto industry is done," he said.

He also blamed the Trudeau government for its policy of promoting foreign investment in the resource section of the economy, rather than in the manufacturing end. "Which employs more?" he asked.

The petro-chemical industry was a good example of this type of "overwhelming inefficiency". Instead of exporting raw products from Canada's oil fields, the NDP would use the country's reserve of American dollars to buy back industry and bring it into Canadian hands.

Mr. Broadbent also attacked recent taxation changes, charging they served only the "corporate sector of society".

Trade unions, he said, need strengthening, with the remaining 65 per cent of the nation's labor force brought into the fold. "If the government would concern itself with regular workers, it would aim for this."

The Progressive Conservative party did not escape Mr. Broadbent's criticisms. He charged the PCs "do not take a stand on any issue. All they say is that the Liberals are bad or inefficient or incompetent or arrogant. They provide no alternative to Mr. Trudeau.

"No one can excel Robert Stanfield for coming down on both sides of an issue."

While conceding that the NDP "does not pretend to have privileged access to the truth," Mr. Broadbent feels only his party is concerned with "preserving Canada as a country." Careful economic planning, he said, would allow us to buy back industry while maintaining our current standard of living.

Reilly Retires -- For Time Being

The Quinte area's best-known NDP supporter, Ian Reilly, won't be running in a federal election this year but don't discount him for the future.

Mr. Reilly, 32, announced last week he would contest the nomination in Prince Edward — Hastings against Richard Lunn, Business commitments, however, forced a sudden shift in plans and he will confine himself to the role of local NDP chairman in the event Prime Minister Trudeau calls an election.

"I really enjoyed running against George Hees and Pauline Jewett in Northumberland in 1965," he said. "But whether the election was this spring or in the fall, I could not be a full-time candidate. I can't wait for a chance to challenge Richard Potter (Quinte MPP) in the next provincial election, though."

Mr. Reilly is an international representative with the Boot and Shoe Workers Union of the Canadian Labor Congress as well as president of the CLC's Hastings Labor Council Department. A convention in May and possible labor negotiations later in the year will keep him busy.

He will still act as campaign organizer for Edward Brettenner and Richard Lunn, contestants nominated Tuesday by the NDP to run in Hastings and Prince Edward - Hastings. "As chairman, I'll see that there is no deficit and that the candidates conduct themselves properly. They'll get their money's worth from us." The party, starting its campaign at an early date, hopes to spend between $5,000 and $10,000 on the two candidates.

Mr. Reilly feels both men have an equal chance for success. "We now have the ability to run a campaign here — the provincial election a little fall gave us a lot of experience — and we're getting progressively better."

One of his aims will be to give candidates more exposure than NDPers have had in the past. "We have to get our speakers to all functions and make our own platforms," he said.

Word Thursday On PUC Request

Belleville Public Utilities Commission will know by Thursday if approval for a $120,000 grant in the Ontario Water Resources Commission toward the city's $200,000, 1972 water facilities expansion program has been given.

The commission Tuesday morning revealed its request to the OWRC. It is seeking a 15 per cent grant to help pay for the new 2½-million-gallon ground level reservoir to be constructed near Harmony Avenue, plus a booster pumping station and 18 inch water mains to be connected to the new storage tank, now being designed.

The OWRC late last year, indicated it might pay $650,000 toward the project. However, it reversed this decision, and instructed the city to proceed with issuance of debentures to finance the construction.

Brethour, Lunn NDP Candidates

For the first time ever, the New Democratic Party has candidates to run in the federal ridings of Hastings and Prince Edward — Hastings.

A nomination meeting at the Kiwanis Centre in Belleville Tuesday night picked Elridge Brethour, 40, to compete in Hastings, and Richard Lunn, 45, to run in Prince Edward-Hastings in the pending federal election. Both have political experience. Mr. Brethour's father having been a CCF candidate in 1959 and Mr. Lunn a contestant in the Oct. 21 provincial election.

Their early start on the campaign trail should give them time to make their faces and issues known to voters, according to NDP chairman Ian Reilly. The party organizer had been expected to contest Mr. Lunn for the Prince Edward — Hastings nomination but withdrew at the last minute because of work commitments.

Mr. Brethour called for the support of all NDPers in accepting the onerous task of trying to unseat Conservative MP Lee Grills. Mr. Brethour, a Bancroft fuel oil distributor whose background includes a stint as a teamsters' union steward, said he would promote Canadianization of industry if elected. He was nominated by his father, Fred, a defeated CCF candidate in Hastings West 13 years ago.

Mr. Lunn, a resident of Hillier township, teaches journalism at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute and has written two English texts and with his wife, a history of Prince Edward County. He finished a distant third behind PC Charles Rollins and Liberal Rev. Ian Munro in Hastings riding during the recent provincial election. Only a token candidate at that time, he promises to make the coming election a full time effort.

Both men, conceding the difficulty of the chore facing him, said it was "possible, but not probable" he would win. "I'm not as pretty as George Hees (Conservative MP) or as well known as George Cassingham (Liberal candidate), but I can come close," he said.

Both men will have their own campaign agents although Ian Reilly, as chairman, will supervise funding and appearances.

Swap Silas

REGINA (CP) — Silas Mc-Leod, a veteran halfback with Saskatchewan Roughriders, has been traded to Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference for a veteran and one rookie players, the Western Conference team announced today.

The Roughriders received veteran John Reid, a six-foot-four, 220-pound centre, and rookie defensive backs Ivan Morten and Steve Clarke in the trade. Hamilton also got Saskatchewan's first choice in last week's Canadian college draft.

McKinzie, a six-foot-two, 210-pound halfback who joined the Roughriders four years ago, played out his option with the team last year.

Cahill Staying

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Leo Cahill, who directed Toronto Argonauts to their first Grey Cup game in 19 years, has signed a three-year contract with the Eastern Football Conference club.

The new contract replaces his one-year contract which had one year remaining. He had signed the four-year deal in 1968 after Argos finished in second place with a 9-5 record.

Cahill, who last year became the first Argonaut coach voted coach of the Year by the head coaches of the Canadian Football League, first joined Argos in 1967. Since then he has a 42-won-loss record in CFL scheduled play and a 5-5-1 playoff record.

He lost 14-11 to Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference in last year's Grey Cup game.

Dalla Riva Opts for Als

MONTREAL (CP) — Tight-end Peter Dalla Riva of Montreal Alouettes has signed a four-season contract — including a new contract for 1 a s t season — reported to be worth in excess of $80,000.

The Hamilton native played out his option in 1971 for 90 per cent of his 1970 salary contract but came to terms with the Alouettes finishers in the Eastern Football League's Eastern Conference.

Road Trip 'Crucial'

Bruins Win, Johnson Worries

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins have won 40 of their 57 games played so far this season in the National Hockey League, and tied nine. They also have a comfortable eight-point lead in the East Division over New York Rangers.

But coach Tom Johnson is still worried.

The Bruins dumped California Golden Seals 6-3 Tuesday night and extended their home unbeaten streak to 23 games. Why then is Johnson worried?

His team is embarking on a six-game road trip and that is what has the Boston coach uneasy. He considers that trip "crucial."

"You bet your life it is," Johnson said Tuesday night after his Bruins disposed of the Seals before the usual sellout crowd at the Boston Garden.

"New York is still close enough to run right up our backs and we can't afford to lose any hockey games right now," Johnson said. "There's still a way to go in this race."

New York apparently feels the same way too. The Rangers downed Vancouver Canucks 5-1 Tuesday night to stay within range of the Bruins. In another game, Chicago Black Hawks edged St. Louis Blues 3-2.

Defenceman Bobby Orr picked up four assists in the first period to lead the Bruins to their victory over the Seals. The victory moved the Bruins within five games of tying the NHL record for the longest home-ice unbeaten string. Montreal set the mark of 28 in the 1943-44 season.

"We aren't thinking of any records, we're just trying to win games," Johnson said.

Orr's blistering shots set up goals by Johnny Bucyk and Derek Sanderson in the first 4½ minutes. Sanderson got another goal later while Mike Walton also collected two goals, his 20th and 21st, with the help of rebounds of Orr shots. Orr now has 62 assists, tops in the league.

Two former Bruins figured in the scoring for the Seals, Wayne Carleton got California's second goal in the second period and Ivan Boldirev got the third Seal goal in the third. Gary Croteau was the other California scorer.

Defenceman Don Awrey, who suffered a broken ankle in Boston's last home loss to Montreal in early November, is expected to return to action Thursday night in Philadelphia against the Flyers, the first game in Boston's road trip.

Jean Ratelle, enjoying one of his most productive seasons, scored three goals—his 37th, 38th and 39th—in pacing the Rangers to their win over the Canucks.

Ratelle scored the first two New York goals, his first coming at the 13-second mark of the game when he knocked in Rod Gilbert's rebound. His second came in the final minute of the second period when he scored on the short side from 30 feet. His final goal was in an empty net when Vancouver pulled goalie Dunc Wilson for a sixth attacker.

Ratelle's three goals gave him 94 points, one fewer than scoring leader Phil Esposito of Boston who earned only an assist in Boston's win.

Bobby Schmautz scored Vancouver's goal, tying the score 1-1 early in the second period, but New York came back with four unanswered goals—three of them in the third period.

The Black Hawks, leaders in the West Division, slipped by the Blues on the strength of two goals by Stan Mikita although St. Louis outshot Chicago 42-25.

The Black Hawks opened a 2-0 lead on Mikita's first-period goal and one by Darryl Maggs in the second period but St. Louis narrowed the gap when Gary Sabourin scored his 10th NHL goal, capitalizing on a rebound from a Bill Plager shot.

Brian Lavender of St. Louis tied the score early in the third period, scoring on a pass from Phil Roberto but Mikita teamed with Dennis Hull to score on a power play in the third period with 11:32 still to go in the game.

Andrews Fights Hockey Inflation

MONTREAL (CP) — The "plus-minus" system of rating a hockey player often inflates or depreciates a player's worth out of proportion, and should be changed in a percentage system, Ron Andrews, the National Hockey League's chief statistician, said Tuesday.

Andrews, who hopes to convince league members that the method should be replaced, said the great flaw in the existing "plus-minus" system is that it does not take into consideration the goals-for-and-against of teams when assessing an individual player.

For instance, Bobby Orr of the Boston Bruins is currently plus 54, meaning that when he has been on the ice, Boston has scored 54 more goals than the opposition. Only goals scored when both teams are at even strength are taken into account.

The same method of evaluating a player gives Richard Martin, Buffalo Sabres' explosive rookie, a minus 34 rating. Martin has scored 38 goals, which tied team-mate Gilbert Perreault's record for rookies.

Boston has outscored the opposition 228-133 while the Sabres have been bombed 314-151. Andrews believes that the team record should be taken into account when the individual's performance is assessed.

He proposed the percentage system, "a much fairer way of assessing a player's worth statistically."

Andrews' proposed system involves calculating the difference between the percentage of a player's goals-for to his team's goals-for and the percentage of the player's goals-against to the team's goals-against.

The percentage system would provide a "much more meaningful" evaluation of an individual player, he said.

For example, Bobby Orr, who had the league's best "plus-minus" record last season with a plus 124, would have had a plus 20.4 per cent using the percentage system.

Doug Roberts of the California Golden Seals, had a minus 56 record last season but would have had a minus 7.2 per cent if Andrews' method was used.

Oaks Commit Cardinal Sin

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

No, no, chaps, you've got it all wrong! It's RECORDS that are made to be broken, not RULES!! It is to be hoped that Ontario Hockey Association president Clarence "Tubby" Schmalz points that out to Oakville Oaks of the OHA Senior A League, who appear to be making a mockery out of hockey's cornerstone regulation: namely that in order to have a game, two teams must show up.

Tuesday night, for the second time in three nights, the Oaks failed to materialize for a scheduled game. Oakville club officials telephoned Owen Sound their intended hosts, to tell them they only had seven players available and would not be making the trip.

Unless my copy of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's 1971-72 rulebook is full of misprints, Oakville should forfeit two points, and the same if they don't show up tonight in Kingston for a rescheduled game they said they couldn't make Sunday because of a "snowstorm".

Rule 61 in the book fails to present itself at the time and place appointed to play any game, the game shall be awarded to the opposing team unless such failure is caused by an unavoidable accident or an unforeseen contingency."

This rule is usually — and correctly — interpreted by OHA officials as ruling out everything short of earthquakes and hurricanes under the "unforeseen contingency" clause.

As if to ward off any punitive measures by the OHA, Oakville also issued a statement Thursday night to the effect they are in danger of folding for the remainder of the season.

Oakville has no more difficult time than any other league entry getting players out for mid-week games. In fact their lot in life is much more bearable than that of say, Belleville Bobcats, who have five players commuting 70 miles from Peterborough just for home games.

Last week the Quintes had back-to-back road trips to make, and lost both without Peterborough teammates Gene O'Donnell in the loss to Oakville Friday and Saturday games, who contributed five goals and three assists.

Belleville made the trip to Kingston Tuesday with 8 dressed skaters, losing 7-5, and the next night lost in Barrie 6-4, despite the fact they had only 10 players to dress against the league leaders, not counting goaltenders.

But did you hear the Quintes complain about playing four games in five nights, three of them on the road? Or have you heard a Belleville threat to withdraw and disrupt the league for lack of finances like Woodstock issued a week ago in an attempt to bolster their box office take?

No club in the senior league has had as much right to go belly-aching as the Quintes. They've lost a sponsor, three solid centremen, and most of their so-called supporters since the season began, but they're still right on with a 40-game schedule with only two games to go.

* * *

And the Quintes today find themselves in the thick of the four-team scramble for the last two of the league's six playoff spots, along with the mauling Oaks and Royals, and Owen Sound, who may scream any minute about the hazard to their players' health caused by bus exhaust fumes.

* * *

Woodstock and Belleville have 28 points, and Oakville and Owen Sound 27 each in the battle for those bottom two playoff rungs. The Royals enjoy one game in hand over the Quintes and Oakville, with two road trips cancelled in three days, now have played two fewer games than Belleville.

Belleville's next game is in Oakville Friday night, that is, unless the Oaks try to get smug from the local Ford plant declared "an unforeseen contingency".

* * *

Meantime, if the Oaks fail to show up in Kingston tonight and commit their third straight truancy, OHA president Schmalz might bear in mind another rulebook provision.

Midgets Oust Trenton

It was better late than never for the Blair Imperials but Western Tire suffered from the early morning blues in a pair of OMHA playdown games in Trenton last night.

Because officials were late in arriving the Imperials didn't start play in the scheduled 7.30 game until 8.45 p.m. Once they did get on the ice the Belleville midgets made the most of the opportunity, however, taking an 8-4 decision to eliminate Trenton three games to one.

Western Tire, whose game didn't wind up until 1.00 a.m. because of the delay, were stopped 5-3 by the Trenton Junior Ranks juveniles to bow out of sight by a 9-7 count.

A four-goal performance by Mark Coates and the sparkling netminding of Gary Wallace carried the Imperials to their win. Wallace, the team's backup goalie made several tough stops, including one against Trenton's Bill Glover on a penalty shot attempt in the second period.

Coates with four goals and Andy Ricketts with three paced the winners, while captain Paul Ackerman added the other score. Other series standouts included defenseman Martin Thistel and forward Peter Smith.

Two goals late in the third period gave Trenton their series win over Western Tire. The Belleville juveniles had won the opening game of the series before dropping three straight.

Kevin Joudwa scored two goals and Mike Goegan one for the losers in a rough contest that saw Belleville draw 11 of the game's 25 infractions.

No Left Turn

Belleville winger Terry Meagher finds that right turns only are allowed inside Oshawa net as defenceman Rene Beauchemin and goalie Lou Moore block the lane leading to the Crushmen net. Meagher threw a few curves himself however, scoring two goals, including the winner, to pave the Bobcats to a 5-2 win over Oshawa in the opening game of their Eastern Ontario Junior B semi-final series.

Bobcats Satisfy Appetites

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

OSHAWA — Bob Harrison wasn't certain whether the cold turkey his stomach was playoff tension or just acid indigestion, but one thing he was sure of . . . "I've never been in a spot like that before."

The Belleville goalie who wasn't scheduled to see action in last night's Eastern Ontario Junior B playoff opener, had been chain-eating Jersey Milk chocolate bars on the bus ride to Oshawa. Satisfied that starting netminder Bill Cormier wasn't in any trouble he indulged in a hot dog between the second and third periods.

Harrison barely had time for the relish to settle before Cormier was felled by a deflected shot and he was called on to protect a 4-1 lead for the final 18 minutes of the hockey game. His confidence, to say nothing of his digestion, wasn't helped any when a soft centring pass deflected off his defencemen's skate and into the Belleville net. "I never did see the puck," he later related.

From that point, however, the reedy backstop was unbeatable limiting the 4 shots to help the Bobcats hold a 5-2 win over the Oshawa Crushmen in the opening game of the best - of - seven semi-finals.

"If we keep getting goaltending like that we're going to be tough to beat" lauded Belleville coach Moe Hunter of the efforts turned in by Harrison and Cormier, who sported a half - mask of nine size lump over one eye as a result of his third period mishap.

The Bobcats had more than good goaltending going for them, however, playing excellent defensive hockey, while continually beating the Crushmen to the puck. Their tight checking style of play continually frustrated Oshawa, who attempted to play wide open hockey despite the playoff conditions.

"I still don't think we were skating that well," declared Hunter. "We've had a number of guys off with injuries and such and we haven't in top shape. We won that game on guts."

Goals, as well as guts, were helpful in the Bobcats' win that saw where Jeff Howard and Terry Meagher came in. Howard collected a hat trick, while Meagher tallied twice more to account for all of the Belleville scoring.

Howard, a former Thornton Golden Hawk, couldn't remember whether or not he had ever scored three goals against Oshawa before. "But you can be sure I've never scored three in this arena," he deadpanned.

The left winger scored the only goal of the first period on a text book effort, out-racing the Oshawa forwards, and picking the defenceman Gary Armstrong before tucking the puck behind goalie Lou Moore.

Belleville's shots even better in the second frame unleashing 20 shots on goal. Howard upped the count to 2-0 at the 7.00 mark snapping a wrist shot past Moore.

The eventual winner came just 22 seconds later when the portsider feathered a pass to Meagher who tucked the puck under Moore. Rene Beauchemin was the only Crushmen to beat Cormier, scoring on a rebound to make it 3-1.

Meagher snuffed out the Oshawa comeback fire at the 18.23 mark when he took Mark Woodward's puck on the fly and drove a 60-foot slapshot into the bottom right hand corner of the net.

The home team rebounded somewhat in the final period outshooting the Bobcats 16-8 to even the total shots at 41-41. However, Al Bathe, who received credit for the deflected goal on Harrizon was the only Crushman to hit the scoresheet.

Howard completed his hat trick by dumping the puck the length of the ice into an empty net after Moore had been lifted for a sixth attacker in the game's final minute.

Rearguard John Mulvihill was a Belleville blue line standout, lugging the puck out of his own end and playing one of his best defensive games of the season alongside Jim Cain, who travelled from Oakville for the contest. Doug Perry, playing with a four-stitch gash received last week picked up three assists.

Each team drew three penalties including majors to Tim Yohn and Oshawa's Vic Sirko for a third period skirmish.

The second game of the series is scheduled for Friday night at the Memorial Arena in Belleville beginning at 9 p.m.

Jim's Bull Way To Gas Pennant

Jim' Pizza proved that there was no "bull" concerning their right to the Gas House League pennant with a win over Kenmore Esso on Tuesday.

Goalie Gerald Bull turned in a shutout performance as he was hardly necessary as his teammates exploded for nine goals in the 9-0 whitewash. The defending league champions, who operated last season as the downtown Merchants,completed their season with an 11-3-3 mark.

Dave Middleton rapped in three goals to pace the rout while linemate Allan Ray bwd two goals and as many assists. Jim McGuire added two more goals with Carl Boomhower and Bob Dafoe getting the others and Doug Olsen drawing four assists.

While Jim's were clinching the pennant, the Mustangs made certain of the eighth and final playoff spot with a 7-2 win over Quinte Electric. John Smith paced the winners with three goals and two assists while Jim Elsie had two of each and Jim Horwood and Pug Keller added the others. Tom Belnap and Chester Thompson scored for the losers.

Rollins Lumber moved into sole possession of first place by ripping Stewart Warner 8-1. Gary Ray and Brian Skinner each had a hat trick for the lumbermen with the other goal going to Gerry Lucas and John Hill. The losers' lone goal went to Paul Scollard.

In the other game played the Hospital served up a 6-1 win over the Teachers on the strength of Dan Murphy's two goals and single tallies by Paul Kinnard and Bill Van Gollen. The Teachers' rope was made by Paul McMichael.

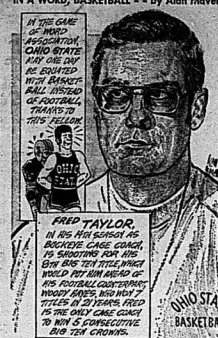
Ashe Bites Dust

TORONTO (CP) — Tennis star Arthur Ashe did a United States state department tour of Africa two years ago but if President Nixon ever asked him to do one in Canada, he'd probably refuse.

"I should stay away from Canada—I've never had good luck in Canada," Ashe said after he was upset 6-4, 6-4 by unseeded Graham Stilwell of Great Britain Tuesday in first-round play in a $50,000 World Championship Tennis tournament.

Ashe, who was seeded sixth here, lost in the first round in last year's Canadian Open and in the second round of a WCT tournament last year in Quebec City.



"There's no use coming to Quebec (where a WCT tournament is scheduled April 10-16) because there's no chance."

Other seeded players fared better.

Top-seeded Rod Laver of Australia eliminated stubborn Brian Fairlie of New Zealand 6-3, 6-4; second-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia outlasted countryman Phil Dent 6-4, 6-2, and fifth-seeded Bob Lutz of Tiburon, Calif., beat Aussie Terry Addison 6-3, 7-6.

Today's play, which begins at 1 p.m. EST, calls for the second-round singles draw leading to the final that is worth $10,000 to the winner and $5,000 to the loser.

Riley at His Best as Lakers Dump Royals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pat Riley of Los Angeles Lakers posted career highs for points and rebounds as the Lakers downed Cincinnati Royals 125-118 in National Basketball Association action Tuesday night.

Elsewhere, Boston Celtics beat Portland Trailblazers 111-104, Baltimore Bullets whipped Houston Rockets 113-96, Atlanta Hawks downed Detroit Pistons 113-105 and Golden State Warriors shaded Buffalo Braves 103-100.

In the ABA, it was Dallas 116, Virginia 111; Carolina 126, Pittsburgh 113; Kentucky 101, Indiana 99; the Floridians 125, Denver 124 in overtime and Utah 118, Memphis 99.

The Lakers led 26-16 early in the game when the Royals scored 14 points in a row to grab a 10-point lead. In came Riley to score eight points in 11 minutes as the Lakers closed the gap to six. And then they trailed by nine after one period.

Riley stayed in and propelled Los Angeles to a 40-point quarter.

His over-all statistics: 12 of 17 shots from the floor, three of three from the free throw line in 27 minutes of playing time, nine rebounds and 27 points.

Schranz Makes Room for Aspiring Skiers

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Annemarie Proell of Austria and Henri Duvillard of France, leaders on the World Cup skiing circuit, are expected to have trouble retaining first place in the series when it resumes Thursday.

Women's and men's special and giant slalom are to be held until Saturday at the steep slopes of Mount Norquay, but the leaders' weakness lies in the fact that their speciality is downhill and no downhill is scheduled for this meet.

Miss Proell has one serious challenger to face—Fiorella Macelli of France, second with 187 points, just 16 behind the 18-year-old Austrian. Isabelle Mir of France trails with 73 points in third place.

Duvillard, however, has several challengers, notably second-place Jean-Noel Augert also of France. With 194 points, Augert is only three behind Duvillard and he's considered one of the best slalom skiers in the world.

Third place is wide open. It is held by Austrian Karl Schranz, the three-time world champion who was banned from the Winter Olympics at Sapporo, Japan, because of alleged commercialism. He announced his retirement, from all competition Tuesday in Vienna.

In a letter to Karl-Heinz Klee, president of the Austrian Ski Federation Schranz, at 33, one of the oldest and most successful skiers in the sport, said he retired because of state treatment and promises broken by international sports officials.

Schranz said his decision to leave international skiing circuit was prompted by failure of the International Ski Federation to stage separate world championships despite previous assurances.

That, however, never came about, and apparently disturbed Schranz.

He said he would not take part in the forthcoming World Cup races and had no immediate plans to turn professional.

Gustavo Thoeni of Italy, winner of the gold medal for his slalom performance at Sapporo, is fourth with 67 points and although his World Cup performance has been late developing, it's felt he'll pick up enough points to overtake Schranz.

Betsy Clifford of Ojibwa, now retired, is the top Canadian in women's standings with 73 points for fifth place. Judy Crawford of Toronto is in 18th place while sisters Kathy and Laurie Kidner of Timmins, Ont., are 26th and 30th.

The only Canadian among the 50 men who hold points is Jim Hunter of Calgary, tied with two points picked up at St. Moritz, Switzerland, in the opening downhill of the series last December.

Points for the first 10 places in each event are 25, 20, 15, 11, 8, 6, 4, 3, 2 and 1.

The two runs in the men's giant slalom are scheduled for Thursday and the two in women's slalom for Friday. On Saturday, there will be a one-run women's giant slalom and the two runs of the men's slalom.

From Banff, the competitors go to Crystal Mountain, Wash., for the 15th meet Feb. 26-27. The 20-meet series ends at Mont Le Loup, France, March 18-19. The men face two more special slalom, three giant slaloms and two downhills while the women have one more special slalom, three more giant slaloms and three downhills.

At Mount Norquay, meanwhile, the plunging North American run and downhill are closed to recreational skiers early this week to allow the international stars a chance to familiarize themselves with the courses.

The giant slalom courses are 1,200 feet and 2,300 feet for men and women respectively, while the special slalom runs are 1,650 and 1,400.

A high temperature of 40 degrees was forecast for today with no wind. Snow conditions at Mount Norquay, visible from the downtown section of this Rocky Mountain resort town, were described as good.

Paduano Hits Paydirt

MONTREAL (CP) — Donato Paduano has a big pay day following Tuesday night's unanimous decision over Fernand Marcotte Jr. of Quebec City in a 12-round light-middleweight fight at the Forum.

The Italian-born Montreal fighter will collect 25 per cent of a gate of $91,321 while his adversary will claim 20 per cent of the total gate receipts from 11,028 fans.

Marcotte, 22, came out swinging in the fight and surprised his opponent with a hard right that sent Paduano crashing to the canvas barely 15 seconds after the fight began.

After the fight Paduano, 22, told reporters that the Marcotte right "surprised me, but it didn't hurt me a bit."

"I picked up right there and it was my fight all the way."

The win was the 28th in 32 fights for the former Canadian welterweight champion. He has lost three and drew with Marcotte when he met the latter in another 10-rounder last Nov. 4.

Marcotte, who suffered his first loss in 19 fights, has 16 wins and two drawn to his credit.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

After you've reached the top of a mountain and seen the view, what do you do?

If you're singer Anne Murray, you look around for another mountain to climb.

Anne reached the top of her first mountain of success back in 1970. She found the view from the highest level beautiful, but it was a lonely place to be and just being there somehow wasn't as satisfying as the climb to get there.

This year, Anne hopes to climb another mountain and recapture, at least in some degree, that old feeling of excitement and the anticipation of the view to come.

Of course, "there's no way it can be any way like the first time," says the husky-voiced former teacher from Springhill, N.S.

"In the beginning, I was really enjoying it," she says wistfully of her career which began in 1966 on a Halifax television show.

But after a year—following her 1970 hit recording of Gene MacLellan's Snowbird—as Canada's top pop vocalist, "there's not any more interfaction."

In fact, in the course of an hour's conversation with Anne, she mentions a number of dissatisfactions she has about the professional angling business.

Privacy.

"Sometimes I get a little upset at the lack of privacy Privacy is impossible in fan business, and basically I'm a very private person. My own privacy is becoming more and more important to me."

Travel.

"I'm doing all that travelling and not seeing anything. All my career see is the hotel and stage and nothing else."

Loneliness.

"I have people around me, lawyers, managers, producers, my musicians. But they don't know what it is like to be in my place. It's lonely."

Success itself.

"It becomes clouded by money and all the things that have to be taken care of. You get so swept up in the working of it all. So messed up. So many things that are happening. I'm not laughing yet. It's still a big mess as far as I'm concerned."

What keeps her in the business?

"I wish I knew. It isn't drive because I haven't the necessary drive to be in the business. I just go along with things. I think about giving up every now and then."

But then she reasons, "nothing is all peaches and cream."

"I'm getting over a bump in Canada right now I guess. I've reached the pinnacle. Canada's audience knows what to expect so I think it is time to go."

She says that after completing her third television special for the CBC this season—originally, the CBC wanted to do as many as eight Anne Murray specials in 1971-72—she'll concentrate her personal appearances in the United States, where "there are a lot of people to be entertained and I'll be starting over again."

"I peaked in Canada, but not so much in the U.S. I was in demand in Canada because I was recognized in the U.S. Now, I need a new audience. Maybe what happened here will happen to me again there."

However, there is "no doubt" about her continuing to live in Canada. Recently bought a $75,000 home in a fashionable district of Toronto and although after a couple months she had only spent six days in it, she says "those six days were worth the money I paid for it."

When allowed, she looks upon herself as a "sort of ambassador."

"I take brochures of Nova Scotia with me whenever I go down to Los Angeles and I have Canadian flags all over."

Stirling

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones observed their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday. Their family entertained them to dinner and the next day, an "open House" was held at the home of their daughters Mrs. Wm. Eggleton. The couple have resided in Stirling since their marriage.

John's Restaurant on Mill St. has recently been purchased by two Belleville men George Syntetos and John Koutsoumbis. It will be renamed the J. and G. Restaurant.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Chief Electoral Officer and Staff Already Hard at Work

OTTAWA (CP) — Officially, Jean Marc Hamel doesn't care whether you vote in the next federal election or not.

But Mr. Hamel, the country's chief electoral officer, and his staff are working hard to ensure that you'll know how to go about voting.

With a revised act on the books and speculation flying about a spring election, he and his staff are in high gear on an information program.

It is designed to highlight Canada Elections Act changes that affect the voter and give an outline of voter rights and privileges.

Those who run elections have turned to the same methods candidates use to get their messages across.

A five-page pamphlet, outlining the legal changes and what they mean to the individual voter, is to be in every household within about seven days of an election announcement.

The voter will be urged to keep it as a reference until the election is over.

Consideration also is being given to television, radio and newspaper advertisements spaced through the five or six weeks of an election campaign, to complement and stress the material in the pamphlet.

Drafts of the pamphlet, both English and French versions, were tested on about 200 Ottawa residents picked to represent a wide social spectrum. A questionnaire followed to assess its value.

Some revisions of the text then were made and it now has been sent to the printers.

Boiling down the hundreds of pages and complicated legal language of the electoral law into a pamphlet of a few dozen pages was a major task.

"Even so, we've managed to cover about 85 per cent of the law," the consultant said.

In simple terms, the sections spell out:

—Who can vote;

—How an election is run;

—How enumeration, the actual voter-head count, is taken;

—How voter lists are made, including how to get your name on if you were inadvertently overlooked.

—How to use advance polls.

—How to use a voting proxy, a step being introduced for the first time in federal elections.

—Hours polling stations are open.

—What the ballot slip looks like, how to mark it, and how secrecy of choice is protected.

The electoral law was revised by Parliament in 1970 and the Commons committee on privileges and elections suggested an information campaign before next election to make the new system clear to voters.

The campaign is a result of the suggestions by MPs but also could have other elections experts see as a beneficial side effect.

An open and public system, for everything except how the voter marks his ballot, is considered the best way to guard against attempts to tamper with the process. The more public knowledge about how the system works, and what is legal and what illegal, the less chance of someone trying to pull a fast one and the more chance he'll be caught if he does.

The pamphlet stresses the positive aspect. If you see that a neighbor's name has been left off the voting list, for example, you are urged to make this known to electoral officials.

The unstated side of the coin, of course, is that a voter who spots a name on the list taken from a nearby cemetery tombstone also is expected to call it.

Keeping the machinery operating in the people's view is the idea because, as one expert puts it, "it's a process that belongs to them."

Mexican Rock Fragment Dates Back to 31 B. C.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chance find by a farmer in Mexico of a fragment of a large monument has confirmed the oldest recorded date in the New World.

It matches perfectly the broken slabs uncovered by archeologist Matthew W. Stirling while on an expedition at the same site in 1939 for the National Geographic Society and the Smithsonian Institution.

The date equates to 31 B.C.

The missing fragment delighted Stirling, now a research associate at the Smithsonian, and an adviser to the National Geographic Society.

"There was always a little doubt," Stirling said. "This new fragment demonstrates beyond any question that our original date reading was correct, and the stela predated the Mayas. The Olmecs devised the bar and dot calendar originally credited to the Mayas."

Research Council Asks Fluoride Study

OTTAWA (CP) — A National Research Council study calls for concerted scientific investigation of the effects of fluoride on man.

It suggests that man may be adding more fluoride than he should so that already naturally occurring in his environment, with possible negative effects to his health.

The report, released Tuesday says man is probably exposed to more environmental fluoride than was suspected, and that there is a large scientific gap as to what effect that could have.

It notes that scientific investigation of the effects of fluoride on humans has focused on extremes. It has shown that low levels of fluoride—such as those added to a municipality's water supply to prevent tooth decay—have no significant negative effect in themselves.

And other studies have shown that very toxic doses of fluoride can induce "many types of derangements."

Such doses, the report says, have produced symptoms that include skeletal abnormalities, anemia and other blood derangements as well as skin, eye, gastro-intestinal and neurological symptoms.

There has been little work done, it says, on what effect "borderline" levels of fluoride might have on man—levels that could result from absorbing fluoride from several sources.

These could include a fluoridated water supply, fluoridated toothpaste and vitamin pills, food from fluoride-polluted areas and beverages prepared with fluoridated water, as well as dermatological cosmetics and aerosol sprays that emit fluoride in various ways.

The report—a monograph prepared by J. R. Marier, an associate chemist in the council's environmental section, and Dyson Rose in the cell culture section of the biology division—says it is difficult to document the effects of fluoride on man in Canada, because analysis has been limited, and results variable in tests using low levels of the element.

It points out that fluoride is naturally present in varying degrees in different geographical locations, meaning that fluoride added by man would have a more or less significant effect from area to area.

Dr. Marier, interviewed Tuesday, said:

"I'm not trying to be an alarmist, but I don't want to be overly reassuring and sweep this under the rug on the grounds that fluoride will never hurt us, because I'm not all that sure."

Canada's Trade Surplus Slashed

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's January trade surplus was cut sharply this year to $5.3 million from $208.7 million in January last year.

Statistics Canada reported Tuesday commodity imports last month from all countries totalled $1.35 billion, up 31.9 per cent from a year earlier. Exports, as announced earlier, grew by only 5.1 per cent, to $1.36 billion from $1.3 billion.

On Monday, the bureau reported that Canada's over-all balance of international payments for both goods and services was cut sharply in the final three months of 1971, showing a $733 million deficit compared with a $330 million surplus in the previous three months.

Imports from the U.S. last month rose 36.9 per cent to $914.1 million from $720.3 million in January, 1971, while exports to the American market rose 23 per cent to $995.3 million from $814.6 million.

Statisticians, however, warn against using one month's winter trade figures to indicate a trend, because of factors like weather and transportation that can affect them.

Stream of Jews from Russia Draws Ire of Young Israelis

TEL AVIV (AP) — As Soviet immigrants stream into Israel for the second year, they are being greeted by something new — an undercurrent of resentment among Israeli-born.

Russian Jews arriving in an almost nightly airlift from Vienna — an estimated 13,000 came in 1971 — are warmly welcomed in public. But the private welcome is sometimes cool.

Premier Golda Meir admits "there are problems."

"This is not their country — it's mine," said Ami Rasso, a 22-year-old native-born Israeli.

"Do you know why? Because I helped pay for it. In my high school class we had 30 boys. Now there are 18 of us left, and three of them are crippled for life."

Many Israelis charge that the government favors the Soviet settlers over young Israeli conscripts who have given strength to the nation by risking a decent place to live at today's inflated prices.

The Russians are given homes as soon as they arrive. And they are exempt from the military service they are exempt from income tax for three years.

Thousands of Jewish immigrants from the United States, South America and other areas are usually better able to provide for themselves than the Russians, who often arrive penniless.

Hundreds Trapped In Prairie Blizzard

Crime Victim To Get Help

OTTAWA (CP) — Compensation for victims of crime and federal participation in a public program of legal aid were promised today in the speech from the throne opening a new session of Parliament.

The speech outlining the government's legislative program also promised policies to ensure the equality of women in Canadian society, an extension of public housing programs with community participation and establishment of three new national parks in the Far North.

the last session and subjects of public controversy—will be reintroduced in modified form.

The speech was read by Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener to senators and MPs assembled in the scarlet and walnut Senate chamber.

It said "protective steps" would be taken in a number of areas of wide concern to Canadians, including the non-medical use of drugs, compensation for victims of crime, and the protection of privacy. But it did not spell out in any detail what these steps would be.

The 3,700-word speech, longer than usual, swept over nearly every aspect of national affairs, stating the government's philosophy about the need to bring everyone into active participation.

A federal government official told reporters that 10 government bills will be introduced in the next few days, and six ministers will participate in the throne speech debate. The debate starts Friday with speeches by Prime Minister Trudeau and opposition party leaders.

The government also will push an expansion of its housing program and announce a policy

Airport Service Worsens

OTTAWA (CP) — As talks continued in an attempt to get Canada's airport electronic technicians back on the job, their strike continued into its 13th day today and Canadian airport service continued to deteriorate.

Only clear weather over most of the country Wednesday helped air traffic movement but nevertheless Air Canada cancelled more than half its flights out of Toronto and about two-thirds of its domestic flights from Montreal. Airlines urged passengers to take buses or trains.

Three Saskatchewan Buses Are Missing

REGINA (CP) — There was fear for the safety of hundreds of motorists trapped by a wild prairie blizzard which shrieked across southern Saskatchewan Wednesday night and early today.

The storm, with winds up to 70 miles an hour, left four inches of snow and brought most transportation to a standstill in and around Regina, Moose Jaw, Estavan and Weyburn.

Three passenger buses were reported missing on the 45-mile Regina-Moose Jaw run and the 200-mile stretch between Regina and Saskatoon.

Two of the buses, owned by Greyhound Lines, started the 45-mile trip in early evening and had not been seen by 1 a.m.

The third, operated by the government-owned Saskatchewan Transportation Co., left Saskatoon in the evening and had been following another bus. The first bus made it safely to Regina, but the second had not been seen.

Police said hundreds of cars were strewn along roads but little could be done to assist stranded persons until visibility improved.

About 40 cars were in ditches along a 17-mile stretch between Regina and Lumsden. Another 15 cars carrying skiers were stuck near Boggy Creek recreation area, eight miles northeast of the city.

RCMP said one of their patrol cars made it into Lumsden after one officer walked in front of the car for five miles.

One officer said he feared for the life of anyone who left a stranded vehicle.

"You can't even see to walk," he said.

Roadblocks had been set up at the exits to major towns and cities affected to prevent cars from going on the highways.

Nixon Today Starts Trip To Peking

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon was scheduled to embark today on the 19,000-mile journey to Peking that stunned friends and foes alike when it was announced eight months ago.

His leisurely four-day flight across the Pacific reaches its climax Monday when he arrives in the Chinese capital.

The dramatic impact of his diplomatic thunderbolt — switching from a onetime implacable opponent of Peking t. the travelling American president going to the mountain — might not be translated immediately into concrete results. Few anticipate that, not even Nixon.

But U.S. officials are confident that, eventually, normal relations will be re-established between two countries with a history of friendly relations.

Decisions Facing Canadians

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian Ambassador Marcel Cadieux said today "Canadians are in a quandry" over their economic future and many questions "must be faced now and resolved soon."

"We must find answers which reconcile our traditions, our friendship and, ultimately, of course, our national interests," he said in a luncheon address to a conference of Canadian and U.S. business and government executives.

Nixon "did what he had to do" in announcing the sweeping new economic policy "the end was the only one he could in his responsibility pursue."

But the measures—including the temporary 10-per-cent surtax on dutiable imports—"are something else."

"Like the rain, they fell on the just and the unjust alike. We Canadians were caught out in the downpour looking up with our umbrellas furled."

Old Buildings Come Down

Striking British Miners Try to Cut Oil Delivery

LONDON (AP) — Striking coal miners blockaded oil supplies from two of Britain's biggest refineries today in a bid to intensify power blackouts curtailing industry, darkening homes and making idle millions of workers.

To block supplies to oil-fed electricity generating plants, the miners threw up picket lines at the refineries on the Thames and Tees rivers and railway workers refused to cross them to transport the oil. Virtually no oil left the refineries.

Most of Britain's power plants run on coal, and their supplies are expected to be gone by the end of the month. But Prime Minister Edward Heath's government is relying on oil-fuelled stations to maintain at least 25 per cent of normal electricity output when the coal runs out.

With factories cut to half time because of the blackouts, three government mediators worked overtime in the hope of ending the strike that threatens to bring British industry to a halt in two weeks. The three-man court of inquiry headed by Lord Wilberforce was expected to announce its recommendations Friday for settling the 24-week walkout by 280,000 miners demanding higher pay.

Outlook Darkened

LONDON (AP) — The economic crisis resulting from the British coal strike today threatened Prime Minister Edward Heath's plans to lead Britain into the European Common Market.

It had been Heath's aim to lead a strong, buoyant, thriving Britain into the Common Market.

Until last month the prospects seemed bright.

But last month things began going wrong.

Then came the coal strike leading into the staggering electric power crisis that has shattered hopes of a yearly economic expansion.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: An intense but weakening storm now is centred on the Great Lakes. Cloud in advance of the storm has already spread over the west half of the southern part of the province. Light snow has begun to fall over the western Great Lakes and will spread across the eastern portions of Ontario today and tonight. Only a dusting of snow is expected through the daylight hours today. However, up to four inches of snow is likely to fall tonight and Friday.

Drugs Suspected In Brighton Suicides

BRIGHTON, Ont. (CP) — A coroner in this community of 2,800 has ordered an inquest following the suspected suicides of three-teenaged friends because of "the strong possibility" that drugs were involved.

Dr. W. O. Elliott said Wednesday an inquest into the death last Sunday of Robert Young, 16, who died of a .22-calibre bullet wound, will open March 2.

The other victims were Harold Bath, 17, of Colbourne, 10 miles east of here, and Kevin Haig, 16, of Brighton. Both died of shotgun wounds Dec. 30 in separate incidents at their homes.

"We are hoping that an airing of this case, (Robert's death) will bring all possible information of the drug scene here—if

Maniac Slays Three Infants

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — A knife-wielding maniac ran amok among sleeping children in a Blackpool hospital early today and escaped after stabbing three children to death as they slumbered in their cots.

Two nurses were badly wounded and another child suffered minor skin injuries in the attack on the children's ward of the 900-bed Victoria Hospital.

More than 200 police combed the hospital grounds and a nearby park for the berserk killer, described as a tall young man with dark hair and a foreign accent.

Roadblocks were set up on every highway leading out of this holiday resort on England's northwest coast.

Police said the intruder walked into the ward on the hospital's second floor at 1 a.m., claiming to be a member of the staff and asking for sleeping tablets.

Then, without warning, he pulled his knife and stabbed two duty nurses in the chest.

One of the nurses, though badly wounded, crawled to a telephone and raised the alarm.

By that time a chorus of terrified screams was echoing all over the ward as the killer raced from cot to cot, knife flashing.

Medical orderlies hurried to the scene and found the room in a state of bedlam. The intruder had gone after stabbing four infants.

The three dead were identified as Deborah Carson, 4; Martin Langhorne, 2, and Nicholas Scott, 2. Another two-year-old boy, Darren Quarmer, was listed in satisfactory condition.

The stabbed nurses—Dorothy Simpson, 40, and Christine Nuttall, 22—underwent emergency surgery that saved their lives.

Miracle Drug For TB Found

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto tuberculosis specialist says a new drug called Rifampin used experimentally to treat patients suffering from infectious pulmonary tuberculosis has produced "dramatic—little short of miraculous—results."

Dr. G. L. Gale, chief of staff at Toronto Hospital, said the drug was used on 60 patients for two years in a test program under his auspices.

Catholic Militia man Slain in Londonderry

BELFAST (AP) — Terrorists in Northern Ireland murdered a part-time militiaman and killed another British soldier Wednesday night, raising the country's death toll in 2½ years of violence to at least 245.

Thomas Callaghan, a Roman Catholic member of the mostly Protestant Ulster Defence Regiment, was dragged from the bus he was driving in Londonderry's Creggan District as his passengers screamed. The gunmen bundled him into a car, shot him through the head and dumped his body at the edge of a road on the other side of the city.

Colleagues said he had been warned he would be shot.

The soldier died in Belfast when terrorists riddled a jeep with machine-gun fire. He was the 51st British soldier killed in Northern Ireland.

Rescue Attempt

A member of the crew of a Canadian Forces helicopter is lowered to the deck of the fishing dragger Gulf Gull in an attempt to rescue any survivors of the vessel. Only seconds before, Ernie Burns, 17, of New Waterford, N.S., was rescued from the deck of the vessel after spending more than 30 hours trapped in the wheelhouse. The vessel went aground and broke up in heavy seas.

Members Approve Authority Budget

A Moira River Conservation Authority budget of $373,080 for 1972 was approved by authority members Wednesday at their annual general meeting in Canifton.

Of this total, $274,955 is expected from government grants and another $62,325 will come from municipalities, to benefit from special projects planned, leaving $35,800 to be raised by levy against the 17 member municipalities.

Authority administration will cost $42,800 of which $30,030 will come from government grants; Operation and maintenance of water control structures will cost $9,400 with $7,050 coming from grants and maintenance of conservation area, $2,850 for which the authority pays full costs.

This year's municipal levy of $28,000 is up $2,000 from last year's figure.

Of the total municipal levy, Belleville will pay $15,775 — up from $13,614 last year; Hungerford will pay, $1,505; Sidney $1,620 and Thurlow $1,712. Other municipalities in the authority will pay amounts ranging from $774 for Madoc township down to $100, which is the minimum levy.

Municipal levies are based on assessment according to the municipality within the watershed.

Of the 17 member municipalities, only six — Deloro, Stoneridge, Hungerford, Madoc township and village, and Tweed are 100 per cent within the watershed.

Belleville is 61 per cent within the watershed, while a mere two per cent of Richmond township is in the Moira watershed, that balance of the township being in the Napanee organization.

This year, if the ice control dam problem is settled, Belleville will contribute an estimated $63,325 toward this project as the chief benefiting municipality, while another $8,400 would go toward the lower Moira greenbelt area.

Provincial grants this year toward the two projects would be $195,700 for the ice control dam and $26,250 for the greenbelt area.

Wreckers Move in on Eyesore

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Part of Belleville's history will soon be a pile of rubble, and not too many tears will be shed.

At the corner of Victoria and Pinnacle, one of the city's early banks, plus the old Ontario Hydro maintenance offices, are being stripped by the wreckers.

Local historian, Kenneth S. Hill of the Hastings County Museum, identified the yellow clapboard building as the old Bank of Upper Canada offices, which were located on this central downtown corner in the 1820s.

This bustling corner, once known as Hotel and Pinnacle Streets was once a centre of the business district, with the Bank of Montreal on the southeast corner, faced by the Bank of Upper Canada. The bend in Victoria, says Mr. Hill, was owing to the existence of a prominent hotel.

When the streets were laid out, planners naturally built around the large edifice, which has long since disappeared.

The Bank of Upper Canada with head offices first in Kingston and later in Toronto, failed in 1866, and from that time on, the house-like structure housed a variety of people and businesses.

On April 10, 1918, Ontario Hydro acquired the property and the adjoining red brick factory building from John S. McGurn, for the sum of $6,500.

Norman Manning of Ontario Hydro says the clapboard bank building was used to store miscellaneous materials, tools and records.

The larger brick building, connected by a long passageway, housed a machine shop, meter repair shop, clerical staff, and stock. At one time, two foremen, four machinists, seven technicians, a chief clerk, two assistant clerks, a stockkeeper and a stockkeeper's helper were employed there.

Ontario Hydro's public relations representative says the electric company had at one time been housed in at least half a dozen different locations. By 1957, most of these had been phased out, with the construction of the eastern regional headquarters on Dundas Street.

Since that time, the two buildings have stood vacant.

Records indicate the "bulk of equipment in the building had to be rigidly controlled on instance of the building inspector as the structure is in a deteriorated condition", That was in the 1950s.

Maurice H. Rollins, local developer and contractor, purchased the corner properties, plus the disused Dominion Food Store on Victoria Avenue for "speculation".

As yet, he is undecided about the future of this corner. For now, however, "I'm tearing it down to get rid of the eyesore.

"It will be a temporary parking lot right now," he added.

Sale or rental of the former Dominion Store property is also undecided.

Sources have indicated Mr. Rollins had been considering the corner site for construction of downtown senior citizens' homes, but this morning he informed The Intelligencer "that site was not submitted for the senior citizens' home".

"We bought it with a view to something in mind, but nothing definite right now," he said.

Job-skill Training Major Need--Potter

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ontario's ever-emphasis on post-secondary education is producing too many young people who lack the job skills to find employment, Health Minister Richard Potter said Wednesday.

"Our society cannot support this top-heavy educational program we are attempting," Mr. Potter told a meeting of the St. Clair region branch of the Addiction Research Foundation.

"An ever-increasing proportion" of graduates from universities, community colleges "are finding it impossible to find jobs," he said. "In other words they have specialized ourselves right out of the market — we have become over-educated and under-trained.

"We are not keeping up with the training of skilled labor and tradesmen, and are allowing ourselves to become more and more dependent on our New Canadians to fill this vacuum."

Dr. Potter said even vocational schools don't go far enough in teaching job skills and "on-the-job training is a necessity in order to properly qualify tradesmen."

He blamed unions for making it difficult for plant managers to hire and train more apprentices.

there is one," said Dr. Elliott. "Unfortunately, investigation so far has brought no cooperation from the teenagers of Brighton.

"There was no suggestion of the need for an inquest at first, but now the people are upset at three deaths."

E. J. Hills, executive assistant to Dr. H. B. Colman, Ontario's supervising coroner, said the inquest will officially investigate only the death of the Young youth.

"It's pretty clear, just on the basis of what we've turned up so far, that you can't talk about one death without bringing in all three," he said in a Toronto interview.

Robert and Kevin were students at East Northumberland secondary school. Both had dropped out of the same school last year, but remained a friend of the other two youths.

School principal H. S. Ewing declined to discuss the deaths but did say "there is a drug scene in Brighton, no denying that . . . but it's on the wane."

It's A Question of Safety

Students from Prince Edward Collegiate mull over a problem during IAPA safety quiz. They defeated a team from Trenton High School and will now go on to Kingston in bid to reach Ontario championship. Questions covered all aspects of safety from boating to first aid and driving to firearms. Moderator, left, is Jim Dunlop of Corby Distilleries.

PECI Wins District Safety Quiz

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Could you name a club formed to promote safety footwear? Do you know why all accidents should be reported? Or how many car lengths you should be behind someone travelling 50 miles an hour?

If you had put in four and a half hours weekly since November and an additional half hour's studying at home in the evenings, you might have a chance. But for most people, safety knowledge is one of those enigmatic topics that arise only after it's too late.

Not for eight local high school students. Seven boys and one girl from Prince Edward Collegiate and Trenton High School met last night at Legion Hall in Belleville to decide the Belleville-Trenton section champion in the Industrial Accident Prevention Association's annual safety quiz.

It was knowledge — not hardhats — that proved the greatest precaution. Prince Edward, after a repeated training program set out by their coach, Herb Plewis-hicks, won the contest easily 335-75, despite Trenton's big, last effort since the two schools began competing three years ago.

First half of the contest took the form of toss-up questions, with 10 points awarded to the first team to buzz with a correct answer and five for partially correct answers. The second part involved questions put to students individually, the penalty for a wrong answer being deduction of 10 points. Students were allowed 10 seconds in which to respond and the entire quiz took 28 minutes.

Many of the questions are a matter of common sense. For instance, accidents should be reported so that resulting investigations can help prevent their recurrence. And the correct distance at 50 miles per hour is three car lengths.

But what's the name of a safety footwear club? That one stumped many of the teachers and friends who were in the hall to cheer the contestants. The answer is the Ten-on-two Club.

Bev Sharpe, a grade 12 student at Prince Edward and the lone female safety expert, said afterward she became interested in the IAPA quiz for practical reasons.

"It's a good thing to know about for emergencies. Some day, your husband or wife could be in trouble with no one around to help them but yourself."

She and her teammates, Mark Vincent, Steve Wilkinson and Barry Matthie, now move on to Kingston where another school will attempt to block their path to the Ontario championship they won two years ago. The match, scheduled for Monday, Feb. 21, will be televised on CKWS, channel 11, at 5:30 p.m.

More than 100 schools and 32,000 students around the province are taking part in this year's competition. Schools previously eliminated in this area were Bayside, Centre Hastings, North Hastings, Quinte and Centennial.

There is no material reward for the students other than a small scholarship. Last night's winners received scholarships of $15 each with $10 going to the runners-up.

The Prince Edward quartet began studying when school commenced in September and they will continue, if lucky, until the Ontario championship in Toronto April 10. Much of the curriculum involves reading industrial handouts, although coach Plwishkins encourage his team to make up its own questions.

Prince Edward had a decided advantage going into last night's match. Their experience over the past two years gave them access to many questions Trenton had never heard before.

In fact, one of the losing competitors could be heard to moan, as he left his seat: "They knew all the questions. That one about the tank — no way . . ."

Classroom in Mall Is Planned As Education Week Feature

At least one school will go directly to the community during Education Week, March 5 through 11, as Prince Charles School in Belleville opens a classroom in Quinte Mall.

"It will give people who don't usually have an opportunity to see children in action, a chance to see a school program," said principal D. L. Moore of Prince Charles.

A different class, from kindergarten through grade 6, will occupy the mall classroom each day, he said. About 40 to 50 youngsters and two or three teachers will be in class each day.

The setup will resemble as closely as possible a normal classroom, with all the usual equipment and teaching aids.

While they are in the Mall, the pupils will use it as a theme, investigating its operation from the point of view of consumers, employers and employees. They will study such things as how produce is brought into the shops and how it is stored.

As a window, an audio-visual display will be presented on the over-all operation of the school Friday night; March 11, in the Mall.

The classroom in the Mall is one of several innovative programs planned for education week around the theme: community grows through education.

In north Hastings, teachers will take over the pulpits in district churches to preach education sermons on Sunday.

The two kickoff broadcasts, in Belleville and Bancroft, will be linked by radio station CJBQ with a dial hookup to bring the ceremonies to the public. The Sir Maurice Bowell award for educator of the year will be announced at this time.

NDP leader Stephen Lewis will be the beer pit speaker on CJBQ's open line show March 9. The program will originate in North Hastings High School in Bancroft, with students from the school participating. A speaker for the beer pit session in the south of the county has yet to be chosen.

An Education Week magazine in tabloid form will be distributed to county ratepayers through their school districts.

Sales and Ad Club Hears Sales Secrets

Members of the Belleville Sales and Ad Club were told Tuesday "education by itself was not important" but rather "what one did with what one learned".

Speaker was R. J. Burgess of Westinghouse. He told club members that as salesmen one of the first things to learn is that "the customer wants you to listen to him".

"Then you must look for ways to help the customer," said Mr. Burgess. Salesmen must be sure they have analyzed the customer's question accurately "before you give the answer".

Mr. Burgess said one of the primary responsibilities of a salesman is "to translate ideas to the benefit of the customer. Tell him what the product will do for him — prove it is in his best interest," he said.

Mohawks Waiting For Grant

TYENDINAGA RESERVE - The Bay of Quinte Mohawks, awaiting further news on more federal assistance, are still working away at rebuilding their council house in which served them as a community hall before being burned down last summer.

Today Chief Earl Hill said the Mohawk band had been informed it would receive a Local Initiatives Program grant. But he didn't know how much.

Estimated cost of rebuilding was set at $50,000 — $27,500 of which already has been collected.

Money in hand includes an outright $12,000 grant made late last year by the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. The remainder consists of money collected by the Mohawks themselves through various projects, including a walkathon, bingos and raffles.

Already the basement of the new centre has been built, and work on a first floor now is being prepared. Completion of the project primarily depends on whether there's enough cash for material, said the chief.

LIP grants may only be spent on labor, with a May deadline, he added.

Chief Hill said he could not be sure if the original $50,000 restoration estimate was now sufficient or the amount of the LIP grant.

"We've had no information on how much has been approved for us," he said.

Boy's Condition Said Improved

Officials at Belleville General Hospital this morning are still listing the condition of five-year-old Ralph Johnson as serious, although "slightly improved".

The Thurlow Township lad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Dodsworth, was run over by a school bus near his RR4, Belleville, home at the corner of Elmwood Drive and Highway 2. He had been attempting to retrieve a balloon which had blown under the bus.

He suffered lower abdominal injuries, fractured right ribs and a fractured right shoulder.
